COMING TO THE KING.

BY MISS JULIA C. THOMPSON.

My King bestows with a legal hand
The gifts from his storehouse care,
And never a prince of the mightiest land
Was blest like the child of his care.

In his sheltering arms so close may I rest,
To his heart of love so near—
That ere my words can frame a request
My wants are breathed in his ear.

And I know that I ne'er can weary my King
With coming and coming again,
Nor fear for the greatest petition I bring,
Or the least for my joy or pain.

And when, still unanswered, some prayer I repeat,
Till my heart with its longing is faint,
I know that in ways and in time most meet
The answer will come to my plaint.

And the boon I have craved was in love denied,
That a better might take its place;
For out of his fullness the King will provide
The best for the child of his grace.

And when my faith he has strengthened and tried
Till the earthly dross shall remove,
I shall know how true and how tender a guide
Is the King of my life and love.

Bishop Warren on the Ecumenical Conference.

Bishop Warren in the Independent gives an interesting article on the late Ecumenical Council. We give the latter part in answer to the inquiry as to the purposes of gathering:

What, then, were the purposes of this gathering

(a.) Partly that the world might take knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus, and from the same fountain they had learned the same wisdom. Having the world for its field, the church must use all means to impress it. Twenty-five Methodisms, very different in government, some episcopal, others more prelatical in fact, though not in form, often rivaling each other in the same territory, some having formerly withstood each other to the face in council, as Paul did Peter, because he was to be blamed, and parted asunder when the contention was sharp, as Barnabas departed into Cyprus from Paul, some having sustained the relation of master and slave now making dramatic demonstrations of brotherhood—all these sitting together in harmonious delight, each interested in the success of his own church, but absorbed in that of the Master's kingdom, was a sublime spectacle. The world did not fail to recognize it. The London Times, with its [illegible] gave the conference two characteristic and appreciative editorials. The special correspondents of over [illegible] American newspapers are [illegible] known to me. The [illegible] denominations of Christians sent delegations, and for [illegible] Exeter Hall resounded with the voices and cheers of different [illegible], vying with each other in [illegible] the most kindly words of Christian greeting and confessing [illegible] to the church whose [illegible] gave them an opportunity [illegible] their common love in Christ. The death of Dean Stanley was in nothing more [illegible] than in the fact [illegible] the church he would have [illegible] had, in his ab[illegible] of recognition for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

each other's hands in God. Many of these Methodist bodies had never corresponded. They were more busy with work than visitation. Some had hardly been heard of by the rest. They met, and found the same hymns, prayers, institutions, love-feasts, class-meetings, altar-work in all parts of the world. They compared the doings of the Lord under Methodist auspices in the stream that flowed westward to America, eastward through France, Germany, Italy, to India and Australia, and found that it all bore marks of the same origin and was still vivified by the same power. The conference came to the cradle of Methodism, to the graves of its revered fathers, and to the presence of its greatest living men. It looked into the faces and heard the voices of men famous throughout the connection, and of authors whose books are in every young minister's library. From the eloquent opening sermon on the life in Christ's words, by Bishop Simpson, to the last hand-shaking, it was a kind of ecumenical love-feast. The way was open for a conference of all Methodists in England; another, probably in 1884, of all Methodists in America; and a second Ecumenical conference in 1887.

(c.) That they might compare methods of work and fields of labor. The key-note sought was how to do the best work and the most of it. Hence, the themes discussed were of the most practical character—such as power of Methodism for elevating society; lay preaching; work of women; holy living; training of children; temperance; skepticism; higher education; literature; the newspaper; home and foreign missions; relation to the dependent classes, etc. Had any of the seven or the seventy sleepers waked up and come in from one of the old councils that formulated the creeds and symbols of the early ages, it might have taken him a week to have progressed in thought as far as it has taken the world a thousand years to do in work from first principles to perfection, from doctrines to their embodiment and propagation.

(d.) That the benefits might not be confined to Methodists present, a book giving all the papers and proceedings is to be published, and an address to universal Methodism was issued. This encyclical touches upon nearly every point of faith, life, and work that the conference desired to commend to the general public. Some resolutions touching local interests or of special importance—as, in favor of the Sunday closing act, arbitration instead of war, woman's work in missions, and against state regulation of the social evil and opium trade of the English government—were separately passed. Arrangements were made for the publication of a "Year Book of Statistics," and discussions had concerning a common catechism and hymnal. The first will probably succeed and the second fail.

(e) The incidental benefits were many and great. The abolition of caste feeling in America was greatly helped by the spirit of the best society in London. Colored delegates were not only heartily welcomed to platforms and pulpits, but to homes and tables.

Not the least beneficial result was the closer binding together of the English-speaking races. They have increased in the past eighty years from 24,000,000 to 71,000,000, or 387 per cent. The Protestants among them have increased from 14,000,000 to 59,000,000, or 421 per cent. In intelligence, wealth, and its consecration to God they have increased vastly more. To bind such a people into closer bonds of loving work is perhaps the highest result. To this end, God signally used his servant President Garfield. Displaying in himself and his family those qualities that Englishmen admire—pluck, mastery of difficulties, hope in darkness, private excellence, and domestic virtue—they felt for him almost as for their own sovereign. We all hoped and wept and prayed together till the last day. We think a man's greatest use is in living. God thinks that a man's greatest use is often in dying. He showed it in the case of his Only Son, Stephen, and thousands of martyrs since. And, surely, it seemed in England that no man could accomplish a greater work than to be the means of binding together a people that reaches round the globe. There stood the representatives of 4,800,000 church members and 20,000,000 adherents joining their prayers and sympathies in a common grief. For their union in heart and labor, earth and Heaven shall have a common joy.—N. Y. Independent.

"Thou Shalt not Bear False Witness against Thy Neighbor."

Truth is of immense importance to all intelligent beings. In the first place, it is the bond of society, and the foundation of confidence, which subsists among mankind. By far the greater part of all the knowledge we possess, has been derived from the testimony of others. It is from the communication of others, and from a reliance upon their veracity, that those who were never beyond the limits of Great Britian, know that there are such countries as Nova Scotia, Brazil, Peru and China. It is from the same source that we have a knowledge of some of the leading facts of ancient and modern history, and that there once existed such empires as the Greek and Babylonian. On this ground, the pupil confides in his teacher for instruction, the child in its parents for sustenance, the master in his servant for the execution of his orders, and wife in her husband for support. We confide every moment in the faithfulness of the Almighty, for the regular return of day and night, of summer and winter, and of seed time and harvest. Could the veracity of God be impeached or even rendered liable to suspicion, we should remain in awful uncertainty whether another day would dawn, or whether the earth would be shattered to pieces, and the fragments dispersed throughout surrounding worlds, before the sun again appeared in the horizon. Truth is the foundation of our present comfort, and our future happiness; the veracity of those illustrious characters that have gone before us, whose declarations were confirmed by signs. We depend for the hope of forgiveness and acceptance with God, and for those rich sources of consolation which are calculated to support the mind under afflictions of mortality, and to cheer and animate us in the prospect of a future world, our hope of happiness beyond the grave, of the resurrection of our bodies at the termination of the present plan of Providence, of the renovation of the physical system of our globe, of a complete restoration to holiness and virtue, of a reunion with departed friends, of associating with beings of a higher order, of mingling in a happier world with all those illustrious saints who have gone before us, and of contemplating the manifestations of the Deity, on a more extensive scale.

Thus it appears that truth, is of the utmost importance to all accountable beings, it is the bond of union among all the inhabitants of heaven, it is the chain which connects the whole moral universe. It forms the source of our knowledge. In the depraved society of our world, truth is violated in ten thousand ways. It is violated in thoughts, in words, in conversation, by gestures, and by signs, by speaking, and by remaining silent. It is violated in reference to the character of our neighbor, when we invent tales of falsehood respecting him, when we listen with pleasure to such tales when told by others, and when we sit mute and refuse to vindicate his character when it is unjustly spoken of. It is violated in promises, when we promise what we have no intention of performing, or what we had no right to perform, or what is out of our power to perform, or what would be unlawful for us to execute. Truth is violated in relation to God, when we fail to explain to those whom we are bound to instruct, the manifestation and the perfection, and the omnipotence and the power of Jehovah, in governing universal nature in a harmonious union. In short, that truth is of the utmost importance may be clearly seen, when we consider the miseries which have followed from a partial violation of it. Thus, the miseries which have followed its violation, in reference to the affairs of nations, to the private interest of societies, communities, and individuals, and to the concern of mankind in general, are beyond description. It is one of the principal sources from which have sprung the numerous abominations concerned with the pagan idolatry. It has been chiefly owing to the violation of this law, that liberty has been destroyed, that empires have been overthrown, that nations have been dashed one against another. By the violation of this law the established order of families has been overturned, their bright prospects enveloped in a gloomy state of mental darkness and despair. Were the violation of this law to become universal, all confidence among rational beings would be completely banished. Confidence being destroyed, there would be no more charitable institutions, so mankind could not remain in peace, but must inevitably be thrown into a state of confusion. And when then the mind winged its way from one country to another, and roamed over the vast expanse of nature, it would find no enjoyments. In such case, the inhabitants of all worlds would be thrown into a state of universal anarchy. Were a single lie never to be uttered by the inhabitants of this world, or falsehood to be universally detested, and the love of truth universally cherished, what a mighty change would be effected in the condition of mankind, and what a glorious radiance would be diffused over all the movements of the intelligent system! The whole host of liars, and the sharpers and tale-bearers would instantly disappear from among men, and the beams of truth penetrate through the midst of ignorance. In fine, the cloud which now obscures many of the sublime objects of religion would be dispelled, would unite man to man, and man to God, and the inhabitants of this world move forward in harmony and in peace, to join "the innumerable company of angels, and the general assemby of the spirits of just men made perfect, whose names are written in heaven.'

Houston District Conference.

The Second District Conference of the Houston District, convened October 12, 1881, at St. Paul M. E. Church, Galveston, Texas, with Rev. M. H. Nichols, P. E., in the chair, and Thos. Cole and Wm. S. Smith as Secretaries, and was in session four days. After a very spiritual devotional service the first day's morning session was occupied in hearing the reports of pastors, local preachers, exhorters and other members of the Conference; and in the examination of all, subject to examination. A committee was appointed to have printed proper blanks, to accommodate all the officers, here represented, in making the report of their various works. Rev. R. M. Dougherty, of the Austin Conference, was introduced to the Conference and appointed to preach at night; after which the morning session adjourned. The evening session convened for literary exercises.

The literary programme was faithfully carried out, to the entertainment and profit of all. The need of Christian education was impressively urged.

The second day's session was occupied in further report of works. Much interest was reported to exist throughout the district upon the subject of Christian education. All the churches had a prosperous year. A committee of three, Rev. V. M. Cole, G. Ash and W. Peters, was appointed to secure funds for the building of a college at Houston. An educational mass meeting was called, which resulted in a grand rally.

After an interesting theological discussion the second morning session adjourned.

The second evening session was profitably occupied in theological discussion.

Rev. D. H. Shivers, of the Baptist Church, was introduced.

Andrew Bird was stricken from the roll.

The pastors and the presiding elders were instructed to rigidly examine all the absent local preachers and exhorters.

A. Thomas was expelled.

The Women's Home Missionary Society was reported as having thirty-five members with $13 50 in their treasury. Miss Annie Brown was appointed traveling missionary, to organize societies. Miss Amanda Smith was also requested to come to Texas to engage in this work.

Thus ends the second session of the Houston District Conference, which will long live in the interest manifested and the work accomplished for the promotion of the Redeemer's kingdom and the glory of the cross.

Letter from DeKalb.

DEKALB, Miss., Oct. 26 1881.

MR. EDITOR: Having been in attendance some, at a protracted meeting held at this place by Rev. B F. Penney, pastor of M. E. Church. I thought I would just drop you a few lines to let you know the results. I would say in the first place that I have never seen more religious interest manifested among the colored people of this place, than at this meeting; even the irreligious—those who are not church members, seemed to show more respect to the preaching of the word, and toward God's house than I ever saw before, and I regard this as being due to the teaching, preaching, and example set them by Bro. Penney during the two years he has been their pastor. I look upon Bro. Penney as being a most excellent man, an earnest energetic worker, and also a good preacher, his sermons are full of instruction and good sound advice to his race. At the close of the meeting, which lasted I think about two weeks, not less than 113 new members united with the church, fifty-one of these professed conversion. Of course out of all these members many may go back into the world, but on the other hand, out of such a number we have not the least doubt but what a great many will prove to be "precious sheaves" in that great day of rejoicing.

There is another feature about this meeting that I would like to note, and that is, the quiet and orderly manner in which it was conducted. There was no great excitement, nor noisy demonstrations that so often characterize those meetings. I do not wish it to be understood that I do not believe in shouting, for I am a thorough Methodist, and believe in it heartily when it is genuine, but we often see so much of it that is all put on for effect. Bro. Penney has been very strict in administering discipline, and has rid his church of some very unworthy members who were nothing but "stubble," and some thought for a while that because these dead branches were lopped off, the tree would wither and die, but it has bloomed out afresh, and still lives to the honor and glory of God, Yours in Christ.

Essay on Physical Education.

That is undoubtedly the wisest and best regimen which takes the infant from the cradle and conducts him along through childhood, and youth up to high maturity, in such a manner as to give strength and amplitude to his muscles, symmetry to his frame, and expansion to his vital energies. It is obvious that branch of education comprehends not only food and clothing but air, exercise, lodging, early rising, and whatever else is requisite to the full development of the physical constitution. The diet must be simple, the apparel must not be warm nor the bed too soft. Let parents beware of too much restriction, in the management of their darling boy. If they would have him to be hardy and rugged and fearless, they must let him go abroad often in his early boyhood and amuse himself by the hour in smoothing and twirling the hoary locks of winter. Instead of keeping him shut up all day with a stove, and graduating his sleeping room by fahrenheit they must let him face the keen edge of a north wind when the mercury is below zero, and instead of minding a little shivering and complaining, when he returns cheer him up and send him out again. In this way they will teach that he was not born to live in the nursery, nor to brood over the fire but reign as free as the snow and air, and to gain warmth from exercise. I love and admire the youth who turns not back from the howling wintry blast nor withers under the blaze of summer; who never magnifies mole-hills into mountains, but whose daring eye scales the eagles airy cragg, and who is ready to undertake any thing that is prudent and toneful within the reign of possibility. Who thinks of planting the mountain oak in green houses, or of rearing the cedar of lebanon in a lady's flower path? Who does not know that in order to attain their mighty strength and majestic forms they must freely enjoy the rain and sunshine, and must feel the rocking of the tempest? Respectfully submited. MISS M. M. PRICE.

Jefferson District, Texas Conference.

CLARKSVILLE, TEXAS Nov. 7, 1881.

DEAR EDITOR: The second year on the Jefferson District will soon be closed, and its history whether good or bad, will be written and must stand for ever. Much of it, if I could I would blot out, but it is too late. All we can do is to ask the Lord to forgive the mistakes and wrongs and bless the right. I want to thank God, notwithstanding all our mistakes, for what He has done for us. This District will make a better showing this coming conference than ever before. I mean that our reports will show good, solid, honest work, it will not only be written on paper, but it can be seen and proven to be true. The reports from Marshall, will be unexpected, the brethren will be looking to hear of war-storms and bloody noses. but they will be badly mistaken, no church in the conference will make a better showing, taking all the circumstances into consideration. The circuits laying around Marshall will make fair reports.

Bro. Minnegan has had a hard time at Jefferson, but the clouds that have hung so heavy over him, are passing away and God is giving him the victory. Rev. S. Pratt has at last gone to the A. M. E. Church where he belonged. Peace be with him.

We will now have peace at Jefferson and the cause of God will triumph. The circuits around Jefferson will all bring up good reports. Our cause is moving grandly, and at Texarkana every interest of the church is being looked after. A wonderful work has been going on in the Clarkesville circuit, God has given them near one hundred souls, young men and women, a large number of them out of the Sunday-school.

We had large congregations yesterday and the multitutes were moved by the gospel, and at the close of the sermon, without begging they came up and laid twenty dollars on the table as a thank offering.

I hear good things from other parts of the District, but can not write of them now.

I want to say, that the preachers with few exceptions have been faithful and true through the year. We thank God, that we have no complaints to make against the brethren. One of the preachers got into trouble by trying to do what he said, he had seen other preachers do in the southern part of the work, kiss the Sisters. They said to him we don't do that way here. Pray for us, Your Bro. W. L. MOLLOY.

Okolona District.

Though this has been a hard year upon the laboring classes of people in this part of the country, and many have struggled hard to keep soul and body together, yet we don't know of any previous year that so many new churches have been built, and old ones repaired, and the ministers and people so hopeful as now on the Okolona district.

Bro. Crump, at Okolona, entered upon his pastoral labors the first of the year under many difficulties but has succeeded admirably and has won the praise of the people, white and colored. Our church at Columbus has undergone extensive repairs. A beautiful bay window behind the pulpit has been built for the choir. Mrs. Lizzie Spriggs is the organist, she plays and sings splendidly. Our pastor here is *Bro. Jas. J. Shumpert. The brethren will regret to learn that his health has become so much impaired that he has gone home and desires to spend his last days on earth with his parents in Itawamba county. Bro. H. H. Wilbourn is supplying the charge.

There has been not only building and repairing churches on the district, but there has been more or less souls converted to God and added to the M. E. Church on every circuit and station in the district. At Corinth Bro. Gallion has had a wonderful revival resulting in more than 80 conversions. The third quarterly conference was a glorious time; $9 50 was taken up for the support of the ministry, and everybody seemed to be happy. Bro. Pratt on the circuit has built a nice church and is doing a good work. Bro. Blue at Aberdeen and his good people are preparing for the approaching annual conference. Fraternally yours,

J. M SHUMPERT.

Columbus, Miss., Nov. 11, 1881.

The Church Manual—How to Circulate It.

Dr. Kynett writes thus, concerning the "Church Manual:"

I believe it possible and easy, to circulate 50,000 copies of the Manual in 1882, and my faith is founded on my own experience. A year ago, after arrangements were made to issue the Church Manual as a quarterly, at the close of a meeting of the Board of Church Extension, I stated the fact, that the general conference had ordered such a publication; that it was the organ of our various church Benevolences, intended to give the freshest information from the several offices from which those Benevolences are administered; that in consideration of the fact that the pastors are their official representatives before their people, the general conference had ordered the Manual sent to them free of charge, but that no provision had been made or could properly be made to put it in the hands of our laymen, except by subscription; that the subscription price had been placed at the small sum of 50cts., and that no layman who wished to be fully informed concerning our church work could afford to be without it. I then requested the laymen present, before leaving the room to hand me their card with post-office address and fifty cents, saying it would be a pleasure for me to forward their subscriptions to Philips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, New York. Every laymen present handed me his subscription accordingly. At the next meeting when a few were present who were not present before, I repeated the statement, and they also handed me their subscription.

We have nearly 10,000 pastoral charges; each one with a presiding elder and pastor. And I believe that if each presiding elder in the quarterly conference, and each pastor in his official Board, should present the Manual cordially and earnestly for subscribers, 50,000 would be circulated the coming year, and that every benevolence of the church would realize the benefit of it through the years to come.

As the Manual will be a rich repository of facts concerning the benevolent work of the church, it would be wise for those who have not taken it, to give $1 and order the back numbers.

Sweet Home Circuit.

DEAR EDITOR: My circuit is in a very good condition. Through the power of the gospel some have been converted, and quite a number have joined the Church and Christians have been edified. Ignorance and superstition still curse our people in these parts. Education is sadly needed in all this benighted country. We can compliment ourselves, however, upon having some as intelligent people as ever I preached to in this circuit. The M. E. Church is doing a grand work for our people. Church building, educational institutions, and general facts prove the assertion. On this circuit we have at Sweet Home a nice church, with organ, parsonage, and all necessary for real comfort. Our members are procuring homes and learning to care for themselves.

At Mill Creek, we have a church worth $500, and well situated. Give us in the Little Rock Conference, more men filled with the Holy Ghost and intelligence, and we will take the field for Christ.

Hold up a few more days brethren, and victory will be ours. Churches are being built and sinners converted, on this district.

Yours as ever,
W. R. R. DUNCAN,
Sweet Home, Ark., Hot Springs District.

A clergyman in Scotland preached from the text: "If ye do not repent, ye shall all likewise perish." The wife of a farmer who was present went home and told her husband that the text was, "If you don't pay rent you shall leave the parish."

Falsehood is never so successful as when she baits her hook with the truth. No opinions so fatally mislead us as those that are not wholly wrong; as no watches so effectually deceive the wearer as those that are sometimes right.—Colton.

A Happy New Year!

"I wish you a happy new year!" How many times during the last few days have these words dropped from our lips! How many times they have fallen upon our ears! At this season of the year the exchange of kindly greetings, and good wishes for each other's welfare, is eminently fitting and appropriate. There can be no question however that words of greeting are often employed without due consideration of their significance. When we wish our friend "a happy new year" what do we mean? Do we intend to wish him success in his calling, the best things of this life and health to enjoy them? Do we mean happiness in his domestic and social circle—that no shadow of sorrow may fall upon his path but that all may be bright and sunny during the coming year? These are undoubtedly desirable things to wish for our friends, but we must not forget that they may enjoy all these, and yet lack happiness. One who was permitted to acquire all these things and many more besides tells us that he estimated them all "as vanity and vexation of spirit," and this experience under varying circumstances has been repeated over and over again. This being the case it cannot be amiss at this time when the air is resounding with new year's wishes to pause a moment to enquire as to what will make life happy. What constitutes a truly happy life?

First, no one can be happy without the approbation of his conscience. It matters not what sources of pleasure are open to u , without the approval of conscience we cannot realize our highest happiness. This will appear if we consider the important position which conscience holds in man's being. Conscience or the moral sense is really and trully the distingishing feature of man's complex nature—it is the "inner man." It is possible to minister pleasure to man's intellectual nature and to other parts of his being, but unless the cravings of conscience are satisfied, the man is not truly happy. That is not all. Where conscience does not approve it condemns, and its condemnation is most painful. "A wounded spirit who can bear?" Conscience has power to destroy all human happiness by its own rebuke alone. Neither wealth, nor pleasure, neither ambition nor prosperity of any kind can compensate for this one element of misery; and unless a man is first of all at peace with himself the very idea of being happy is preposterous.

Again an adequate object of affection is necessary to true happiness. God has endowed us with a wealth of affection, and for our happiness it is necessary that we should have an object worthy of our love. A worthy object is one that can requite our affection. Love unrequited is always love disappointed. From this fact it is manifest that many of the objects upon which men place their affections are utterly inadequate to supply happiness. The love of money, the love of power, the love of reputation must always prove disappointing, because power, wealth and fame can make no real return of our love. The attempt to satisfy our affections in domestic relations and with human friendships is certainly nobler than the former expedient, but even here we are liable to disappointment. An object to be worthy of our love must not only requite our affection, but must be permanent. Neither husband nor wife, nor children, nor friends can be counted on as a perpetual possession. Death parts us all sooner or later, and as we stand by the grave of our loved one we realize how precarious is that happiness which springs from even the best and highest of human friendships. There is no wisdom in placing our affections anywhere except on a permanent object. There is only one Person who can fully meet the need of our hearts—that person is God manifest in the flesh. He is the one altogether lovely. Only as we love Him can we find true and lasting happiness.

Yet again well-directed activity is necessary to true happiness. Our impulses of activity are strong and instructive. We cannot be happy unless these impulses are gratified. No hermit was ever happy. We must be active. Hence the proper direction of our active powers enters largely into the question of our happiness. Our activity to be [illegible] must be directed to the accomplishment of valuable results, [illegible] of some good use- [illegible] toil and recom- [illegible] all the hardships en- [illegible]. [illegible] one object of life [illegible] God. This object en- [illegible] our lives glorifies all [illegible] and renders the mean- [illegible] sublime. Take [illegible] away," and "what do [illegible]? How many [illegible] all their time in providing for their own needs or for those of their family! This is simply doing with great labor what the beasts of the field do without any toil at all. In this aspect of the case, what difference is there between the life of man and the life of the beasts? But now introduce the highest motive for work, and what a change transpires! whether we eat or drink we do all to the glory of God—the smallest action becomes a means by we can bring honor to Him. Our supreme happiness is found then in God. In His service we have an approving conscience, we find an adequate object of affection, and we realize a well-directed activity The one spot where happiness is found is in the heart of a good man. We wish our readers this happiness—in the highest, broadest, grandest sense we wish them all "a happy new year!"

Are You Responsible?

The knowledge of a disease is said to be half its cure, but this common proverb, must be taken curn grano salis, because the knowledge of an evil may still leave in great doubt the mode of its successful treatment.

It is only when the knowledge of a great moral evil rouses the moral forces of a man or a community, that we may ever hope for an effective exertion, and an intelligent application of the right remedy.

Partial knowledge will often lead to ill-advised measures, and misdirected action, resulting in great disappointment, and a check to the advancement of real good.

Unfortunately for our State and people, it is not the want of a comprehensive knowledge of the dire evils of an unlimited traffic in liquors, as it is a wilful, criminal indifference to the evils fastened upon the body politic, that the open door drinking system has continued among a civilized and Christian people.

It is the criminal indifference of the moral and religious portions of the community, that has continued to fasten upon us, not only the weakness, the shame, and the criminality of the public drinking system, but an actual curse to the people of our State.

Drunkenness in all of its degrees, from the degraded sot wallowing in the filth of the street, to the man of opulence spewing upon brocaded silk and brussels carpet—intoxication in all its stages from the sputtering utterances of the mandlin inebriate, to the wild imaginings, and eloquent declaimings of the man of letters, do but indicate the rank exuberance of the evils afflicting society, and mark the course of the brimming channel of the river of death, as fed by the streams flowing from the higher, social, and political fountains of society.

From this criminal, and crime producing, public drinking system, inaugurated among us, and set agoing by legislative authority, springs the production, the circulation, and the consumption of intoxicating drinks, until it has become the colossal vice of the nineteenth century, and the absolute curse of the world in which we live. The remedy is simple, but the people are too cowardly or too indifferent to apply the simple remedy.

This production of a fluid so full of evil and destruction to our race, is only effected by the conversion of sugar or sacharine matter into alcohol; that is, the sweet, sustaining and healthy principle or element, is killed, decomposed, and converted into another substance, and by combination, forming alcohol—the poison.

Hence the criminal absurdity, and ignorance believed in by many: "That alcohol is in sugar, and wheat and corn, and every thing" is a lie, instigated by the father of lies. There is no alcohol in nature.

You might as well tell me that there is blasphemy and cursing in the Lords Prayer, because the words and letters comprising the prayer, may be so arranged and combined, as to express profanity and lies. Chemistry, with its chemical forces and combinations must be invoked to produce alcohol.

The reorganization of the Louisiana State Senate, by the election of Senator Geo. P. Walton as president, and deposing Senator Robertson from that position, was an event of some significance. A man credited with liberal views was put aside for a thorough Bourbon. Senator Robertson's friends have been charged in Democratic prints with co-operating with Republicans to defeat the will of the Democratic caucus. The States asserts that this combination defeated several Democratic measures in the last regular session. This is a good sign. Lively opposition to the supremacy of any ring or party will always tend to purify both parties and government.

Professions pointing to heaven and toes pointing to hell, will never convince the world of "righteousness, temperance and judgment to come." It amounts to worse than folly to think that we can convince the world that we truly believe in the doctrines of reward and punishment while we heedlessly trample every commandment under foot. Preaching [illegible] herhood of God and the brothers [illegible] of man while we fail to accept the logical conclusions does more to shake the citadels of Christianity than all the shafts of infidelity combined. Christianity in itself, unadulterated with worldly inconsistencies, has all the elements to conquer the world, the the flesh and the devil. With the beginning of this new year let us [illegible] y aside every weight of in- [illegible] and sin, having our feet [illegible] the preparation of the gosp[illegible] of peace, taking the shield of faith, the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, and let us run with patience, faithfully and consistently, the race that is set before us.

Only a few weeks remains in which to push the canvass for 1882. Work faithfully, brethren. Forward all the cash subscriptions possible and collect as you go. Every local preacher, exhorter, leader, and other Church officers should subscribe for their Church paper, and lead the way for every member to follow.

The Louisiana conference of the M. E. Church South, Bishop McTyeire presiding, met on Wednesday in the basement of Carondelet Street Church.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—The post office of Rev. E. E. Cooper is Biegel, Texas.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

P. E. Bardwell, Handsboro: "Our protracted meeting lasted three weeks, resulted in 12 conversions and 20 accessions. It proved a blessing to the church. Pray for us."

A. Handy, Forest: "Our protracted meeting, which lasted three weeks, resulted in a general revival of the Church, and the reception of 31 to membership. Pray for our success."

R. Anderson, Bolton: "We are hard at work trying to raise money for the building of a church in Bolton. We have got the land and the proper deed, and have collected $42 for building. We shall do all we can for conference claims."

D. W. Calvert, Green Hill, reports 29 converts at protracted meetings, and 100 additions since last Conference. A good collection was taken up to meet church indebtedness.

TEXAS.

G. R. Smith, Alleyton, reported a festival, by the pastor, E. E Cooper, to raise funds to meet the annual conference, which cleared $15; and that the Sabbath-school was growing splendidly.

LOUISIANA.

Next Saturday, 7th instant, the classes in Union Chapel, this city, give a grand complimentary entertainment for the benefit of their pastor. They invite all his friends to honor their effort. Two young ladies will read essays. Miss Emma Merritt, on "The Negroes in the American Rebellion," and Miss Florence Sparks, subject, "The Blessed Bible."

The nineteenth anniversary of the freedom of the slaves in this country was appropriately observed in Union Chapel M. E. Church last Sunday. Revs. W. P. Forest, of our Church, Chas. Malone and A. M. Green, of the A. M. E. Church, H. C. C. Astwood, editor of the Louisianian, and A. E. P. Albert, the pastor, participated in the services. Much interest was manifested, and much good, it is hoped, was accomplished.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Jan. 8, 1882.—JESUS IN GALILEE.
SCRIPTURE—Mark i. 14-28.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light."—Is. ix. 2.
QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.
LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer's Authority.
(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

The ministry of Jesus began with power. From the scene of the temptation in the wilderness, he "returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee." It is suggestive, that when he met John at the Jordan he received a baptism of the Spirit, and that when he met, and overcame, the tempter, he "returned in the power of the Spirit!" From that fact we see that every conflict with the evil one that ends a victory results in giving new power to the victor. It gives new power to meet the adversary again, new power with God, and new power with men.

One of the manifestations of his power had been in the miracles which he had wrought. He had turned the water into wine at the marriage at Cana of Gailee. John 2: 1-12. When at the same place again, he had healed the nobleman's son, though the son was at Capernaum. John 4: 46-54. He had shown his power in the authority that he exercised in the temple by driving the money-changers out of it. John 2: 13-25. He had exhibited his power in teaching in those wonderful discourses to Nicodemus (John 3) to the woman of the well of Samaria (John 4: 1-26,) and in the synagogue at Nazareth. Luke 4: 16-30. And yet his ministry cannot be said auspiciously to have begun—for his forerunner was in prison, and he himself had been rejected at Nazareth, the home of his boyhood. He came to a very sinful people, but he did come to them in condemnation. Instead of judgment he offered to them a pardon Through the transforming power of Christ, the humble fishermen and despised Galileans became mighty in word and in deed, and mighty in saving men. They followed immediately. There was none of that procrastination with which now the call so frequently is put off. He did not appeal, as did the scribes, to the authority of recognized and eminent teachers. The people at Nazareth "wondered at the words of grace which proceeded out of his mouth." The officers that were sent to arrest him returned without him as thei prisoner, their only excuse being, "Never man so spake."

The renewed man was a better witness for Christ than the unclean demon. A single conversion in a community often does a great dea of good. It is to be presumed, that both the man who was rescued and the people who saw his redemption went everywhere telling about it. That is the way that many a revival has begun. If Christ has done any thing for you, tell about it. Let others know of it, and soon others who feel their need of cleansing will come to him and be made clean also.

The School Temperance Work

DEAR EDITOR: At the second district conference of the Navasota district, the report of the Sunday school temperance work was well received by the brethren. The President has visited several places, addressed the people on the advantages of total abstinence, and secured over three hundred names.

If the people would vote against tobacco and snuff as freely as they do against whisky, we could soon report reform; but the Lord is on our side and, we mean to continue doing what we can to awaken interest in this righteous cause.

The action of the conference makes each pastor a working member of the grand temperance army. Let us see to it that we are workmen that need not be ashamed; let our lives show just what we are, and what we want our children to be.

What sort of people ought we to be? We, who have such a glorious gospel to live by; a gospel so free and full too. Brethren our hearts ought to be stirred, when knowing ing as we do, that the work of saving souls, precious blood-bought souls is so hindered by the use of strong drink.

Every effort that can be made must be made at once, to lead the youth into paths of total abstinence. The Bible, says "It is good neither to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak." Therefore let us do all the good we can, in all the ways we can, to all the folks we can.

Dear brothers do not fail to collect a little money; send it to us and we will send you in return temperance books and papers. We must enlighten the minds of the people and make them feel we mean to do them good.

Please fill out the blanks we gave you and mail them to Whitman's P. O., Washington County.

The Discipline and Intemperance.

PICKENS STATION, Miss., Nov. 25, 1881.

After all of the preaching, praying and writing against intemperance, there are hundreds of church members who on Christmas mornings indulge in the pernicious habit of intoxicating drinks in the form of eggnog. Physicians sometimes recommend the use of spirits in various forms for different diseases but we have never known one to direct its use in this form—which leaves us no trouble to decide that it is a beverage against which we turn to 145 page of Discipline 1880, and find a law that informs us that where the crime is not followed by acknowledgment of fault and real humiliation expulsion should invariably take place. We verily hope that the ministers of our Church will will apply this important and much needed law until it is fully appreciated by every member. For I feel perfectly safe in the assertion that there is much less sin in a fiddle and dancing (which most all members regard as disgraceful) than in this habit which steps in on Christmas morning, throws open the door of the family, orders Christ out and grants admittance and entertainment to the devil. It gives our children a lesson that will lead to their ruin. It puts a sword in the hands of our enemies they will successfully use, and prepares the mind for everything that leads to destruction. Brethren and sisters, we hope that you will consider this question, remember that the exercise of Christmas day should in some way point each to the humble birth of our Saviour, and if you will turn to 2 Chap. of St. Luke 12 verse you will find that He was not born in a barrel of whisky nor a pan of eggnog.

The New Testament, revised, as authorized by the American Committee of Revision, has been issued with red edge cloth bound by Lee & Shepard of Boston. Price, $1. We have received a copy, and find the print admirable.

THE FATE OF MADAME LA TOUR: A Story of Great Salt Lake. By Mrs. A. G. Paddock. 15mo, cloth. (Uniform with "A Fool's Errand.") Price, $100. New York: Fords, Howard & Hulbert.

A deeply interesting story detailing life among the Mormons with food for imagination and thought. The book gives fresh and breezy pictures of the pioneer life, not only among the emigrating Mormons, but also in the gold gulches of Oregon and California; it portrays the ideas, principles, and modes of life followed among the Mormons; shows the strange and curious ramifications of that remarkable system of government—which is Church and State and absolute Monarchy "rolled into one;" gives the key to many puzzling questions in connection with their advancement and thrift; and by the aid of the marvelous incidents of the story (all of which however, are authenticated facts,) opens to the eyes of the reader a condition of affairs which the intelligent American does not suspect, and could hardly believe to exist in the midst of this continent. Every intelligent man, and above all every woman who, values womanhood, ought to read this strange, strong book, and public opinion ought to take shape on the questions it propounds. The Governor of Utah, and other United States officials there, and the poet Whittier, vouch for the trustworthiness of Mrs. Paddock, and her facilities for obtaining information, while her book will by the force of its own keen wit and stirring dramatic power, make for itself many thousands of readers.

DEATHS.

Sister Callie Alexnder fell asleep in Christ, Nov. 10, after gracious testimony.

J. L. MASSEY.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 12, 1881.

Little Alice Isom, daughter of Addison Isom, departed this life on the 8th of October 1881; age 14. Many friends and acquaintances in connection with the bereaved mother and father, were left to mourn for her as an industrious child. We are thankful to know our loss is her gain. May she rest in peace. Yours in Christ,

A K DAVIS.

Sister Sallie Glassphie, daughter of Rev. R. Williams, preacher in charge at Danville, died November 2, in full triumph of faith. On her death bed she declared that no one could cure her except Doctor Jesus, in whom all her trust was laid. She desired that none should grieve her loss, for to her she said death was gain.

B. M. TAYLOR.

Walker's Circuit, Texas, Nov. 10, 1881.

Sister Mary Harmon, a devout Christian woman and a faithful member of the M. E. Church, after a long and faithful service in the Lord's vineyard, died October 29th, 1881. Her funeral was preached by Rev. S. A. Cowan, of Grenada. The church has lost a true member and the community a good citizen.

A FRIEND.

Oxford, Miss., November 12, 1881.

Brother Levi Robinson, died on the 17th of October, in full triumph of faith. He lived a Steward of the M. E. Church, from the time of his full connection with the church until a few weeks before his death. Bro. Robinson leaves a wife (member of the church) and five children.

B. M. TAYLOR.

Walker's Circuit, Texas, Nov. 10, 1881.

Died in the triumph of faith, on the 6th of October, Sister Annie McLennon; for ten years a useful and consistent member of the M. E. Church. A daughter and three sons mourn her loss.

C. S. STEWART.

Okahoma, Miss.

Departed this life triumphantly, June 19, 1881, Brother Bricker Williams, a faithful member of our church. He leaves many friends to mourn his loss.

R. WILLIAMS.

Danville, Texas.

Brother Ander Barnett died, after painful illness, on the 29th of October. He died as he lived, a soldier for Christ.

Forest Circuit, Miss. A. HANDY.

Bro. George Eglant, a member of the New Iberia Methodist Episcopal Church, died at his own home, December 10, 1881, aged 85 years. In his early life and manhood Bro. Eglant knew all about the hardships, toil, and bitterness of a life of servitude. Since emancipation, his spirit has been cheerful, and his general conduct worthy of imitation. Some months since, he sought and found Jesus in the pardon of his sins, and from that time to the day of his death he went on his way rejoicing. During his short sickness, even when his sufferings were most intense, his faith in Christ never wavered. With the better country in view, he departed this life, to be forever with the Lord.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

THE AMERICAN ART EXCHANGE

Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. We shall, as fast as possible, bring out in this country, in the highest style of artistic work, every famous art work of the Old World, and at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.

As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be produced by us, we will take pleasure in forwarding to any applicant a Complimentary Copy Free of the first edition of art work produced by us in America.

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb painting, occupying nearly an entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled,

"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."

Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is [illegible], or about $30. It is [illegible] to secure a copy at [illegible] except through this offer. The engraving represents the Saviour as he is leaving the [illegible], after being condemned to crucifixion. He is descending [illegible] from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps stand two burley executioners, in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers [illegible] with despair [illegible], while the mother of our [illegible] attendants. [illegible] on the left are the judges and [illegible], surrounding Pontius Pilate, who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly descends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion.

The work in this portion of the engraving is more perfect and beautiful than we have supposed could ever be executed. The expressions of the faces, the grouping of the figures, and the careful attention to detail in the drapery and accessories of the picture, are all carried out in perfection and with consummate skill. There is a very large number of figures in the work, and all are depicted with life-like faithfulness. It stands to-day unquestionably,

The Finest and Most Valuable Engraving in the World.

The engraving of the plate cost upward of $30,000, and no copies from it are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to about [illegible] per copy.

This splendid work is the first of a series of the [illegible] art works of Europe, which the AMERICAN ART EXCHANGE will produce in [illegible] with their production [illegible] World, at prices which [illegible] multitude to purchase.

The first [illegible] "Christ Leaving the Praetorium," [illegible] and a limited number will be [illegible].

Free [illegible].

It is a correct reproduction of the English plate, which sells at [illegible] per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price, who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size and with the same attention to [illegible] work as characterizes the [illegible] copies.

[illegible] object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when announce future works, the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted, we will ship a perfect copy of the engraving "Christ Leaving the Pretorium," to any applicant. The engraving (which is a very large one) will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage, which will be 10 three cent stamps. It was at first thought 20 [illegible] would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags it was decided to increase the thickness and strength of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of an accident [illegible] an increase of charges for [illegible] purpose to 30 cents or 10 three-cents stamps.

On receipt of application we will immediately forward this superb engraving to any address in the United States, all charges prepaid, when 10 three-cent stamps are enclosed in letter to cover postage and tube. At [illegible] within one year we will take back [illegible] and allow a credit of $3 for it [illegible] any works issued by us.

[illegible] three copies each for a different [illegible] the same address, can be forwarded [illegible] each, as one [illegible] the several copies. Not [illegible] than five copies will be sent to any address for distribution, and the name of each member of the club must be sent.

Death of James J. Shumpert.

EDITOR ADVOCATE—It is with profound sorrow that we record the death of Rev. James Joel Shumpert, who was the pastor of the M. E. Church in Columbus, and an honored member of the Mississippi Conference. He was an earnest and true Christian, a successful and acceptable pastor for several years. He had been in poor health for three years, but patiently did he bear it all, until the night of November 28, 1881, when the weary wheels of life stood still. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss.

There were four silver half-dollars coined by the Confederate government in 1861 at the New-Orleans mint.

Railroad Column.

The Supreme Court of Louisiana, in the suit of the Spanish Fort Railway Company against George Delamore, has decided that the Northeastern Road has failed to acquire a clear title by purchase of that road. The representatives of the Northeastern Company will contest this decision, and go on with their work without delay.

On Friday December 30th 1881, the first through train left San Francisco for New Orleans. The Southern Pacific route is shorter by 600 to 800 miles than the one leading to New York; is free from snow and ice, and probably from trouble with the Indians. The commercial possibilities of New Orleans appear to be most favorable yet very much will depend upon the wisdom and energy of her own business men. The first Pacific train will be a welcome visitor.

THROUGH CARS to all the principal cities North, East and West connect with this Trunk Line at Louisville. On all first-class through tickets stop over privilege is granted at Cave City to passengers desirous of visiting

MAMMOTH CAVE.

Thus a view of the greatest of nature's curiosities, marvelous and wonderful beyond description, can be enjoyed with little expense or detention, if Through Tickets are secured by the Louisville & Great Southern. The Mammoth Cave is situated eight miles from Cave City, which is eighty-five miles South of Louisville on the Louisville & Great Southern Railway Line. McCoy's Concord Stages run to and from all passenger trains. The Cave Hotel is under the management of Wm. Miller, Esq., and is first-class in all its appointments.

Hon. BAYARD TAYLOR said of the Cave
"It is the greatest natual curiosity I have ever visited, Niagara not excepted, and he whose expectations are not satisfied by its marvelous avenues, domes and starry grottoes must either be a fool or a demi-god."

A visit to Mammoth Cave at any season of the year is delightful. The temperature, 55o being the same the year round, the most delicate can visit it without fear of cold, heat or exhaustion.

A WONDERFUL [illegible] d
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:
1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.
The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H HOUSAH, Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

Young Folks' Corner.

[illegible] have our idle hands neglected?
[illegible] lessons have we learned and [illegible]
What [illegible], what radiance have our [illegible] reflected?
What rich and rare materials have we brought [illegible] investigation, earnest thought?
Concealed within the souls unfathomed mine,
How many a sparkling gem remains unwrought,
That industry might place on learning's shrine,
Or lavish on the world, to further God's design!

Importance of Small Things.

Many years ago the keeper of a light house off the coast of Florida [illegible] broke a pane of glass while lighting his lamps for the night. It was too late for him to repair it, and as the wind was blowing strongly he fitted a strip of tin into the sash to prevent the lights from being extinguished. The lamps sent their cheering rays far out to sea save where the piece of tin threw a dark shadow, widening as it fell upon the distant waters, till it covered many a mile. Vessels passing that way during the night saw no light where one ought to have been and some were wrecked upon the rocks and precious lives were lost, because, while the lamp was burning brightly, it did not shine where it should. So a single [illegible], or a vicious habit, or an uncontrolled temper, often hinders [illegible] of the Christian's light, and [illegible] are lost because they abide in [illegible] shadow, and they are not led to the true light that lighteth every [illegible] cometh into the world.

"Oh, light divine, so full, so free!
[illegible] would that lies in night!
[illegible] radiance, shine through me
[illegible] and still more bright,
[illegible] be thy rays in vain
Because I am a darkened pane."

A Boy's Heart.

TRUTH ATTESTED.

Some Important Statements of Well-Known People Wholly Verified.

In order that the public may fully realize the genuineness of the statements, as well as the power and value of the article of which they speak, we publish herewith the fac-simile signatures of parties whose sincerity is beyond question. The truth of these testimonials is absolute, nor can the facts they announce be ignored.

158 Constance Street, New Orleans, La., March 10, 1881.

MESSRS. H. H. WARNER & CO.:
About two years ago I was attracted by the advertisement of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. My system was much run down and I had suffered the excruciating agonies of kidney and blood difficulties and especially from calculus. I determined to try the cure and bought 2 bottles, and when I had taken the first bottle I noted immediately improvement, and after taking the second I called myself toned up all through the system and extraordinarily well for a man of seventy-five. I have used in all about four bottles and would not be without it in case of any further trouble for any consideration. I recommend it freely to my friends as I consider it just what it purports to be a sure cure for kidney difficulties. Mrs. Guthrie, wife of my son, has also used it freely and with very marked benefit and perfect cure.

H. H. WARNER & Co.:
About 2 years ago I purchased some of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for my own and my wife's use. We took about four bottles and were both completely restored to health, my system having lost tone and Mrs. Connell being in very poor physical condition. We know it is a good thing from our own experience with it. A short time ago I was taken sick with a bilious attack. My kidneys and urinary organs were involved to a very painful degree. I am using the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure more in the hope that it will do me much good as it did before.

Jno. D. McConnell

Thousands of equally strong endorsements—many of them in cases where hope was abandoned—have been voluntarily given, showing the remarkable power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure in all diseases of the kidney, liver or urinary organs. If any one who reads this has any physical trouble, remember the great danger of delay.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

A. K. Davis, Holly Springs: "My health has been very bad for some months. But I am thankful to Him who has caused such afflictions, which have fallen me, as He has not only caused me to suffer, but He is doing more than that, He is restoring me to health again, and I am permitted to be once again with my flock, which is as a unit, all lovely and moving gently along towards higher motives. I was permitted to be with my church on Oct. 30 and lead the services thereof, also my presence was witnessed in the Sabbath school, "during the morning" when so many bright eyed boys and girls, constantly meet to learn their duty unto a just God. Oh! how thankful I am to know this and to labor for his Kingdom to be fully established in our land where sinful men and women dwell. Bro. Roberts, of Arkansas, a good and faithful laborer in the vineyard of the Lord, has done much good in the name of the Lord. During the month of September there was 11 converts 13 to accessions to the church, 11 of which were baptized. From this the church was much strengthened and revived."

C. S. Stewart and W. Greenwood, Ofahoma, write: "We commenced work on this circuit this year, with four appointments; which we have since increased to eight, in the midst of great difficulties. We have taken into the church 129 members and probationers. We have had 56 converts, 54 infants and 55 adults baptized. Mr. Thos. Wilder, a member of the M. E. Church South, has kindly given us an acre of land upon which to build a church. Rev. Chas. Harvey, of the M. E. Church South, has also given us an acre upon which to build a church. May the Lord bless them for their generosity. Our Sunday-school continues in good condition. Bro. Bromfox, whom we buried last May was 110 years old. He died happy in Christ."

R. McAlpin, Evergreen circuit, Rankin county, reports the successful operation of three Sunday-schools with 150 scholars; the circuit is in fair condition and one new church built. The year's labor results in 86 accessions, 41 conversions, 44 adults and 6 infants baptized.

P. P. Hayes, Corinth, writes: "Mount Moriah church has paid her pastor, Rev. W. H. H. Gallion his year's salary $400; added 112 members since his administration began in January last, and is now preparing to make the church building as neat and comfortable as any in the city of Corinth. The Lord blessed us by sending Bro Gallion and we have been able to respond to every call. It has been truly a year of jubilee with the members of Moriah, and it is in better condition than ever before. Pray for continued success."

L. J. Terrell, Prairie Station, reports his work poor, but reviving.

J. D. Walden, Brandon: "We have had very good success this year. We had 53 accessions, of whom 45 have been converted. Pray for us that the Lord may still prosper us in his vineyard."

LOUISIANA.

T. G. Montgomery, Clinton: "Our last quarterly conference was a great blessing to all. Our Sunday-school was reported to be in splendid trim; and had increased to sixty scholars. Taken in twenty members and good spirits prevailing. We expect to raise our whole benevolent assessment for conference. Pray for our success."

ARKANSAS.

W. O. Emory, Little Rock: "The Lord is blessing us most wonderfully. We have had 53 accessions, 10 conversions, and have raised, including materials on hand, $2,000 on our new church, which we hope to occupy by conference. The Lord prosper Zion!"

TEXAS.

R. Williams, Danville, Montgomery county: "A few Sundays ago Bro. Pullam and I preached the funeral of Sister Lucinda Jefferson, late a very prominent member of our church. Hers was a glorious testimony. We've made no great increase in membership, but are holding our own and having grand times in spiritual favors."

S. H. Horn, Brookston, reports having a hard time, but is thankful for success in building the church and is coming out more than conqueror.

GEORGIA.

Brothers W. B. Johnson, Wm. Fearn, Robert Boyd and others, official members of our church at West Point, report the esteem entertained by the church for their pastor. 230 members have been added and many anxious souls still are crying for mercy. Every interest of the church obtains the full attention of their worthy pastor whom they all love and revere."

DEAR EDITOR—I am a regular student at the Wiley University and have not heard from my kin folks in eleven or twelve years. I came to Arkansas with my father's brother, from Alabama, in 1870. We took the train in Columbus, Georgia. Father's name Abraham Murray; my mother Celia, his wife who, used to belong to Dr. Thornton. My mothers mother's name is Venius, her husband Joshua. We lived between Little and Big Ochee, in Alabama. Father had the rheumatism when he left. He had also a broken arm caused by seining he said. I am the only son of my mother, and had two sisters. Any person knowing Dolger Thorton or people that used to belong to him, and will please inform them of us, will greatly oblige

DEAR EDITOR—I want to enquire for my two girls I left in 1848, Julian Burks and Jane Burks. Julian is the oldest and Jane the next. Julian was left in Tolberton, Georgia, with a man named Monroe Sanford and Jane was left in Mississippi with Col. Burks, her owner, and he went to Montgomery in Alabama, and there sold her for debt to Tom Evans. Mr. Evans carried her to Tennessee and that is the last I heard of her. I had five girls and two boys when I left there. The others were Emily, Minerva and Mary and the boys were Troupe and David. My name was Patsey Burks. I was sold from Burks to Grays. Address Patsey Walker, Marshall, Harrison county, Texas.

No More Hard Times.

If you will stop spending so much on fine clothes, rich food and style, buy good healthy food, cheaper and better clothing, get more real and substantial things of life every way, and especially stop the foolish habit of employing expensive, quack doctors or using so much of the vile humbug medicine that does you only harm, and put your trust in that simple, pure remedy, Hop Bitters that cures always at a trifling cost, you will see good times and have good health.—Chronicle.

Richard Baxter said a good thing, when he said of some who lived in his day, that they had a "wheel-barrow religion." They "went when they were shoved." It would be hard to find a better name for the religion of many who live now.

Dyspepsia Cured.

BALTIMORE, MD., Feb. 14, 1881.

I tried your valuable medicine, Brown's Iron Bitters, for dyspepsia, indigestion, &c., and was cured by its use after three leading physicians of this city failed by their prescriptions to give me relief. After eating, before taking the Iron Bitters, I suffered with a full feeling about the breast, with headache all the time, bowels very irregular, and generally used up. At night, when I got home from work, I thought I could not last until the next morning. I now feel like a new man. J. V. HOWSER.

If you would know the value of money, go and try to borrow some.

taught their daughters that "a stitch in time saves nine." A pill in time saves not only nine, but oftentimes an incalculable amount of suffering as well. An occasional dose of Dr. Pierce's Pellets (Little Sugar-coated Pills,) to cleanse the stomach and bowels, not only prevents diseases but often breaks up sudden attacks, when taken in time. Oh, is n't She a Beauty?

She is the personification of all that's lovely. Her disposition is amiable; her mind cultured; her heart kind and pure—all because her health was restored from using Brown's Iron Bitters.—Comments of a leading physician on a patient he prescribed Brown's Iron Bitters for. All ladies should use it.—JOURNAL.

Will Wonders Ever Cease?

Mr. John G. Fiedderman, the well-known Merchant Tailor, in Union Block, writes: "I was a sufferer for many years with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, and found no relief until I tried St. Jacobs Oil. After using two bottles I was entirely cured."

The two important events in the life of man are when he examines his upper lip and sees the hair coming, and when he examines the top of his head and sees the hair going.

Dr. C. W. Benson, of Baltimore, Md., prepares a skin cure that is the best thing for skin diseases ever known. It cures eczema, tetter, ring-worm, and all rough and scaly skin diseases in the shortest time. Sold by all druggists at $1 per package.

An Irishman, eating his first green corn, handed the cob to the waiter and asked, "Will ye plaze put some more banes upon me sthick?"

Coal Oil or Petroleum may be very nice for illuminating or lubricating purposes, but surely it is not the proper thing to cure a cough with. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is looked upon as the standard Cough remedy.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession, for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.

GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark, and Phosphates, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It serves every purpose where a Tonic is necessary.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup

FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

NEW YEAR'S HYMN.

Beneath the moonlight and the snow
Lies dead my latest year;
The winter winds are wailing low
Its dirges strange and drear.

I grieve not with the moaning wind,
As if a loss befell;
Before me, even as behind,
God is, and all is well!

His light shines on me from above,
His low voice speaks within—
The patience of immortal love
Outwearying mortal sin.

therein, some of them sons of chiefs, and that he intends to place around in his school room in gilt letters the following extract from the Koran, "Fermented liquor is a snare and a curse from the devil." This he says will please every true Mahommedan and make them more willing to send their sons to the "Christ-man school."

W. A. Pledger, the colored editor of the Journal of Progress, made a short but impressive address, speaking of the advancement of his race and the prospect of his people for the future. His remarks were entertaining and were well received. In the course of his speech he said:

"I regret that more of my race are not present to hear and learn. I can say that we present to the world such a spectacle as is seldom seen—a race lifted from servitude and placed side by side in the race of life with the ex-master, and so far successful in fifteen years, with jealousies of the past removed; so that we feel at home in these southern lands and amongst friends. We challenge the world to show such a scene."

Mr. Morris is making an interesting and attractive exhibit in the main building. A large card seven feet long and three feet wide, tells its own story, and is read by many a passer by. It reads thus:

LIBERIA.
THE ONLY EXHIBIT FROM AFRICA.
LIBERIA OFFERS
Coffee, Spices, Sugar, Ginger, Cacao, Palm Oil, Palm Kernels, Cam Wood, Lime Juice, Rubber and Steel Ore.
In exchange for these will take Agricultural Implements, School Books, Shoes, Cotton Goods, Notions, Brass Kettles, Flour and Provisions.

Mr. Morris will address the citizens of Atlanta next Tuesday evening in the hall of the house of representatives. Yours, MITCHELL.

The New "Solid South."

There is another than a political sense in which the South may be said to be solid. She is prosperous and likely to become more so year by year. The rapid increase of population within her borders during the last decade has occasioned genuine surprise in the North, but that is only one indication of the progressive march on which she has by no means reached the end, or even the middle.

What the most sagacious of the Anti-Slavery leaders predicted as sure to follow the abolition of the peculiar institution has come to pass. The South is becoming populous; it is growing rich. Commerce is taking a new start; manufactures are springing up everywhere, and the planter sees his fields better tilled than ever before. Railroads are being built in all directions; new steamship lines are started; even the mineral wealth of the South is beginning to be developed. New Orleans, her principal seaport, is winning back its ante bellum position many times over, and will, in a few years, be the rival of New York and Baltimore, not only in its old staple of cotton but also in the new ones of grain and live stock.

All this is perfect by legitimate growth in prosperity, too, and therefore more certain of lasting. There is no reason why the great Southern staple should be sent North to be shipped for Europe. The natural thing to do is to put it on board a steamer at New Orleans, Mobile or Savannah or Charleston, and carry it across the Atlantic without any break of bulk. This would be a saving of labor and time, which means a saving of money. It has also been found that it is cheaper to transport corn and wheat down the Mississippi from the great grain fields on its upper course than to the Atlantic sea-board, while to bring the cattle of Texas to a point at the very doors of the grazing fields must inevitably have its advantages over the plan of sending them 2,000 miles or more by train.

Texas is rich in many things, and her products, added to those of Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, find their natural outlet towards Europe at New Orleans, and the system of railroads which is either built or in process of building, connecting that city with these sections of country, will soon supply the one thing needful—transportation faculties. The recent improvements at the mouth of the big river have made it possible for the largest sea-going steamers to anchor off the Crescent City's wharves, and it only remains to perfect the internal system of communication to give an impetus to commerce there such as any Southern city never before experienced. Last year the imports and exports jumped from $71,000,000 to $104,000,000, her bank clearances from $423,000,000 to $506,000,000. The wheat receipts more than doubled, being over 14,000,000 bushels, as against 6,700,000 bushels in 1879. There was also an increase in the cotton receipts amounting to 300,000 bales, or one-fifth of the whole.

We in this city might be expected to feel some jealousy at finding such formidable rivals spring up to dispute the foreign trade of the country with us, and if we looked at the matter in an old-time, narrow and bigoted light, we undoubtedly would. Fortunately, we are aware that the South, healthy and prosperous, will be our best possible customer once more, and that even if our European commerce should diminish in one or two articles, it will be more than made up in a dozen other directions. The "Solid South," in this sense, may rest assured that she has no better well-wishers than the "Solid North."—N. Y. Graphic.

The subject ("Italy") designated for the Missionary Concert of Prayer in January will be deferred to February, in order that the exercises of the January concert may be conformed to the general topic second announced for January 7th in the "Week of Prayer," viz: "Christian Missions, the Outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the Conversion of the World." It is recommended that our churches which observe the monthly concert make their special service in January a part of the general prayers and [illegible] in this [illegible] evening, [illegible] The Discipline of [illegible]

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Our Own Lesson Helps.

Under the above suggestive caption, Rev. J. H. Vincent, D. D., recently contributed to the columns of our advocates, a very timely article, which commends itself to the thoughtful consideration of the whole Church. Our preachers, superintendents and teachers, especially, who have read it once, would do well to peruse it again and again, until they have fully measured its weighty bearing upon one of the most vital interests of the connection. The writer, who is known to possess a thorough knowledge of the subject treated, boldly asserts a fact which every loyal Methodist should understand and appreciate; namely, that all our Sunday-school publications are sound in doctrine, thorough in literary merit, and superior in artistic and mechanical execution, and that when their adaptedness, quality, etc., are considered, it will be found that exorbitant prices are not charged for them as has been falsely claimed by D. C. Cook and others, who labor night and day, by all sorts of ways, to project into the schools of our denomination their own lesson helps. I have read numerous circulars sent forth by these outside revolutionists, and know something of their tempting offers to supply our schools with mere trifles, to us at least, for a mere trifle in exchange. I give them no countenance whatever, because their so-called lesson helps are unauthorized by our own Church, antagonistic to our own Church, and, in every way, inferior to those issued from our own press. We can not afford to join hands with a foe who strikes at the very foundation of our great strength, however much he may promise to divide the spoils with us. We know the mighty instrumentalities which the Church has employed, and which, under God, have wrought such grand results in the development of solid Christian character, and are persuaded that we can still hold on to them without fear of losing ground. They who expect to see us trample such blessed agencies under our feet, and embrace in their stead the cheap substitutes which they offer, will, no doubt, go hence without realizing the sight, except it be witnessed in some unfortunate Church where they have an ignoramus or traitor for pastor and a week kneed or rebellious man for superintendent.

The Church may safely depend upon her true sons and daughters who can never forget how, in early life, she took them upon her warm bosom, fed them with the sincere milk of the word, and has all along held out to them her hand of sympathy and love. These will stand by the authorized publishers and editors of her Sunday-school department, cost what it may. Like faithful sentinels, they will stand at the gates of our beautiful city and with sling or sword, tongue or pen, will guard against the entrance of any who come to defile it. We, of the South, though still environed with poverty, intend to rally around the old flag in the future, as in the past, and, God helping us, we are resolved never to let Cook or any body else pluck a single star from it.

D. W. HAYS.

A Correction.

MR EDITOR: In the issue of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE of November 24th, I noticed that you had made one sad mistake in my letter from Arkansas.

In the sentence where I said, "if it was necessary to have two conferences here in this State, why not divide on the line that the conference adopted?" But you said, "if it was necessary to have the conference here in this State, why divide on the line that the conference adopted?"

Now, I would not have had that done for anything. I hope you will correct it.

Yours respectfully,
G. W. SAMS.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 5th 1881.

The men who are endeavoring to protect the State credit of Tennessee have won another victory. The Legislature passed a bill to refund the defaulted bonds, par for par, but the repudiators secured an injunction prohibiting the State officials from carrying out the law, and the case was carried to the Supreme Court where under ordinary procedure, it could not be reached for three years. A motion was recently made and granted to advance the case upon the docket, and the arguments will be heard on the 17th of January.

A Colored Presbyterian.

Some disquiet appers to have been caused in the Southern Presbyterian Church by the ordination of Mr. Samuel Park, a colored man, by the Memphis Presbytery. The idea that a man with a black skin and woolly hair should become a "coequal member of our church courts" is repulsive, at least, to Dr. E. T. Baird, who is writing articles for the Christian Observer, of Louisville, against the monstrous innovation. Dr. Baird claims that under the present constitution of the Church the obstacles to Mr. Park becoming a "coequal member of the church courts" are insurmountable. If this be so, it is a shame to the intelligence and Christianity of that body, and the best thing to do with such a constitution is to tear it to tatters. But we are not sure that Dr. Baird makes out his case. One of the conditions of ordination is that a man shall be able to edify the Church. Well, may not a colored man possess such ability? Dr. Baird answer, No.

Now, I risk nothing in asserting that no Negro man in the present condition of the Church and the world can attain unto this essential qualification for the position of a minister among us. Where has Mr. Park preached to the edification of any part of the Presbyterian Church, properly so called? How has he exhibited an ability to edify the Church? He has not done it. He cannot do it.

We know nothing about Mr. Park, but we do know of colored men who can edify any congregation. The difficulty is with the prejudice of the whites, who are, of course, entitled to have ministers of their own race, if they wish them; but Dr. Baird objects to any recognition of Mr. Park as a member of the Presbytery. The church, he says, was organized by white people for white people and white people have the exclusive right to administer its affairs. It is a pity, he thinks, that Mr. Park, having been sent by the Holy Ghost to labor among his own race, should come back to the Presbytery which ordained him to become a ruler over white churches. Yes, it is a pity; and it is a pity, too, that Dr. Baird's quarrel should be with the Holy Ghost.—N. Y. Independent.

The Exodus.

That "exodus" movement among the colored people in some Southern States is not checked, by any means. Nearly six hundred left Edgefield county, South Carolina, last week, to go to Arkansas. The whites in the South by this and other experiences are being compelled to deal fairly with the blacks. South Carolina is decidedly Bourbonish as to political and social questions, but even that secession State will be brought into a juster state of mind when self-interest forces the conversion. Labor is as vital and indispensable as capital, and it were as fatal for muscle to run away as for dollars to stampede. This migration is healthy. Decided self-respect comes of the knowledge to all parties that recent slaves have "constitutional liberty" to go and come as they please. Among strangers they will learn to do better, and transactions with stranger colored men who come from another state will induce South Carolinians to abate hauteur and sharp practice. This interchange of colored populations between Southern states will work out its portion of the coming and partly realized revolution in the new South. Complete tolerance, race, patience, mutual co-operation and common sense might, within very few years, enable some Southern states to rival our most prosperous Northwestern states. The climate that frees the agriculturist from burning fuel in every room during half the year, and stabling his stock six months counts much in the struggle. Slavery was a blight in scores of respects. Northern push, toleration and industry can make the South a fruitful paradise in two decades. It will yet thank God for even this dreaded exodus.—Northwestern.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell spent Sabbath, December 18th, on the Rosville Ct., Ills. Conf., speaking twice on our educational work in the South. The congregations were large, and the pastor, Rev. R. Stephens, writes that the people were full of joy at what our Church is doing in the South. The collection of the Freedmen's Aid Society will be from $50 to $60, against $10 last year.—Central.

Which Exhausts the Body Most, Mental or Physical Labor?

Mental labor always depletes the form more than physical. Physical labor may exhaust the body for the time being, but the body can recuperate and come up again. For instance, a man may come from labor at night tired in body, and yet the brain be active, and in a short time, by resting, he becomes strengthened, receives again his vitality, and is ready for another day's work. In fact, he is capable in his most exhausted condition of reading his daily newspaper. The action of the brain uses up the blood twice as fast as manual work. When a man comes home from a day of mental labor, he has exhausted not only the forces of the body but those of the brain and the nervous system. Although he may have a refreshing night's sleep, yet he rises in the morning tired, because he has not been able to get back the magnetic force he sent forth the day before; so he goes on, day after day, week after week and month after month, till at last the body gives way, the nerves succumb, and he finds himself in a shattered condition.

Ex-Vice President Colfax publishes in the Advance for December 22d a vigorous article on the Mormon question. In this he shows that the present attitude of the Mormons is one of defiance to the Nation, and offers some suggestions as to how this defiance should be met. He would have juries impaneled from law-abiding citizens only; would not allow the Mormons of Utah to vote their submissive harems by wholesale in favor of polygamy; would restore the right of dower, which has been abolished by the Utah Legislature; would have Utah governed by a board of commissioners, under the supervision of Congress, as is the District of Columbia; would not extend the land, patent, or naturalization laws to polygamists; and would make open living in polygamy a crime to be punished rather than the mere ceremony of marriage. Mr. Colfax believes the time for action has come, and he believes in heroic treatment. His suggestions are of a character to meet with ready response and hearty approval. He evidently has studied the question to some purpose.—Inter Ocean.

Austin, Texas.

Regarding the mandamus to be applied for it in the Court of the Queen's Bench, to quash the resolution passed by the Dublin corporation conferring the freedom of the city on Messrs. Dillon and Parnell, the Dublin correspondent of the Times says: If the point shall be established by the Queen's Bench, no one who is not a burgess can, under an existing clause of the corporation act, receive the freedom of a city. It would vitiate all votes of such freedom which have been passed, if any one choose to press it. Thus, the names of Mr. Gladstone and Gen. Grant would be erased from the roll. But it is questionable if they would regret being deprived of a distinction which has already lost much of its value by the alloy of disaffection and disloyalty added to it by the recent proceedings.

It turns out that the late movement in Confederate bonds is based upon the notion that the Fourteenth Amendment may some time, some way be rescinded, and the Southern States allowed to pay their war debts. Such a contingency is hardly worth speculating upon. The Democratic party is not likely to come into power again while the paper lasts upon which those bonds are printed.

Our Methodism's Future in the South.

It is conceded by all candid people, I think, that the Methodist Episcopal Church is permanently organized in the Southern States. To non-sectional persons her stay and work in the South is beyond question. That is a certainty. It is a fact over which every unfettered Methodist rejoices, that such a Methodism is organized in all parts of this great Nation. Not for the good of the Nation, merely, but for the good of Wesleyan Methodism's Elements and Agencies. Is the Methodist Episcopal Church working on the right basis to promote the distinctive Elements of Wesleyanism in the South? Emphatically we say—yes. Our church aims through her itinerant system to plant and develop these distinctive features. In this, she is free from those fetters that bind some churches to the State Government, others to the sectional idea and still others to the race or caste idea. Our Methodism seeks to save the world. But what will her work in the South do toward reaching this end?

Let us look at the circumstances under which she is now operating in the field. Our church in America has gone into new communities with no other view than that of attacking the general wickedness fo men. Such sins as intemperance, Sabbath desecration and sensuality. In this she has been a strong aggressive force. Such work has developed a clearer idea of regeneration, holiness, spirituality and church discipline. Methodism is a great promoter of evangelical faith and practical godliness.

Our Fathers also struggled against the errors of Calvanism. But for all these Methodism has proved more than an equal. She has triumphed heroically and marvelously. But in entering new communities at the South our Methodism had not only to meet these evils and errors, which I have mentioned, but there lay deeply rooted in the hearts of men a strong prejudice against her.

We have had therefore to bring into operation all the elements and agencies of our blessed church. We have pressed our unique iterancy, rich experience, consecrated ability and benevolence on the attention and conscience of the public. We have preached "Jesus and the Resurrection" with up-lifted hearts for the baptism of the Holy Ghost. What is the result? The germs are planted. The principles of truth and righteousness are growing. The ministry and layity are aiming at the highest points in a regenerated and educated life. The Methodism is awakening, inspiring and developing the thought and conscience of many.

What do these plantings and development indicate of the future? Clearly this. The conservative elements of Methodism's dearest doctrines and methods is growing up in the South. Why? Because every grain of John Wesley's teaching and methods has taken deep root in the hearts of our people. We cannot dispense with the least phase of our creed and discipline. In the East and North our brethren feel that some phases are debatable at least. Not so with us, except when discussion is made to strengthen our forces and plans. If by meeting deep-seated vice and heterodoxy our church was strengthened in her early days, much more will she be strengthened and blest in the South by meeting the same evils in connection with the long-cultivated prejudice against her aggressive forces. There is, therefore, strong probability of our Methodism's conservative element growing up in the South. Our people are growing large-hearted, and when the time comes that we can turn money and influence into missionary channels, we will do it heartily. We have the spirit now. God give us the means. I see, therefore, that conservatism and missionary zeal will be strong forces in our church throughout the Southern States.

W. A. Pledger, the colored editor of the Journal of Progress, made a short but impressive address, speaking of the advancement of his race and the prospect of his people for the future. His remarks were entertaining and were well received. In the course of his speech he said:

"I regret that more of my race are not present to hear and learn. I can say that we present to the world such a spectacle as is seldom seen—a race lifted from servitude and placed side by side in the race of life with the ex-master, and so far successful in fifteen years, with jealousies of the past removed; so that we feel at home in these southern lands and amongst friends. We challenge the world to show such a scene."

THE MANUAL.

Are our ministers doing their full duty in reference to this important periodical of the Methodist Episcopal Church? Inquiry at the mailing office brings out the fact, that while ten thousand copies were, during 1881, sent to as many ministers as a reward for their agency, only about one hundred cash subscribers were returned for the first volume. The present is the proper time for the renewal of past subscriptions, and for a great increase for the year to come. This is a periodical which no intelligent member or friend of the Church can afford to be without. No words can exaggerate the importance on the part of every local preacher, class-leader, trustee, steward, or Sunday-school superintendent, having the best and fullest information respecting all the great enterprises of the Church. These enterprises are represented systematically and officially from quarter to quarter in the Manual, which, at the end of each year, makes a volume of almost inestimable value for preservation and reference.

We really fear that the very cheapness of this magazine, only [illegible] cents a year, has led some to suppose that it is of corresponding little worth. No mistake can be greater, and it ought every where to be understood that it is by provision of the General Conference offered to subscribers at less than cost, in hope of securing a large circulation for the important matter it contains. Of course at such a price no premiums can be offered to those who obtain subscribers. Nevertheless, may we not hope that [illegible] all our preachers, who in the past [illegible] of its value, will make [illegible] subscription [illegible] Manual [illegible]

The New "Solid South."

There is another than a political sense in which the South may be said to be solid. She is prosperous and likely to become more so year by year. The rapid increase of population within her borders during the last decade has occasioned genuine surprise in the North, but that is only one indication of the progressive march on which she has by no means reached the end, or even the middle.

What the most sagacious of the Anti-Slavery leaders predicted as sure to follow the abolition of the peculiar institution has come to pass. The South is becoming populous; it is growing rich. Commerce is taking a new start; manufactures are springing up everywhere, and the planter sees his fields better tilled than ever before. Railroads are being built in all directions; new steamship lines are started; even the mineral wealth of the South is beginning to be developed. New Orleans, her principal seaport, is winning back its ante bellum position many times over, and will, in a few years, be the rival of New York and Baltimore, not only in its old staple of cotton but also in the new ones of grain and live stock.

All this is perfect by legitimate growth in prosperity, too, and therefore more certain of lasting. There is no reason why the great Southern staple should be sent North to be shipped for Europe. The natural thing to do is to put it on board a steamer at New Orleans, Mobile or Savannah or Charleston, and carry it across the Atlantic without any break of bulk. This would be a saving of labor and time, which means a saving of money. It has, also, been found that it is cheaper to transport corn and wheat down the Mississippi from the great grain fields on its upper course than to the Atlantic sea-board, while to bring the cattle of Texas to a point at the very doors of the grazing fields must inevitably have its advantages over the plan of sending them 2,000 miles or more by train.

Texas is rich in many things, and her products, added to those of Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi, find their natural outlet towards Europe at New Orleans, and the system of railroads which is either built or in process of building, connecting that city with these sections of country, will soon supply the one thing needful—transportation faculties. The recent improvements at the mouth of the big river have made it possible for the largest sea-going steamers to anchor off the Crescent City's wharves, and it only remains to perfect the internal system of communication to give an impetus to commerce there such as any Southern city never before experienced. Last year the imports and exports jumped from $71,000,000 to $104,000,000, her bank clearances from $422,000,000 to $506,000,000. The wheat receipts more than doubled, being over 14,000,000 bushels, as against 6,700,000 bushels in 1879. There was also an increase in the cotton receipts amounting to 300,000 bales, or one-fifth of the whole.

We in this city might be expected to feel some jealousy at finding such formidable rivals spring up to dispute the foreign trade of the country with us, and if we looked at the matter in an old-time, narrow and bigoted light, we undoubtedly would. Fortunately, we are aware that the South, healthy and prosperous, will be our best possible customer once more, and that even if our European commerce should decrease in one or two articles, it will be more than made up in a score of other directions. The "Solid South," in this sense, may rest assured that she has no better well-wishers than the "Solid North."—N. Y. Graphic.

Our Own Lesson Helps.

Under the above suggestive caption, Rev. J. H. Vincent, D. D., recently contributed to the columns of our advocates, a very timely article, which commends itself to the thoughtful consideration of the whole Church. Our preachers, superintendents and teachers, especially, who have read it once, would do well to peruse it again and again, until they have fully measured its weighty bearing upon one of the most vital interests of the connection. The writer, who is known to possess a thorough knowledge of the subject treated, boldly asserts a fact which every loyal Methodist should understand and appreciate; namely, that all our Sunday-school publications are sound in doctrine, thorough in literary merit, and superior in artistic and mechanical execution, and that when their adaptedness, quality, etc., are considered, it will be found that exorbitant prices are not charged for them as has been falsely claimed by D. C. Cook and others, who labor night and day, by all sorts of ways, to project into the schools of our denomination their own lesson helps. I have read numerous circulars sent forth by these outside revolutionists, and know something of their tempting offers to supply our schools with mere trifles, to us at least, for a mere trifle in exchange. I give them no countenance, whatever, because their so-called lesson helps are unauthorized by our own Church, antagonistic to our own Church, and, in every way, inferior to those issued from our own press. We can not afford to join hands with a foe who strikes at the very foundation of our great strength, however much he may promise to divide the spoils with us. We know the mighty instrumentalities which the Church has employed, and which, under God, have wrought such grand results in the development of solid Christian character, and are persuaded that we can still hold on to them without fear of losing ground. They who expect to see us trample such blessed agencies under our feet, and embrace in their stead the cheap substitutes which they offer, will, no doubt, go hence without real'zing the sight, except it be witnessed in some unfortunate Church where they have an ignoramus or traitor for pastor and a week kneed or rebellious man for superintendent.

The Church may safely depend upon her true sons and daughters who can never forget how, in early life, she took them upon her warm bosom, fed them with the sincere milk of the word, and has all along held out to them her hand of sympathy and love. These will stand by the authorized publishers and editors of her Sunday-school department, cost what it may. Like faithful sentinels, they will stand at the gates of our beautiful city and with sling or sword, tongue or pen, will guard against the entrance of any who come to defile it. We, of the South, though still environed with poverty, intend to rally around the old flag in the future, as in the past, and, God helping us, we are resolved never to let Cook or any body else pluck a single star from it.

A Correction.

Mr Editor: In the issue of the Southwestern Christian Advocate of November 24th, I noticed that you had made one sad mistake in my letter from Arkansas.

In the sentence where I said, "if it was necessary to have two conferences here in this State, why not divide on the line that the conference adopted?" But you said, "if it was necessary to have the conference here in this State, why divide on the line that the conference adopted?"

Now, I would not have had that done for anything. I hope you will correct it.

Yours respectfully,
G. W. Sams.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 5th 1881.

The men who are endeavoring to protect the State credit of Tennessee have won another victory. The Legislature passed a bill to refund the defaulted bonds, par for par, but the repudiators secured an injunction prohibiting the State officials from carrying out the law, and the case was carried to the Supreme Court where under ordinary procedure, it could not be reached for three years. A motion was recently made and granted to advance the case upon the docket, and the arguments will be heard on the 17th of January.

A Colored Presbyterian.

Some disquiet appers to have been caused in the Southern Presbyterian Church by the ordination of Mr. Samuel Park, a colored man, by the Memphis Presbytery. The idea that a man with a black skin and woolly hair should become a "coequal member of our church courts" is repulsive, at least, to Dr. E. T. Baird, who is writing articles for the Christian Observer, of Louisville, against the monstrous innovation. Dr. Baird claims that under the present constitution of the Church the obstacles to Mr. Park becoming a "coequal member of the church courts" are insurmountable. If this be so, it is a shame to the intelligence and Christianity of that body, and the best thing to do with such a constitution is to tear it to tatters. But we are not sure that Dr. Baird makes out his case. One of the conditions of ordination is that a man shall be able to edify the Church. Well, may not a colored man possess such ability? Dr. Baird answer, No.

Now, I risk nothing in asserting that no Negro man in the present condition of the Church and the world can attain unto this essential qualification for the position of a minister among us. Where has Mr. Park preached to the edification of any part of the Presbyterian Church, properly so called? How has he exhibited an ability to edify the Church? He has not done it. He cannot do it.

We know nothing about Mr. Park, but we do know of colored men who can edify any congregation. The difficulty is with the prejudice of the whites, who are, of course, entitled to have ministers of their own race, if they wish them; but Dr. Baird objects to any recognition of Mr. Park as a member of the Presbytery. The church, he says, was organized by white people for white people and white people have the exclusive right to administer its affairs. It is a pity, he thinks, that Mr. Park, having been sent by the Holy Ghost to labor among his own race, should come back to the Presbytery which ordained him to become a ruler over white churches. Yes, it is a pity; and it is a pity, too, that Dr. Baird's quarrel should be with the Holy Ghost.—N. Y. Independent.

The Exodus.

That "exodus" movement among the colored people in some Southern States is not checked, by any means. Nearly six hundred left Edgefield county, South Carolina, last week, to go to Arkansas. The whites in the South by this and other experiences are being compelled to deal fairly with the blacks. South Carolina is decidedly Bourbonish as to political and social questions, but even that secession State will be brought into a juster state of mind when self-interest forces the conversion. Labor is as vital and indispensable as capital, and it were as fatal for muscle to run away as for dollars to stampede. This migration is healthy. Decided self-respect comes of the knowledge to all parties that recent slaves have "constitutional liberty" to go and come as they please. Among strangers they will learn to do better, and transactions with stranger colored men who come from another state will induce South Carolinians to abate hauteur and sharp practice. This interchange of colored populations between Southern states will work out its portion of the coming and partly realized revolution in the new South. Complete tolerance, race, patience, mutual co-operation and common sense might, within very few years, enable some Southern states to rival our most prosperous Northwestern states. The climate that frees the agriculturist from burning fuel in every room during half the year, and stabling his stock six months counts much in the struggle. Slavery was a blight in scores of respects. Northern push, toleration and industry can make the South a fruitful paradise in two decades. It will yet thank God for even this dreaded exodus.—Northwestern.

Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell spent Sabbath, December 18th, on the Rosville Ct., Ills. Conf., speaking twice on our educational work in the South. The congregations were large, and the pastor, Rev. R. Stephens, writes that the people were full of joy at what our Church is doing in the South. The collection of the Freedmen's Aid Society will be from $50 to $60, against $10 last year.—Central.

Which Exhausts the Body Most, Mental or Physical Labor?

Mental labor always depletes the form more than physical. Physical labor may exhaust the body for the time being, but the body can recuperate and come up again. For instance, a man may come from labor at night tired in body, and yet the brain be active, and in a short time, by resting, he becomes strengthened, receives again his vitality, and is ready for another day's work. In fact, he is capable in his most exhausted condition of reading his daily newspaper. The action of the brain uses up the blood twice as fast as manual work. When a man comes home from a day of mental labor, he has exhausted not only the forces of the body but those of the brain and the nervous system. Although he may have a refreshing night's sleep, yet he rises in the morning tired, because he has not been able to get back the magnetic force he sent forth the day before; so he goes on, day after day, week after week and month after month, till at last the body gives way, the nerves succumb, and he finds himself in a shattered condition.

Ex-Vice President Colfax publishes in the Advance for December 22d a vigorous article on the Mormon question. In this he shows that the present attitude of the Mormons is one of defiance to the Nation, and offers some suggestions as to how this defiance should be met. He would have juries impaneled from law-abiding citizens only; would not allow the Mormons of Utah to vote their submissive harems by wholesale in favor of polygamy; would restore the right of dower, which has been abolished by the Utah Legislature; would have Utah governed by a board of commissioners, under the supervision of Congress, as is the District of Columbia; would not extend the land, patent, or naturalization laws to polygamists; and would make open living in polygamy a crime to be punished rather than the mere ceremony of marriage. Mr. Colfax believes the time for action has come, and he believes in heroic treatment. His suggestions are of a character to meet with ready response and hearty approval. He evidently has studied the question to some purpose.—Inter Ocean.

Garibaldi is not the ignorant, uncultivated man that many people suppose him to be. He knows many languages and many literatures, and is well versed in mathematics.

The New York Tribune says: "The District Attorney has issued three hundred notices to the keepers of gambling houses, policy shops and assignation houses, requiring them to cease business. The landlords will be ordered to dispossess such tenants."

The Cardinal Archbishop of Rouen, who recently returned from Rome, has published a letter describing the position of the Pope. He urges the Italians to choose an other capital and leave Rome to the Pope, in order to avert the necessity of his departure from that city.

Gen. Grant has written a letter admitting that through ignorance of important facts, he had wronged Gen. Fitz John Porter. He asks President Arthur to examine the case, and see that justice be done Gen. Porter. Senator Logan will continue to oppose his restoration to the army.

A Philadelphia gentleman has on exhibition in his place of business a rat in a bottle. The rodent slipped in when he was young, and being unable to climb out, was carefully and bountifully fed by his mother until now he has grown so fat that he is in danger of bursting the bottle.

There is a systematized effort among the Roman Catholics at Santander, Spain, to harrass every individual who is seen going to a place of Protestant worship. Masters are induced to dismiss servants, landlords to eject tenants, and customers to withhold patronage from any who embrace the Protestant faith.

A writer in Bradstreet's has discovered that fifteen million dollars worth of musical instruments are made and sold in this country every year. Of this sum nearly eleven millions are expended for pianos, more than three millions for "organs," and nearly three hundred thousand dollars for "other instruments." Who will say that Americans are not a musical people?

President Arthur is perhaps the most methodical man of business who has occupied the Executive chair for a quarter of century. He understands the entire business of the Executive Mansion, dictates replies to all important letters received, and is so thoroughly conversant with the facts involved in important questions brought before him as to surprise those who call to enlighten him.

Four students of a Wisconsin college, who stole a farmer's gate "for fun," were given by the Faculty the alternative of leaving the college or of undergoing such punishment as the farmer might inflict. They chose the latter, and the farmer commanded them to chop four cords of his wood and deliver it to a poor widow. They did it to the music of a band and the plaudits of a crowd that watched the operation.

When Roswell P. Flower, who was elected to Congress over [illegible] to fill the Morton vacancy, reached Washington, he found that he was entitled to draw pay for the interval between the date of Morton's resignation and his own election. The amount was $2,014 65, which he forwarded to the Rev. Dr. Morgan, of New York, with the request that he act as chairman of a committee, to be composed of all the clergymen in charge of [illegible] in his district, and to determine in what manner the amount should be distributed among the deserving charities of the district.

THURSDAY, JAN. 12, 1882.

A Word to Our Agents.

Agents of this paper will greatly assist us by forwarding promptly all collections to this office. Send what you have on hand, and do not wait for the meeting of conference or any other contingency. Solicit subscriptions and collect the money now. We do not want large lists to be paid for at the end of the year. The people are fully able to pay the small subscription price this week or a few weeks later. Push the canvass, and send in the money. Our expenses are heavy, and we confidently rely upon our agents to sustain us.

Brethren of the Louisiana Conference and those recommended for admission will please take notice that upon the presentation of their credentials or licenses, they can get tickets for three cents a mile each way on the Morgan's Louisiana and Texas Railroad from any portion of the road to and from Franklin, the seat of the Conference. N. B.—Be sure not to forget your credentials.

See all the old subscribers and have them renew.

Book orders must be accompanied by the cash. We cannot attend to others.

If you desire your children to form a taste for pure literature put the church paper in their reach.

Go right on with the canvass, [illegible] the people at all [illegible] this month to take the SOUTHWESTERN.

[illegible] send us postage stamps or [illegible] currency in payment [illegible]. We will not give [illegible] the face value of mutilated ones.

[illegible] Chapel, New Orleans has subscribed to 67 copies of the SOUTHWESTERN to date, and the canvass is still being pushed with earnestness.

The Peabody fund, the Paul Tulane gift, and local school matters receive extended mention in the Louisiana Journal of Education for January.

If the subscribers of the SOUTHWESTERN will commend the paper [illegible] their neighbors, their efforts will be appreciated, and undoubtedly result in a marked increase [illegible].

Christian Certainty.

The evidences of Christianity are usually divided into three departments, viz, the external, internal and collateral. The external evidence embraces miracles and fulfilled prophecy, the internal consists in the evidence arising from the character of the truth revealed in Scripture agreeing as it does with all that we know of the character of God and of the requirements of man; collateral evidence is supplied by the wonderful success of the Gospel and by the beneficial influence which it exerts on individual and national character. Now these evidences are undoubtedly of grave importance. It is no sign of wisdom to assert that this species of evidence has passed into desuetude. And yet it must be clear to every candid mind that much of this kind of evidence is of necessity inaccessible to many. The majority of those for whom the Gospel is designed are not in a position to avail themselves of the historical evidences of Christianity. The question naturally occurs, Is there not some other way by which the truth of Christianity can be demonstrated? Must a person study all the historical evidence of revelation before he can arrive at certainty as to the matter of his faith? We find, by reference to the teaching of Jesus Christ that the truth of his words is capable of a simpler method of demonstration. "He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself." We understand that Christianity can be submitted to the test of experience, that each person can for himself prove the truth of the Christian faith. The historical evidences of Christianity are not accessible to many, but the experimental evidence is one which all can enjoy.

As to the relative value of these different orders of evidence there can be no doubt that the experimental evidence has greater weight than the historical evidence. We all know that the latter depends largely upon the deductions of reason, but how often have conclusions arrived at by the most logical train of reasoning been contradicted upon application of the test of experience! We are all familiar with the instance of the learned man who wrote an essay showing the impossibility of propelling a vessel across the ocean by means of steam. According to his calculation it would require so many tons of coal to generate so much steam; to propel a steamer across the Atlantic would require so much steam; to generate that amount of steam would require a quantity of coal beyond the capacity of any vessel to carry. The demonstration appeared to be complete, but the very week it was made a vessel steamed into the harbor after crossing the Atlantic. The fact blew the scientific demonstration to the winds. So when we read a book on the "evidence of Christianity," we arrive at the conclusion that Christianity is true, but after all the conclusion is only an opinion—it only amounts to a strong probability at the best. We are not sure in our deepest consciousness that Christianity is true.

Far otherwise is it with the evidence arising from experience. Here we have not simply an opinion, but a fact—not merely the highest probability, but absolute certainty. No proof is so convincing as that supplied by our consciousness. The facts which he [illegible] the materials of our [illegible] and certain knowledge, involving no intermediate process of [illegible], and absolutely withdrawn from all sources of doubt or deception. At all events the testimony of consciousness is the most direct and [illegible] and if we [illegible] [illegible] we are [illegible] plunged in an abyss of [illegible]. The truths that we hold [illegible] are [illegible] of consciousness and not by any logical [illegible] of reasoning. We have [illegible] in our [illegible] [illegible] and intelligent [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] It is possible for us then to arrive at absolute certainty as to its truth. [illegible] [illegible] the truths of Christianity [illegible] the [illegible] of the truths of Christianity. What the Church needs more than anything else for the successful prosecution of its mission is a clear experience, absolute certainty as to the truth which it professes and proclaims.

Wheeling into Line.

Another great State has wheeled into line, to swell the great and growing prohibition movement in these United States.

The good and brave citizens of the State of Kentucky, not having the fear of whisky manufactures, and whisky sellers before their eyes, have held their first State Prohibition convention, and organized in permanent form, with regular state, district and county committees.

With great zeal and much enthusiasm they passed some stirring resolutions, and the Hon. G. W. Bain, delivered a telling speech of which we give a mere synopsis.

The eloquent speaker said: "A political prohibition convention in the Democratic State of Kentucky, to say the least of it is a daring adventure. Some will call it impudence, others fanaticism, while possibly a few will class us as among those referred to by the late President Garfield, when he said the man most to be admired in this world is the man who dares to look the devil in the face and tell him he is a devil.

I don't say the Democratic party is the devil or the Republican party the devil, but I do say the liquor traffic does the devil's work, and that the licensed liquor traffic belongs to both of these parties.

Now and then, they put a little catch clause in their platforms, but in every instance it contains a double—back action spring with automatic attachments, and they laugh at us after election.

I know we are going against the tide, but men of straw can go down hill. It takes muscle to go up. Some will say, why don't you wait till you get up a public sentiment that will carry you through. That is like the old ditty we have all heard before:

> Mother may I go out to swim,
> Yes my darling daughter,
> Hang your clothes upon a limb,
> But don't go near the water.

The main question is the magnitude of our principles and the possibilities of our purpose."

The concluding idea of his speech was, to go forth with the temperance pledge and prohibition in one hand and the ballot in the other. In conclusion they resolved to place county and state tickets before the people at every election.

Such is the movement in the State of Kentucky, and such must be the movement in every state, if ever the evils of the liquor traffic are to be overthrown. This mere skirmishing with the picket line must cease, and the main citadel be attacked.

The Growth of Mormonism.

Mormonism, beginning with only six members, has continued its constant increase in number, power and resources, until it has secured control of a vast and attractive area of country larger than New England, with the addition of New Jersey and Maryland; and abounding in natural and accumulated wealth equal to the most favored portion of our country. It is misleading to simply call Mormonism the "infamy of Utah," for Mormonism and polygamy are no longer confined to Utah but hold in addition the balance of power in Wyoming, Idaho and Arizona with a rapid influx in Colorado. It will take an army of 150,000 men to wipe this blot off from our civilization. The sooner the Government deals summarily in this matter the better, or this evil if continued will like slavery cost millions of lives and treasure to eradicate it. The Inter Ocean noting the persistent planting of colonies by Mormon missionaries says:

Polygamy enlarges every year. The present Congress can take effective action on no subject which will meet with more unqualified approval than this. Nor should it be any half-way measure; polygamy is a crime and should be suppressed. There is no reason why a Mormon steeped in crime that would consign him to the penitentiary of any State in the Union, should hold a seat in Congress and make laws for honest citizens. The time has come to obliterate polygamy, and legislators who are too cowardly to do it should be invited to the rear.

It is the truth that sets men free. False premises must of necessity produce false conclusions. Let investigations demonstrate the truth that the liquor traffic commits [illegible] of the crime, destroys more property than all other agencies known, commits nearly all the suicides and murders; fills all our [illegible] and penitentiaries, and [illegible] graves and [illegible] over 60,000 of our [illegible], let American public [illegible] to the full [illegible] of these truths, and [illegible] will follow as [illegible]. This is true of every known evil. The truth [illegible] [illegible] to the slave, gave them the ballot and equality before the law, and will eventually annihilate the ominous shadow of slavery, prejudice. It will wipe out Mormonism and Polygamy, and expel intemperance from our shores. "Buy the truth and sell it not."

We learn from an exchange that a call is being extensively signed in Kentucky by ministers for a State Convention of ministers to "counsel together as to ways and means to carry on the temperance war" in that State. This is just the idea. The ministers of every State in the Union should do the same, devise ways and means; adopt resolutions, and carry out the programme with warm and determined Christian zeal. Every minister of Christ should be aroused, electrified to the importance of this warfare against rum. And through the ministry the electric current must pass through every church member, until every class of voters in this country be made to feel that the abominable liquor traffic, with its train of evils must be wiped out of existence. Come out brethren and lead the way.

The importance of educating colored seamen for the Spanish South America trade cannot be too strenuously urged. The call is already being made for colored acclimated seamen, who alone can enter that trade, and go in and out at any time with perfect impunity. The presence of the U. S. warship Kearsarge at this port, recruiting boys for the schoolship is quite propitious, and the advantages offered should be availed by many who have a mind to be seamen. This is a splendid opportunity for some of our boys to become good and reliable navigators.

Messrs. Paddy Ryan and Sullivan are training for a prize fight near this city. They expect by a most disgusting exhibition of brutality to settle numerous bets on the encounter among the gambling fraternity, and such green youths as may be attracted to them. They will really give lessons to the hoodlum element in the way of knocking down their physical inferiors. A city paper laments the brutality of a dog fight, and evidently desires the police to obstruct or prevent it; but the local columns give interviews, descriptions and speculations to encourage an animal exhibition of humanity. The authorities of this city and State and the adjoining State of Mississippi, in behalf of public, decency, should exert themselves, and by their vigilance render it impossible of accomplishment. We hope Mayor Shakespeare, Govs. McEnery and Lowery will give the subject their special attention.

The closing incident of the extra session of the Louisiana legislature, was the pocketing of mileage and per diem for the additional session. As the sessions were in fact continuous, and the members remained in attendance, there was no mileage due. The City Item and States newspapers denounced this grab of public money, and some members returned the amounts drawn to the treasury with alacrity. One explained that he received and accepted the amount under a mistaken idea of what it was for. It is hoped he will be more careful next time.

The friends of Congressional appropriations for Mississippi improvement are working busily. Appropos of the opposition of the Herald, and other New York journals, the St. Louis Globe Democrat say "no Congressman who possesses a record which contains any act adverse to the people of the great Mississippi valley can ever hope to be President."

Rev. P. E. Bardwell, Handsboro, writes: "We are doing our best to secure 200 subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN, on this circuit. The committees are now at work." This is cheering. Let prompt payment of subscriptions be also urged.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Rev. E. Provine wishes his correspondents to address him at Smith's Station, Tennessee.

—Mr. James C. Flood distributed $6,000 among several benevolent associations in San Francisco on Christmas morning.

—The Louisianian, of this city, compliments our assistant editor in an extended notice of his appointment.

—Gov. St. John, of Kansas, has appointed Mrs. Cora M. Downs, of Wyandotte, one of the Regents of the State University.

—Bishop Warren, Dr. Kynett, Dr. Vincent and others were expected to attend the South Carolina Conference at Spartanburg. Bishop Foster will preside.

—Governors Jarvis, of North Carolina; Colquitt, of Georgia; Hawkins, of Tennessee, and Lowry, of Mississippi are members of the Methodist church, South.

—Dr S. Hunt was to be present at the session of the South Carolina Conference, Spartanburgh, January 12, as the representative of our Book Concern at New York.

—The friends of Professor Robertson Smith, of Scotland, it is said, have presented him with five thousand dollars worth of books; and a fund has been raised sufficient to secure him a larger salary than he had as Professor.

—Mr. Robert Porter, of Chicago, one of Gen. Walker's principal assistants in the compilation of the census of 1880 has obtained control of the International Review, and will edit it hereafter, assisted by Mr. Gaunet, the geographer of the census, one of the best scientific men in the country.

—Bishop Foster, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, returned last week from his visit to the Fall Conferences. During the last five months he has traveled 10,000 miles, delivered 64 addresses, presided for 70 full days in Annual Conferences, written 60 cap pages of annual minutes, written 100 official letters, and furnished 100 letter-cap manuscripts for the press. —N. Y. Advocate.

—This postal was received from Thos. Mason, Principal of Walden Seminary, Little Rock, Ark.:

"I drop you this to inform you of a very pleasant surprise given me and family on New Year's Eve, by the students of Walden Seminary. Very unexpectedly they assembled en masse, and marched through the house two by two, each bringing in his hands and depositing with me some token of esteem. Then wishing us a happy New Year, departed, singing with a will "Depths of Mercy," etc. We are having a very pleasant, and, we believe, a profitable time."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. L. P. Cushman, presiding elder La Teche district reports: "Our benevolent collections will be full double this this year. Good advance."

J. W. Lewis: "An entertainment was given at Mandeville not long since for the purpose of building a new church, and, the weather being bad, we raised $22.90. I here send in fourteen new subscribers for 1882, and expect more in a few days."

Frank Walker, Fort Jesup: "The Presiding Elder visited us in October. We want more such men in our Louisiana Conference. We raised this year for pastor, $50 Elder, $75. Three Churches on the Sabine have joined our quarterly conference."

Cyrus H. Claiborne: "The children at Camp Parapet had a glorious time at their Christmas tree entertainment Dec. 24, 1881. $22 was spent to fit up the tree. Every one seemed to be happy. The music, recitations, and addresses were excellent. This is the first time I was made so happy among the children since I became their leader. May God bless the young people at Camp Parapet."

Prince King, New Orleans: "We are happy to say that we have just closed a glorious revival, ending with sixty souls, happily converted to God and his Zion. Among these the majority are young men. We pray that they may be useful in the house of the Lord and flourish in his courts, for the progress of the Church depends on the young element. Our Church is prospering both financially and spiritually. We are thankful to God that we are about to close our three years labor with credit both to the Church and to ourselves. "Glory to God in the highest for His mercies endureth forever" Mount Zion M. E. Church.

Stephen Priestly: "At First Street M. E. Church our protracted meeting was a grand success. 37 converts were added to the church at our last revival and 30 in the early part of the year; on New Year's eve 25 mourners were at the altar for prayer, and 2 converts, making a total 69 converts for this year. Many bright young men are brought to Christ this year and many nice young ladies, God has blessed the work with souls. At our last communion (Jan.) 324 partook of the Lord's Supper. We have a charming congregation to make one glad to see, and perfect order is observed. The people deserve credit at this charge for their behavior and order. We have a nice church and a nice people at this point. The Sabbath-school Christmas tree was loaded with presents for children and adults. We had a crowded church on that occasion, Dec 23d, to hear the little speeches from the children. Santa Claus came in and strew sugar plums over the congregation and made everything lively for awhile and then came the presents."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. [illegible]ey, [illegible], [illegible] his work after [illegible] days riding in snow and rain. He has [illegible] his duties in the right spirit.

G. N. Johnson, Galway: "Elder Jesse P. Price held our first quarterly. The people are well pleased with their new elder. They are Methodists and always pleased with the man whom God and the conference sends."

TEXAS.

W. J. Mitchell, Burlack: "A festival was given at our church on the 8th, for the purpose of paying off the old debt that has been on the church for four years. We raised $96, paid off the debt, and the church is now clear."

Rev. P. Morgan wrote us from Palestine last December, a clear account of his three years labors at that place. In 1879 he found two members and the same year he increased the number to thirty-five, and the following year he doubled the number. A large number of these, however, were transient, because Palestine is a railroad center. There are at present about seventy. The Church is in good standing, and $1,200 was collected in three years, a lot purchased and a church built and furnished complete. The benevolent and ADVOCATE money was raised and taken to conference. Such a report is creditable to both pastor and people.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

The Methodist Episcopal church, South, has a great many institutions of learning; but not one of them will admit a student who has a drop of African blood in his veins. The colored man must look to the North for his education.—Freedman's Aid Herald.

The Mississippi Legislature organized by electing Hon. R. O. Reynolds, of Monroe, President pro tem of the Senate; and Hon. W. H. Tison, of Lee, speaker; R. S. Wilson, of Sunflower, clerk; W. T. Holland, of Hinds, sergeant-at-arms; and Wm. Mannery, (colored) of Rankin, door keeper, of the House.

The Earl of Derby, speaking at the banquet of the Liverpool Reform Club, announced himself as a thorough Liberal. He said he hoped there would be no further attempt to prevent Bradlaugh taking the parliamentary oath. Discussing the question of Home Rule in Ireland, the Earl said: America is not a despotic or reactionary country, but we know how she dealt with secession, and we see how soon and how thoroughly the traces of a sanguinary conflict has disappeared. I do not see why we should show less determination or have less fortune.

In a report by Superintendent of Public Instruction Wickersham, of Pennsylvania, published by the Bureau of Education, in reply to a charge that the higher grades of education are not safeguards against tendencies to crime, says,—first, about one sixth of all the crime in the country is committed by persons wholly illiterate; second, that about one-third of it is committed by persons practically illiterate; third, that the proportion of criminals among the illiterate is about ten times as great as it is among those who have been instructed in the elements of a common school education, or beyond.

Special from Memphis, Jan. 2, to the New Orleans Times-Democrat:

Yesterday, at Milan, Tenn., when the train bringing Clara Louise Kellogg and her concert troupe to Memphis, stopped for dinner, the party entered the hotel, to take advantage of the twenty minutes allowed for refreshments. First went Mr. Pond, the business manager, who was followed by Miss Kellogg and her colored maid. Mr. Pond and Miss Kellogg had seated themselves at the table and the maid was about to follow suit, when Mr. Miller, the proprietor, stepped forward and informed the lady of color that separate tables were reserved for servants. Miss Kellogg at once became very indignant and demanded that her maid should be permitted to eat with her. She claimed that her maid had traveled with her all over the country, and this was the first instance where any objection had been raised on account of her color. If the maid was not permitted to sit at the same table, Mr. Miller was informed, the whole party would leave the dining-room. This argument was a clincher, and the meal was served without further objection on the part of the proprietor."

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2d, 1882.

Desiring to live in peace and among loving brethren in the Church please notice the following authority: I have been long a member of good standing in St. James Chapel, A. M. E. Church. The Discipline of said church pp. 127 and 152 on trial of ministers specially declares and provides how charges may be laid calling ministers of same rank composing a committee; the accuser brought face to face and if the person be clearly convicted he or she suspended from all official standing until the ensuing annual conference. In my case this was not done. Then when before the conference if the supposed delinquent flees from trial, which is proof of guilt, nevertheless the annual conference shall determine the whole matter. After expulsion the annual conference shall demand of him his credentials (and Baker on discipline cites this authority as in the discipline. Also being the privilege of the elder having charge of the circuit (but) with common sense after expulsion or having complied as the discipline directs. This has never been executed or applied to my case. Hence my resignation copies of which have been previously forwarded to the bishop of said conference and also published Nov. 1, 1881.

To all whom it may concern and to the Bishop of the A. M. E. Church of Louisiana Annual Conference. Greeting:

Be it known and remembered that I, Solomon Johnson, a duly ordained deacon legally set apart by the "Imposition of hands of the Right Rev. T. M. D. Ward, one of the bishops of the above afore mentioned church, do hereby this the 1st of November 1881 resign, ignore, annul, withdraw my membership, allegiance, connection from the said African Methodist Episcopal Church and the annual conference of the said aforementioned church for being railed at, defamed, dealt by and with, in a manner contrary to law, and discipline of said church by one Rev. A. M. Greent pastor of St. James Chapel. Said conduct and manner of the treatment I received is derogatory to the gospel of Christ and the established rules as are laid down in the discipline of said church in such case made and provided and the dignity of the same, and while I desire to live the life of a consistent Christian, seeking peace with all men, and the Master Jesus himself said in Beatitudes, Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God. I do this without calumny or evil intent, and for the rectitude of my aim and the integrity of my heart. I appeal to all sober philanthropists and to Almighty God as the ruler and Judge of all for my witness and arbiter and who rewards all for their deeds whether good or evil.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

January 15, 1882.—POWER TO HEAL.
SCRIPTURE.—Mark 1: 29-45.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"I am the Lord that healeth thee."—Ex. 15: 26.
QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT—Christ the Healer.
LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer's Power.
(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

If God were incarnate then, miracles were natural, and to be expected. They were but the expressions of his divine power. They were needed as proofs of the fact of his divinity, for the greatest of all miracles was the incarnation of the Son of God. No mere assertion of such a relationship would have been sufficient. Men had to be compelled to believe a fact so extraordinary. To make it impossible not to believe, were miracles given. But they did not accompany every act of Christ with a wonder-exciting marvel—as men would have planned. There were no useless demonstrations of his divine power. The trees did not bow down to give to him their fruit, the wild beasts did not come to pay him homage, nor did flowers blossom in his footsteps, as has been narrated in legends of his infancy. Such phenomena would have responded to man's desire for the marvelous, but would have been no true expression of divinity. The very way in which Christ's miracles were wrought—their lack of conformation to man's ideas of what would be the exhibitions of divinity—prove that they were the manifestations of deity. For they were no profitless exhibitions of power—and of vanity. They were performed, indeed, that men might know that the Saviour really was the Christ, but every miracle had an adequate reason in itself besides that. He wrought them because he was "moved with compassion." In him we see, not a mere wonder-exhibitor, but one who used his divine power to benefit the distressed, and to prove that he has the authority to forgive sins. Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever. In an instant she was ready for work. She ministered unto the Lord who had done so much for her, and to his disciples.

Then they brought unto him those hopeless cases that to-day would be found only in the almshouses, the infirmaries, the hospitals, or the insane asylums. "And he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them."

On the evening before, he healed all that were brought to him from all the region round about, instead of seeking recuperation in sleep, he arose a great while before day to seek it in communion with his Father! The multitude in their anxiety to see and hear him, scarcely would allow Jesus to have time enough to sleep. They sought to detain him where he was, with them. But his answer was that he must go into the next towns.

His whole being was stirred by his sympathy for this leper. He stretched forth his hand, and touched him. The cure was instantaneous and complete. The leper was a leper no longer. He had caused to be a loathsome object. All the possibilities of life in an instant were his once more. Instead of being an outcast, shut out from the pleasures, the privileges, and the duties of society, he could return home, and again be a man among men. His joy was so great over his wonderful restoration, that it is evident that he could not keep silence. He felt like telling every man that he met. And it seems that he did just about do so, for "Jesus could no more openly enter into a city, but was without in desert places." By his zeal the leper drove his friend away! In these days, however, the general disobedience lies in just the opposite direction—those cleansed from the leprosy of sin do not testify enough!

NEW BOOKS.

All books received from publishers will be announced as soon as they come to hand. Notices or reviews of each one will be given after examination, as we think their merits justify.

THE NEW INFIDELITY. By Augustus Radcliffe Grote. New York: Geo. Putnam's Sons. New Orleans: J. C. Eyrich, 130 Canal street.

Discusses the state of affairs between Religion and Science, with a view to a peaceful conclusion by following all possible lines of agreement with charity and good will. The author contends that unbelief is in one sense, a reaction from the oppression of the creeds.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

James Vick, of Rochester, N. Y., has sent us his Floral Guide for 1882, a handsome specimen of the typographic art.

The Utah Review, H. Palmerston & Co., Salt Lake, is an interesting magazine. Rev. Theophilus Parsons is the editor. Terms $2 per year.

From N. Tibbals & Sons, booksellers, 37 Park Row, New York, we have received their complete Theological Catalogue. Price 5c. in stamps.

"My Missionary Box and I," is a story with a moral, printed in paper cover, by Eben Shute, Boston, at 75c per dozen, and $5 per hundred. It is a serviceable tract.

The Advocate of Christian Holiness, late of Philadelphia, has been removed to Boston, and now appears as the Advocate of Bible Holiness, enlarged, with new dress, decidedly improved.

"Our Little Ones" for January, describes "Wide Awake Land," "What Santa Claus Brought," "The Circus," and is filled with choice stories and pictures. Boston: Russell Publishing Co.

"Drinks from Drugs," a startling exposure of the tricks of the liquor traffic, Eli Johnson, is No. 1 of the Popular Temperance Library, David C. Cook, Chicago. Price 10c. Recipes for the manufacture of various liquors are given with illustrations.

The New York Tribune is responsible for the statement that the Empress of Austria reads St. Nicholas to her children, and enjoys the stories herself; and the American Register of Paris says that the Queen Marguerite of Italy also reads St. Nicholas.

The Season, an illustrated magazine, with colored plates, the newest Paris fashions and designs for needlework, embroidery, etc., comes to us from the United States News Company. Price 30c. It would seem to be all a fashionable lady could desire in its line.

The Nineteenth Century, Fortnightly Review, and Contemporary Review, are excellent foreign reprints issued by George Munro, New York, at 20 cents per copy, or an annual subscription each of $2.25. The December numbers may be found at the news stands.

"A few plain words on Baptism," by Rev. J. C. Simmons, of the Pacific Conference, Church South, is a pamphlet of [illegible] pages published at Nashville. It is in colloquial style, and intended for many who would shrink from more elaborate treatises. Price 10 cents.

The New York Times is a [illegible] American newspaper, a [illegible] repository and exponent of [illegible]

A GREAT REVELATION.

Some Valuable Thoughts Concerning Human Happiness and Timely Suggestions About Securing It.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Dr. Chas. Craig Before the Metropolitan Scientific Association.

The free and independent thought of this age accepts statements only where they are proven to be truth, while the development of mental power seems equally great in every other department of life. The valuable inventions of the day are counted by thousands. The increase of scientific study is universal. The spirit of inquiry in all fields is so marked as to cause

COMMENT ON EVERY SIDE,

while people seem investigating and advancing in every direction which can help them morally, mentally or physically. This is specially true of the human body and everything which concerns it, and the truths which the people have found, even in the last fifty years, are simply marvelous. How really ignorant some cultured and supposeably scientific people were only a few years ago, as compared with the present day, may be better understood from a few illustrative facts. A prominent writer prepared an elaborate essay to prove that steamships could never cross the Atlantic, and his pamphlet was issued just in time to be carried by the first steamer that went to England. People once believed that the heart was the seat of life and health. It is now known that this organ is only a pump simply keeping in motion what other and more important organs of the body have created and transformed. It was once supposed that if a person felt a pain in the back the liver was deranged; if a pain in the lower chest the lungs were affected and consumption was near; it is now known that a pain in the back indicates diseased kidneys, while troubles in the lower chest arise from a disordered liver and not imperfect lungs. A severe pain in the head was once thought to come from some partial derangements of the brain; it is now known that troubles in other parts of the body and away from the head, cause headaches and that only by removing the cause can the pain be cured. It is a matter of that Gen. Washington was bled to death. His last illness was slight, and caused principally by weariness. A physician was called who 'bled him copiously.' Strange to say, the patient became no better. Another doctor was called, who again took away a large amount of the vital fluid. Thus in succession four physicians drew away the life of a great man who was intended by nature for an old age, and who prematurely died—murdered by malpractice—bled to death. That was the age of medical bleeding!"

The speaker then graphically described another period which came upon the people, in which they assigned the origin of all disease to the stomach, and after showing the falsity of this theory and that the kidneys and liver were the causes of disease, and that many people are suffering from kidney and liver troubles to-day who do not know it, but who should know it and attend to them at once, continued:

"Let us look at the matter a little more closely. The human body is the most perfect and yet the most delicate of all created things. It is capable of the greatest results and it is liable to the greatest disorders. The slightest causes sometimes seem to throw its delicate machinery out of order while the most simple and common-sense care restores and keeps them in perfect condition. When it is remembered that the amount of happiness or misery we are to have in this world is dependent upon a perfect body, is it not strange that simple precautions and care are not exercised? This is one of the most vital questions of life. People may avoid it for the present, but there is certain to come a time in every one's experience when it must be faced.

"And here pardon me for relating a little personal experience. In the year 1870 I found myself losing both in strength and health. I could assign no cause for the decline, but it continued, until finally I called to my aid two prominent physicians. After treating me for some time they declared I was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and that they could do nothing more for me. At this time I was so weak I could not raise my head from the pillow and I

FAINTED REPEATEDLY.

My heart beat so rapidly it was with difficulty I could sleep. My lungs were also badly involved; I could retain nothing upon my stomach, while the most intense pains in my back and bowels caused me to long for death as a relief. It was at this critical juncture that a physical longing which I felt (and which I most firmly believe was an inspiration) caused me to send for the leaves of a plant I had once known in medical practice. After great difficulty I at last secured them and began their use in the form of tea. I noticed a lessening of the pain at once; I began to mend rapidly; in five weeks I was able to be about and in two months I became perfectly well and have so continued to this day. It was only natural that such a result should have caused me to investigate most thoroughly. I carefully examined fields in medicine never before explored. I sought the cause of physical order and disorder, happiness and pain, and I found the kidneys and liver to be the governors, whose motions regulate the entire system."

After describing at length the offices of the kidneys and liver, and their important part in life, the doctor went on to say:

"Having found this great truth, I saw clearly the cause of my recovery. The simple vegetable leaf I had used was a food and restorer to my well-nigh exhausted kidneys and liver. It had come to them when their life was nearly gone and by its simple, yet powerful influence had purified, strengthened and restored them and saved me from death. Realizing the great benefit which a knowledge of this truth would give to the world I began in a modest way, to treat those afflicted and in every case I found the same which I had experienced. Not only this but many, who were not conscious of any physical trouble but who, at my suggestion, began the use of the remedy which had saved my life, found their health steadily improving and their strength continually increasing. So universal, where used, was this true, that I determined the entire world should share in its results, and I therefore placed the formula for its preparation in the hands of Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., a gentleman whom I had cured of a severe kidney disease, and who, by reason of his personal worth, high standing and liberality in endowing the Astronomical Observatory and other public enterprises, has become known and popular to the entire country. This gentleman at once began the manufacture of the remedy on a most extensive scale, and to-day, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the pure remedy that saved my life, is known and used in all parts of the continent.

"I am aware a prejudice exists toward proprietary medicines, and that such prejudice is too often well founded, but the value of a pure remedy is no less because it is a proprietary medicine. A justifiable prejudice exists toward quack doctors, but is it right that this prejudice should extend towards all the doctors who are earnestly and intelligently trying to do their duty? Because Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure saved my life before it became a proprietary medicine, is it reasonable to suppose that it will not cure others and keep still more from sickness now that it is sold with a government stamp on the wrapper? Such a theory would be childish."

The doctor then paid some high compliments to American science, and closed his lecture as follows:

"How to restore the health when broken and how to keep the body perfect and free from disease must ever be man's highest study. That one of the greatest revelations of the present day has been made in ascertaining the true seat of health to be in the kidneys and liver, all scientists now admit, and I can but feel that the discovery which I have been permitted to make, and which I have described to you, is destined to prove the greatest, best and most reliable friend to those who suffer and long for happiness, as well as to those who desire to keep the health they now possess."

USE THE

A WONDERFUL and

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

THE CHILDREN'S DRIVE.

Three little children at grandpa's—Archie, Kitty and May—
After a summer of sunshine have the last frolic to-day.
High in the old farm wagon—never was carriage so grand—
Three little children are ready for a drive to fairy land.

The ponies are off in the pasture, the black [illegible] in the stall,
But [illegible] steeds are harnessed, and [illegible] children's call,
They'll [illegible] the hill and valley, they'll [illegible] village and town,
And surely [illegible] find the fairies before the sun goes down.

They are going home to morrow—this frolic will be the last;
So trot away bravely, horses—no danger of going too fast.
Aloft in the old farm wagon, dimpled, and freckled, and tanned,
Hurrah for the dear little children, driving to fairy land.

Sure and Faithful.

"Charlie, Charlie!" Clear and sweet as a note struck from a silver bell, the voice rippled over the common.

"That's mother," said one of the boys and he instantly threw down his bat and picked up his jacket and cap.

"Don't go yet! Have it out!"

"Finish the game. Try it again," cried the players in noisy chorus.

"I must go—right off—this minute, I told her I'd come whenever she called."

"Make believe you didn't hear," they exclaimed.

"But I did hear."

"[illegible] know you did."

"But I know it and—"

"Let him go," said a bystander; "you can't do anything with him; he is tied to his mother's apron string."

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

R. R. Cooper, Alleyton, received contributions from his Church members, amounting to $22.50, for the purchase of a church bell.

S. D. Greenwood writes that Leesville has no church, but he thinks there will be one before long. He regretted that he could not leave his family to attend conference.

P. M. Carmichael, Victoria: "I wish to return thanks to the Church here. I have been paid something over what was promised, and have received as a gift a suit of clothes and an overcoat. I have been able to collect nearly all the missionary money."

J. L. Smith, Brazos circuit: "I have been on this circuit for near twelve years. When I came there was one church and one piece of property. Now, by the assistance of Elder F. C. Moore, we have planted four foundations for churches and bought one church."

R. C. H. Matthis, Victoria: "The year has passed off nicely. We have had some conversions, and a great many accessions. At the last quarterly, held by Elder Mack Henson, twenty-six were reported as received, and all the benevolent collections taken, in all $26.90. Since January 1st the Church had raised for all purposes $638.40."

Mack Henson: "I held my quarterly conference at Goliad on the 12th and 13th of November. Had a real nice time, though it was real wet under foot. The collection was very good. I have been very feeble with dengue fever, but thanks be to God I am up again. The people are doing a grand work. They are building a new church, and will raise a fine institution, which will result in the future an institution second to none. It is well founded."

J. A. Tillery, Hempstead: "We regretted to give up our late pastor, Rev. E. Lee. He converted many souls here and did so much good. He did all he could for the Church and the Church paper. He left a membership of 185 and 86 on probation. The Sabbath-school raised this year $116. Our music teacher, Mrs. S. R. Kings, of Nashville, Tennessee, pleases us very much. Raised $464.65 during the year; for improvements, $75; presiding elder, $54.45; for pastor, $249.80.

C. C. Platt, Jewett: "Rev. Bro. Wesley Harms is compelled to resign his charge here. His physician advises him to cease preaching—at least one year. I heard his closing sermon last Sunday at this place. He will resort to manual labor, which is also against his physician's advice. He has ended a splendid career as a preacher. While it may be said he has done little for the Church, he has sustained a stainless character, an unblemished and unbending reputation during his whole stay with us. He has added a few to and lost a few out of the Church. While many have strengthened, weakened and disgraced the Church, he has done but little of the former and none of the latter. After one year's retirement he wishes again to join the army and fight for Canaan's shore. We truly hope he will again be healthy. Asking permission to leave his post awhile, he intends to spend all possible time in perusing his books. So prompt has he been to his appointments, so scrupulously exact in all his dealings, so liberal to Churches and people, that not a single word of worthy complaint has been heard during his pastorship. May God provide his way and keep his flock."

MISSISSIPPI.

J. D. Walden, Brandon, reports fifty added to the Church this year, many of them converts.

Miles Procter, Aberdeen, reports having collected at Brasfield's Chapel, the smallest charge on his circuit, $101.5.

C. W. Ivy, Sucquelak: "My quarterly closed; ninety-one took sacrament; collection was $19.10. The elder preached two noble sermons, and three converts joined at night."

L. A. Thompson, Bolton: "Our fourth quarterly conference was held at Asbury's chapel, December 3, 1881. Brother L. A. Thompson acted secretary. Elder D. A. Williams said much in regard to the temperance movement. The reports from all of the local preachers were received with much consolation. Rev. R. Anderson made a report that was received with gladness. The steward reported paid to pastor this quarter $69, and to the presiding elder $7.05. Contributed [illegible] cash on hand for [illegible] rebuilding [illegible] church $11.36. All the local preachers' characters were passed, and [illegible]

Lost Friends.

[We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.]

One of the saddest things in our Church papers is the column of inquiries for "lost friends" in the Southwestern, through which children seek to find their parents, and brothers their long-lost sisters, separated from them in the old days of slavery. Even this column, however, occasionally stirs one's sense of the humorous, as when a daughter describes her mother by saying, "Mother had two twins, and a wen on her right ear."—N. Y. Advocate.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to hear from my people who lived near Charleston, South Carolina. My mother's name was Hattie, my father's name Alexander. My eldest sister Celia married a man named Pino, he belonged to Sam Dibbus, his carriage driver. My next sister was named Lucinda. My next was Abbey. We all belonged to widow Marion, the wife of Frank Marion. We were sold to Levy Mosly, myself whose name is Catherine and my aunt whose name is Corstansia. My nephew Elisha was afterwards taken back and sold to Jas. Bar. Mr. Gaston was the administrator of the Marion estate. I have been living in this State near forty years. I married a man by the name of Samuel Taylor. My post office Providence, Grenada county, Mississippi.

Smith's Tonic Syrup
FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Is a sovereign remedy for all forms of Liver and Stomach troubles, and is the ONLY SAFE and ABSOLUTE cure for Malaria in its various types.

Dr. Holman's Pad is a genuine and radical remedy, WITHOUT TAKING MEDICINE.

It was the FIRST article of the kind that was introduced to the public generally. It was the ORIGINAL PAD, and was devised by DR. HOLMAN alone.

He struck out from the beaten path and made a NEW WAY. No sooner had he rendered the undertaking a CERTAINTY than the IMITATORS and PIRATES who hang to and infest every successful enterprise, started up and have since followed in his footsteps as closely as the law will tolerate.

Against these Dr. HOLMAN gives SPECIAL WARNING. Not only do they FAIL TO CURE, but in disappointing the purchaser they bring doubt and odium on the principal of Absorption, of which Dr. Holman's Pad is the GENUINE and ONLY TRUE EXPONENT.

Every Imitation is an emphatic endorsement of the substantial worth of the genuine article. A poor one is never copied.

end of the world." (Matt. 28: 18 20.)

Let us renew our inspiration in this campaign, catching new heroism from the great Apostle to the Gentiles, who calls back to us by Divine authority: "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." Let us learn that spirit from the Son of Man, who "came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and give his life a ransom for many." (Matt. 20: 20.)

This spirit we can easily learn, since it is said to us, "Ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich." (2 Cor. 8: 9.)

Let us weigh the argument of Paul, who feels the need of Christ to be as wide as the atonement itself, and says: "Whosoever shall call upon the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? And how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? And how shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach except they be sent?" (Rom. 10: 13-15.) Let us heed the [illegible] injunction, "As my Father hath sent me, even so send I you." (John 20: 21.)

III. [illegible]

But immensely more valuable than this great sum, though thus reached, is the Church of the future. As we train these little ones for these great fields of labor and benevolence so will be the men of to-morrow's Church. When Bonaparte desolated Germany the Hohenzollern family began the work of repair and of revenge in the very cradles of Germany. Mothers bore and trained their sons for the army and glory of Germany. Thus her trained youth became a mighty army awaiting mobilization. The old emperor lived to humiliate his great enemy, and bring back from the Tuileries the sword of the great Frederick. What William did for Germany we can do for Christ and Methodism.

The General Conference has not neglected this important field. In [illegible] of the Discipline, the pastor is required to organize the Sunday-school into a Missionary Society. This is a simple process. A statement by the superintendent that the school is to be organized into a Missionary Society can easily bring the matter before the Sunday-school teachers. The election of one person for president, another for vice-president, [illegible] and another for treasurer, completes the [illegible] both, and that one-fourth of the money shall go to the Missions, and the rest to the school expenses. This seems a little more honorable than to vote away the money without any notification, but it is not above criticism. The heathen are made to carry the home interests. The manly and honest course is this—take your collections for Missions and hold it sacred, and then, if you must take the other three for the home school. Then the money of each child goes to the object for which it is given. As you value the character of your children never set them an example of tampering with trust funds. Take your collection for Missions according to the Discipline; then pay it over according to the Bible.

VI. VISIT FROM CHURCH TO CHURCH.

This greatest of all our benevolences needs emphasis in the mind of the Church. The coming to the average charge of the most prominent men of the district, both ministers and laymen, to speak for a day on this theme, is certain to direct attention to this work.

The plan pursued by our Wesleyan brethren in Great Britain stirs all their membership to do their best possible for Missions. Let the presiding elder arrange with the pastor a series of meetings on each charge. At these meetings it is wise to have a sermon by some visiting clergyman, specially invited, and prepared for this work. Also a sermon at some time from the pastor. Let one evening be given to a platform meeting, at which laymen and visiting ministers shall make short addresses. The pastor's sermon can well be preached on Sunday. The other services might in many cases be held on a week-day and evening. Let tracts and Missionary intelligence be circulated among the people. These efforts will call attention to this subject, and secure much better attention.

This plan, faithfully worked has been crowned with universal success. The Wesleyans in England and our Methodist brethren in Canada, and some districts in our own Church in this country, are standing illustrations of the efficiency of this thorough work. We call upon the presiding elders, who are the men instructed with the strategical places of power in our polity, to lead forward our hosts to greater efficiency in this work.

VII. VITALIZE THE CONFERENCE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Discipline provides for the organization of Missionary Society, the managers of which are to be appointed by each Annual Conference to consider and care for Missionary interests in the Conference. In too many Conferences this Society has been more formal than efficient. It has arranged for the Conference anniversary, attended to its own perpetuation, and given no hour of labor to its Chairman. We ask attention to the possible efficiency of this Society. So organize the Society that one preacher and one layman shall be taken from each district. Make these managers with the presiding elder a Committee on Missions for the district, of which the presiding elder shall be Chairman, whose duty shall be to arrange for a Missionary visitation of every charge on the district, and for the giving of Missionary information to every family. [illegible] subject. At these prayer-meetings it is expected that short presentations of one or more of the fields will be made by the pastor, or some one selected for the purpose. Thus by the increased information and by prayer the interest in Missions will be widened and deepened.

Among the Congregationalists, who are the leaders in Missionary giving in this country, their monthly Missionary prayer-meetings are quite a distinguishing service of the Church, and often the most interesting and profitable of all their services. Yet it took them nearly twenty years to bring a majority of their Churches into the habitual observance of this meeting. With our better policy and denominational appliances, we may expect to reach the same results in a single quadrennium.

The Missionary Society sends forth a programme on some particular field or theme for each month. It is intended to put into each programme so much, that each pastor can find something for his Church, rather than that each should try to use all the programme. The suggestions are simply to help those who may need suggestions for such meetings.

Brothers, so far as practicable, let the first Sunday of each month be devoted in each society to this subject, and let some instruction, as much as can be given to advantage, be given each month. The increased observance of this means among us as a people is quite marked during the last year. We are going in the right direction.

IX. SECURE SOMETHING FROM EACH MEMBER.

Following the world's Redeemer is the condition of discipleship. "Go work in my vineyard" is addressed to each believer. "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you," places this work on every Christian. The duty and privilege of giving to this cause are inseparable from intelligent saving connection with the Savior. While we want large contributions from those who are able, it is vastly more important to secure some contribution from each member. A few cannot bear all the burdens. The many must not be robbed of their share and interest in this work. This universal giving will greatly increase the income of the Missionary Society. It will save that income from the fluctuations incident to individual fortunes. It will secure a host of princely givers from the poor of to-day, who will be the rich to-morrow. It will develop increased multitudes into broad and generous Christians. It will make easier the work of the Church. It will hasten with double speed the coming of Christ's kingdom.

X. FOLLOW THE INJUNCTIONS OF THE GENERAL CONFERENCE, AS SET FORTH IN ¶ 275 AND ¶ 276 OF THE DISCIPLINE, WITH REFERENCE TO TAKING, REPORTING, AND PUBLISHING THE NAMES OF CONTRIBUTORS WITH THE AMOUNTS CONTRIBUTED.

Many a good man would gladly increase his contributions if he were only informed as to what other men and Churches are doing. Thus it happens that Churches which are blessed with men who have traveled, and who keep up with Church movements, are most [illegible] led to the front, and are [illegible] with the greatest comfort and satisfaction. Experience demonstrates that we can provoke one another to good works. The Conferences abroad and at home who follow the provisions of the Discipline, and publish contributions in the Conference Minutes, hold the very first rank as workers in this field. Bring up to Conference a plain transcript of the record of the returns provided for in the Discipline. It will be your [illegible] as to the disposal of the Missionary money raised on your charge. Some generous [illegible] [illegible] to withhold their [illegible] you to respond to the work of the General Missionary Committee, and to the call of God. We are advancing in our work in new fields that we are entering, in new victories in the old fields where Christ is being recognized, and in larger liberality in our Churches. We advanced $70,000, making $625,000 for last year. We must advance again, so as to reach, the current year, not less than three quarters of a million and then hasten on to a million dollars a year.

DISTRICT AND PLATFORM MISSIONARY MEETINGS.

District missionary meetings under the presiding elder and engaging the co-operation of the pastors have been for many years an established institution in some sections of the Church, and have doubtless contributed much to maintain a missionary interest. The custom is observed among the Wesleyans, in England, and it would do us good, as it has them, were it widely extended in our Church. There seems to be an increase of attention to the subject, and we would earnestly advocate the plan as a supplementary agency for our disciplinary system. It can only contribute to give life to that system which embodies the essential features of a constant education of the local Church in missionary co-operation. (See ¶ 265, 270, 277.) It brings to bear, when successfully conducted, the broader activity and enthusiasm of large platform meetings upon the more quiet and constant efforts of the pastors and friends of missions in the single church. It imparts to these efforts a spirit of life and progress. Nothing can replace the culture provided for in the disciplinary system, though many things may contribute to aid it, among which none can surpass these district meetings.

Presiding Elder F. L. Hiller, of the Ostego District, Wyoming Conference, writes to the Secretary: "I propose to inaugurate platform meetings in this district wherever practicable. I have no doubt that, as a rule, they bring better results than the holding of a meeting after the usual form. I believe that the effort and energy used by the Missionary Society are not expended in vain, but that the missionary spirit will be revived through them and the divine blessing."

We give below the report on the subject of district meetings adopted by the Ministerial Association of Ostego District, held at Afton, N. Y., November 14-15. Presiding Elder Hiller and Rev. A. B. Richardson were made a committee to give effect to the plan. The following is the report:

"Your committee appointed to consider the propriety and practicability of ministerial co-operation in advancing missionary interests on our charges throughout the district, respectfully submit the following: (1.) We believe that the genius of Methodistism missionary. Accepting the marching orders of the Captain of our Salvation, to "Go into all the world" and indorsing the far-reaching idea of our founder, "The world is my parish," we consider it our imperative duty to try every agency and employ every method we consistently can to spread "Scriptural holiness" throughout the world. (2.) We believe in co-operation. It is our conviction that additional interest could be awakened among our people if more intelligence were communicated and greater prominence given to the missionary cause. We therefore suggest the following plan:

1. Let the preachers assist each other in the presentation of the missionary cause, and wherever practicable let a platform meeting be substituted for the Sabbath sermon, in which speakers from the laity shall be invited to participate.

2. Let a committee comprising the presiding elder and one preacher arrange a plan of ministerial co-operation.

3. Let the meetings be so arranged as to secure the presence of the presiding elder, wherever possible.

On the New Brunswick district, New Jersey Conference, a system similar to that above stated is followed, as appears from a circular giving a list of meetings arranged for various places through the [illegible] of a few weeks. The [illegible] [illegible] charge of [illegible], the pastor will [illegible] notify the speakers appointed, and should any speaker be unable to meet his appointment he should give timely notice, or send a substitute, though it is desired that as far as possible this plan be strictly adhered to. It is hoped that our brethren will in every way aid us in making each meeting a success. Our secretaries call for an advance. Let us heed the call and rally in the interest of the great cause, resolved to do what we can in helping to take the world for Christ."

What is a Christian?

If you come to us and say you are a praying man, we answer we are glad; but we would like to ask your wife and children what your praying is doing for you? If you say you daily read the Bible, that is right; but let us ask your partner in business how much of its teachings you practice. If you say you are a member of the Church, we are glad of that, if you are a worthy member, if not, we are sorry for the Church. But let us go on to the street to see whether the people you daily meet think you ought to be a Church-member.

So it comes to pass that a bundle of Christian duties may be dry and useless, or they may be the evidence of a sincere Christian life. Whether a man is a Christian or not depends entirely upon the principles which govern his daily life, and the harvest the world is gathering from that life.

A Christian, then, is one who is virtuous, not because he is afraid of a scandal, but because he loves virtue. He is one who is honest, not because honesty is the best policy, but because honesty is right. He is one who hates sin, not because he is afraid of its punishment, but because sin is vile and destructive. He is one who loves God, not because he expects favors, but because God is lovable, as a child loves its mother, not because she gets its meals and mends its clothes, but because she is its mother. He is one who prays, for prayer inspires him to good deeds; it strengthens him to resist temptation; it opens to him avenues of opportunity; it nerves him to the accomplishment of life's duties; it brings him into fellowship with all that is true and good. By prayer we do not mean the bowing of the head and saying over a few appropriate words, but the yearning desire, the uplifting heart, the contrite spirit; such a condition of life is Christian. A man who answers to this description is a Christian, wherever you find him.

"By their fruits ye shall know them."—Golden Rule.

The Garfield Legend.

The Garfield legend, sure to cluster and grow around the story of his life, whether it ends now or when he is old in years and of longer honors, will gather about him as his mother's son. Their relations will be remembered and told and made the foundation of tale and story and picture when other events are the dry dust of forgotten politics. The son's kiss on inauguration day, the heart-broken cry of the mother over "my baby," when the strong man, high in place, was shot down; the solitary letter which the weak fingers of the President found strength to write in the weary weeks of illness—these are the things for which the man and the mother will be remembered. Linked to an emotion and a memory which comes home to the hearts and the bosoms of men and women, the lasting remembrance of President Garfield will rest secure.

How rapidly time changes the sentiments of men and communities, is now being well illustrated by the fact, that Dr. Haygood, editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, Macon, Ga., and generally talked of for the bishopric, in the M. E. Church, South, is now lecturing to large and appreciative audiences in Boston and vicinity. The doctor is lecturing for the benefit of the People's Church of that city, where it is publicly announced that not only will colored people be welcomed in any pews, but white and colored people will be married at its altars, when they desire.—[illegible]

Christianity as an Experience.

Various are the ideas which men attach to the term "Christianity." Sometimes it is employed in reference to the institutions of the Christian church, such as the two great sacraments and the preaching of the word. Again we use the term in designating certain doctrines or articles of belief. Sometimes Christianity denotes a particular code of morals, the precepts inculculated by Jesus Christ, as binding upon his followers. The deepest meaning of Christianity however has to do with consciousness. Over and above every thing else Christianity is an experience. All the truths of our holy religion are capable of entering into human experience.

Prominent among the doctrines of the Bible, is the doctrine of the remission of sins. By the remission of sins we understand the taking away of sins. It comprehends forgiveness, i. e. the taking away of guilt from the conscience, and regeneration, i. e. the taking away of impurity from man's internal nature. There can be no doubt as to the universal consciousness of sin. Men every where carry about with them a sense of sin, a consciousness of wrong-doing. Christianity professes to meet this need of man's nature. It affirms that an all-sufficient atonement has been offered for sin, through which God can be just and yet the justifier of him that believeth in Jesus; that on man's faith the Divine Spirit will operate upon his consciousness, assuring him of the Divine favor, and thereby producing peace of mind; and that further the Divine Spirit will renovate man's nature, purify his affections, in a word create him anew. These doctrines are indeed marvellous, and to some incredible, and yet we find that they are capable of entering into [illegible] ... a matter of fact. It [illegible] ... a large part [illegible] ... Jesus Christ [illegible] ... Every great [illegible] dying men it is said tell the truth. There are exceptions, but they only confirm the general truth of the statement. How many thousands in the immediate prospect of dying have exclaimed, "I know that my Redeemer liveth." "I know whom I have believed!" All indeed who have availed themselves of the precious promises of Christianity have found that they are all "yea and amen in Christ Jesus." And we can only add that if any doubt the truth of these statements, they have the power of verifying them for themselves. Submitting any one of the great truths of Christianity to the test of experience, they will have to say what the Samaritans said to the woman to whom Christ revealed Himself: "Now we believe not because of thy saying; for we have heard Him ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Christ the Savior of the world."

The Colored People and Moral Reforms.

The fact is universally conceded by nearly all candid observers that the colored people in this country have made as great or greater progress in all that goes to develop true greatness and manhood than any people that ever labored under similar disadvantages. A nation born in a day, as they were, with all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of citizenship, it is a wonder and cause for admiration that they have succeeded so well. While it is admitted that they have often seriously erred, yet they have not failed to distinguish themselves in all of their new relations. As voters and public servants, they have displayed worth and fidelity; as laborers, traders, artisans, and mechanics, devotion to duty and lofty aspirations. In education, morals, and religion, they have not disappointed their friends. Their thirst for education has been manifested in a thousand forms. Their faithfulness to the Christian religion is declared in the fact that infidelity and atheism are almost unknown among them; and though a great deal of moral impurity doubtless exists among many of them, still to their credit be it said that while Mormonism and polygamy have captured the fair Territory of Utah, and hold the controlling balance of power in four or five States and Territories, and while their missionaries have had great success in getting converts both in Europe and America, not a single Negro is reported among the converts to this horrible system of infamy. The Negro, we claim, can be relied upon for support in all the great moral reforms. He is a mighty factor in our country, which can be utilized for the good of the nation. The great Temperance reform needs him. The colored people are willing to engage in the work. The subject of temperance never fails to occupy their attention in every conventional body of a religious cast. Many of their preachers are enthusiastic apostles of temperance, who need only to be encouraged by their white brethren and they will accomplish results that will tell in the work of temperance reform.

In the discussion that arose upon the adoption of the report of the Committee on Temperance in the Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church, South, a few days ago, three opinions seemed to prevail upon the status of the colored people upon this subject:

First, that which was embodied in the words of the brother who said that "the white people are almost a unit upon the subject of [illegible] ... This [illegible] ... utterly [illegible] ... if the [illegible] ... how is it [illegible] ... Convention, [illegible] ... Supreme [illegible] temperance efforts, and then call on the colored people to support them, and for their refusal brand them as followers of the rum legion. Substantially recognize their manhood, and their support will be forthcoming. They can't be made to understand any thing with the bullwhip dictatorial tone of other days. Take them by the hands; consult with their leaders; devise ways and means; give them representation, and it will soon be demonstrated that the Negroes are not wedded to the whisky barrel, as many in their prejudice would seem to imagine.

The second opinion current was expressed by a brother who said: "We have left the Negro to whisky and the devil long enough." When it is remembered that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with all its schools, educates not a single youth in whose veins flows a drop of Negro blood, so that he may learn to teach his people temperance and religion, the expression of this sentiment is significant. It is to be hoped that it is the precursor of a general awakening upon this line of duty. And we say amen to it. Let the M. E. Church, South, come to the help of the Lord against the mighty in raising this down-trodden race.

The third opinion was represented by Bro. Ivy, of the Southwestern Bible Society. "No one," said he, "who heard the report adopted two years ago by the brethren of the Louisiana Conference of the M. E. Church, and heard the fiery and enthusiastic speeches made upon its adoption can charge the colored people with indifference to the cause of temperance." Others followed in the same line with brother Ivy, and paid flattering tributes to the faithfulness and devotion of their colored temperance allies.

We are glad to know that this sentiment prevailed. Brethren of the Church South, dismiss the idea that the negroes are totally indifferent to temperance. For an example we will cite the work of one of our own brethren in this State, who for years labored zealously among his people; in less than six months he had over 800 pledged to temperance. Unaided and alone he planned a canvass of his parish, and secured such a long list of petitioners praying for a Sunday liquor law, that the police jury was influenced to pass the ordinance; but unwilling to join hands with the negroes to back this law the white temperance element allowed it to be repealed by the liquor dealers influence, without protesting or resisting that influence in any way. From the lakes to the gulf or from the Atlantic to the Pacific among the negroes can be found worthy leaders who will upon right principles, join hand in hand with their white brethren in wiping out whisky, polygamy, and every vestige of corruption and sin that blight and curse the country.

Burbridge and Blackburn.

A controversy between two Kentuckians has attracted considerable attention throughout the country. S. G. Burbridge, a major general in the Union army during the late war, but now a post-office inspector in Philadelphia, was asked by a Kentucky friend to endorse an application for appointment to a National office. He did so, and advised this friend to confer with the Congressman of his district, who happens to be Hon. J. S. C. Blackburn, late of the Confederate army. Blackburn told his friend Dr. W. T. Ousley, assistant surgeon of Fifth Kentucky cavalry during the war, that he would not befriend him or any one on Burbridge's recommendation or friendship, that his district was dotted all over with graves of men he had murdered during the war, and that his course had been such that he was afraid to go or live in Kentucky. This conversation being made the subject of a letter from Dr. Ousley to Gen. Burbridge, the latter wrote a long letter to Congressman Blackburn, in which he recited the facts that his campaign to exterminate guerilla bands had been in strict pursuance of orders from General Sherman, and afterward fully approved by President Lincoln, Secretary Stanton, Salmon P. Chase, Dr. Robert J. Breckinridge, and all true Union men. The Union State Convention, at Frankfort, January, 1866, recommended that as a reward for gallant services Gen. Burbridge be made a brigadier general in the regular army. He voluntarily submitted to an examination by a Democratic legislative committee [illegible]

the war. At one time a rebel officer proposed to co-operate with Burbridge, under an officer of his own selection, to suppress them. Blackburn has nothing to gain in the eyes of honest or patriotic men by his slurs on Burbridge's record.

The Grave of a Benefactor.

Enclosed in a wire fence, with a rough board front, in the colored people's cemetery in the town of McDongh is found the grave of John McDonogh, one of New Orleans most generous benefactors. Notwithstanding the fact that thousands of boys and girls are daily quartered in the school-houses built and maintained by his hard earned munificent gifts, few of his beneficiaries know any thing about him, and none decorates his grave with a gentle flower, or marks it with a spring Acacia. John McDonogh's life and history should be familiarized to every school boy and girl in this city, as one worthy of their profoundest gratitude, admiration and immitation. Christian, broad and catholic; we labor under the impression that in his will he desired that the Bible should be in his schools, and that no distinction should be made in race or sex. The following inscriptions, written by himself, with instructions that they all be placed on his tomb after his death, was faithfully executed by Richards, viz:

JOHN MCDONOGH.

Born in the city of Baltimore, State of Maryland, December 29, 1779.

Died in the town of McDonogh, State of Louisiana, October 26, 1850.

"Here lies the body of John McDonogh, of the city of New Orleans, in the State of Louisiana, one of the United States of America; son of John and Elizabeth McDonogh, of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, also one of the United States of America; awaiting in firm and full faith, the resurrection of his glorious lord redeemer to Judge the World.

—Rules for my guidance in life—1804.

'Remember that labor is one of the conditions of our existence.'

'Time is gold, throw not one minute away, but place each one to account.'

'Do unto all men as you would be done to.'

'Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.'

'Never bid another do what you can do yourself.'

'Never covet what is not your own.'

'Never think any matter so trifling as not to notice it.'

'Never give out that which does not first come in.'

'Never spend but to produce.'

'Let the greatest order regulate the transactions of your life.'

'Strive in your course of life to do the greatest amount of good.

Deprive yourself of nothing necessary to your comfort, but live in an humble simplicity and frugality. Labor to the last moment of your existence. Pursue the above rules, and blessings and riches will flow upon you, to your heart's content, but first of all remember that the chief and great study of life should be, to tend by all means in our power, the honor and glory of our dear Creator. JOHN MCDONOGH.

NEW ORLEANS, March 2, 1804.

The conclusion to which I have arrived, is that without temperance there is no health, without virtue no order, without religion no happiness, and the sum of our being is to live wisely, soberly and righteously.

These golden rules should be prized by our school authorities, and ordered to be printed upon large illuminated cards and hung conspicuously upon the walls of every school-house in Louisiana, with instructions that the children memorize every one of them. And to the immortal memory of John McDonogh the city of New Orleans owes a monument, which she ought not to neglect further to erect. And we here we take the occasion to protest against the recent purpose to change the name of the town of McDonogh to that of Gouldsboro, as a flagrant piece of injustice to the memory of one of our most eminent benefactors, and as a brand of infamous ingratitude upon ourselves. The authorities should ponder well their action in this connection and see that they do not disgrace the people by such an exhibition of base ingratitude.

Lieutenant Flipper.

John Woods, Esq., a colored soldier of company I of the Tenth United States Cavalry, now stationed at Fort Davis, Texas, who having served his time of service has just been honorably discharged, passed through this city on his way home to Columbus, Ohio. From him we learned that Lieutenant Flipper has been released from confinement, and has recently been placed in command of his company, Company A, of Tenth Cavalry. This is in consequence of the arrest of the First Lieutenant, for cruelty to the company, which caused many to desert while he acted instead of Captain Nolan, who is out on a year's release. The prevailing opinion seems to be that Lieutenant Flipper will come out of his late trial all right.

Says the New York Christian Advocate: "Large city Churches [illegible] ... Methodism in cities cannot be resisted without the aid of a paper, which will correct the errors of the secular and often of the outside religious press about Methodism, explain and defend its peculiarities, and give Connectional information to the Churches."

The Sunday Dog Fight.

The New Orleans Ledger comments on recent occurrences with commendable vigor, as follows:

There is a refreshing sensation in the midst of the dark and gloomy condition of our local affairs, in the consciousness of the existence of our "Committee of Public Safety." This body is complimented by the Grand Jury, upon their energetic efforts to supplement the utterly inadequate and trifling administration of law and order in our midst. The "Committee" may be assured of the hearty good wishes of all good citizens in their work. En passant, we hope they will look into the matter of the dog fight—on Sunday last—and see if somebody can't be punished for the commission of such a disgusting outrage upon our community, and the fame of our city. The details given in the columns of a prominent daily contemporary were revolting in the extreme. We do not wish to go back to certain obsolete methods, but on the principle of fighting fire with fire, a good dose of the Delaware whipping post might benefit the chief actors and villainous barbarism be duly punished in a quasi barbaric way.

The public exercises in connection with the thirty-second anniversary of the Southwestern Bible Society, were held in Carondelet Street church Sunday evening. Wm. H. Foster presided, and delivered an excellent address. F. N. Butler, corresponding secretary, read his report, which was hopeful, though contributions had fallen short of those received in 1880 by $111 94. Contributions during the year amounted to $520 94.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Rev. H. C. Armstoe, Raceland, writes that he has mislaid his local preacher's license, and can not find it.

—Rev. John W. Harmon, of M. E. Church South, Louisiana conference, has been transfered to Mississippi conference and stationed at Marion.

—Correspondents of Rev. A. E. P. Albert, assistant editor, are requested not to send him business letters or conference notices for publication, in order to avoid delay in receiving attention.

—Dr. J. W. Butler of our Mexican Mission, writes to the assistant editor: "I congratulate you on your new appointment, and trust God may crown you with many years and grand success."

—Hon. E. W. Stoughton, ex-Minister to Russia, an eminent lawyer, and one of the men designated by President Grant to witness the count of the electoral vote of Louisiana in 1876, died in New York on the 7th inst.

—Col. Jack Wharton was reappointed U. S. Marshal for the Eastern District of Louisiana, by the President; and he was confirmed on the unanimous report of the Senate committee on Judiciary. This was due to his record as an efficient and faithful official.

—Dr. Buckley, in the New York Christian Advocate, announces the bereavement of our Missionary Secretary: "Our predecessor, Dr. C. H. Fowler, is in sore tribulation. One week ago he had a lovely daughter—his only daughter. Now her merry laugh is still. She is dead."

—Edward S. Morris, of Philadelphia, who was the commissioner for Liberia at the International Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, has established a school in Liberia, which has an an attendance of fifty children, ten of whom are the sons of chiefs. He has also begun the culture of the chinchona tree, lime juice, refined palm oil and excellent coffee.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

MISSISSIPPI.

I. L. Pratt, Corinth, gives a cheerful account of his work and the revival influences which have blessed it.

C. S. Stewart, Carthage: "I have closed a protracted meeting with good results. Have received 133 in full this year, and have three new churches on the work. Mr. James Gaines has given us one acre of land to build on. Brother Charles Harvey, a minister, also gave us one acre to build on, and Mr. Winfield sold us one acre. I am doing the best I can to promote the cause of Christ."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Massey, Linden: "I have visited all but one of my four appointments, and organized a Sabbath-school at Flatwood. The superintendent is Bro. James Price. The teachers are Misses J. Price, M. Chappel and P. Chappel. All doing good work."

TEXAS.

G. W. Townsend, Oakland: "Since my return from Conference I commenced to build a parsonage, and we have it completed and are now occupying it. Sister Green raised for missions, 1881, $12.10. I send you twenty-seven subscribers."

LOUISIANA.

The Trustees of Union Chapel, this city, extend their thanks for the generous contributions of the following societies: Children of Moses, $4; Union Benevolent, No. 4, $13; Bricklayer's Union, $5 25; Harmonial Society, $8.

Lewis James, H. Harry and others write from Shady Grove: "Our Church is prospering. Our people are awakening to Methodism. Our preacher, Rev. T. McCary is the best we ever had, and the most intelligent. We should be pleased with his reappointment for another year."

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS

Virginia has now 4854 public schools, and has gained 15,000 in attendance since last year. She has a school population of 14,827 white and 240,980 colored, and the value of her school property is $1,177,544 86. Her receipts from school taxes this year were $596,515 95. The North Carolina schools cost $352,882 65 last year, and instructed 136,481 white pupils, and 89,125 colored ones. Georgia, with a school population of 433,444, expended $471,029 47. Alabama spent $376,092.59 and instructed 107,483 white and 72,007 colored children. Mississippi paid $576,563 61 for the instruction of her 112,944 white and 124,710 colored pupils. Louisiana spent $226,000 upon her 273,345 pupils, and Texas $717,727 upon her school population—one third colored—of 106,709. West Virginia has a school revenue of $620,126 46 and a school attendance of 142,850, out of a school population of 213,441.

In imitation of the plan adopted by the London University, the Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, Illinois, has had, for nearly ten years, courses of study open to non-resident students, with non-resident examinations. These courses lead to the degrees of Ph. B., M. A. and Ph. D. Catalogues containing full information will be sent on application to Professor O. M. Moss.

Attention, Church Builders.

The Board of Church Extension has with great care, and at considerable expense provided a number of excellent plans for churches, costing from $500 to $20,000. More than 800 churches, chiefly in the West and South, have been built by these plans, and their superior character has been fully established.

At the late meeting of the General Committee of Church Extension, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That in all cases where aid is granted by the Board of Church Extension, for the building of churches, it is the judgment of the General Committee that it should be strongly urged, that the churches be built according to the excellent plans furnished by the Board."

In offering this resolution, Bishop Foss referred to the difficulty of getting pastors and trustees to adopt the plans, saying that in every neighborhood their carpenter or builder, or architect, was thought fully competent, and that every variety of abortion in the way of church buildings was the result; that the graceful churches built by the plans of the Board could be easily distinguished the moment they were seen. This has come to be the uniform testimony.

The Board has now reached a point where it feels fully justified in insisting on the use of the plans it is prepared to furnish, and in declining to furnish aid to build churches where such plans are not adopted and followed.

The Board has provided an illustrated catalogue of plans which will be sent free of cost, to any desiring to build. From this, a church suited to the circumstances and wants of an ordinary community, can be selected, and the plan including detailed drawings and specifications ordered, at a cost of from $6 to $27, as stated in the catalogue, only about one-tenth the amount usually charged by architects where plans are prepared by hand.

Let all who propose to build take notice. Write for a catalogue, select and order a plan, and suffer no change to be made after the plan has been adopted. If this course be neglected, let no one be surprised if an application for aid to complete buildings unwisely begun, shall be declined by the Board.

For catalogue of plans, address Rev. A. J. Kynett, 1026 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Illinois Wesleyan University Non-Resident Courses of Study.

So many persons made inquiry in response to a note in the ADVOCATE about these courses, a few weeks since, that the following announcement is made.

These courses have been in operation for nearly ten years, having been specially designed for ministers, teachers, and others who [illegible] are willing to earn academic degrees. They have recently been revised, and now number eleven. A new course in Philosophy was inserted in a pamphlet to be issued about Dec. 20th. The examinations are mostly non-resident. The fees are intended merely to cover expenses, and are therefore low.

The large number of graduates in these courses, and the fact that in response to the previous note applications for catalogues came from twenty-three states and territories, and every point in Canada, shows that a great demand for the work exists, as it did in England before the establishment of the London University. Catalogues will be sent on application to O. M. Moss, Bloomington, Ill.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Rapides Parish.

There is an alarming state of society existing in this parish, and either the people, the officials, or perhaps both are to blame for it. The District Judge of this parish in his charge to the Grand Jury at the last term of court arraigned the whole community. He then said in substance that for petty larceny there were always convictions while the murderer with the deadly weapon in his hand, stained with human blood, was often turned loose, and for this statement the judge was quite sharply criticised by some of the newspapers of the State. Recent events however show that this terrible arraigment of the judge was too true, and that the public sentiment is most fearfully debauched by the most horrid crimes and its familiarity therewith. Within the last month almost every neighborhood, has been the theatre of murders or of murderous assaults, and with wounding with some dangerous weapon. Three murders are reported in the western part of the parish; one at the Tramway on the Reines, one at Mrs. Butler's place on Bayou Boeuf, two at Lecompte, one in Pineville and one near Alexandria, besides a larger number dangerously wounded. And yet out of all these deadly "affrays" says the Alexandria Democrat "only two persons have been arrested and are now in prison, and they, we learn, have voluntarily surrendered." With the Democrat we deprecate the use of "vigilance committes to put down crime." We believe as it says that the law when properly enforced will give ample protection to society. As a Methodist we use a Methodist phrase and "exhort" the Democrat to keep on "hewing to the mark, let the chips fall where they may." Rapides needs a good class of emigrants and capitalists to develop her wonderfully rich soil. Let all of her good citizens see that the laws of the State are rigidly enforced, and give to murderers a necktie of good hemp. X.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

THE AMERICAN ART EXCHANGE

Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. We shall, as fast as possible, bring out in this country, in the highest style of artistic work, every famous art work of the Old World, and at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.

As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be produced by us, we will take pleasure in forwarding to any applicant a Complimentary Copy Free of the first edition of art work produced by us in America.

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb painting, occupying nearly an entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled,

"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."

Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is absolutely impossible to secure a copy at a less price, except through this offer. The engraving represents the Saviour as he is leaving the Praetorium, after being condemned to crucifixion. He is descending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps stand two burley executioners, in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, with despair in their every look, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendant. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Pontius Pilate, who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly descends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion.

The work in this portion of the engraving is more perfect and beautiful than we have supposed could ever be executed. The expressions of the faces, the grouping of the figures, and the careful attention to detail in the drapery and accessories of the picture, are all carried out in perfection and with consummate skill. There is a very large number of figures in the work, and all are depicted with life-like faithfulness. It stands to-day unquestionably

The Finest and Most Valuable Engraving in the World.

The engraving of the plate cost upward of $30,000, and no copies from it are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to about $40 per copy.

This splendid work is the first of a series of the preeminent art works of Europe, which the [illegible] Art Exchange will produce in America, simultaneous with their production in the Old World, at prices which will enable the multitude to purchase.

The first work, "Christ Leaving the Praetorium," will be used as an introductory advertisement, and a limited number will be furnished

Free to all Applicants.

It is a correct reproduction of the English plate, which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size and with the same attention to perfect work as characterizes the $30 copies.

The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring the enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when announcements are made, the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted, we will ship a perfect copy of the engraving "Christ Leaving the Praetorium," to any applicant. The engraving (which is a very large one) will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage, which will be 10 three cent stamps. It was at first thought 20 cts. would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags it was decided to increase the thickness and strength of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of an accident. This necessitated an increase of charges for this purpose to 30 cents or 10 three-cents stamps.

On receipt of application we will immediately forward this superb engraving to any address in the United States, all charges prepaid, when 10 three-cent stamps are enclosed in letter to cover postage and tube. At any time within one year we will take back the engraving and allow a credit of $3 for it in payment for any works issued by us.

Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be forwarded at the cost of 30 cts. each, as one [illegible] for several copies. Not [illegible] copies will be sent to any [illegible], and the name of [illegible] the club must be sent.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held on Thursday, December 1. President S. Wells Williams in the chair.

The Rev. Dr. Clapp conducted the religious exercises.

The Board by a unanimous vote appointed the Rev. Bishop Harris, of the Methopist Episcopal Church, to represent the Society at the anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society, to be held in May next.

Letters from Dr. Bliss report very slow progress in securing from the Turkish government, through the American Legation, redress for damages suffered in consequence of interference with the Society's colportage work at Gallipoli. Dr. Gulick calls attention to the facts that during his agency in Japan of five and a half years, 822,573 volumes of Scriptures were printed at Yokohama, and that the Society's publications now, in the main, pass directly from the Agent into native hands, the mass of them being disposed of through Japanese booksellers. Mr. Milne wrote on the 3th of September from Cuiaba, the capital of the province of Matto Grosso, in Brazil, where he had arrived two days before, and had applied to the local authorities for permission to sell the Scriptures.

Grants of books were made to the value of about $7,500, including grants to mission churches, needy Sabbath-schools, auxiliary societies, chiefly in the South and Southwest, to various ecclesiastical organizations, and to sufferers by forest fires in Michigan; also Scriptures in raised letter to blind persons in New York, Texas, and West Virginia.

The reports of 101 colporteurs for the month of October show that 31,058 families were visited by them, and 6,493 destitute families and individuals were supplied.

One auxiliary was recognized in West Virginia.

The receipts for November were $37,946 91; copies of the Scriptures issued from the Bible House, 89,414.

The Eggleston Sensible Truss has been before the public for a number of years, and has steadily grown in favor. It again appears in our advertising columns. Let all interested consult them.

Although Switzerland is a beer and wine country, it has been compelled, according to the London Telegraph, to organize a National Total Abstinence Society, to "stay the tide of drunkardness which is sweeping over the land." Its headquarters are at Geneva.

Gen. Leon Lastremski, of Baton Rouge, has become State Printer, and his Capitolian will be the official journal.

It has become a universally acknowledged fact that nowhere in the known world has the manufacture of Organs and Pianos attained such colossal proportions as in the mammoth factory of Hon. Daniel F. Beatty, of Washington, New Jersey. For years Mr. Beatty has devoted his entire energies to producing specialties of beauty, sweetness and purity, and that he has succeeded is proven from his enormous sales, which average over 1,000 instruments per month. His latest offer, appearing in another column, is the grandest ever made. [illegible]

As wine merchants are petitioning the French government to put a stop to the manufacture of artificial wines, the petitioners asserting that not one-third of the wine used in Paris is made of grapes, the many Americans who turn up their noses at the juice of their own grapes will naturally wonder what the spurious French wines are made of. There are a number of large factories near Paris which wines are made from rotten apples, damaged dried fruits of all kinds, beets, and spoiled molasses. But there are not enough of these materials to make as much wine as is required by foreign trade. Turnip juice has been worked over into wine, and American cider is the basis of the millions of bottles of champagne, but good apples and turnips are too costly to be wasted on cheap wines, such as most Americans buy.

A cheerful temper, joined with innocence, will make beauty attractive, knowledge delightful, and wit good-natured. It will lighten sickness, poverty and affliction, convert ignorance into an amiable simplicity, and render deformity itself agreeable.

A WONDERFUL And SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

R. Hayes, Coffadeliah: "My work is still growing. We have received twenty-six this year. The Lord has blessed us."

A. Dawson, Meadville: "The elder held our fourth quarter. Seven were received in full and many on probation; the church has been repaired, and we have a good Sunday-school."

L. J. S. Bell, DeKalb: "At last quarter the elder's collection was $14 45 and seventy-five communed. The pastor, M. White, has greatly improved the work; has built one church valued at $500, and put seats in another. He is loved by the people, and has not missed an appointment."

O. Tolson, Hickory: "Elder Dunn held our third quarterly conference. He preached and administered the sacrament to fifty-three. For this year twent-five converts; full members forty; probationers twenty. Of this number four were from the Baptist church. We have paid the elder what we promised him $33; bishop $2; benevolent claims $4. We will be able to make a pretty fair report.

Samuel Pollack and Robert Cole, Herbert: "We desire through the SOUTHWESTERN to report the condition of our work. We are well pleased with our pastor R. Hays. He has served us faithfully and zealously for the last three years. We were without any house of worship when he came to us, but now we have two good houses, and our membership has been greatly increased, and the good work goes bravely on. We built one house at Centre Ridge 34x30, at a cost of $200, and one at Liberty 20x26, at a cost of $175. We are still improving and expect to press onward in the good work. We would say in conclusion that we are highly pleased with our pastor. His services have been invaluable to us. We knew nothing of church government when he came among us, now we are much better posted in such matters. Children's days have been observed for the last two years, before he came with us nothing of the kind had been attempted. We have not been able to pay him as well as we would desire. We have no parsonage but expect to have one soon. We think this speaks very well for this poor section of the country."

Lost Friends.

The son of Alfred Anderson and Angeline, aged thirty, when last seen was in Bonagua Spring. It was thought he went to Texas. He has not been heard from for fourteen years. Address, Alfred Anderson, Pond Creek, Cheatham county, Tennessee.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to know the whereabouts of my people, 1st. Brother Anderson Turner and his wife Delilia, children, Henrietta and John Turner, his mother was Edith who went to Mark Alexander by marriage, his wife's father name was Philip and her mother Sarah. 2d. My daughter Lucy Turner was sold to James Turner, her husband David Turner, her mother and father, Eliza and Robert Coleman belonged to H. E. Coleman now dead, her sisters are Mary some times called Polly Abbie, now dead and Rose also dead, brothers, William now dead, Benjamin, Solomon and Arthur, all of these I have heard of but Lucy. My sister Elizabeth Alexander, owned by Mark Alexander, Violet Norrell, her children were Henry, Timorus and Edith whose son was Louis. The greater part of these were in Virginia when last heard of except Lucy, who was sold at Atlanta, Georgia.

A. D. COLEMAN.

Enterprise, Clarke county, Miss.

DEAR EDITOR—I belonged to John Rowden of St. Charles county, Missouri. I was called Clarissa. I was sold to Mr. Kefle, a planter. My mother was named Pauline. I was the youngest of mother's first children. I had a sister named Sephrony, and a brother called Anderson. I don't know much about mother's second children. My step father's name was Sam. He was a house carpenter and also belonged to Mr. Rowden. I was eight or nine years of age when sold. When Polk & Dallas passed through the country, I remember hearing them say I was ten years old. I wish to inquire if I have any living kinfolks and exactly where they are now living, and their full names, so that I can write to them. I have written before but have received no reply. I am all alone in the world, and it would be a great happiness to me to know that I had some living kinfolks. If mother, sisters and brothers are dead, I think I must have some neices or nephews living. Hoping with the help of God to hear from some of my family and that before long. I remain respectfully Clarissa (now Ann). Mrs. Ann Reed, No. 240 Customhouse St., bet. Marais and Tremé sts., New Orleans.

A New Man—Dyspepsia Cured.

From the Hon. J. B. Benson, Hart Co., Ga.

HARTWELL, GA., Feb. 10, 1881.

I want to say a good word for Brown's Iron Bitters. I am about sixty years of age; have warehouse, railroad, and newspaper work to do. I have been taking [illegible] and various other kind of whisky bitters to give me an appetite, and the only appetite I got was for drink. Rev. Mr. Anderson, the presiding elder for the district, stopped with me not long ago, suffering dreadfully with dyspepsia. I got him Brown's Iron Bitters. They cured him. After he left, I concluded to take that remaining in the bottle, and I assure you it has made a new man out of me. I have no desire for stimulants, and believe I could eat a pair of old boots and digest them as easily as rice. J. B. BENSON.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.
The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.
The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Circular from the Teachers of Salt Lake Seminary.

Some idea of the difficulty of building up a school of high grade in Salt Lake City may be gained from the fact that the Salt Lake Seminary was opened September 12, 1870, by Rev. [illegible] Smith, who taught the school for one year and resigned.

Rev. F. S. Secin, A. M., was elected to fill the vacancy, and had charge of the school for four years; at the expiration of this period, he resigned, when Rev. Clark Smith, A. M., was elected to fill the vacancy, remained one year and resigned, then Prof. A. E. Lesher, A. M., was elected to fill the vacancy, remained one year and resigned. Rev. J. M. McEldowney, D. D., was elected to fill the vacancy, and had charge of the school for two years, and resigned, when Prof. J. H. Harris took charge of the school for about two months. At this time the school was very much reduced, and when the Utah Mission met in July, (the Mission was in session from July 15th to July 17, 1880,) the Mission unanimously voted to discontinue the school until January 1, 1881, when a new Principal would be elected and an appropriation made for the school.—The school was utterly broken down and [illegible]

Rev. T. [illegible] Hilton, A. M., was elected Principal and arrived November 12, 1880, and without any appropriation, began the work of building up the school.

The history of the Salt Lake Seminary is [illegible]

The Christian forces at work in Utah are almost wholly sustained by the different denominations of the East. The Presbyterians are expending this year in the Territory [illegible] in salaries for preachers and teachers. In this city alone they have expended $28,000 for school buildings. The Congregationalists are erecting here a school building [illegible] cost $25,000. The Roman Catholics have expended $25,000 and the Episcopalians $40,000 on their school buildings. That Shelbyville Church Debt.

In the Christian Advocate of New York, of December 29, and other papers, appeared an appeal to the public in behalf of the church at Shelbyville, Tenn., issued by the new pastor at that place, which requires a few words of explanation. In the appeal the pastor says, "Upon arriving, I found a building with surroundings estimated at $10,000, upon which rests a mortgage of $1000, due to the Church Extension Society. * * Should we fail to raise the amount Dr. Kynett threatens to sell our property," etc. The facts are these: The property was procured in 1867, by A. A. Gee, Superintendent of Missions, largely with Church Extension moneys. In 1872, on application made in due form, a loan of $1000 was added to save the property. The trustees certified at that time that no other debt existed, and they gave their obligations to pay in three equal annual installments, with interest, Judge Caldwell, a delegate to the General Conference of 1872, being one of the trustees. All efforts to secure payment of either interest or principal have proved unavailing. Judge Caldwell withdrew from the church on account of local troubles, and the society was badly broken up. About one year ago, suit was entered on account of an alleged old claim of which we knew nothing. The remaining trustees proposed to confess judgment and have the Board of Church Extension pay the claim. We protested against this, and demanded [illegible] settlement. They then deeded the property to the Board of Church Extension, and the Board offered to reconvey the property, provided they would pay the $1000, with interest, in installments of $200 per annum. It was failure to pay any part of this installment that called forth the threat to sell the property. The money loaned came out of [illegible], and must be returned to it, as the brethren at Shelbyville and all the Church should thoroughly understand. Under all circumstances [illegible] to pay [illegible]. This loan fund must be preserved intact, and [illegible] have [illegible] a few score of churches and protect this fund, than to break it down by allowing churches to borrow and not pay.

The church at Shelbyville is weak, and if they will help themselves they should have help from others. Recent advices indicate that earnest effort to save the church is being made, and those who may respond to the appeal referred to will aid a worthy object.

the movement, and every thing appears to indicate success. Up to the present time we have had no work, except among the Germans and the colored people, but I think the time has come for our Church to establish herself among all classes in the larger towns in this part of the State. Houston ought by all means to have a church for the whites. We have here three colored churches, and room for as many more; also a German church; why not have one for the Americans? Are there not some warm hearted and open-handed Methodists throughout Texas, and elsewhere, who will help in this undertaking? Any one desiring to contribute can send the money either to the pastor, H. R. Miller, Galveston, or to the presiding elder, M. A. Dougherty, Austin, Texas.

Resignation of Rev. Solomon Johnson.

MESSRS. EDITORS—In your issue of last week appeared an article under the above caption in which a brother, who has been in and out of the church a great many times, tried to screen himself from the just retribution which has at last overtaken him.

First of all let me say, that the Rev. Solomon Johnson was charged with conduct of an immoral character, unbecoming a gentleman, to say nothing about his religious and ministerial reputation.

The plea he sets up after his conviction, and suspension from all official standing in the African M. E. Church, is as absurd and ignorant as his own stupidity, or the person who wrote the article referred to could make it.

He cited pages 151 and 152 of our Discipline relative to the trial of Itinerant Traveling Preachers. Rev. Solomon Johnson never was a traveling or itinerant, licentiate, deacon, or elder, and unless he amends his course is not very likely ever to be.

Page 151 and 152 therefore does not fit his case. But if Rev. Brother Johnson will look on page 159 and 160 of the same book he and his adviser, or amanuensis will find how local elders, deacons, and licentiates were tried in our church. One word more. Rev. Johnson published a letter of resignation (a very remarkable missive by the way) but he fails to inform the public that when that resignation was written he had been summoned to trial on a charge of gross immoral conduct and sought refuge by flight in this way. He was tried by the quarterly conference and suspended from all official standing in the A. M. E. Church, and although I was then urged to publish his suspension, in order to keep him from imposing upon other churches, I had no desire to do more than was absolutely necessary for the honor and purity of the church.

Very respectfully,

A. M. GREEN.

Walden Seminary.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 16, 1882.

Walden Seminary, located in this city, and supported by the F. M. A. Society of the M. E. Church, under the supervision of Rev. Thomas Mason, is an assured success. It was opened on November 14th, and notwithstanding the extreme poverty of the people in consequence of the great failure of crops, during the two months just closed fifty-seven students have been enrolled, the lowest grade being Ray's Arithmetic, third part, and Swinton's Word Analysis and Grammar, the highest reaching up into higher Algebra, Latin, etc. As to the progress the students are making, it is unsurpassed in any school among any people in the State. As a teacher, Bro. Mason is equal to any and surpassed by none we have met in Arkansas. He pushes his work along the lines of the most advanced modern methods. He is a ripe scholar, a graduate of Indiana Asbury University, a school that does the best of work and finish for those who take her diplomas. Indeed, we may say to those who wish their children taught and trained by the best that here is their chance, under this devout Christian minister and scholar, who counts not his life or worldly honor dear, but with heart and might labors to develop the mind and soul, and to lift into a higher life those precious jewels committed to his care. Ah! grand, heroic soul, noble work art thou doing; yea, the greatest work of the age! While thy Anglo-Saxon brother looks on and ostracises thee, remember there is one who sticketh closer than a brother, who will say, "Well done, good and faithful servant," as he invites thee into everlasting habitations!

Fathers and mothers, send your children here. Fear not, if they have the right metal they will succeed. Quite a number are paying their way by working at such labor as they can get to do during hours out of school. While we have not room to give the names of all, as we wish we could, we nevertheless desire to mention Mrs. Naom Brown, who has been in the school from the beginning, in 1878. She washes and supports herself and her family, or furnishes her part of the family support, and attends school all the time. She is now in the highest class. Grand woman! Too few like you! Press on, a wreath of victory awaits thee! And Rev. J. P. Mack, a young brother studying for the ministry, is pushing his way through. What these heroic souls are doing to prepare themselves for the great work of life any others may do. The only thing needed for one to come here and get an education is to bring along the will to do. He or she need not fear. God and all good people will help them. We want 500 students before June next.

We must have a building. The F. M. A. Society will give us $6000, if we will raise $4000. This matter will be up for consideration at the coming session of our Conference, but we will venture to suggest a few items to help us there. Let us take ten $100, twenty $50, twenty $25, twenty $20, twenty $15, thirty $10, and one hundred $5 subscriptions, making in all $4000. Have each subscriber either to pay the cash or give his note. Let each preacher who subscribes fifty dollars or more have the privilege of collecting the subscription on his charge, deducting from the contributions what any member of his charge gives as a subscription on the above plan, and hold the preacher to pay what is lacking in the contributions of the people of his charge to settle the note, he having all of the next conference year to raise the amount.

What say you, brethren?

I. G. POLLARD.

The indications are that the House Committee on Elections will send the Utah case back to the people of that Territory for another election. There is a strong pressure from the churches in behalf of Campbell which the committee do not very well know how to resist. They don't like to give the seat to Campbell, in the face of a large majority of votes cast for Cannon, and they will probably conclude to hold the election over again as the easiest way to dispose of the case.

Relics of Barbarism.

The Kentucky Central, Cincinnati Southern, Louisville & Nashville, and probably other Southern railroads, run with all their passenger trains what is commonly called ladies' cars and smoking cars. In the former all the white ladies, and such white gentlemen and men as choose to do so, ride. In the latter, that is the smoking cars, all colored people are forced to ride, or not to ride at all. The fare in any case is the same. So rigid is this rule, that the Lexington Conference, which meets next March in Louisville, Ky., has been unable, after trial, to obtain any reduction from the regular individual first-class rates on the Louisville and Nashville railway. Now, the hardship in this matter, and that against which the colored people believe they make just complaint is, that men claiming to be employes of these roads violently resist the entrance of colored ladies to any other than those smoking cars, and that such action is, as they claim, upon the authority of their employers. Recently Mrs. Harding, of Nashville; Mrs. Smoot and Mrs. Jackson, of Paris; Mrs. Fannie Hatton, Mrs. William Gray, and Mrs. John Gasaway, all ladies of the best reputation, influence, and social standing, with first-class fares paid, and the company's vouchers in their hands, and tendered to the officials, were forced either to ride in these smoking-cars or stand upon the platform, which latter some them did. The writer himself was forced to ride in one of them to the serious injury of his health. His complaint to the conductor was met with the reply that his orders were imperative. The men who asked colored men for their votes to secure funds for the Cincinnati Southern road didn't tell them that their wives and mothers were to be in every possible manner brutalized if they undertook to use it when built as other people for a common rate of charge. The children of Col. Ingalls will one day blush with shame as they remember that their father and other directors of the Kentucky Central Railroad obtained much of their wealth from defenseless women who received no satisfactory equivalent in return, and were constantly black guarded by ruffians while under their protection. Many of the controllers of these lines live in the North, are Republicans, and ride in the same coaches with colored persons. They are here regarded as being humane and generous, are honored by, and seem just to, colored people in the North both in their practice and sentiment. Why this difference when these same colored people propose to use their lines in travel south of the Ohio River? The impression is gaining ground among the colored people that this is another way of hindering them in the exercise of their freedom to go whither they wish, or in exode toward the West if they choose. Now, if this view gets deeply rooted, there will not be conveyances enough South to bring the negroes North. We want fair play—a dollar's worth for a dollar, in the same kind of goods any other man gets. When this is assured, then the colored people prefer, above all regions the south of the Ohio River as their home. If it cannot be obtained here without endless litigation and strife, they understand it to be their duty to go elsewhere; and they have given evidence of first-class determination in the execution of a purpose when it is formed.

MARSHALL W. TAYLOR.

Education in the South.

The Southern press is already heeding the rising demand of the Southern people for a great revival of all sorts of good education. It is still far behind the leading schoolmen of its own section but is coming up to the work with an energy and enlightenment worthy of all praise. But if we may be permitted to give it a leaf from our Northern experience, we would suggest that the greatest blunder in war is firing upon your own troops, and that economy of ammunition is a first-class element of success in a hard-fought day. The real enemies of the children, down South, are not the schoolmen of the North,—even the devoted and cultivated women who are toiling in the great missionary schools for colored youth. They are of home growth, at their very doors. The school system of every Southern State is now assailed by an army of open and secret foes who are bent on its destruction. They are the same kind of people who are resisting the light in every Northern State, and their overthrow is only a question of a little longer time. For the one unmistakable bottom fact of Southern society today is the unconquerable determination of the masses of its people to give the children the great American chance, and the mighty coming whirlwind of popular wrath against everything and everybody that would slam the school-house door in the face of the humblest of its little ones. No clique of priests or politicians, no professional class, no social "upper-ten" can afford to get in the path of that coming storm! We have no fear of the issue, even in Louisiana. But the leading Southern press can greatly hasten the day of victory and bring the blessing of intelligence to the children now on the ground. We assure our editorial brethren of the South that Southern schoolmen, living or dead, have no enemies or detractors among the influential educational leaders of the North. North and South we are of one heart and one mind, "to see that the republic receives no harm" from that ignorance which is the mother of all our national woes.—N. Y. Journal of Education, March 31.

How to Make Home Happy.

[illegible] place of abode. But every place of abode is not a home. There are homes and homes. Here certainly is a place of abode, and if we were to judge only by its external appearance and internal adornments, we should be ready to say that it was a true home. But we enter, and offer our congratulation to the mistress, and what is her reply? "Home! call it a hell and you will be nearer the truth." Magnificence of architecture, gorgeousness of furniture and luxuries of living do not constitute a home. A true home supposes among its inmates mutual confidences, brotherly sympathies, and [illegible] New religion is necessary to these constituents of a home. Society is essential to the realization of the home joys. Home is designed and adapted by its author to yield many pleasures, but it can be easily perverted into a source of the deepest misery. Piety inculcates those virtues which are essential to the happiness of home.

Contentment is necessary to domestic happiness. "A contented mind" says the old proverb "is a continual feast." On the other hand it is impossible to overestimate the amount of misery occasioned by a discontented spirit. No matter what a man may have, if he has not a contented spirit, he will be unhappy and miserable. Discontent will prove the dead fly which renders unsavory the whole pot of precious ointment. True piety generates a spirit of contentment. It teaches us to be "content with such things as we have." Contentment is a Christian grace founded upon acquiescence in the arrangements of providence, and deep delight in the source of highest pleasure—God Himself. Such "contentment is great gain" because it saves its possessor from feverish unrest, it forbids meanness, jealousy, and strife. Contentment glorifies the pure joys of home.

Next to contentment forbearance is essential to home happiness. A vast amount of domestic misery is occasioned by irritability, undue sensitiveness, and readiness to take offence. We call these little things, and yet they are the causes of nine-tenths of all the domestic misery in the world. "The skin diseases of the soul" says George Macdonald "linger long after the heart is greatly cured." Witness the petulance, the social self-assertion, the fastidiousness, the general disagreeableness of many good people; all in the moral skin; repulsive exceedingly. I say good people; I don't say very good; nor do I say Christly, for that they are not." We frequently meet with men who remind us instinctively of an old Testament character, a man with whom David had to do. His name was Nabal, and the description given of him is that "he was such a churl that no man dare speak to him." Religion guards against these evils, by inculcating patience and forbearance. "With all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love." If household life is to be sunny and peaceful, we must exercise forbearance. We must seek to understand each other's natures, to sympathise with each others' dispositions and to make allowance for one another's infirmities. In the family one of the first things that we have to remember is that we are a family of men and not of angels. We must be long suffering and patient towards each other under the conviction and constant remembrance that we have all our infirmities. Well does Bishop Horne say "Patience is the guardian of faith, the preserver of peace, the cherisher of love, the teacher of humanity." Patience produced unity in the church, loyalty in the state, harmony in families and societies."

Any-thing of service again, is necessary to make a home what it should be. There are those who regard the home merely as a bed of rest, where they can remain idle and refresh themselves for toil in the outside world. The last thing of which they think is to make the effort for [illegible]

[illegible] we have a recipe [illegible] home happy. If any of [illegible] have not tried it we urge them at once to make the experiment. "Let them learn to show piety at home." Fresh cords of affection will bind the members of the family together, all sources of domestic misery will be removed, and an additional zest will be given to all the home pleasures and enjoyments.

The State's Duty.

The argument made sometimes by sensible men, and even lawyers, and law makers, who have not taken the time to mine down into the very base and logic of sound thinking, is that the State, by legal authority, has no concern with, and no right to legislate Sunday laws into existence.

If the opponents of a State Sunday law, would only be specific as to what they really mean, and argue that the State has no legal or moral right to enforce a Sunday law, as an ordinance of Christ's Church, and as a direct means of grace to save men from the effects of sin, then we have no ground of dispute, and are fully agreed on this point; because the spiritual observance of Sunday, can only be secured by the moral and religious suasion of the ministrations of the pulpit.

But if you take the other side of the argument, and declare that the commonwealth has no legal right to enforce the Sunday law, as originally commanded of God, and made binding on man in the state of his innocency; then you do but strike down, not only the pillars that uphold society, but tear away the foundation of all government.

Abolish the Sabbath, destroy its sanctity, and you destroy Christianity; you will not only deliberately overthrow the Church, but you will run the ploughshare of destruction beneath all free institutions. If it can be sustained by sound legal argument, that the State, now the source of human authority, is but an ordinance or creature of God, then it becomes the absolute duty of the State to enforce, not a spiritual, but an outward conformity to this original law of the Creator, the oldest statute law in the world.

On the other hand, if the argument could be maintained that the State has no right to legislate on a Sabbath of rest, then you establish the proof, that the State has no right to legislate on adultery, murder, and theft, or any of the violations of the moral law; because they are all original laws, under the theoratic government of God, and all rest precisely on the same foundation as the Sabbath law.

The fact is, we are thoroughly disgusted with the sickly, and cowardly sentimentality displayed in our legislatures on this important subject, so needful to the prosperity of our people.

The primal law, was given before man needed redemption, and therefore stands out on natural grounds, as absolutely needful to the well being of mankind, and becomes the binding law on all the entire race. We are inevitably forced to the conclusion that if it is any part of the duty of the State to legislate for the welfare of its citizens, then this feature of a Sunday law becomes paramount. And above all does it become the duty of the State to lay the hand of arrest upon all and every business that plies it work on Sunday, engendering crime and useless taxation.

And therefore gambling hells and the sale of intoxicants ought to be prohibited on Sunday under the most crushing penalties.

Continent of Africa.

The continent of Africa occupies much of the world's attention. Modern civilization, in its sweeping and radical developments and appliances, in all the departments of human activity chooses to nominate her, the continent of the future.

The torch of civilization which first blazed upon African soil, and which through Rome, has been scattered throughout Europe; now rekindled from the ashes of the middle ages and baptized with all the Christian graces, diffused throughout Europe and America, is making its way through Japan, India, China, and the Isles of the Sea, to Africa; its native hearth, with more than native splendor and effulgent glory. The natural advantages of Africa, studied in the light of this progressive age, commend her early redemption, and mark her out as the continent of the future. Her long kept secrets and possibilities are about to be revealed to the world, and she is awakening to the call of duty to contribute her share to the world's grand and glorious future. Nearly all the great powers of Europe are stirred up to their interests in this great [illegible] continent.

France is absorbed in the great effort of uniting Tunis, Tripoli, and Algeria to the Senegal possessions. She is spending [illegible] over $11,000,000 in the construction of railroad telegraph lines, and in the encouragement of immigration in her African possessions. Portugal is as actively caring for her possessions; by the establishing of civilizing stations; encouraging immigration and in raising funds to carry out her intentions. Spain is meditating the protectorate of Morocco and has her eyes opened to the coming greatness of the African continent. England, with her far reaching and diplomatic policy, is solidly planted along the West coast, and is pushing far out in the interior to view the land, make favorable treaties with the natives and utilize every possible advantage. Exploration parties representing every considerable power in Europe, are pushing out in every direction, making rich and valuable discoveries, which are being rapidly put to practical use by their various governments. Following in the line of march of commercial enterprise, mission stations representing every phase of our Christian system are being established in all parts of Africa.

With her splendid rivers and majestic mountains; her mineral and agricultural resources; with her infant commerce developed; with all the appliances of modern civilization, Africa shall rejoice and blossom as a rose; princes shall come out of Egypt and Ethopia shall stretch her hands to God. The question for us to solve is, what part of her glorious future are we preparing to share. America owes a debt to Africa, which dollars and cents cannot pay and which she will never be able to cancel. It is the duty of this Government, therefore, to do all it possibly can, both for Africans and for the children of Africa in America, in order to atone for the wrongs it has inflicted upon Africa. A very feasible way in which we can benefit Africa, and at the same time benefit ourselves, is by developing her commerce.

The Republic of Liberia (our foster republic across the sea) with about 20,000 blacks from America, exercising control over about a million native Africans, offering immense profits in the trade of coffee, spices, sugar, ginger, cocoa, palm oil, palm-kernels, cam wood, lime juice, rubber and steel, in exchange for our, our agricultural implements, school books, shoes, cotton goods, notions, brass kettles, flour and provisions, has no steam communication with this country. With such rich offers this ought not to continue so long. Congress should lose no time but immediately establish the desired steam mail communication. Twenty-eight steamships afford weekly communication between Liverpool and the West Coast. Not one steamer for the United States to Africa! We are glad however to note an awakening in this matter. A company has been organized in New York, to run steamers between this country and the West Coast. In several cities petitions are being signed memorializing Congress to establish steam mail communication with Africa. In this city several enthusiastic meetings have been held. A petition, drawn by some of our representative colored men, is being extensively signed petitioning Congress to the same purpose. Our Government is certainly bound by every call of interest and philanthropy to help reclaim this dark land to which she owes so much. It is quite providential that the sons of Africa, after two hundred and fifty years of oppression in the house of their bondage, should now, here begin this effort to bring their fatherland in closer relations with this country; and thus help hasten the day of her redemption. We hope these movements will speed the day of the awakening of the drowsy millions of that dark land, that gave birth to learning, nurtured commerce, sheltered the world's Redeemer and helped him bear his cross.

The Power of the Holy Ghost in the Church South.

If any doubts that a great power is moving our neighbors of the Church South, right on and over the prejudices which have been their chief stumbling blocks, let them read the following:

We are making history every day, and we will, and not without embarrassment, what is to be, its record as to the care and cure of the souls of our brothers in black? What have we done since the war? What are we doing now? What do we propose to do? There are no two ways about it, we have got to do something more for the negro than we have been doing, or in the event of failing to do so, fail of a great opportunity. We can't serve them as we once did. God in His providence is bringing us together. All nations and tongues are one in the blood of the first Adam and of the second. We are one in Christ Jesus. Let us not only feel it and sing it, but let us do something more than [illegible] —Southern Christian Advocate, Charleston, S. C.

The paragraph above is referred to in the following editorial, in the leading Church South paper, the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, Macon, Ga.:

SOUTHERN METHODISM AND SIX MILLIONS OF NEGROES.

Last week we quoted a burning paragraph from an editorial by Rev. S. A. Weber, of the Southern Christian Advocate, touching the exigent and imperative duty now pressing on the conscience of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in relation to the negroes in our midst. We intend to reproduce the whole of that editorial. We are conscience compelled to speak and write upon this subject from time to time. Theories that contradict facts must die; prejudices that antagonize the gospel of the Son of God and Brother of Men must be slain. No argument, no excuse, can justify our failure to do more for the uplifting and evangelization of the millions of negroes in the South than we are now doing. No other success can atone for continued failure in our duty to these people, here in our midst, in the Providence of God and needing all things. A "publishing house saved;" colleges and schools flourishing; our members increasing and reaching up to a million; our late awakened missionary zeal for the conversion of the heathen—all these things, good as they may be, though quadrupled in their resources and measures of success, cannot atone for this—that we are not now, in the year of grace 1882, doing what we ought to do for the evangelization of the poor negroes in our midst. What is worse, as a Church we are not trying to do it. And it irritates some people when it is even talked of. One local preacher who called over as among his acquintances of long years ago the names of Andrew, and Parks, and Glenn, and Anthony, and Lovick Pierce, ordered the Wesleyan stopped because it published an editorial on this subject last summer. O, if Capers could come back; if the great and holy men whose names he wrote could come back for a time! They would come in the spirit and power of Elijah. They would say to us: "You sin against the Crucified! You sin against humanity until you do something worthy your opportunity for these millions of poor negroes, redeemed by the blood of Christ!" And they would be true witnesses against us.

But "others," we are told, "are doing this work." They are doing part of it—their part. But it is too great a work for others; it is very heavy for them and for us if we all work. But if "others" were doing all that is needed their obedience would not excuse our lack of service. The Pharisee and the Levite were not excused from a duty of humanity because "a stranger" and a "samaritan" cared for a poor man left wounded and half dead by the road-side.

But we "set up" the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America;" gave them "bishops" and "houses"—churches "without money any without price." Yes, we did these things, and did right. But surely here is no occasion for boasting; we did not want the houses we gave them, and they had, most of them, small money value.

What have we done for this daughter of our Church—this Hagar that we sent forth into the wilderness? "Helped to build Churches." Yes, some; but it is little for nearly a million of us. "Helped to educate them." Yes, as we have paid our part of the public school tax. What else, except to wish them well and to give them a good deal of good advice?

Their bishops—we speak what we know—have been disappointed in us. They thought we were going to help them build "a school of the prophets," to help them establish an institution where their young preachers and teachers could be prepared to do good work for their own people, "But we have helped." How much? Enough for any man, except the sad-hearted bishops taking up little hat collections now and then to know how much? We have tried to find out whether we have done anything worth naming. Alas! we will publish it if we can find out.

"But our own schools are poor and in distress." Yes, God would have made them richer had we been more faithful to his poor children at our doors.

"But the whole South is poor." Yes, and failure to do her duty will make her poorer. It was the Master who said: "From him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." "But we did ever so much for the negroes before the war." No, not a word of it; our fathers did that, not we. This is 1882, ours is a new generation. Let us deceive ourselves no longer. Unless we do something else we are talking too much about what our fathers did in the past generation. Our fathers did well; under the older system they preached the gospel to the best of their ability to the negroes.

Their work is done; their reward won. Capers, Pierce, Gamewell, Glenn, Parks, Anthony, Winans, Hamilton and the long roll of the worthies of that day did their best, and have entered into rest. We, their sons, are not doing our best; we are boasting of our fathers' deeds. Let us quit boasting of the deeds of our fathers, until we do something worthy our lineage.

Our historic relation to these millions of negroes; our nearness to them; "the Greeks are at our doors;" our knowledge of them; all these things constitute an opportunity to do God's work in doing them good that no other people have.

It is simply heathenish to argue a termination or diminution of obligation on us to do them good because they have been set free. They are not to blame for that. And we should thank God every day that [illegible] live at both they [illegible] are free.

If [illegible] fail [illegible] the right [illegible] of the Christian world, we are condemned in our own consciences; we are condemned of Jesus Christ, our Lord and King. If we fail our children will be ashamed when they read the history.

The Methodist Episcopal Church South, has a great many institutions of learning; but not one of them will admit a student who has a drop of African blood in his veins. The colored man must look to the North for his Education.—Freedman's Aid Herald.

Certainly the Freedman's Aid Herald should be sufficiently informed to know that there is a college in Mississippi for the education of freedmen. And that there are free schools for them all over the State.—Mississippi Methodist.

Yes, as the Methodist says, there are public schools for colored youth in Mississippi, but theological students must avail themselves of privileges offered by Northern churches and their missionary societies.

Expulsion of British Subjects from Liberia.

A correspondent to the West African Reporter gives a full account of the expulsion of British subjects from Liberia. An unfortunate jealous spirit seems to have actuated the Liberian Government in recently enacting a law prohibiting the employment of all Sierra Leoneans along the coast and in the interior, Grand Bassa excepted—it being a port of entry—under a penalty of $5000 each upon the employer and employee, or three months imprisonment at hard labor. In consequence of this enactment many Sierra Leoneans who were in Liberia were naturalized to obtain the protection of the government, but to no avail, the prejudices of the Liberian made it either unsafe or disagreeable to remain, and nearly all were compelled to leave. A secret society upon the model of our defunct K. K. K. called the Society of Black Things, has been organized, having for its object the persecution of all Sierra Leoneans. This is an unfortunate turn, and one not calculated to further the welfare of the West African coast. It is to be hoped that a better understanding may very soon prevail, and that the united force and influence of Liberia and Sierra Leonean governments might be exercised in the development and reclamation of the vast continent of Africa.

An Old Game.

Correspondents of newspapers are sent into the State of Kansas, and local subscribers also are paid well for their trouble, to write up falsehoods out of the whole cloth, in their rampant and bitter opposition to prohibitory laws, and for the sole purpose of discrediting the passage of such a law in other states. For years they plied the same game in Maine.

Rave on ye hireling penny-a-liners, public opinion is advancing steadily, surely, and conclusivly to the utter destruction of the manufacture and promiscuous sale of intoxicants.

Its outcrop of crime, taxation and poverty will be the death of it yet.

Messrs. John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan have been reminded by the introduction of a bill in the Legislature of Mississippi to prevent and punish prize-fighting, that some other territory had better be selected for their training and punching operations. It is a forcible commentary on the need of better police regulations in New Orleans, that it should be singled out from numerous other cities of the continent as a safe place of refuge. Their quarters at Carrollton and West End are said to be snug, and each day they securely train for their proposed immoral and brutal contest. We urge the Council and Mayor Shakespeare to follow the noble example of Mississippi officials, and endeavor to persuade these men to desist by making it uncomfortable for them. The Committee of Public Safety, now organizing patrols for the preservation of order during the carnival season, might well take this matter in hand, for where the prize fighter goes there will be the gambler and pickpocket also.

Dr. J. E. Edwards, in the Southern Christian Advocate, tells the plain truth when he says: "There never was a greater mistake than in supposing that a Church weekly, with pledged support of a whole Conference, or even of two or three Conferences, backing it with complimentary and commendatory resolutions, can be turned out with such an indorsement to take care of itself. The acts of the apostles did more to further the gospel, than the resolutions of the so-called first council of the Church at Jerusalem. Untiring, persistent effort on the part of the preachers and patrons of a Church paper is the imperative condition of success. Acts, rather than resolutions, widen the circulation of the best Church papers."

Members of Ames M. E. Church by steady attendance on and invitation of friends, may greatly assist the revival meetings now going on.

To the pastor of the First Street Church, a grand reception was given on the 19th, by Mr. Alfred Davis in the garden district; and, on the night of the 29th, a party of young gentlemen and ladies took the Carrollton cars to find the way to their pastor's home on Burdett street, and with songs of praise surprised the pastor with gifts and other tokens of esteem and love. Mr. Andrew Jackson was selected to deliver an address to the Rev. Stephen Priestly on the occasion.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

A colportage law has lately been passed in France allowing any Frenchman to hawk religious books. The cemeteries have been declared national property; hence away go burial squabbles over Protestant graves, and Protestant soldiers and all Protestant functionaries of government, as well as all others, are released from bowing to the Host at great national celebrations.

A monastery in Hungary, the monks of which were believed to be wealthy, was recently attacked by brigands. A band of soldiers came to the rescue, and on gaining admittance found the monks gagged on the floor, and no trace of the brigands. The monks on being set at liberty, sent the soldiers off in search of an underground passage into the forest, while the holy fathers retired to the chapel to render thanks for their deliverance. Not finding it, soldiers returned to make further inquiries; but the supposed monks were gone, and the real ones were found murdered in an adjoining room. The brigands had personated the monks, putting on their dress and gagging each other to deceive and elude the soldiers.

The Study.

The attention of all Sunday-school superintendents, and primary or infant classes teachers, is called to our quarterly magazine prepared for their special benefit, entitled The Study, price fifty cents a year. Address Phillips & Hunt, 805 Broadway, N. Y., or Walden & Stowe, Cincinnati and Chicago.

The Study contains sixty pages of choice matter. It gives material for the use of the superintendent; which is not to be found in the Sunday School Journal, or any other lesson help. It has articles on methods of work, and a quarterly article on mental review pictures, by which the lessons of the quarter may easily be remembered. The January number contains an account of the several departments of church work, and devices for Sunday-school work, by which the many-sided "institution" is to be helped. A valuable article is contributed by Daniel Wise on "Readers who do not Read." The Primary Department, under the direction of Miss Van Marter, contains a great deal of condensed matter, rich as Alderney cream. A "reformed pastor" gives an account of the "Old-fashioned Catechetical Class." Novel blackboard exercises are given for primary classes. Rev. J. L. Hurlbut furnishes "Lines of Thought in the Lessons," with some charming illustrations and anecdotes for the especial benefit of superintendents. The "Inner Sanctuary" contains a helpful article on the "Open Secret," by Rev. Adolph Saphir, and the beautiful poem by Dr. J. G. Holland, "Daniel Gray." Then come several pages of the "Bureau of Information," which every superintendent should read.

Will not our superintendents and the infant-class teachers order The Study? There is nothing superior to it in this country or England, in its particular line.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 2: 18-28; 3: 1-5.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."—Ex. 20: 8.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer and the Sabbath.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

The answer which was made by the Savior to the question as to why he ate with sinners had by no means been palatable to the Pharisees. From that time their hostility assumed an unrelenting and implacable character. They lay in wait to catch him in his speech. They watched for opportunities of accusation. The next two questions with which they assailed him were those in our lesson with regard to fasting and the Sabbath. That suggestion was not wholly hostile. It was asked by the disciples of John as well as by the Pharisees. It was in part at least, the perplexed enquiry of the old dispensation to the new. Holiness had always been associated in the minds of the questioners with fasting and many supplications. According to their conception of the Messiah, he should have laid down the rules even more strictly, instead of relaxing them. For the disciples to fast under such circumstances would have been incongruous as for the sons of the bridechamber," in the midst of the feastings and merry-making, to abstain from food, and to clothe themselves with sackcloth, and cover their heads with ashes. They were then to fast, not in obedience to any rule, but because they could not help fasting. When their Lord was crucified and laid in the sepulcher, then this prediction was fulfilled. Crushed and disheartened, believing that all their hopes were entombed with their dead Master, the disciples felt in no mood for eating and drinking. He tells the disciples of John that he has come to the world, not to patch old garments, but to give new ones. "The old things are passed away; behold, they are become new." By the Mosaic law any one was allowed to eat the grain from the stalk as he went through the fields. In the opinion of no one were they committing any wrong against the owner of the field. They were rebuked, not for theft, but for breaking the Sabbath. Already they seem to have learned by association with Christ, that the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for Sabbath. David, that model of piety, had done a worse thing on Sabbath than plucking a few grains of barley. Instead of going into the fields to satisfy his hunger he had gone into the sanctuary, and eaten the sacred bread from the table of showbread, of which none but consecrated priests might partake. If his disciples were to be condemned, still more was David. His own disciples had been laboring as they were compelled to do in order to perform the extra duties of the Sabbath day. They had only rubbed out a few grains of barley, while the priests were slaying, flaying, cleaning up, and offering the sacrifices. But the Savior does not allow his accusers to escape without a rebuke themselves. The One whom they had arraigned surprised them by turning about upon them, and saying,

[illegible] ... "I desire mercy, and not sacrifice" ... were treading the Sabbath ... blessing ... a cause for praise. "Is it lawful on the Sabbath day to do good?" ... [illegible]

Hon. Frank Morey, a special agent in the internal revenue service, was ordered to Colorado, but resigned in preference.

Catarrh and T. P. Childs.

The treatment of one hundred thousand patients should establish, without doubt, the effectiveness of Rev. T. P. Childs' "Catarrh Specific," the advertisement of which appears in this issue.

That Rev. T. P. Childs should be able to successfully treat Catarrhal difficulties, where so many others failed, has undoubtedly caused many to ask how he does it? Over his own signature he explains very simply his method. Catarrh is generally many years in gaining a foothold in the system, and attacks so many parts of the body that it cannot be cured by any one remedy or by any single application. It requires remedies that will meet the disease wherever it is located, and fight it inch by inch until a complete victory has been obtained. This takes time. Hence an honest effort on the part of the patient and perseverance in the use of the remedies, are both necessary to success. With an intelligent use of the Specific no sufferer can fail of obtaining health and strength.

He has treated and cured thousands at their homes, never having seen them. In a thoroughly honorable and characteristic manner he published the names and addresses of a few of those he cured, that any one who desire may inquire of the patients themselves what Childs' Catarrh Specific has done for them.

Mr. Childs' gives his own experience after thirteen years of relief from the dread disease. The discovery of his certain cure for Catarrh has attracted great attention. Leading men everywhere, publicly state that Childs' treatment has cured them or their families of Catarrh or of Throat difficulties, not obscure, unknown men, but men whose reputation is national—among them, clergymen, physicians, lawyers, merchants, bankers and business men. Editors and publishers of our leading periodicals, and many others have personally investigated the facts, and they are satisfied that Mr. Childs has made such a study of the disease known as Catarrh as to have enabled him to treat it with most extraordinary success.

None need feel any any hesitancy in in placing their case in Mr. Childs' hands for treatment. He would call special attention to the advertisement, and requests a careful perusal of the facts as set forth.

Many who do not receive our paper would doubtless be very thankful, should our readers call the attention of such to the advertisement of Mr. Childs. Catarrh is a common and disgusting disease, but Childs' Catarrh Specific may be relied on as an effective and certain cure, and you may recommend it to your friends with every confidence.

The National Board of Health has officially declared small-pox epidemic, and is devising measures of protection against the disease.

A WONDERFUL and SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH, Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

An only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country enjoying the best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this Receipt free, only asking two three-cent stamps to pay expenses. This herb also cures night-sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address, Craddock & Co., 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, naming this paper.

So marked has been the success attendant on my method of treatment, and so thoroughly has my statement that Catarrh can be cured been proven, that thousands and tens of thousands from all parts of the world have been interested to write and obtain my method of treatment, and where it has been given an honest trial it has invariably proved a grand success. Year by year my business has grown until now my correspondents number nearly 100,000, and I have been compelled to add largely to my force in order to meet the growing demand for my Catarrh Specific.

Perseverance and Catarrh.

I MEAN HONEST, HARD WORK; I USE HONEST METHODS; I DO NOT attempt to cure in a day a disease that has been growing for a lifetime, increasing in power and gathering strength daily for years. I DO NOT ask my patients to attempt, nor do I want them to try their cure unless they mean to fight the battle for health and strength manfully and with a determination to win. I DO TRY to encourage every sufferer with catarrh to believe they can be cured if they will persevere in the use of means I provide.

BY ACCIDENT, CARELESSNESS, INATTENTION, HEREDITARY TAINT, or in some unknown way, you have secured and are nursing in your system a poison that is surely eating its way to your vitals, carying untold misery and suffering in its progress. DO NOT WAIT until your body is racked with pain, until the passages of your head are eaten away, until the foul mass of corruption running down your throat, has affected the lungs, poisonig the whole system, causing Consumption, Liver Complaint and Chronic Diseases of many kinds. DO NOT WAIT until Catarrh has prostrated you and the complication of diseases arising from the neglected Catarrh has placed you beyond the reach of any human aid. Obtain the means that has cured so many thousands, and, having secured it, with honest, straightforward work, persevere in its use, and you will be blessed with renewed health and strength. I especially desire to treat those who have used other remedies without success. T. P. CHILDS, Troy, Ohio.

Permanent Cure of Catarrh!

The Only Effectual Way.

OUR LETTER BOX:

Below we give a few of the thousands of letters we are constantly receiving. The record is a guarantee that CHILDS' CATARRH SPECIFIC is no new untried cure, but a positive and certain remedy. We above all things, desire to establish confidence in our treatment, so that every sufferer from Catarrh and Bronchitis may feel certain of success in its use.

100,000 Catarrhal cases have applied to me for relief. Many thousands have received my Specific, and are cured. We deem it only fair that every one who wishes should have the opportunity to ascertain whether we are able to accomplish all that we claim; and for this purpose we add a few of the many hundreds of unsolicited certificates which have been sent to us by grateful patients—as well as the addresses of some who have been successfully treated, almost any of whom will doubtless respond to any inquiry by letter, if accompanied by a stamp to pay postage. Having been cured themselves, they doubtless will be willing to let the afflicted know where they can find certain relief. We have thousands of these certificates from all classes—physicians, clergymen, lawyers, judges, merchants, bankers, and business men.

THIRTEEN YEARS AGO

Catarrh was considred an incurable disease. I had then suffered for thirteen years in a manner only known to those who have had this disease in some of its worst forms. My professional duties made exposure a necessity, and I was first attacked by a slight cold; terrible headaches, which could not be cured followed, with deafness and ringing in the ears, soreness of the throat, [illegible] nasal discharges, weak, inflamed eyes, hawking, rising of vile matter, black and sometimes bloody mucus, coughing, with great soreness of the lungs. The liver and stomach were polluted with the mass of diseased matter running from the head, until dyspepsia, indigestion, and liver complaint made me a wreck and incapacitated me for my professional duties and confined me to my bed. Compelled to resign my pastorate, and feeling that my end was near, in desperation I gave up the physicians and compounded my CATARRH SPECIFIC, and wrought upon myself a wonderful cure. Now at the age of sixty-seven, I am wholly restored, can speak for hours with no difficulty, and never have had, in the whole thirteen years, the slightest return of the disease. Every Physician who has examined my Specific says it is certain, and thorough, and perfect. T. P. CHILDS.

CHILD'S CATARRH SPECIFIC

Will effectually and permanently cure any case of Catarrh, no matter how desperate. The treatment is local as well as constitutional, and can only be obtained at Troy Ohio. We especially desire to treat those who have tried other remedies without success.

Childs' Treatment for Catarrh, and for diseases of the Bronchial Tubes, can be taken at home with perfect ease and safety, by the patient. No expense need be entailed beyond the cost of the medicine. A full statement of method of home treatment and cost, with scores of testimonials from those who have been cured, will be sent on application. Address

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

The first of the revival meetings at Ames M. E. Church, New Orleans, conducted by Jonathan S. Haskell, the evangelist, began on Sunday evening 15th. The meetings have been well attended. The Monday evening talk of Bro. Haskell on theaters and actors was highly enjoyed, and contained powerful descriptions of love and truth.

TEXAS.

A. C. Culbreath, Huntsville: "Our first quarter was held Jan. 1, by Elder Pullam. Bro. James Shackleford and a large number of visiting friends were present. The class leaders reports were good, showing about 100 members."

D. W. Tucker, Lavernia: "I wish to say it is high time our preachers should put more light before our people than they have been doing. When they leave a charge where they have held forth, they should not leave our people in the dark respecting the right of the annual conferences to make changes, etc.; they should learn not to make it hard for their successors. As this is my first year in the ministry I thought if I was appointed to a new field it would be a difficult task to build up. But as I have a field already cultivated, my trials on entering is such that I could sigh for the unbroken turf."

MISSISSIPPI.

E. C. Pierce, Brandon: "Our school here is a small one. I gave a festival, and made the church a present of a set of window blinds costing $30. Betty McAllister, Amanda Waters, Birdie McAllister and Sarah Finch were the girls, aged twelve years, who assisted."

S. A. Cowan: "Our last day in Grenada was one long to be remembered. Our church at this place has succeeded nicely this year. This has been a very hard year and laborers receive a small compensation for their services. But this noble hearted people has raised $350 for improving our church and yesterday paid $30 for the new building at Shaw University ... members after paying off their pastor, gave him a nice suit of clothes."

ARKANSAS.

Robert Boone, Centre Point: "Our beloved presiding elder held his ... conference at ... on 30th of December. The brethren were present. We had a good time during the conference. On Sunday the elder preached to a large congregation, with power. After preaching I called a collection for the elder and received $10, in the afternoon Bro. Sams called a collection for me and received $2, ... collection $12. Times are very hard. During the year we have built 2 new churches valued at $1,000, all the money is paid except $20. We thank God that the old Church moving is on to the front in Arkansas. By the help of the Lord we had 56 converts this year and a large number added to the ... We are telling the people what the old church is doing for them, and that she is their friend."

Worth a Dozen Dead Men.

Richmond, Va., May 20, 1881.

My physician, ... continue taking medicine. I was told that one lung was gone, that my bowels and kidneys were decayed. I suffered excruciatingly from the horrors of dyspepsia and painful urination, and my breath came short and quick, while my heart at times ceased to beat entirely, while again it would thump most vehemently. A sister of mine, a Mrs. Khorer, in Baltimore, wrote to father advising him to get me Brown's Iron Bitters. From the very first dose I felt a change; now all pain is gone, my digestion is good, my urine is free from sediment, and my slumber unbroken and dreamless. I now feel perfectly restored and go about and do as much work as ever I did, and I do not feel the least fatigued.

THE BEST OF ALL LINIMENTS FOR MAN AND BEAST.

For more than a third of a century the Mexican Mustang Liniment has been known to millions all over the world as the only safe reliance for the relief of accidents and pain. It is a medicine above price and praise—the best of its kind. For every form of external pain the MEXICAN Mustang Liniment is without an equal.

It penetrates flesh and muscle to the very bone—making the continuance of pain and inflamation impossible. Its effects upon Human Flesh and the Brute Creation are equally wonderful. The Mexican MUSTANG Liniment is needed by somebody in every house. Every day brings news of the agony of an awful scald or burn subdued, of rheumatic martyrs restored, or a valuable horse or ox saved by the healing power of this LINIMENT which speedily cures such ailments of the HUMAN FLESH as Rheumatism, Swellings, Stiff Joints, Contracted Muscles, Burns and Scalds, Cuts, Bruises and Sprains, Poisonous Bites and Stings, Stiffness, Lameness, Old Sores, Ulcers, Frostbites, Chilblains, Sore Nipples, Caked Breasts, and indeed every form of external disease. It heals without scars.

For the BRUTE CREATION it cures Sprains, Swinny, Stiff Joints, ... eases, Foot Rot, Screw Worm, Scab, Hollow Horn, Scratches, Windgalls, Spavin, Thrush, Ringbone, Old Sores, Poll Evil, Film upon the Sight and every other ailment to which the occupants of the Stable and Stock Yard are liable.

The Mexican Mustang Liniment always cures and never disappoints; and it is, positively, THE BEST OF ALL LINIMENTS

MY DEAR BISHOP PECK: I am confident you will appreciate the motive which prompts this note.

The friends of Temperance in this this State have secured a "Local Option law," by which the sale of intoxicants is prohibited in towns and districts, unless a majority of citizens petition for it. In looking over the list of names published for such licenses in every community, I find a great many names of one colored Methodists as well a few of our white members. Might it not be well for you to suggest, at least to your presiding elders, that they discourage and oppose signing such petitions? We can never succeed in repressing the "great evil" of our colored people will not assist us. It is not a question of politics but of morals. A word from you might do good. God bless you! Yours truly,

B. RADER.

Whereas, it is the sense of this conference that a constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors in this State, except for medical, scientific and mechanical purposes, should be submitted to the people for their adoption: therefore be it

The Preeminence of Christ.

BY REV JOHN O. FOSTER, A. M., Rock River Conference.

The position now occupied in the minds of men certainly gives Christ the preeminence.

The Babe of Bethlehem drew forth more attention from heaven, earth and hell, than any being born of woman. At his birth a convoy of angels brought down the congregations of heaven, and chanted the opening carol of the new dispensation. The song was short but the story was long. What little we caught of the heavenly message has thrilled our hearts and cheered our souls from that day to this, and we shall never know the full tone of glory till we study its foundations in the other world.

Christ gathered all honor as the first born, the only begotten of God. He received by inheritance the greatest name ever conferred upon a living being. He had the form of man and yet was higher than man. He was the son of man and yet son of God. What was claimed for Him was exhibited in Him when he appeared.

In his humanity we behold a brother, bone of our bone, suffering like we suffer, going from place to place teaching the truths of a wonderful revelation, and enduring more shame and resentment from the chief men than any great teacher had ever known.

His brotherly heart was exhibited in the affection, the relief shown to the suffering people who thronged around him wherever he went. We find no case where he turned them away, but though rejected himself by the rulers, yet the common people heard him gladly. They found in him a friend, not simply as the giver of loaves and fishes, but the comforter of their souls, the healer of their infirmities.

Christ's humanity reveals also his humility. Why this was necessary we may never fully know. It is certain that there was a humiliation which in our eyes would be a dreadful degradation.

He was before this in the courts of heaven surrounded by a glory which he had before the world was, and possessed with an inheritance there that reached back to the long eternity. And when we see him here, weary, working, thirsting, suffering with hunger, we wonder at the voluntary humility. Royalty seldom assumes a willing, abject poverty, that is distasteful to the mind and sickening to the heart. The king may leave his court for a brief visit to the lowly, but is careful to carry his royalty in his bearing, and many constantly exhibit it in word, act and dress. Yet Christ veiled his divinity so that even his brethren did not believe on him until his mighty works compelled their assent, as did the miracles compel others to acknowledge him as divine. To as many as received him to them his power was shown, and they became sons of God and heirs of glory. His royalty was not lowered by being with us, though all manner of shame was heaped upon him, for in his noble bearing he revealed our wonderful degradation, and lifted up all who received him to a sphere of exalted character never known or known in [illegible] contact with wicked men. When he was reviled he reviled not again, and in his unrighteous condemnation he patiently endured the judgment even unto death.

No king was ever condemned who had more pure nobleness, and heavenly royalty never shone brighter than in Christ our Lord.

Wisdom belongs to this wonderful name. The wisdom of this world is foolishness in comparison with the sublime truths which glow around this hallowed name.

Justice never had such an expounder.

Equity was never more vigorously enforced.

Love shone from his entire nature, and he drew our hearts after him as no other being ever attracted humanity.

In our first loves we have no higher idea than to love our parents. From the first it is faint and circumscribed to a few, then as the years come it widens out, to kindred, to friends, to acquaintance, and studying the needs of humanity we love to do the whole race good.

Beyond the race is the Author of our being, who planted within us the desire of the heart, and in his wisdom has led us from nature up to nature's God. "Love was given, encouraged, sanctioned, chiefly for this end."—Robertson.

"The base passions are certainly the degraded qualities of a nobler nature."

Christ came to arouse man from his stupor in sensuality, and his down grade, to a new life of wisdom, justice and love.

The effort was not a failure. The war of passion in man's poisoned nature rejected with vehemence any of the claims of purity, but they were made and shall be duly heard. The best men of earth who have studied the character, works, wisdom, love, power and divinity of Christ, declare that his entire revelation was not human alone, but that there was manifested in this wonderful Being all the attributes of God.

"For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell." Col. 1:19.

Thus we are raised in one passage of scripture to look upon Christ as the full development of divine truth.

But we are called upon to look again, and hear the word say, he is "The image of the invisible God, the first born of all creation, for in him were all things created, in the heavens and upon the earth, things visible and things invisible, whether thrones, or dominions or principalities or powers; all things have been created through him, and unto him; and he is before all things, and in him all things consist." Col. 1:15-17.

From this passage we get more of an idea of a God than of a man. He was so much divinity and so much humanity that we cannot divide the nature shown. He was before man and greater than man for he made man, and the creature is far lower than the creator. We find no one else then on earth who can be compared to him. Creation then is not to him a relative, for he was before all creation, and "He is the living centre, towards which all things in creation converge, the Divine Keystone in the arch of the universe, on which the whole fabric leans."—Chrysostom.

Suppose we let the great names for a moment pass in review. They are our best representatives. They have stood the test of models in their special field.

Noah, a preacher of righteousness, the link between the long ages of violence and a new race of instructed God fearing people, was in some respects a high type of humanity. In other things where we fail he failed.

Abraham was a model of faithfulness. He believed God and became the father of the faithful. His position among men is very noble and his memorials will be known while the Old Testament records are read.

Moses was the great law giver, and in this particular was the greatest man of all history, but his energy kept him from the full realization of his earthly hopes, and he died in a good old age having served his generation.

David [illegible] and sang and died.

Solomon was given unusual wisdom, but degraded the highest talents in sensual pleasure. His fame, wealth, wisdom and great works are blackened with evils.

The Prophets were men of special missions. They were the bearers of dispatches from heaven, and were of noble natures. But they were not without feelings of constant dependence on God.

The records of heroism may well come before our view also, and we see the long bloody waves of war rolling over the earth, and anon here and there a hero upon the crest of a wave that lifted him above the great mass beneath.

Cyrus, whose emblem was the wings of an eagle on the body of a lion. He flew at the prey and tore it in pieces.

Alexander the great was a thunderbolt among the kingdoms of the orient, and opened the track of European empire to the far east. He died young, and his empire was divided.

Julius Caesar subdued many nations to the Roman arms and founded a dynasty for many years. But the long line of the Caesars has perished from the earth.

Napoleon the restless emperor, the greatest general of his age, died an exile, and his throne and kingdom has passed into the hands of a peaceful republic.

These names may ever be known, but they were the embodiment of a single great idea. Not one of them swept over a broad latitude of thought.

How shall we compare these who have obtained such great renown, to the Galilean Rabbi. They touched humanity at certain points, but Jesus left his record on body and soul.

When scientists try to measure the distance to fixed stars, and find that all the units and angles and base lines known will not answer their purpose, they then resort to the inherent character of light itself, and ask that it reveal its glories, and tell the story of those far off wonders. Powerful lenses are brought and the light of other worlds sent through them. Here and there the dark and bright lines appear, the burning flames of earthly metals reveal similar lines on the spectrum, the shadows of near and far away orbs are compared, and the record of light shows that these near and these remote bodies are alike in many of the substances. So may we in the prism of Revelation read the lines wherein there is a record of common brotherhood between man and the Lord Jesus Christ.

We care not so much how far it is to heaven, as the character of heaven. Love can go in an instant where the lightning's wing would tire in the long ages.

We care not so much where Jesus now is, just where his royal dwelling place may be, as the fact that he loves us, and approves of our actions. We are anxious to please him, and though we cannot see him with these dull eyes, yet we know that he is near to us and sees all of our doings, hears all we say and knows the secret thoughts that never appear in expressed words.

His name may well be the first one taught to childhood and the last one breathed by the lips of the dying patriarch, "Now Lord lettest thou thy servant depart in peace."

No one cares about speaking the name of Moses, Isaiah or Washington in the dying hour, but Jesus is the one chiefest among ten thousand,

He dries the mourners tears.
He hears the orphan's moan;
He soothes our sorrows and our fears,
He loves us as his own.

We do not expect an eternity of bliss at the hands of Mohammed, though he promised this to all his warriors who died in his cause, but again and again the word of God speaks of a reward to the faithful.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." "To him that overcometh evil I give to sit with me on my throne."

From our Mission Rooms.

Death of Miss Michener in Africa.—A note from Miss Mary A. Sharp to Rev. David Terry, Assistant Missionary Secretary, contains the sad intelligence that Miss Emma Michener, Missionary of the W. F. M. S. in Liberia, died December 16, at near 12 o'clock p. m. She had started for home by steamer, but died in a few hours after going on board, between Bassa and Monrovia. She was buried at Monrovia Saturday, December 17, in the missionary burial ground, where the remains of so many of our heroic dead are deposited. Soon after her arrival in Liberia in the spring of 1880, Miss Michener answered a call to open a school on the Bexley circuit in the Bassa country, some eighty miles down the coast from Monrovia. She also made a journey among the natives in the interior. Rev. J. S. Payne writes recently of her work at Bassa: "On this circuit Miss Michener of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society is setting up a crusade against superstition, ignorance and idolatry, and although she has been a great sufferer from the effects of the fever, her prospects for the future are very flattering." Conversions among the natives followed her efforts. She was full of zeal for missionary work and had indomitable courage. Though shipwrecked on the coast of Wales on her way out, she then wrote, "I could not think me behind [illegible] I felt sure God had sent me to Africa and would surely bring me into there." At a later day from her beloved field of labor she wrote: "During all my sickness I have felt a [illegible] since I come to Africa, nor have I ever had a feeling of homesickness." This is another seal of the [illegible] army of martyrs." Her reward is sure.

Miss Sharp also writes of the continued illness of Mr. Payne. She thought he could not last many days.

An Era of Progress in Denmark.—A private letter from Rev. Carl Schou [illegible] to the impression received by Das Bete on his recent visit, that our mission in Denmark is entering upon a period of hopeful expansion. India Conference was formed there in the centenary year of American Methodism (1866) and subscriptions were made for this purpose. The realization of the project began however only in 1877 when the above mentioned Centennial School was opened. From the first it has been a success. Pupils have gathered from all parts of India. Rev. B. H. Badley is the present principal. The privileges of the school are not confined to Christians. The present number of pupils is one hundred and sixteen of whom fifty-eight are Christians, forty-four Hindoos, fourteen Mohammedans. The school was examined by the Government inspector in July. He expressed his pleasure at the progress made during the year, and promised assistance in securing a larger grant from Government and a building grant of $2,000 for a new schoolhouse which he pronounced an urgent necessity.

Progress among the Official Class at Gondah, India.—Rev. S. Knowles, our missionary at this station writes: "In Gondah there are more Hindu and Mohammedan officials than in any other station in Oudh. They are all of a most liberal turn of mind, and many of them have their houses furnished in European style. All these have been regularly visited, and without a single exception, those visits were received kindly. Some of these native gentlemen have come privately to our house to state their religious objections and have them answered. In one case the answers were carefully written down and taken away to be more carefully pondered. The result of their return visits was the giving of three lectures to the members of the Gondah Anjuman-i-Islah. The first was on 'The Immortality of the Soul,' the second on the 'State of the Soul after Death,' dealing with the question of transmigration, and the third on 'Rewards and Punishments' from a Christian standpoint. We seemed to have gained the confidence of this influential class of native society. We need not advert to the duty and propriety of public worship. General usage has sanctioned it. Universal experience confirms its importance. As there are common offences to deplore, and common blessings to solicit, it is right that there should be a common recognition of dependence upon God. It seems almost instinctive to the race that as they worship God in private and in their families, so they should as a community pay their homage at His Throne. [illegible]

Bishop Peck.

Bishop Jesse Truesdell Peck, of our Church, arrived in this city last Tuesday, having come direct from Aberdeen, Miss., where he had been holding the sessions of the Mississippi Conference, presiding to the satisfaction of the members of that body. On Wednesday the Bishop, accompanied by Revs. Dr. Hartzell and W. O. Webb, proceeded to Franklin, St. Mary parish, where the Louisiana Conference was appointed to convene.

Bishop Peck is one of the most notable figures in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Born in 1811, he united with the Church in 1827, and was admitted into the Oneida Conference in 1832. He has thus entered upon his fiftieth year of active service as a minister of the Gospel. The Bishop, as he had occasion to remark last week before the conference, commenced his ministerial career and spent his earliest years among the hardest circuits of our connexion. After years of laborious work in Central New York he was transferred to the Black River Conference Academy, thence he went as principal to the Troy Academy. In 1849 he became President of Dickinson College, and not a few of our leading ministers are everlastingly indebted to the Bishop for services which he rendered to them while occupying this position. He subsequently became pastor of the Foundry Church, Washington, D. C., and to this day there are many who make loving mention of his earnest and successful pastorate. In 1854 the Pacific Coast was the scene of his labors, and here he won fresh laurels and demonstrated his claim to be regarded as a true embassador of the cross. Returning to the East he spent three years in New York and then became Chancellor at Syracuse University, where he made an abiding impression for good. From 1844 to 1872 he was a member of all the general conferences of our Church, and on the last occasion was made the recipient of the highest honor which the Methodist Episcopal Church can confer, being elected bishop or general superintendent.

Ever since his election to the Episcopacy Bishop Peck has proved himself "in labors more abundant." Without any disparagement to his colleagues, we can safely say that there is no bishop who has given more painstaking attention to the details of his work than Bishop Peck. Not content with meeting his brethren at the annual sessions of the conferences over which he is called to preside, he is in the habit of spending some weeks within the bounds of the various conferences, making himself familiar with the needs of the Church, and the qualifications of the preachers, and is thus the better enabled to make suitable appointments.

Bishop Peck is a sound theologian. From no one have we heard clearer expositions of the cardinal doctrines of our Church. We were impressively struck with this last week while the bishop was examining a class of young men who were candidates for the ministry. The explanation which he gave of the doctrine of sanctification was clear and logical, and if all our preachers proclaimed the doctrine as he expounded it, we should see a speedy end to the disputes which have arisen on the subject, and which in some places have imperilled the unity of the Church.

Bishop Peck has won considerable reputation as an author. His chief works are "The Central Idea of Christianity"—a masterly exposition of sanctification; "The True Woman;" "History of the Great Rebellion Considered from a Christian standpoint," etc., etc.

We are happy to say that the Bishop will return to New Orleans this week to spend some days in our midst as the guest of Gen. Cyrus Bussey. He is already engaged to lecture in Ames Church on Thursday evening, subject "Science and the Spirit World," and will also preach in that church on Sunday morning. He will preach in Wesley Chapel at three o'clock on Sunday afternoon. All who desire to enjoy a rich, intelligent treat, should avail themselves of these opportunities of hearing the Bishop. In closing we express our earnest wish that Bishop Peck may yet be spared for many years to serve his generation according to the will of God.

Guiteau Convicted.

On Wednesday, January 25, [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] and [illegible] Judge Cox [illegible] his charge to the jury [illegible] a clear enunciation of [illegible] principles to govern the decision of the jury. Here are some extracts from the telegraphic synopsis of it:

In order to constitute the crime of murder the assassin must have a reasonably sane mind; in technical terms, he must be of sound mind, memory and discretion. An irresponsibly insane man could not commit murder. If he was laboring under a disease of the mental faculties to such an extent that he did not know that he was doing wrong, then he was wanting in that sound mind, memory and discretion that was a part of the definition of murder. In the next place every defendant was presumed to be innocent until the accusation against him was established by proof.

In the next place, notwithstanding this presumption of innocence, it was equally true that the defendant was presumed to be sane, and to have been sane at the time the crime was committed; that is to say, the government was not bound to show affirmatively as a part of its proofs, that defendant was sane. As insanity was an exception, and as a majority of men are sane, the law presumed the latter condition of every man until some reason was shown to believe to the contrary. The burden was, therefore, on defendant, who set up insanity as an excuse for crime to produce proofs in the first instance to show that that presumption was mistaken so far as it related to the prisoner. The crime, therefore, involved three elements—killing, malice and a responsible mind in the murderer.

It would be observed that in this case there was no trouble with any question about what might be called total insanity, such as a raving maniac or absolute imbecility, in which all exercise of reason is wanting and where there is no recognition of persons or things or their relations; but there was a debatable border line between sanity and insanity, and there was often great difficulty in determining on which side of this line a party was to be put. There were cases in which a man's mental faculties generally seemed to be in full vigor, but where, on one single subject, he seemed to be deranged; a man was possessed, perhaps, of the belief of something absurd which he could not be persuaded out of—what was called an insane delusion; or he might have some morbid propensity, seemingly in harsh discord with the rest of his intellectual and moral nature. Those were cases which, for want of a better term, were called partial insanity; sometimes its existence and sometimes its limits were doubtful and undefinable, and in those cases it was difficult to determine whether the patient had passed the line of moral or legal accountability for his actions. The jury would bear in mind that a man did not become irresponsible by the mere fact of his being insane. Such a man did not take leave of his passions by becoming insane. He might retain as much control over them as in health. He might commit offenses, too, with which his infirmities had nothing to do; he might be sane as to the crime he committed—might understand its nature, and might be governed by the same motives in relation to it as other people, while on other subjects, having no relation whatever to the crime, he might be the victim of a delusion. Whenever this partial insanity was relied on as a defense, it must appear that the crime charged was the product of a delusion or other morbid condition and connected with it as effect with cause, and that it was not the result of sane reasoning, which the party might be capable of, notwithstanding his limited and circumscribed disorder. * * *

The instructions which he had already given to the jury imported that a true test of criminal responsibility, where the defense of insanity was interposed, was whether the accused had sufficient use of his reason to understand the nature of the act with which he was charged, and to understand that it was wrong for him to commit it. If these were the facts, he was criminally responsible for the act, whatever peculiarities might be shown of him in other respects. On the other hand, if his reason were so defective, in consequence of brain disease, that he could not understand what he was doing, or could not understand that what he was doing was wrong, he ought to be treated as an irresponsible lunatic.

The jury were out twenty minutes when a recess was taken by the court until 5:30; ten minutes later the jury were ready with their verdict. When court convened a verdict was rendered of "guilty," as indicted. Mr. Scoville demanded a polly of the jury, and each responded "guilty" as his name was called. As the last man answered Guiteau shrieked, "My blood will be upon the heads of that jury, don't you forget it." And afterward in desperation "God will avenge this outrage."

Judge Cox then turned to the jury and said: "Gentlemen of the jury, I cannot express too many thanks for the manner in which you have discharged your duty. You have richly merited the thanks of your countrymen, and I feel assured you will take with you to your homes the approval of your consciences. With thanks, gentlemen of the jury, I dismiss you." The court then adjourned.

The verdict is received with universal approval. A motion for a new trial will be made by counsel for the prisoner, but it is believed it will be denied.

The Mormon Question.

President Arthur has taken strong ground against polygamy, and is anxious that it be suppressed by Congress. Large meetings have been held in leading northern cities to give public expression on the subject. It is desirable that these meetings be continued. From every assemblage now, and on to the time when decisive action shall be taken by Congress for the suppression of polygamy, resolutions and petitions should go up to that body with a view to that end.

During the forthcoming debate in Congress it will be shown that out of thirty-six members of the Utah legislature, salaried from the treasury of the United States, thirty-two hold high office in the Mormon church, bound by secret oaths to obey the dictates of the church in both secular and spiritual matters. Twenty-eight of the thirty-six are living in polygamy, in violation of the laws of the United States. Seven of these members are of the twelve apostles of the church, and several have five and six wives. Seven are Mormon bishops, and five are elders in the Mormon church. Six are civil officers of the Mormon church, over territorial divisions of Utah, not recognized by the laws of the United States, but covering the Mormon State of "Deseret."

With the leaders strongly entrenched and defended by United States money, statutes and executive officers (like the White League in the Southern States), emissaries are steadily working at home and abroad for recruits. About 1500 converts, so-called, are now expected from foreign countries at Salt Lake City. The Mormon ranks are being steadily replenished, and Mormonism is stronger than ever before.

Skepticism Baffled.

What a strange hallucination holds its presiding influence over the human intellect, and what a strange perversion of human reason and judgment, to witness the wise, and the scribe, and the disputers of this world, pouring over the volume of nature for light and consolation.

Strange sight to behold wise men formulating a creed from material nature, when that very nature itself lies under the visible, blistering curse of God; and cursed for man's impious sin; and which has been groaning and travelling in pain for ages, until creative nature has become vocal with woe, never ceasing to send forth its cry, —a cry of utter helplessness and suffering, because it was smitten and wounded in every part by the fearful strokes of omnipotence on account of sin.

And then, that nature should be perverted and tortured by intelligent, rational men, to furnish from her marred and blistered pages such laws, and such a creed as will bring peace and happiness to man, is the very climax of intellectual madness; when every page of that nature exhibits nothing but irrefutable proof of God's violated law.

No reader! nature has no creed to furnish guilty men, and when consulted to mitigate, and cure the evils of sin, her universal response is, it is not in me; and she can do nothing for the wise men of earth, and give forth nothing to satisfy the cravings of a hungry soul.

Hath not God made foolish the wisdom of this world; but it hath pleased him by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—The Senate confirmed the appointment of F. K. Jones as coiner of the New Orleans mint.

—The investigation of Postmaster McMillen by a special agent, resulted in his complete vindication.

—Rev. Charles Cummings, of the Liberia Conference, stationed at Haven, in the Seltra Kroo country, recently died quite suddenly.

—Col. James Lewis succeeded Robert O. Hebert as superintendent of warehouses. Mr. Hebert becomes a clerk in the internal revenue office.

—Miss Mary F. Swaney, of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, sailed from New York, January 12th, in the steamer City of Pueblo for Vera Cruz. She goes out to superintend the Girls' Orphanage in the City of Mexico.

—Hon. Clarkson N. Potter, of New York died recently. When a Democratic member of Congress he attained considerable notoriety in connection with a committee to investigate the Presidential election of 1876.

—Mr. Wm. Doughty died in Cincinnati January 16, aged 62. For about twenty-eight years Mr. Doughty was connected with the Western Methodist Book Concern. He established the Chicago depository in 1852, and was in charge of it for twelve years. In 1864 he resigned his agency of the depository, and since has been engaged in the life insurance business. In the General Conference of 1872 he was balloted for for book agent of the Western Book Concern, receiving 118 votes. He was also voted for in 1880, receiving as high as 82 votes. Mr. Doughty was an earnest and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church, a kind and genial gentleman, and had many friends in the north and northwest.—N. Y. Advocate.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

R. L. Beal, Clinton Street, New Orleans: "We have had a successful year; 20 have been added to the church; $7 80 have been raised. We are at peace with all."

S. Lewis, Sixth Street Church, reports his quarterly conference held Jan. 20, by Elder Cushman. Total collections for the year $876 80; paid out $367 55. Trustees reported $261 40, expenses $157 85; paid pastor $166 75, elder $11 25; on church note $166; on old debts $19. There is a membership of 61.

A. J. Ford, Cheneyville: "The weather not being favorable for church going people in this portion of the country, having a constant rain for the last sixteen days, I have not been able to meet my people since the 2d of January. I had to collect my benevolent collections horseback, consequently they are smaller than I anticipated or wished."

H. J. Wright, Alexandria: "Owing the inclemency of the weather I failed to meet my people in the last two or three weeks as I suppose many of many of my dear brothers can affirm around in this section of the country, they being in the same category; but in the midst of all I make special mention of these dear sisters and brothers they coming in and assisting me greatly in my financial embarrassment, namely: Sister Lou Wallace, Mary Ann Farrar, Virginia Mitchell, Mary Young, Susan Boxter, Bro. Fred Abram Sylvester Young. I go up to the conference with the full assurance that "God loveth the cheerful giver."

TEXAS.

W. H. Logan: "I wish to commend the labors of Rev. A. Williams, in our church at Texarkana, as I chanced to be there waiting to meet my wife. On third Sunday in January, after preaching, I was happy to participate in class, hearing expressions from about forty members, after which a large class of probationers testified. The pastor is active as a class leader, and he is doing a grand work."

J. R. Carnes, San Antonio: "Our quartely conference was held January 15, Elder M. Henson, in the chair. All the members were present. Class leaders reported favorably concerning their classes. Reports showed that there was maintained in nearly every family the observance of the rule on temperance. On Sunday the elder preached an able and interesting sermon. The weather being disagreeable our congregation was small, but benefited. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to quite a number. Received into full connection 9, baptized 1. The prospects are grand."

TENNESSEE.

A. Burdett, Friendship: "This is a temperance town. No whiskey is sold here. We need to build three new churches. I shall give lectures to aid the work."

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

Another regiment of British troops has embarked for Dublin.

The Committee of the French Chamber of Deputies on revision of the constitution pronounced against Gambetta's scheme of a scrutin de liste. A new cabinet will be formed.

The Central Congregational Church of Brooklyn has a body of fifty Chinamen under its care. The recent Christmas festival, in which they participated, was a novel and interesting affair.

Parnell and O'Kelly, members of Parliament, and O'Brien, late editor of United Ireland, received notice from the governor of Kilmainham jail that they have all been remanded for a further period of three months.

A mass convention of the prominent men of Dakota favor the division of the Territory on the 46th parallel, and the admission of the south half as a State. A committee of fifty have been appointed to go to Washington to secure the needed legislation.

In the Mississippi Senate the bill to punish prize fighting in the State passed in a modified form. It gives the principals at least one year in the county jail, and fines them at least one thousand dollars. The seconds and bottle-holders come in for half that time and amount. If killing or mayhem results, the penalties now in force against murder and mayhem are prescribed.

A friend describes to us a remarkable scene witnessed by him at a religious meeting on Whidby Island, W. T. A member of the church, while praying, called upon God to strike him dead if a certain statement made by him in the strongest and most unequivocal manner was not literally and exactly true. He had barely uttered the last word when he fell dead. Coming as this did in the church and upon a leading member, the effect upon the congregation can only be imagined.—Florida Key of the Gulf.

The Louisiana Conference as Seen by a Stranger.

DEAR EDITOR:—Will you allow me space to say a few words about the conference now in session, in Franklin, Louisiana? As [illegible] Louisiana Conference, by Bishop Foss last January, the present is, therefore, the first [illegible] I have had of reaching [illegible] of this conference. On [illegible] morning, in company with Bishop Peck, Dr. Hartzell, and several other brethren, I left New Orleans for Franklin. After a delightful ride, made doubly pleasant by the beautiful scenery, and the entertaining conversation of the Bishop, we reached our destination. Brother Emperor Williams, the preacher in charge, and a man highly respected by the entire population of Franklin, was at the depot with hacks to convey us to our homes. The Rev. Font le Roy, the pastor of the M. E. Church South, was to entertain Bishop Peck and Dr. Hartzell, while I was to be the guest of Mr. Bagby, the principal of Bagby, and a member of the same church. School, whose writings on the supernatural origin of Christianity and on ecclesiastical history are well known, comes to the defence of the Christian Religion against the attacks of modern doubt and infidelity. Prof. Fisher justifies every expectation by the vigor and clearness with which he handles the subject. He disclaims, however, the position of a debater, and makes no direct reference to Col. Ingersoll's assaults, although he necessarily deals with the objections so brilliantly and audaciously presented by that doughty combatant. He proceeds in a very orderly manner to maintain a series of positions in regard to the origin, essential character and beneficent effects of the Christian faith, which are intended in themselves to furnish the answer to all objections and cavils. Other articles in the February number of the Review are: "Do the Spoils Belong to the Victor?" by President Andrew D. White; "A Remedy for Railway Abuses," by Isaac L. Rice; "Repudiation in Virginia," by Senator John W. Johnston; and "The Lancet and the Law," by Henry Bergh.

Advice to Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptoms—as a general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough—prompt measures for relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs:—therefore use the great anti-scrofula, or blood-purifier and strength-restorer,—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to Cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists the world over. For Dr. Pierce's pamphlet on on Consumption, send two stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

The State of Virginia has been in Bourbon hands for several years, and now that the independent Democrats and Republicans have control, they discover that $91,000 interest coupons have been stolen from the Auditor's office. "The State Treasurer's office is nine years behind in the posting of its accounts, and the books are in almost inextricable confusion," says a Richmond dispatch.

Don't Dream.

Sleep, to be most refreshing, should be dreamless. Use Brown's Iron Bitters, and you will enjoy healthful, dreamless slumber. It strengthens every part of the body, and is very soothing in its effect on the brain and nervous system. It is the best medicine in the world, and assists nature in removing all symptoms of ill health.

The infamy of Mormonism is confessed, and if it could be demonstrated that such a movement would be popular, all parties would gallantly move down upon it at once, and it would be swept from the face of the earth.—Holston Methodist.

A WONDERFUL [illegible] d
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cool, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

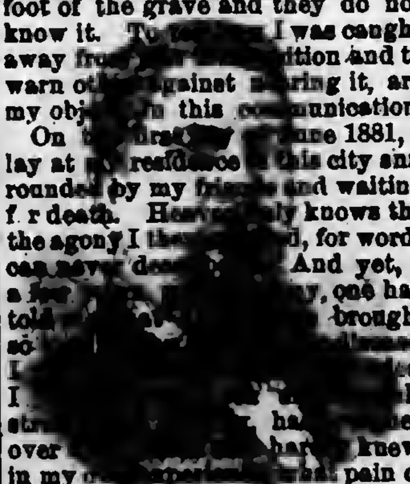
A Remarkable Statement.

THE UNUSUAL EXPERIENCE OF A PROMINENT MAN MADE PUBLIC.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature, and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith re-published entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting.

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

SIR:—My motive for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow are, first, gratitude to the fact that I have been saved from the most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away [illegible] and to warn others against [illegible] it, are my objects in this communication.



On the first day of June 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a [illegible] one had told [illegible] brought [illegible] over [illegible] knew, in my own experience what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at time unusually tired and cannot account for it. They feel that they are dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a dull, and at times neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, [illegible] was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from malaria and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. [illegible] quantities one day and very little next, [illegible] appeared upon the surface, and a sediment [illegible] bottom. And yet I did not realize [illegible] suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I cannot understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger usually brings a person to his senses even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; [illegible]

[illegible]

... enced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music of this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained 26 pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly reinvestigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's Disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity,) but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart Disease," "Apoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common complaints, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the Kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptoms of Kidney difficulty. [illegible] agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from one known as I am throughout the [illegible] as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements based upon facts which I am prepared to produce and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my kinfolks. About thirty-one years ago I left Monk's Corner South Carolina. I belonged to William Wight, who married Miss Anna Branson, daughter of Ben Brunson. Wm. Brunson owned my mother Mary. Ben Burnson Jr., my aunt Hannah. My grand-mother Celia, belonged to Wm. Wight. I have not heard anything of them since. There was a large family; my name was Simon at that time, but is now Henry Williams. Address me at Roweville, Montgomery county, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to hear of the whereabouts of my husband's people. His mothers' name was Kittie Russ. She lived in Bladen county, N. C., when he was taken from her the year before the war (1860.) She used to belong to Jonah Russ. His oldest brother was named Christopher Russ. He and his brother were taken from North Carolina to Richmond, Va., and there sold. He was taken from his brother there and carried to Greenwood, S. C. There he stayed until the year 1866 when he came to Arkansas. And I have not heard from his people since. He left another brother in Richmond, Va., name Edmond Gooden Russ. My husband's former name was Calhoun Russ, now he goes by Calhoun Jones. Address

MR. EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my sister. Her name was Francis Austin, and belonged to Mary Austin. A negro trader bought her by the name of Bess about thirty-five years ago. He sold her in Lexington, Mo.; he bought her in the same State. Her mother's name was Clara Austin. There was two more children, brother Amos and myself, Caroline Austin. Our mother came to her death by hanging herself. My sister had one child when she was sold named Eliza Catherine. My stepfather, Thos. Rines, belonged to Mr. Thos. Rines in Missouri. He was bought and sold by a negro trader, sold in the South. I should like to hear from him.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my people through your paper. My name is Isabella. I and my brother Jesse were brought from North Carolina by Dr. Mills. We were sold in Madison county, Mississippi. My sisters, Martha and Roxanna, were bought at the same time by a trader name John Ford, and was sold in Louisiana. Our mother and father were named Senaca and Rhoda Paterson. Father use to belong to Paterson, mother to the Hamilton's. They had in all fifteen or sixteen children. My sister Maria was in Atlanta, Ga., with a man named Jake Dock. I left my father and mother and brothers Alfred Long and Cisero, sister Sallie and Mary in Rutherford county, N. C. Sister Clarscy, brother Frank, and Elvira, my twin sister, is dead. Brother Jerry, Senaca Jr., and Benjamin was sold before I was. Our grand-mother was named Lettie. We had two uncles, Jerry and Arthur Long. My sister Emma is the youngest child. I am now living at Mayersville, Isaquena county, Mississippi. Address Isabella Joseph, care R. A. Johnston, P. O. Box 33, Mayersville, Isaquena county, Mississippi.

FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.
The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after [illegible] doses of the Tonic, a single dose of [illegible] will be sufficient.

a special Providence to the promising republic on the west coast of Africa. Among the things, Mr. Morris held up to view a full working loom, perfect in all its harness, weighing less than two pounds, weaving cloth two and one half inches wide. The natives sew the cloths together and use them as articles of trade. These cloths find their way to South America via Niger river and Liverpool. These cloths, as shown by Mr. Morris, were striped with blue from indigo, a natural product of that land. The cotton of the land in the immediate rear of Liberia, Mr. Morris claims to be superior to our Sea Island; certainly the specimen exhibited warrants such an assertion.

Among the other instructive exhibits was a table covered with [illegible] styles of cotton goods, manufactured in England, for the African trade, and now in great demand, especially in the Soudan country. These goods were furnished Mr. Morris by the State department at Washington for this occasion.

To the cotton planters and manufacturers Mr. Morris well said: "Why send our cotton to England or any other country to be made into cloth? Why not have the cotton mills alongside of the cotton fields, and export the manufactured articles from Atlanta, and Savannah direct to the African market?" He stated that Liberia contains a population of about 20,000 blacks from America, that exercise control over about a million of native Africans. He explained its form of government, modeled on that of the United States. He represented that in the interior back of Liberia is Soudan, estimated to contain a population of 80,000,000. He made the interesting statement that he found at the cotton exposition a machine, said to be over a hundred years old, that ginned, carded and spun the cotton into yarn, that he had been specially requested by a large manufacturing firm in the north to buy, if possible, such a machine [illegible] will be manufactured for use in Africa [illegible] [illegible] There will be added to it an [illegible] of a loom for weaving [illegible] wide. This will be one of the results of the exposition [illegible] for making cotton cloth among the 200,000,000 of Africa.

Mr. Morris has a scheme for the establishment of a line of steamships between the United States and the west coast of Africa, to sail from Savannah and Philadelphia.

On motion a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Morris for his able and interesting address.

Mr. Morris' remarks had the ring of business throughout, and made more perfect when he told of his industrial and literary school now in daily operation at Arthington, the most interior and promising town in Liberia. There are fifty-three [illegible] in the school [illegible]

Whereas at an anniversary meeting of the Freedmen's Aid Society [illegible] after addresses by [illegible] Rev. Dr. [illegible] a proposition was made [illegible] latter to appeal to the Church through this Society to build a [illegible] building for the New [illegible] University, to be known as the Gilbert Haven School of Theology; [illegible]

Whereas the sense of the meeting was that this Conference ought to raise at least $5000, to be paid or raised by them,

Resolved 1. That as a Conference we heartily approve this movement.

Resolved 2. That it is hereby made the duty of each Presiding Elder to assist the pastor in raising his subscription, and that the amount raised on this school of Theology fund by each preacher be credited as his Freedmen's Aid Society collection.

The following are the subscriptions taken last night:

J. C. Hartzell $250, J. F. Marshall $100, M. Dale $100, S. Priestley $100, P. Landry $100, L. P. Oustman $100, S. Davage $100, C. Thompson $100, J. W. Hilton $100, N. Burton $100, A. Ross $100, R. L. Besides the above from pastors were these: Bishop Peck $50, Capt. M. T. Gordy $50, Madam. E. C. L. Louis $50, J. E. L. Hoskins $25, Hester Williams, Baton Rouge, $25; Sarah Hamilton, Franklin, $10; Manda L. Butler $25. Total $5,890.

Resolved, That Stephen Priestley be appointed the treasurer of this building fund, and that he with Prof. [illegible] Taylor and each presiding elder in his District be a special committee to aid the pastors in adopting such plans as will ensure the raising of the money subscribed.

District Stewards' Meeting.

The district stewards of Columbus district, West Texas conference, at their annual meeting, January 24, gave very careful attention to the method of collecting the salaries of the pastor and presiding elder. The two points they endeavored to reach were, to secure uniformity throughout the district, and that every person who pays shall have proper credit. They recommended the following plan to all the stations and circuits that were well enough organized to use it:

FINANCIAL PLAN.

1. That the allowance for the presiding elder be added to the pastor's salary, and raised in the usual way.

2. That the amount necessary to pay the salaries of the pastor and presiding elder be secured by subscription, to be paid in monthly installments and that every member and probationer in the church be expected to subscribe something; also that all who are regular attendants of the church have an opportunity to subscribe for the same purpose.

3. The recording steward shall keep a book, containing the names of all the subscribers, and the amount they subscribe and pay; and the class leader shall keep the same account with their members.

4. Each class leader shall furnish each member of his class with an envelope, and the recording steward shall furnish each subscriber, not a member, with an envelope each month, to be returned in the public collection, with the name of the [illegible] person and the amount it contains plainly marked on it.

5. The recording steward, district steward and pastor shall open all the envelopes and take account of the money paid by each. The recording steward shall pay the pastor the proportion going to him, and to the district steward the proportion going to the presiding elder, taking receipts for the same.

6. The class leader shall visit each member of his class who failed to return the envelope and amount subscribed, and collect their subscription, if practicable, and return the same to the recording steward at the next board meeting.

7. Once a quarter the recording steward shall read the names of all who have subscribed, and the amount each one has paid during the preceding quarter; and also report the full amount each one has paid at the end of the year.

8. We also recommend that the Sabbath of each quarterly meeting be set apart for the collections for conference school and the various benevolent purposes of the church.

W. H. DAVIS, Secretary.
G. W. RICHARDSON, Chairman.

It Can be Done.

What? "Circulate 50,000 copies of the Manual in 1882." How? By fifteen minutes earnest effort on the part of each presiding elder and pastor. Why do you think so? I have done my part of it, and my relations to the Board of Church Extension are similar to those of the presiding elder to the quarterly conference, and of the pastor to his official board. Last year I asked the laymen present to subscribe, and every one present did it. This year I overlooked it at the meeting, and sent a brief note to each, asking the old subscribers to renew, and others to add their names to the list. I enclosed to each a directed and stamped envelope. I have received their reply. The old subscribers have all renewed, and besides a few additions for the current year, seven have requested also the back numbers. The presiding elders and preachers receive the Manual, know what it is, ought to realize the importance to our benevolent causes of circulating it, and I feel sure can do as well in their relations as I have done in mine.

As the official representative of our church extension work, I realise the importance of giving the Manual a wide circulation. It is as important to other benevolences as to ours. Our part of the January number, 1882, will be worth more to intelligent laymen interested in our work, than the cost of the Manual for two years.

Together, brethren, let us give the Manual 60,000 circulation in 1882.

The Lyceum Library.

A few months ago, to meet the demand for cheap reading matter, Messrs. Phillips & Hunt yielded to my long-continued persuasions and began the publication of a series of books for children and another for youth, entitled, "The Lyceum Library." These books are of the highest quality, entertaining, instructive, well-written. They are printed on good type, on the best of paper, and securely bound with manila covers. We have called the attention of the Church to them. They have been widely advertised. The price of each volume has been put at the low figure of ten cents.

Brethren complain that the Book Room does not furnish cheap literature. For months this cheap literature has been on the counter. Not one thousand copies have yet been sold. The Agents say we must discontinue the publication with the coming May. Have our pastors who demand cheap literature, have our superintendents who clamor for cheap literature, examined the Lyceum Library? Do they desire the Agents to furnish cheap literature? Shall we hear from the great army of ministers and Sunday school superintendents whose interests we have consulted in the provision of this marvel of literary and typographical excellence and economy?

Negroes in the Public Schools.

The City of Quincy, Illinois, was divided into eight districts, and the colored children were required to attend certain schools, and excluded from others. The Supreme Court has decided that rule in violation of the statutes, and says:

"The free schools of the State are public institutions, and in their management and control the law contemplates that they shall be so managed that all the children within the district, between the age of 6 and 15 years, regardless of race or color, shall have equal and the same rights to be derived therefrom."

A very encouraging new temperance movement has been organized and is now in successful experiment in Boston. It is a Social Union Club, and is composed of gentlemen and ladies elected by ballot to its membership. Already about an hundred have been enrolled. Monthly meetings are held, at which a substantial dinner is provided, and able speeches are secured from members or invited guests. All the members do not hold the same political opinions, neither are they all unanimous as to modes of action; but a broad common ground of hearty sympathy is found, and a generous liberality in the utterance of opinions is developed. The social element tends powerfully to unite and harmonize the sincere friends of the great temperance reform. Two successful meetings have been held; the last one in Wesleyan Hall on the 16th. One hundred and thirty members and guests were present; Hon. E. S. Toby presided. After a liberal space had been given to the material provisions and to social interchange, capital addresses were made by the president, Gov. Bell of New Hampshire, Hon. R. R. Bishop, president of the Massachusetts Senate, Dr. C. A. Harvey, of Howard University, Washington, D. C., Dr. Ellis, Rev. Mr. Mackay, Senator Jennings, Mr. Faxon, Mrs. Perkins and others. The occasion was quite an enthusiastic one, and we doubt not this social movement will bring a strong reinforcement to the cause in this vicinity.—Zion's Herald.

The Bourbons of South Carolina have a well-matured and ingenious plan to keep the government of that State in their own hands, and it has been adopted by the lower branch of the State Legislature. The bill provides that State and Federal elections shall not take place at the same poll—this destroys the power of United States commissioners and marshals as far as State elections are concerned; it also provides that the State supervisors of election may "revise" the registration lists, and that their "revision" shall be final—this means that men whom the Democrats select for the purpose may add to or strike from the registration lists any names they choose. The leading Democrats in the Legislature have made no secret of the purpose of the bill, and have openly declared in debate that the intention was to remove the elections of the State as far as possible from the "interference" of the Federal Government.—Inter Ocean.

"Mr. Blank," began a citizen as he entered an office near the city hall, "just one year ago to-day I came in here and called you a liar. I believed what I said, and for a year we have not spoken to each other. Within a week past I have found out that I have been mistaken, and I now apologize for my harsh words and express my sorrow that I was ever led to indulge in such language." "Mr. G.," replied the other, as he extended his hand, "your frankness begets frankness. During the last year but one you and I were friends. You borrowed upward of $70 of me in small sums, and never repaid a dollar. This last year we have been enemies, and I am ahead financially. While I may long to forgive you, I must look out for the interest of my growing family. Let us compromise by nodding to each other in Sunday-school, paying our own way outside." "Sir, I shall never nod to you in Sunday-school or elsewhere!" said Mr. G., and he walked out as stiff as a ramrod and left the door wide open.—Detroit Free Press.

All true Christians are striving to effect the same thing. The object of their faith is the same and they are all animated by the same spirit. There is only one Christ, by whom all must be redeemed; but one Holy Spirit, by whom all must be sanctified and made fit for heaven; but one Bible, by which all must be instructed in the way of life; and only one New Jerusalem, the everlasting home of all the redeemed and sanctified. However much true believers may differ now, the time will come when all will see eye to eye.

CURE FOR HOARSENESS.—Take the whites of two eggs and beat them with two teaspoonfuls of white sugar, grate a little nutmeg, then ad a pint of luke-warm water; stir well, drink often and it will cure the most obstinate case of hoarseness in a short time.

A Beautiful Incident.

A man blind from his birth, a man of intellectual vigor, and with many engaging social qualities, found a woman who, appreciating his worth, was willing to cast in her lot with him, and become his wife. Several bright, beautiful children became theirs, who tenderly and equally loved their parents. An eminent French surgeon while in this country called upon them, and examining the blind man with much interest and care, said to him: "Your blindness is wholly artificial; your eyes are naturally good, and could I have operated upon them twenty years ago, I think I could have given you sight. It is barely possible that I can do it now, though it will cause you much pain." "I can bear that," was the reply, "so you but enable me to see." The surgeon operated upon him, and was gradually successful; first there were faint glimmerings of light, then more distinct vision. The blind father was handed a rose; he had smelt one before, but had never seen one; then he looked upon the face of his wife, who had been so true and faithful to him; and then the children were brought, whom he had so often fondled, and whose charming prattle had so frequently fallen on his ears. He then exclaimed: "Oh, why have I seen all these before inquiring for the man by whose skill I have been enabled to behold them! Show me the doctor." And when he was pointed out to him, he embraced him with tears of gratitude and joy. So, when we reach heaven, and with unclouded eyes look upon its glories, we shall not be content with a view of these. No, we shall say: "Where is Christ? He to whom I am indebted for what heaven is; show me him, that with all my soul I may adore and praise him through endless ages."—Christian at Work.

Good Language.

Young people should acquire the habit of correct speaking and writing, and abandon as early as possible any use of slang words and phrases. The longer you put this off, the more difficult the acquirement of correct language will be; and if the golden age of youth, the proper season for the acquisition of language, be passed in its abuse, the unfortunate victim will most probably be doomed to talk slang for life. You have merely to use the language which you read, instead of the slang you hear, to form a taste in agreement with the speakers and poets in the country.

The editor of the Interior defines the theory of preaching, and says it is a practical art, but like every practical and useful art, it must rest on theory. Good preaching must first be scholarly, the product of an educated man fully furnished for his work; it must be scriptural, with God's truth as its basis; it must be popular, adopted to the people and addressed to them, and it must be experimental, the true, effective stream springing fresh from the preacher's own living experience.

Dr. A. C. George, of Chicago, an enthusiast on Fraternity, proposes that action be taken by the General Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Episcopal Church South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, authorizing an interchange of pastors—a Bishop of each Church to arrange with one another in any given case for such interchange. If a preacher wishes to come or go, the way is open now—is not this enough?—Western Methodist.

The strong consolation for men in trouble, of any kind, is the truth that God doeth all things, and doeth them well. His wisdom and his love are our surety that what has befallen us is to be, in the end, the best for God's government and people. We are of very little account in the infinite atoms of the universe, but what little we are will be the better for every discipline which love and wisdom appoint for us.

You will not be sorry for hearing before judging, for thinking before speaking, for holding an angry tongue, for stopping the ear of a talebearer, for disbelieving most of the ill reports, for being kind to the distressed, for being patient toward everybody, for doing good to all men, for asking pardon for all wrongs, for speaking evil of no one, for being courteous to all.—Exchange.

Bishop Peck's Lecture on "Science and the Spirit World."

Last Friday evening Bishop Peck lectured in Ames Church on "Science and the Spirit World." The Bishop commenced his lecture by referring to the old boast that science would ultimately destroy Christianity. Modern Infidelity phrases it more respectfully by saying that science will finally, by its exact and broader revelations, supercede all religions, historic or now extant. In examining this statement two questions arise: How far has science projected itself into the sphere of revelation? What right has science to a negative beyond the sphere of its own discoveries? The first inquiry required a careful study of causation. Causes are primal, final and mediate. (1). A cause must exist before it acts. (2.) A cause must be where it acts. Science knows nothing of absent potency. Hence the cause which explains the phenomena of the universe must be the presence of the Omnipotent. Thus ubiquity is reached. (3.) A cause must be and include all phenomena. (4) The primal cause of order must be an intelligent person. There is no alternative that we can accept. Chance will not be accepted by any reasonable being. Law again is insufficient, for law is only the method by which a law power works. Nor will it do to say that force is the primal cause of order, for what is force apart from a forceful intelligence? Force does not think, choose or order. Not chance, not law, not force—an intelligent, infinite person alone remains as the cause of all things. So far science has projected itself into the sphere of revelation. But this question requires also a careful study of the history of scientific thought. Anaximander, of Miletus, was the first to give material Atheism a dogmatic form. According to his teaching, every thing was matter, not the gross substance that we handle, but prima materia, fundamental matter. He acknowledges, however, that prima materia could not itself originate thought and motion. For this he went outside and gave the world a causal force power called chaos. He gives us our first grand principle that the material universe must have a primal cause outside of itself. Atomic Atheism came next in review, and it was shown how this required a primal cause independent of phenomena, which it called fate. So with Hylozoic Atheism, which made this primal cause fortune. Passing over the cosmoplastic school of philosophy, according to which the world was a huge plant, and the cosmozoic, according to which it was a huge animal, the lecturer referred to Socrates, who uttered an indignant protest against unbelief, and insisted upon an adequate cause somewhere. Modern Unbelief next came under review. Hume represents the earlier Infidel scholars of England, and Hume is irresistably pushed back to an infinite primal cause. August Compte, the great positivist, must have a primal cause of all things, and he finds it under the name of humanity. Professor Tyndall, smarting under the charge of Atheism, speaks thus: "We are surrounded by wonders every where. I have often in the spring time watched the advance of the sprouting leaves, and of the grass, and of the flowers, and observed the general joy of the opening leaf in nature, and I have asked myself the question, can it be that there is no being or thing in nature that knows more about these matters than I do? Do I in my eagerness represent the highest knowledge of these things in the universe? The man who puts that question to himself, if he be not a shallow man if he be a man capable of being penetrated by a profound thought, he will never answer that question by professing that creed of Atheism which has been so lightly ascribed to me." Thus the history of scientific thought taken from unbelievers themselves shows the admission of a primal cause. This is true, also, in reference to the more recent [illegible] [illegible] man body without a soul can think—unless brutes or rocks or trees are thinkers.

The second question—what right has science to a negative beyond its own discoveries? was the next discussed, the following propositions being briefly stated: (1) Science has confessedly exhausted nothing. (2) Science assumes the existence of new species. Has no right, therefore, to say that there are no angels. (3) Science spurns annihilation. Cannot, therefore, cavil at the doctrine of the resurrection. (4) Science never pretends to know abnormal realms of being.

In closing the Bishop eloquently described two death-scenes—one of an unbeliever and another of the true believer. When the former has reached the utmost bounds of his philosophy the latter has but begun his researches.

"Faith lends it realising light.
The clouds disperse, the shadows fly,
The invisible appears in sight
And God is seen by mortal eye."

The above is a brief and imperfect sketch of a profound and interesting lecture. We fear that we have attempted too much in trying to outline it. We have done the best we could, and can only wish that some day Bishop Peck will give the full text of the lecture to the press, so that all can peruse and study it.

Louisiana Conference.

The Louisiana Conference closed its fourteenth session January 30; at Franklin Bishop Peck presided, and from the first to the last session command the love and admiration of the brethren. The people of Franklin, of our own and in other churches, entertained the conference royally. Bro. Williams the pastor knew what was required and with his brethren made provisions for everything. We found a delightful home with Bishop Peck, in the family of Rev. Bro. Fount Le Roy, pastor of the M. E. Church South. This brother commanded a battery in the Confederate army and fought to the end. Since the war he has been converted and entered the ministry and the past and its antagonisms with him are gone, and in the spirit of a Christian minister he has a heart and word for every good work and worker.

The change in public sentiment now rapidly going on in the whole South, toward our church and the necessity of greatly enlarged Christian effort among the colored people, finds a good illustration in Franklin. Rev. L. P. Cushman, presiding elder, at Franklin preached in the Southern Methodist Church in the morning and the Bishop at night. A prominent gentleman of the town who entertained Bro. Cushman said that six years ago such a thing would not have been thought of, and would have been scarcely tolerated, because of the feelings of hatred against our church. But now our work is recognized as of the Lord, as being worthy of all commendation. This change comes largely because our work is coming to be understood, and the false statements of, enemies are no longer accepted. Even yet there are good people in the South who think that our mission in the South is a political one and that our work among the colored people of the South is prompted by some improper motive. But "the light maketh manifest," and as our work and workers are seen and their results known all men in the South will unite in saying, as a prominent lady of the Southern Church did in Texas: "I had no idea what a work you were doing in the South. God bless you and give you yet greater success."

The Louisiana Conference has made large advance the past year. Several important church enterprises have been inaugurated. The saving of Mt. Zion in New Orleans from a large debt frees the last piece of property in the city in jeopardy. So much has the work been enlarged in the state that twenty three new appointments have been added to the list of last year. A class of twenty five deacons were ordained. The following statistics show the increase during 1881 over 1880:

The La Teche Seminary and Orphans' Home have had a checkered experience. They have had years of prosperity, when all was joy and gladness; but since the time God seemed to put his grasp upon the winds and give them so much fury, the Seminary and Home have both been orphans. At present, however, a brighter day is dawning, and we trust that under the care of Dr. God man this solitary place shall again be made glad, and that in the near future the halls of the Seminary and Home shall echo and re-echo with the noises of light and happy hearts. We most earnestly desire for the Doctor the greatest measure of success.

Baldwin Seminary, situated on Bayou La Teche, deserves more than a passing notice. The Scriptural injunction is, every man to his work. Brother John Baldwin has a profound conviction that God wants him to use some of his property here in the South for educational purposes, and after much prayer and mature deliberation he settled in his mind that it is his duty to deed to the Freedmens Aid Society a certain plot of land most beautifully adorned with the greatest variety of shade and fruit trees, upon which there is the old mansion and four cottages, all in neat and perfect order, a substantial brick building, with five large school or recitation rooms on the first floor, with a nice chapel in the second, all finished and furnished, that will seat four hundred persons. In addition to the above Father Baldwin promises to erect this coming summer a commodious boarding house that will accommodate fifty students. This property when put in order as contemplated can not be valued much less than $30,000, and is to be kept and used for the education of the white race in this section of our country.

Rev. W. S. Fitch, of the North Ohio Conference, was transferred to this by Bishop Andrew, and has already entered upon his two-fold work as pastor of Baldwin mission and principal of Baldwin Seminary. Brother Fitch comes to us highly recommended. We give him a real Methodist welcome and a hearty God bless you in his new and promising field of Christian labor.

Tuesday, January 31, the dedicatory services were held in the Chapel conducted by Bishop Peck when the building and premises being formally presented by Father Baldwin the Bishop said: "I dedicate these premises with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging and hereafter to belong to the purpose of Christian science and literature according to the order of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, Amen." Altogether we regard Baldwin one of the most lovely spots we have seen in Louisiana. The evergreen trees front of the Seminary, of which there are several rows, form an arch or canopy over head, while a cool and invigorating breeze is most always felt.

The presiding elders, L. P. Cushman, Marcus Dale, Pierre Landry, and Stephen Duncan presented encouraging reports from their districts showing a general advance in each one of them. The elders were vigilant and frequently visited all points under their charge. They were all retained, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert appointed to the La Teche District.

New Orleans Again Disgraced.

A committee of public safety, composed of the representative men of New Orleans has for some time been in existence, and is still secretly patrolling the city to keep our hoodlum element in check. Our police force is so inadequate that this volunteer work must be done. What a comment this on the administration of a great city!

This morning (Monday) the papers give columns of particulars of the prize fight to occur somewhere near the city to-morrow. It is stated several thousand people will witness the the barbarous exhibition. The city is full of sporting men from all over the country. Louisiana has no law against prize fighting or if it has, from Governor down there is no one to enforce it. New Orleans is to have another disgrace to to bear. Meanwhile business languishes and the cry is for immigration. But in a city where, judging from the papers the last two weeks, all the State and city officials and the mass of the population are chiefly interested in planning for a great prize fight, the inducements for immigrants to stay away are many.

Will this disgrace upon our city pass without a protest from a single official or from a single secular paper? Speaking of some of our visitors the Chicago Tribune says:

The vanguard of the delegation Chicago will send to witness the Sullivan-Ryan prize fight left for New Orleans last evening via the Illinois Central. There were about thirty in the party; most of them saloon-keepers, though there was a sprinkling of confidence men, gamblers and thieves. Two Aldermen—Appleton and Peevy—went along, and also Capt. O'Donnell, Lieut Currier and Detective Ryan. The main body will start this morning. It will be made up mainly of thieves and gamblers—about two hundred and fifty in all. If the crowd would only stay away from the city for good, Chicago would be quiet and peaceable, and there would be no necessity for even half the small force of police now employed.

P. S.—After the above was in type we were pleased to see it announced that "Gov. McEnery was determined that the battle should not be fought in this State, and had received assurances from both sides that they would comply with his wishes." For this Governor McEnery will be heartily commended by all good citizens.

Bishop Peck returned from the seat of the Louisiana Conference and remained until Monday, when he left for the Little Rock Conference which meets this week in Little Rock Arkansas. He lectured on Friday night in Ames church on Science and the Spirit World. On Thursday he spoke in First Street Church and conducted an ordination service. Saturday night he was given a reception by Rev. W. O. Webb and wife. On Sunday he did a full day's work; at eleven he preached in Ames church on the "Exaltation of Christ;" at 3 p. m. he preached in Wesley Chapel and ordained a deacon, and at night he preached in Carondelet Street M. E. Church, South, to a union service composed of that congregation and that of Ames church. In all these services he pleased and instructed his auditors. He left with the benediction of all our pastors and people.

The revival services which have continued nightly in Central Congregational Church since the first of January closed last Friday night, resulting in sixty-five happy conversions. Thirty-one of these joined the Church last Sabbath on profession of faith. These are proofs of the power of truth. Some two hundred and fifty have been admitted into Central church under Dr. Alexander's successful pastorate. May the pastor and people continue to prosper in spiritual life and success!

West Tennessee District Conference.

The first session of the West Tennessee Conference was held at Martin Station, in the Methodist Episcopal Church under Rev. Jesse P. Price, presiding elder, commencing Jan. 18th, 1882. Rev. H. Dunlap preached the opening sermon. S. B. Danley, G. C. Harding were elected secretaries, and G. N. Johnson, A. T. Stephens as assistants. The weather was bad, but the conference was largely attended. The regular business of the conference was dispatched with much readiness. The elder read his report, showing that he had held eight quarterly conferences, preached twenty-five sermons, had one convert, added several to the church; there were twelve pastors, twelve class-leaders, twelve Sunday school superintendents, eighteen local preachers and exhorters. Reports were read which were very encouraging. A missionary sermon was preached on Friday by S. B. Danley. Our district Sunday-school institute met on Sunday at eleven o'clock a. m. The general work of the Sunday schools were discussed with much interest. The elder and S B. Danley gave us a specimen of the best method of opening and conducting a Sunday-school session. There were essays on parents attending Sunday-schools by Miss Cara Martin, and on temperance by Miss Jennie Runston. The Rev. Coleman of the Missionary Baptist church was with us, and took an active part in our exercises. The literary exercises proved a blessing to the conference. A resolution was passed indorsing our church papers. A resolution was passed on Temperance, and also on Education and Sunday-schools, and indorsing the efforts put forth by our church. On these important subjects J. W. Pickett, G. N. Johnson, A. Burdett, C. L. Fields, C. C. Burchett, James Maclin were appointed a visiting committee to our preparatory school at Mason. This session proved to be one of the best sessions we have ever held. The love feast on Sunday morning was glorious. Rev. W. Dwegans preached at eleven o'clock with great acceptability, and at night our meeting, having revived the entire country around Martin resulted in fifteen conversions and eighteen joining our church. The district stewards made their report for the presiding elder's salary. The secretaries made their reports to apportion to each charge for Missions, Freedmen's Aid Society, Church Extension Society and for Bishop as follows:

PERSONAL MENTION.

—The Rev. Dr. Henry W. Bellows, Unitarian, of New York, died recently.

—Mr. Blaine will deliver his eulogy on the late President Garfield at the Capitol, Washington, Feb. 27.

—We are pleased to note the appointment of Albert P. Albert, Esq. to a position in the U. S. Mint in this City.

—Rev. W. Taylor will assist in sending out sixteen more missionaries and probably accompany them to South America.

—Rev. R. M. Taylor and Mrs F. E. Taylor wish their correspondents to address them, Valentine street, north of Dallas, Houston, Texas.

—Dr. Hartzell left New Orleans on Monday evening to attend the annual meeting of the Book Committee which meets this week in Cincinnati.

—The Rev. Dr. A. S. Dobbs has been returned for the third year to Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, Charlestown, S. C. which has 1,975 members.

—President Arthur appointed F. J. Phillips his private secretary. Mr. Phillips held the same position under Mr. Arthur, when collector of New York.

—We had a delightful home with Capt. J. W. Lee of Aberdeen during the late session of the Mississippi Conference. He and his excellent wife also entertained Bishop Peck.

—The Rev. H. Hayden, since the famous trial has been carpentering in New Haven, is going to work in New York City, at his trade, which he worked at before he began preaching.

—At Providence, R. I., Deacon W. W. Ellis, of the Rumford Congregational Church, while opening a bottle of communion wine on Sunday, January 1st, cut his hand with a piece of glass. He was seized with lockjaw, and his life is despaired of.

—Theophilus Parsons, late Professor in the Harvard College Law School, died Jan. 26 at Cambridge. He was born in 1787. In 1847 he was appoined Dane Professor of Law in the Harvard Law School. He was the author of many legal works of repute and authority. Mr. Parsons was a member of the church of the New Jerusalem, (Swedenborgian,) and published several volumes illustrative of that faith. He was founder of the old United States Literary Gazette, and a contributor to The North American Review.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

The revival meetings at Ames Church are still going on, with fair results.

MISSISSIPPI.

O. Tolston, Hickory: "I desire to inform your readers of a disaster that has overtaken us not long since. I had in charge a chapel I supposed to have been worth $600. By chance there passed some enemies, I suppose, who set it on fire on the night of January 8th. I request all the friends of the upholding of God's Church to assist us in our efforts to rebuild, because we are poor and out of doors. If we are faithful unto death we will reach a shelter that cannot be destroyed by wicked men. Any one feeling disposed to assist may send a gift to me or to Jacob Gartis, Trustee.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

An explosion at the Midlothian coal mines in Virginia resulted in the imprisonment and death of some forty miners, who leave near as many widows and over 100 orphans. The bodies cannot be recovered before some days.

Dunnell's sugar bill is regarded by some of the representatives from Louisiana as a bill to abolish the sugar interest in the South, and to promote the prosperity of Cuban slaveholders.

The Senate confirmed the nomination of Fred A. Tritle, of Nevada, to be Governor of Arizona, and the following postmasters: Wm. M. Hancock, Meridian, Miss.; Gustave Boudreau, Thibodaux, La.; Chas. Desmir, New Iberia, La.; Joseph T. Pells, Palestine, Texas.

The Senate sent the following nominations to the Senate: Col. Daniel H. Rucker, Assistant Quarter General, to be Quartermaster General, vice Gen. Meigs, retired; Major Wm. B. Rochester, Paymaster, to be Paymaster General, vice Gen. Brown, retired.

Great uneasiness prevails at Limerick, Ireland. The officer in command of the British troops has notified the magistrate that his soldiers are unable to walk the streets without being stoned, and gives warning that they will be compelled to fire upon the people in self-defense if the attacks continue.

Special to the Times-Democrat: Jackson, Miss., February 6.—"Prominent citizens and members of the Legislature have been in consultation with Gov. Lowry regarding the coming prize mill, and Gov. Lowry is now with the State's Attorney, Catchings. Steps will be taken for the issuance of such a proclamation to the Sheriffs of the sea-coast counties as will enable them to summons the entire population, under shotguns, and prevent the invasion of Mississippi soil by the advocates of the P. R.

Sunday-school Conferences.

LESSON VII.—FEB. 12, 1882.—CHRIST'S FOES AND FRIENDS.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 3: 20-35.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He that is not with me is against me."—Matt. 12: 30.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer's Relation[illegible].

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

[illegible] the disciples were chosen they were instructed in the principles of the new kingdom in that incomparable address known as the Sermon on the Mount. Our lesson sets forth the relationship of Christ 1. To Satan; 2 To the Holy Spirit; 3. To men. They are many who think that there are a little "unsettled" who show that they think more of the things of the other life than they do of the affairs of this. But if the Bible be true, and if the coming of Christ means anything, then every man should subordinate everything to the higher concerns of the soul. He only is "beside himself," who neglects them. Jesus had just cast out a demon who had caused his victim to be both [illegible] and dumb. When the [illegible] [illegible] of David?" The greatness of the miracle had suggested that the one who had performed it could be no other than the long looked-for Messiah. [illegible] ed [illegible] uprooting [illegible]. A WONDERFUL And SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

THE CHILDREN'S SONG.

BY F. R. HAVERGAL.

God of heaven, hear our singing;
Only little ones are we,
Yet a great petition bringing,
Father, now we come to Thee.

Let Thy kingdom come, we pray Thee;
Let the world in Thee find rest;
Let all know Thee and obey Thee,
Loving, praising, blessing, blessed!

Let the sweet and joyful story
Of the Saviour's wondrous love
Wake on earth a song of glory,
Like the angel's song above.

Father, send the glorious hour;
Every heart be Thine alone;
For the kingdom and the power
And the glory are Thine own.

Bright Sayings.

On seeing a house being white-washed, a small boy wanted to know if the house was going to be shaved.

A little girl, who had been to a children's party, being asked by her mother on returning how she enjoyed herself, answered, "I am full of happiness. I couldn't be happier unless I were to grow."

A little four-year old awoke the other morning, and turning to his grandmother said, "Grandma, I dreamed I had a carriage last night!" "Did you?" said she; "Well, what did you do with it?" "Oh," said he, in his [illegible] manner, "I left it in the dream-house!"

Freddy, sitting by and open window one evening, was earnestly gazing at the stars, when he suddenly asked, pointing up at them, "What are they, mama?" Mama being very busy, only answered, "They are God's lamps, darling." With another look, practical Freddy remarked, "Takes lots of matches."

The following remark of a little girl shows an opinion of her elders the reverse of flattering. "Oh dear!" she exclaimed to her doll, "I do wish you would sit still. I never saw such an uneasy thing in all my life. Why dont you act like grown folks, and be still and stupid for a while?"

Idleness is the badge of gentry, the bane of body and mind, the nurse of naughtiness, the step-mother of discipline, the chief author of all mischief, one of the seven deadly sins, the cushion upon which the Devil chiefly reposes, and a great cause not only of melancholy, but of many other diseases; for the mind is naturally active, and if it be not occupied about some honest business, it rushes into mischief or sinks into melancholy.—Burton.

Excitement in Rochester.

THE COMMOTION CAUSED BY THE STATEMENT OF A PHYSICIAN.

An unusual article from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, was republished in this paper and was a subject of much conversation, both in professional circles and on the street. Apparently it caused even more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well-known not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion, at his residence on St. Paul street, when the following interview occurred: "That article of yours, Doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. Few people ever get so near the grave as I did and then return; and I am not surprised that the public think it marvelous. It was marvelous."

"How in the world did you, a physician, come to be brought so low?"

"By neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true that I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the the next; felt dull indefinite pains and my stomach was out of order, but I did not th[illegible] meant anything serious."

"But have these common ailments anything to do with the fearful Bright's disease which took so firm a hold on you?"

"Anything! Why, they are the sure indications of the first stages of that dreadful malady. The fact is, few people know or realize what ails them, and I am sorry to say that too few physicians do either."

"That is a strange statement, Doctor."

"But it is a true one. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. We doctors have been clipping off the twigs when we should strike at the root. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approach of Bright's disease even more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, stomach, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said that more than one-half of the deaths which occur rise from Bright's disease, is it Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of so-called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in reality it is Bright's disease in some one of its many forms. It is a Hydra-headed monster, and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints, which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy—Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I am getting my eyes thoroughly opened in this matter I think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also. Why, there are no end of truths bearing on this subject. If you want to know more about it go and see Mr. Warner himself. He was sick the same as I, and is the healthiest man in Rochester to-day. He has made a study of this subject and can give you more facts than I can. Go, too, and see Dr. Lattimore, the chemist, at the University. If you want facts there are any quantity of them showing the alarming increase of Bright's disease, its simple and deceptive symptoms, and that there is but one way by which it can be escaped."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Warner at his establishment on Exchange street. At first Mr. Warner was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about the alarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years its growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off. Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven and others. This is terrible and shows a greater growth than that of any other known complaint. It must be plain to every one that something must be done to check this increase or there is no knowing where it [illegible] a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. In order to draw the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids he had provided a vial the contents of which were drawn from his own person. 'And now, gentlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys' and in less than a year he was dead."

"You believe then it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is afflicted with it?"

"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people have the same symptoms, and frequently death is the first symptom. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one. I know what I am talking about for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful is it not?"

"A very prominent case but no more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured."

"I know it can. I know it from the experience of hundreds of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience, what was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying: 'there goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortunately secured and used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure."

"And this caused you to manufacture it?"

"No, it caused me to investigate. I went to the principal cities with Dr. Craig the discoverer, and saw the physicians prescribing and using it and saw that Dr. Craig was unable with his facilities to supply the medicine to thousands who wanted it. I therefore determined, as a duty I owed to humanity and the suffering, to bring it within their reach and now it is known in every part of America, is sold in every drug store and has become a household necessity."

The reporter left Mr. Warner, much impressed with the earnestness and sincerity of his statements and next paid a visit to Dr. S. A. Lattimore at his residence on Prince Street. Dr. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the State Board of Health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded him:

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance."

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir, I did not think it possible. It was seldom, indeed, that so pronounced a case had, up to that time, ever been cured."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it and upon critical examination, find it entirely free from poisonous or deleterious substances."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused and to meet the protestations which have been made. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question and the statements they make, cannot for a moment be doubted. They show conclusively that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, alarmingly increasing and it can be cured.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish you would inquire for my brothers and sisters left in Canton, Miss., August, 1864. Father was Tom Shrond, brothers Riley, Charles, Harrison, Daniel; sisters, Rebecca, Eliza, Lydia, Fanny, Isabella, Caroline, and one who was sold with me, Tempy. We belonged to John Elders who lived four miles from Canton, Miss., on Moss Bluff road. I want to get back; my name is Lydia Jones, and I am a member of the Methodist Church. My youngest sister Tempy is with me.

MRS. LYDIA JONES.

Wanesboro, Georgia.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make inquiry for my people to see if I can find any of them. My name was Martha Bolden, and I have four brothers and one sister. Mother was Lucy Bolden, brothers James, William, Ampy and Peter. My sister Claria married Ned Hutchins, a free man. We all belonged to old Bob Bolden, in Virginia, five miles from Virginia Mills post office. I was sold when twelve or thirteen years old to Thomas Stickels, and he carried me to Kentucky and then to Texas. My mother died when I was a baby. I am now fifty years old. Address me at Weimar, Texas.

THE CRESCENT CITY.

From crystal rills in bleak northwestern land,
Where far the Frost King holds his dire command,
Through gentler climes, where kingly live oaks rise,
And dazzling hues invest more southern skies;
Where wide the cane-field spreads its living green,
And fleecy flocks and lowing herds are seen,
Down to the sea-like Gulf where tempests roar,
And thundering lash the loud resounding shore,
Great Mississippi rolls his mighty flood,
Father of waves, through defile, plain, and wood;
Agglomerated waters hurl their might,
Commingling with the Gulf and fade from sight.

But at his foot the Crescent City stands,
The mart of commerce, famed in foreign lands;
Nor adverse rule, nor pestilence, nor war,
Shall dim the splendor of this western star!
The Lady of the Waves! her proud tiara rise
Of glittering domes 'neath blue and burning skies;
Here wafts the orange flower its rich perfume,
And tall magnolia spreads its glorious bloom;
Despite the city's hum, at eve is heard
The wood notes of the dulcet forest bird,
And silver moonlight, but a milder day,
On marble tombs sheds soft its holy ray.

A Southern city, full of inborn fire,
Whose inborn nobleness cannot expire,
The Crescent Empress claims her children's love,
And prays His benison who rules above!

Missionary Concert Program, March, 1882.

SUBJECT: BULGARIA.

Our Mission in the Principality of Bulgaria is directed to a people who possess a form of Christianity, (very like the Greek Church,) but lack the spirituality and progressive life which the evangelical faith can alone bring to them.

The meeting may be opened by the use of Hymn 925, Scripture reading in Gal. iii, and Hymn 821.

1. In the first portion of the hour, with the aid of a wall-map, let different persons call attention to one point and another in the general condition of the Bulgarians, their history, present political relations and character. Some sources of information are: "The Races of European Turkey," by E. L. Clarke, New York, Dodd, Mead & Co., '78. "Bulgaria since the War; Notes of a Tour in the Autumn of 1879," by [illegible], London, C. Kegan Paul & Co. "Observations on Bulgarian Affairs," by the Marquis of Bath, London, Macmillan & Co. A series of articles by "An Eastern Statesman" in the Contemporary Review [illegible] and February, 1880. [illegible] Bulgaria," The Christian Advocate, May 15, 1879. Appleton's Annual Cyclopædia, 1878, 1879, 1880, art. "Bulgaria." The Bulgarians, originally of Asiatic, Turanian stock, allied to [illegible] in the region they [illegible] in the seventh [illegible] a kingdom which [illegible] Eastern Empire, till [illegible] the prospective resources of the country under proper development.

The Bulgarians were converted to Christianity in the ninth century. They chose the Greek Patriarch as their ecclesiastical head rather than the Roman Pontiff, but have frequently manifested a desire to maintain an independent National Church with the use of their own language. Recent epochs in this ecclesiastical struggle are 1833, 1840, 1850, 1858, 1860, 1870. Signs of political awakening, through influences from Western Europe, occured as early as fifty years ago. A desire for education was specially manifest among them in 1850, and they rapidly developed a system of schools. Primary schools are now every-where found, and in the principal villages and towns schools of higher grade, for which good buildings are provided. The character of the instruction, however, leaves much to be desired, and Missions can bring them welcome aid in this particular. They succeeded in throwing off the yoke of the Greek priesthood, and obtained ecclesiastical independence from the Sultan in 1870. Their love for Bulgarian nationality inspires adherence to the Church, which offers an obstacle to evangelical Missions. The obstacle is less pronounced since the Russo-Turkish war of 1877, by which the Bulgarians were liberated, obtaining through the treaty of Berlin the erection of the Principality north of the Balkans into a autonomous state, though tributary to the Porte, and Eastern Roumelia, (Philippopolis its chief town,) south of the Balkans, into a distinct province more closely dependent. This province is less largely Bulgarian, having a considerable admixture of Greeks, and more advanced intellectually than the Principality. Bulgarians are spread over Macedonia, mingled with the Greeks. The total Bulgarian population of European Turkey is estimated at about 4,500,000. A late authority gives the population of the Principality at 1,859,000, of whom 600,000 are Moslems.

The Bulgarian Assembly for the new Principality formed a very democratic Constitution in the spring of 1879, and elected Alexander, of Germany, Prince. He has at different times dissolved the Assembly, and a few months ago dictated the framing of a new Constitution. Self government is still a problem for the Bulgarians. Political circumstances have much to do with the prospects of Mission work in that country. There is good reason to believe that the Bulgarians will yet justify the expectations formed concerning them as being favorable to evangelical truth, while their country is probably destined to be the theater of powerful political changes and influences, which, if allied with a pure Christianity, may accomplish the regeneration of the whole Turkish Empire, both in Europe and Asia.

2. Let prayer be offered for the blessing of God upon this people, that a just, civil, and ecclesiastical development may be secured to them; and for Divine interposition in the political influences and movements of the various powers, that Christian civilization and Christian truth may obtain speedy prevalence in the neighboring countries now subject to the Mohammedan Turk. Hymn 940.

3. The future of the Bulgarians being so closely related to that of the whole Turkish Empire, an important element in the problem is the work of the missionaries of the American Board in that Empire. They have a mission in European Turkey which is directed very largely to the Bulgarian population south of the Balkans in Eastern Roumelia and Macedonia. They have have one principal station, Samokov, where their Theological and two High Schools are located within the Principality close upon its southern border. Their interest in the Bulgarian population was awakened partly by the readiness with which portions of the Scriptures were sold among them, and our own work was begun partly at the instance and with the co-operation of the American Board missionaries at Constantinople. The two Missions have ever maintained a friendly and mutually helpful intercourse. Dr. Long, of our Mission, went to Constantinople in 1863, and subsequently engaged heartily, in conjunction with Dr. Riggs, in the work of translating the Scriptures into the Bulgarian language, which was finished in 1870. He began the publication of the Zornitsa, a religious paper, now continued by the American Board, which is doing excellent service.

The history of the work of the American Board in the Turkish empire, (embracing three other missions) extends over fifty years, and is a record of the most unyielding perseverance against obstacles, of prudent management, and of very substantial success. They have established a noble system of graded schools and colleges. Their labors are an example for our work in that region, though their Mission, as directed to the Bulgarians south of the Balkans, operates under quite different circumstances from our own, and such as are in many respects more favorable to immediate success. We commend a study of the American Board Missions in the Turkish Empire as a source of stimulus to our efforts in Bulgaria amid the many difficulties which beset them. See "History of the Mission of the American Board to the Oriental Churches," by Rufus Anderson, LL. D., Boston Congregational House, 1872, $1.50 per volume; also, "Historical Sketch of the Mission of the American Board in Turkey," by S. C. Bartlett, D. D., pamphlet, Boston, American Board, 1880, price five cents. See for a review of the whole subject, "The Americans in Turkey," British Quarterly Review, January, 1878; "The American Educational System in Turkey," Christian Advocate, May 8, 1878. The annual reports of the American Board. The Missionary Herald, Boston, has continuous notices of the work in the European Turkey Mission. See the latest summary statistics report in the number for January, 1882. There are four principal stations in this Mission—Constantinople, Philippopolis, Samokov, and Monastir. There are 26 missionaries, 28 native workers, 288 members, 12 common schools with 341 pupils, the higher grade schools at Samokov having also 72 pupils.

4. Let prayer be offered for this Mission of our brethren that the spirit of Christian faith and love and wisdom which has hitherto carried them successfully forward in the war for the regeneration of the Turkish Empire may be continued, and bring them yet larger success; and that in fraternal cooperation the two Missions may continue to advance the power of evangelical truth in the land. Hymn. 818.

5. Let the condition of our Mission be made familiar from Dr Reid's History and the Missionary Reports. Our first missionaries, Messrs. Long and Prettyman, entered upon work in 1857. F. W. Flocken, later, labored for many years a Superintendent. Many difficulties have been experienced. Bigotry and religious indifference are ever present obstacles. Priestly persecution has arisen in many places, and this sort of opposition renders it difficult to gather settled congregations. The Mission was for a time suspended, and partially so during the recent war. It has been renewed under more favorable auspices than ever before, and late reports are quite encouraging. Several conversions have recently taken place. The people revere the Bible, and readily purchase copies of the Scriptures. The colporteur's work prospers. The the newly awakened spirit of progress in the land holds forth a constant hope. The Rev. D. C. Challis is the present Superintendent. Our stations are Rustchuck, Sistof, Tirnova, Loftcha, Selvi, and Orchania. We have a boys' school recently opened, at Tirnova, and a girls' at Loftcha.

6 Prayer for our missionaries in Bulgaria, that they may ever clearly discern the importance of the work in their special field, that they may be endued with the spiritual courage and strength requisite for their difficult task; and prayer for the people, that God may be pleased to add to the blessings of political and educational progress a powerful spiritual awakening, which will move them to gladly return to the "simplicity that is in Christ" and that "faith of the Gospel" formerly delivered to the saints. Hymn 939.

The time for an organic union of the two churches—if it is the will of God that there should be such a time—must be more clearly discerned than it is at present—a time when the two communities will be so much alike in spirit, as well as in doctrine and government, that they will, with the removal of a thin formal partition, flow together.—Christian Neighbor.

The steamer Cosmo foundered off Kilia and 27 lives were lost.

Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

It will be hardly possible to make a great party issue out of the Chili-Peru affair, though, for the lack of something better, much effort it seems is being directed to this purpose. Several days ago The Inter Ocean called attention to the fact that there was really no important difference of opinion between the policy of Mr. Blaine, as indicated prior to his leaving the State Department, and the policy of Secretary Frelinghuysen, as indicated in later correspondence. Subsequent statements from authoritative sources in Washington confirm this view. A Senator, who has examined the matter carefully and kept up with the developments as made from day to day, said on Thursday:

President Arthur had not changed his policy as charged, but it would be found that he had merely altered the tone of it. Mr. Blaine and he both merely wished to obtain from Chili a disclaimer of an intention of insult to the United States by the seizure of the President of Peru, whom this government had recognized. Mr. Blaine made the inquiry in such a tone, in the opinion of the President, that Chili could not have made a pacific response without embarrassment. He thought best to ask the same question upon the assumption that Chili had no belligerent intentions, which, of course, made easy the declarations desired. In the first place, Chili could only have declined a pacific response owing to the way the question was put, and a recall of diplomatic representatives and the establishment of a protectorative over Peru would have been the inevitable result. As it was, Mr. Trescott's instructions were modified and the disclaimer desired from Chili was obtained. The next point of policy was indentical, as shown by instructions, asking Chili to be as lenient as consistent with her interests with Peru. The next was to proffer the good offices of this government in making the final adjustment of the difficulty, between the two belligerents. So far the President's friends and Mr. Blaine's friends regard their policy to have been indentical as to the ends desired, and only differed as to the manner of accomplishing the object arrived at.

A prominent Republican Senator said to the Inter Ocean representative:

I see very little in the so-called controversy between Blaine and the President. It is about the difference between of saying prayers in English or Latin. There is a certain diplomatic style of stating things in platitutes which Blaine does not seem to have fallen into, and, in consequence, wrote some pretty vigorous English, that meant about the same thing as the latter modifications. I think it unfortunate certain friends of these gentlemen seem bound to fan the flames into a fire. It is very unfortunate, also, when a man gets so big that he thinks some one is trying all the time to overthrow him.

This is the simple fact of the matter, the only difference of any moment at all being the question of whether we should call a conference of American powers, as proposed in Mr. Blaine's circular letter, sent out in November, or whether that invitation should be recalled, as was hinted at in Mr. Frelinghuysen's communication to the Senate. Mr. Blaine thinks such recall would be interpreted to mean that this country is afraid of offending England and France. He says, in his letter published Saturday, asking the President to consider well before recalling the invitations:

If that move is now to be arrested for fear it may give offense in Europe, the voluntary humiliation of this government could not be more complete, unless we should petition the European governments for the privilege of holding the congress.

In his sensitiveness over the reversal of a plan which he had resolved upon, and which he says was adopted with the sanction of President Garfield, and afterward confirmed by President Arthur, Mr. Blaine may magnify the importance of this circular letter and the effect of its withdrawal on the public mind. It is hardly wise or politic for a nation like the United States to do anything through fear that it will be regarded as lacking in courage if it refrains from the act. The time for us to be sensitive about our bravery and our disposition to assert our rights is past, or at least ought to be passed. A country with a record such as ours need not go about with a fear that it has been insulted or commit any folly lest its courage be impugned. Conscious of its great power, the United States can well afford to do what is right without any misgivings as to the impressions that such a performance of its duty may excite. Such motives ought not to figure in the decisions of the President or the Secretary, and the bare suggestion that they ought to be considered weakens what is otherwise a strong presentation of the case by Mr. Blaine in his letter to the President. His position that a conference of American powers is desirable for the purpose of agreeing upon "such a basis of arbitration for international troubles as would remove all possibilities of war on the western hemisphere "seems well grounded, and that such a conference would afford any just cause for complaint on the part of European powers cannot be granted. The plan appears to be in the interest of peace and good will, and though Mr. Blaine mentions material advantages which would accrue to this country from such a congress, it is not to be considered that this is the moving cause for the suggestion. While the proposition seems eminently proper, and in every way unobjectionable, it is hardly such a vital one as to occasion the feeling that appears to be growing out of its contemplated abandonment. Parties and leaders in this country should have a more important issue between them than the question of whether a conference of nations shall be called at a certain time or whether the peculiar wording of a dispatch to an envoy is correct and politic or otherwise. It seems to be determined that a quarrel shall be precipitated between Mr. Blaine and the President, or rather between Mr. Blaine and Secretary Frelinghuysen, and if such is the determination, it is probable that it will be brought about whether there be ground for the quarrel or not; but certainly we can as yet see no reason for the severe reflections on the ex-Secretary or ground for any important differences between him and the President.

It is barely possible that Mr. Frelinghuysen is too anxious to find grave errors in the conduct of his brilliant predecessor, and it is just possible also that he may find too many for public justification. Where Mr. Blaine has been wrong the country will willingly set him right, but it will not do to reverse a policy merely because it happens to be Mr. Blaine's. It must be remembered, too, that though the ex-Secretary may have instigated the policy toward South America, that policy is regarded by the world as the President's and it would be hardly dignified to alter it merely at the suggestion of a new Secretary of State and without positive reasons for so doing. We speak now particularly of the circular letter inviting a conference. If this letter has been forwarded as stated, it is not the thing to cancel it without grounds more relative than those advanced by Mr. Frelinghuysen. If done at all it should have been done without arguing the case to the public, as Mr. Frelinhuysen has seen proper to do.

The place for such arguments is in the privacy of the Cabinet and not to Congress, except when called upon for defense.—Inter Ocean.

Mr. George I. Seney, whose noble charities ought to entitle him to the prefix "Hon.," was interviewed by a New York Tribune reporter the other day concerning the motives for giving so profusely of his wealth to public causes. His reply is worth pondering: "First of all because I feel that I am a trustee, responsible for the right use of money given me. With the experience that I have, I believe that I am the person best qualified to carry out the provisions and duties of that trusteeship. What certainty have I that these provisions and duties would ever be duly carried out after my death? Absolutely none. Whereas now, by making these gifts in my lifetime, I am sure that the precise object I desire is accomplished in just the way I want. And then, too, I am more and more convinced of the truth of the words: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The great danger of increasing riches is that it fosters a disposition to hoard money only for the sake of hoarding it. Slightly to alter a common word it becomes a money-mania with them; they gloat over their millions, just because they are millions and not because of the happiness producible from them. Now I maintain that such a spirit is unworthy not only of a true Chrisrian but of a true man, and I have determined never to let it appear in my character." His gifts to date amount to $1,485,000.

Californians talk seriously of dividing that State.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Clarke Chapel.

Immediately after Conference the work of another conference year commenced. The members were stil regretting the removal of that much-beloved pastor, Rev. D. W. Hays, whose three years were out, and were anxiously awaiting the arrival of the newly-appointed pastor. Four services were held on Christmas Day, commencing at 5 a. m. The "watch-night" services were exceedingly precious to all present. Each departed promising to be more faithful and useful in God's service than before. The week of prayer was observed, and as a result several requested special prayer for themselves. It was decided to continue the meetings, and they have not closed yet.

Bishop Peck, on his way South, stopped over in the city, preaching three times on Sabbath, and the third sermon was for us. He had a full congregation, and as the people left, could we have heard their thoughts, we would probably have heard, "Did not our hearts burn as he talked with us by the way?" It is simply necessary to say all were sorry when the "amen" came. The students from Vanderbilt and Central Tennessee College Theological Department were out in attendance, and we understand that they followed him all day. They are not to be blamed, but commended. Those who heard him speak of the seeing through a glass darkly hope to meet him where they will see face to face.

The evangelists Hammond and Parsons are now in the city, and have held three very profitable meetings for us. These brethren have not met the warm welcome here that they have elsewhere met. It is owing partly to the fact that only one of them was born in the South. There is no disguising the fact that some people do not yet know that the war is over. But we are digressing.

The following brethren rendered valuable service: Revs. Moreland, Williams, Cook, Phillips, Holland, Bowen, House, Nelson, of Central Alabama Conference, H. W. Key, and P. E. Pickett. The Church has been much revived every way by these meetings. This is evidenced by the manner in which they work and give for the Lord's cause. It was estimated that not less than one thousand persons were present Friday night week. At the end of this week there were 59 forward for prayer at once. We sum up the work since Conference as follows: 33 professions, 48 accessions, and $75 collected for incidental expenses, etc. A collection was taken each night to defray expenses, with the above result. We have let the contract for re-roofing the church, and as soon as the weather will permit intend to rehang the bell and repair the church. The Sabbath-school is moving on nicely. We hope also to increase our benevolent collections this year. Quite a number of our members from other places are moving into this city. They come often without a letter, and sometimes never find their own church, but stop in some other, and when it is known that such persons are there the doors of that church fly open as if by magic. They go forward to join under the "watch care" of that church, and we never meet them again. Others come and bring letters, and never find time to go to church, and they drift into idleness and sin. Now it does seem that we might remedy this evil by "warning them from time to time that none are to remove from one circuit to another without a note of recommendation from the preacher of the circuit." It seems that much good could be done by observing this rule. Now if the preachers who know of any members of their charges who have recently moved here, since or before the commencing of this conference year, will notify the preacher in charge. he will take great pleasure in looking them up. Or if a letter has been granted, and the preacher where they intend to move is notified, they will be looked after. Now we owe this much to them and the Church.

A Small Request To Pastors.

The Christian ministers, patriotic statesmen, and all thoughtful men and women, to whom its facts are known, alike deeply deplore the Indian record of our nation and the continued oppression of Indians; and these classes deem a righteous, speedy, and permanent settlement of the Indian question as one of imperative obligation and highest importance. Such a settlement would, manifestly, secure the repeal of oppressive laws, and would give legal recognition to Indian personality, and thus secure to Indians what all other men in the land now enjoy, the full protection of the courts.

But such reformation of our Indian policy cannot be secured unless a clear knowledge of our goverment wrongs to Indians can be widely spread, and thus the present need of a new Indian policy—imperative for our nation's sake as well as for that of Indians —can be popularly felt. Such knowledge would create on this whole subject a speedy public Christian sentiment. Who shall spread this knowledge? Who shall point out our nation's sin in its past Indian record, and lift upon the nation's future heaven's own light, that of the Right? Are not Christians God's authorized and empowered "light of the world," to make known govermental as well as home sins, the "light" to indicate the cure for them and the "salt," to work out the elemental cleansing of public as of private corruptions? Was it not to these that Christ said "As my Father hath sent me, so send I you?" and did he not declare it to be his work to "destroy iniquity," to "break every yoke," and to make "the crooked straight?"

May not the Association then upon whose hearts God has specially laid this subject, look to the pastors of all the churches, as to ministers of righteousness, to aid in spreading the needed knowledge; to aid in making the needed appeal to the conscience and heart of the nation, by reading and commending its leaflets, and by requesting from the churches an endorsement of its petition which has in substance been already authorized by various leading denominations. Copies of the petition and leaflets will be sent to any person who may ask the Secretary for them. The pastor having read and commended the petition to his church, and having secured for it a rising vote of endorsement, may sign it as representing his people, the whole proceeding taking but few moments, and yet contributing to make a vast aggregate of moral influence towards the obliteration of a vast iniquity. The petition should be returned to the Secretary.

The Association earnestly begs the above aid, because of the wrongs and sufferings of Indians, and because our wrong mode of solving the Indian problem has cost our nation many thousands of lives and five hundred millions of dollars in Indian wars. Please help, by prayerful effort, to end our nation's long record of loss, suffering, and guilt from our treatment of Indians, and to place these native Americans under circumstances where they will not be, as too often hitherto, compelled to commit crime, but will have opportunity to develop into Christians citizens.

Called Out and Shot.

Marshal Smith, colored, living on Dr. A. A. Curruth's plantation some eight miles northwest of Clinton, was called from his house on the night of the 26th ult., and while on the gallery answering questons put by the party, was shot down—three shots being fired and each taking effect. He lived but a few minutes. The following parties, on circumstantial evidence, have been lodged in jail to await a judicial investigation, to wit: Harrison B. McKie and Samuel Singletary, both young white men, and natives of the parish, with Peter Sadler, colored. For the credit of our parish and the honor of the families of these young men we hope that an investigation may relieve both of the odium which must attach to so foul a crime.—Clinton Watchman.

The Cairo correspondent of the Times considers that changes contemplated by the Chamber of Notables in reference to the budget, will virtually transfer the supreme power from the Khedive to the Chamber, which is under the absolute control of the army.

The London Times suggests that the United States should invite the maritime powers generally to accede to the stipulation of neutrality for interoceanic communications, which now, by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, binds Great Britain and the United States. It considers that the American people would view such action favorably.

Some years ago Russia made the outrages in Bulgaria the occasion for a vehement protest against England's policy as to Turkey, and later made the agitation as to the outrages the excuse for war. England is now returning the compliment with interest, and is making the outrages on the Russian Jews the basis for an anti-Russian agitation in Europe.

THE CRESCENT CITY.

From crystal rills in bleak northwestern land,
Where far the Frost King holds his dire command,
Through gentler climes, where kingly live oaks rise,
And dazzling hues invest more southern skies;
Where wide the cane-field spreads its living green,
And fleecy flocks and lowing herds are seen,
Down to the sea-like Gulf where tempests roar,
And thundering lash the loud resounding shore,
Great Mississippi rolls his mighty flood,
Father of waves, through defile, plain, and wood;
Agglomerated waters hurl their might,
Commingling with the Gulf and fade from sight.

But at his foot the Crescent City stands,
The mart of commerce, famed in foreign lands;
Nor adverse rule, nor pestilence, nor war,
Shall dim the splendor of this western star!
The Lady of the Waves! her proud tiaras rise
Of glittering domes 'neath blue and burning skies;
Here wafts the orange flower its rich perfume,
And tall magnolia spreads its glorious bloom;
Despite the city's hum, at eve is heard
The wood notes of the dulcet forest bird,
And silver moonlight, but a milder day,
On marble tombs sheds soft its holy ray.

A Southern city, full of inborn fire,
Whose inborn nobleness cannot expire,
The Crescent Empress claims her children's love,
And prays His benison who rules above!

Missionary Concert Program, March, 1882.

SUBJECT: BULGARIA

Our Mission in the Principality of Bulgaria is directed to a people who possess a form of Christianity, (very like the Greek Church,) but lack the spirituality and progressive life which the evangelical faith can alone bring to them.

The meeting may be opened by the use of Hymn 925, Scripture reading in Gal. iii, and Hymn 821.

1. In the first portion of the hour, with the aid of a wall-map, let different persons call attention to one point and another in the general condition of the Bulgarians, their history, present political relation and character. Some sources of information are: "The Races of European Turkey," by E. L. Clarke. New York, Dodd, Mead & Co, $3. "Bulgaria since the War; Notes of a Tour in the Autumn of 1879," by J. G. Minchin. London: C. Kegan, Paul, & Co. "Observations on Bulgarians Affairs," by the Marquis of Bath. London: Macmillan & Co., A series of articles by "An Eastern Statesman" in the Contemporary Review of 1879, and February, 1880. "The Principality of Bulgaria," The Christian Advocate, May 15, 1879. Appleton's Annual Cyclopædia, 1878, 1879, 1880, art., "Bulgaria."

The Bulgarians, originally of Asiatic, Turanian stock, allied to Magyars, settled in the region they at present occupy in the seventh century, forming a kingdom which alternately rose to power and fell under the Eastern Empire, till, with the latter, it was subdued by the Turks. Having mingled their blood with the Slavs who preceded them on the soil, their former fierceness was changed and they became Slavic in speech and character, though in dress they still retain traces of their Tartar orgin. They are usually of well formed physique, industrious, and good tempered. Female virtue is highly prized among them. The peasants generally own the soil. Their merchants bear comparison with those of any other nation. Many travelers have praised them and spoken highly of the prospective resources of the country under proper development.

The Bulgarians were converted to Christianity in the ninth century. They chose the Greek Patriarch as their ecclesiastical head rather than the Roman Pontiff, but have frequently manifested a desire to maintain an independent National Church with the use of their own language. Recent epochs in this ecclesiastical struggle are 1833, 1840, 1850 1858, 1860, 1870. Signs of political awakening, through influences from Western Europe, occured as early as fifty years ago. A desire for education was specially manifest among them in 1850, and they rapidly developed a system of schools. Primary schools are now every-where found, and in the principal villages and towns schools of higher grade, for which good buildings are provided. The character of the instruction, however, leaves much to be desired, and Missions can bring them welcome aid in this particular. They succeeded in throwing off the yoke of the Greek priesthood, and obtained ecclesiastical independence from the Sultan in 1870. Their love for Bulgarian nationality inspires adherence to the Church, which offers an obstacle to evangelical Missions. The obstacle is less pronounced since the Russo-Turkish war of 1877, by which the Bulgarians were liberated, obtaining through the treaty of Berlin the erection of the Principality north of the Balkans into a autonomous state, though tributary to the Porte, and Eastern Roumelia, (Philippopolis its chief town,) south of the Balkans, into a distinct province more closely dependent. This province is less largely Bulgarian, having a considerable admixture of Greeks, and more advanced intellectually than the Principality. Bulgarians are spread over Macedonia, mingled with the Greeks. The total Bulgarian population of European Turkey is estimated at about 4,500,000. A late authority gives the population of the Principality at 1,859,000, of whom 600,000 are Moslems.

The Bulgarian Assembly for the new Principality formed a very democratic Constitution in the spring of 1879, and elected Alexander, of Germany, Prince. He has at different times dissolved the Assembly, and a few months ago dictated the framing of a new Constitution. Self government is still a problem for the Bulgarians. Political circumstances have much to do with the prospects of Mission work in that country. There is good reason to believe that the Bulgarians will yet justify the expectations formed concerning them as being favorable to evangelical truth, while their country is probably destined to be the theater of powerful political changes and influences, which, if allied with a pure Christianity, may accomplish the regeneration of the whole Turkish Empire, both in Europe and Asia.

2. Let prayer be offered for the blessing of God upon this people, that a just, civil, and ecclesiastical development may be secured to them; and for Divine interposition in the political influences and movements of the various powers, that Christian civilization and Christian truth may obtain speedy prevalence in the neighboring countries now subject to the Mohammedan Turk. Hymn 940.

3. The future of the Bulgarians being so closely related to that of the whole Turkish Empire, an important element in the problem is the work of the missionaries of the American Board in that Empire. They have a mission in European Turkey which is directed very largely to the Bulgarian population south of the Balkans in Eastern Roumelia and Macedonia. They have have one principal station, Samokov, where their Theological and two High Schools are located within the Principality close upon its southern border. Their interest in the Bulgarian population was awakened partly by the readiness with which portions of the Scripture were sold among them, and our own work was begun partly at the instance and with the co-operation of the American Board missionaries at Constantinople. The two Missions have ever maintained a friendly and mutually helpful intercourse. Dr. Long, of our Mission, went to Constantinople in 1862 and subsequently engaged heartily, in conjunction with Dr. Riggs, in the work of translating the Scriptures into the Bulgarian language, which was finished in 1870. He began the publication of the Zornitza, a religious paper, now continued by the American Board, which is doing excellent service.

The history of the work of the American Board in the Turkish empire, (embracing three other missions) extends over fifty years, and is a record of the most unyielding perseverance against obstacles, of prudent management, and of very substantial success. They have established a noble system of graded schools and colleges. Their labors are an example for our work in that region, though their Mission, as directed to the Bulgarians south of the Balkans, operates under quite different circumstances from our own, and such as are in many respects more favorable to immediate success. We commend a study of the American Board Missions in the Turkish Empire as a source of stimulus to our efforts in Bulgaria amid the many difficulties which beset them. See "History of the Mission of the American Board to the Oriental Churches," by Rufus Anderson, LL. D., Boston Congregational House, 1872, $1 50 per volume; also, "Historical Sketch of the Mission of the American Board in Turkey," by S. C. Bartlett, D. D., pamphlet, Boston, American Board, 1880, price five cents. See for a review of the whole subject, "The Americans in Turkey," British Quarterly Review, January, 1878; "The American Educational System in Turkey," Christian Advocate, May 8, 1878. The annual reports of the American Board. The Missionary Herald, Boston, has continuous notices of the work in the European Turkey Mission. See the latest summary statistics report in the number for January, 1882. There are four principal stations in this Mission—Constantinople, Philippopolis, Samokov, and Monastir. There are 26 missionaries, 28 native workers, 288 members, 12 common schools with 341 pupils, the higher grade schools at Samokov having also 72 pupils.

4. Let prayer be offered for this Mission of our brethren that the spirit of Christian faith and love and wisdom which has hitherto carried them successfully forward in the war for the regeneration of the Turkish Empire may be continued, and bring them yet larger success; and that in fraternal cooperation the two Missions may continue to advance the power of evangelical truth in the land. Hymn. 818.

5. Let the condition of our Mission be made familiar from Dr Reid's History and the Missionary Reports. Our first missionaries, Messrs. Long and Prettyman, entered upon work in 1857. F. W. Flocken, later, labored for many years a Superintendent. Many difficulties have been experienced. Bigotry and religious indifference are ever present obstacles. Priestly persecution has arisen in many places, and this sort of opposition renders it difficult to gather settled congregations. The Mission was for a time suspended, and partially so during the recent war. It has been renewed under more favorable auspices than ever before, and late reports are quite encouraging. Several conversions have recently taken place. The people revere the Bible, and readily purchase copies of the Scriptures. The colporteur's work prospers. The the newly awakened spirit of progress in the land holds forth a constant hope. The Rev. D. C. Challis is the present Superintendent. Our stations are Rustchuck, Sistof, Tirnova, Loftcha, Selvi, and Orchania. We have a boys' school recently opened, at Tirnova, and a girls' at Loftcha.

6 Prayer for our missionaries in Bulgaria, that they may ever clearly discern the importance of the work in their special field, that they may be endued with the spiritual courage and strength requisite for their difficult task; and prayer for the people, that God may be pleased to add to the blessings of political and educational progress a powerful spiritual awakening, which will move them to gladly return to the "simplicity that is in Christ" and that "faith of the Gospel" formerly delivered to the saints.. Hymn 939.

The time for an organic union of the two churches—if it is the will of God that there should be such a time—must be more clearly discerned than it is at present—a time when the two communities will be so much alike in spirit, as well as in doctrine and government, that they will, with the removal of a thin formal partition, flow together.—Christian Neighbor.

The steamer Cosmo foundered off Kilia and 27 lives were lost.

Tweedledee and Tweedledum.

It will be hardly possible to make a great party issue out of the Chili-Peru affair, though, for the lack of something better, much effort it seems is deing directed to this purpose. Several days ago The Inter Ocean called attention to the fact that there was really no important difference of opinion between the policy of Mr. Blaine, as indicated prior to his leaving the State Department, and the policy of Secretary Frelinghuysen, as indicated in later correspondence. Subsequent statements from authoritative sources in Washington confirm this view. A Senator, who has examined the matter carefully and kept up with the developments as made from day to day, said on Thursday:

President Arthur had not changed his policy as charged, but it would be found that he had merely altered the tone of it. Mr. Blaine and he both merely wished to obtain from Chili a disclaimer of an intention of insult to the United States by the seizure of the President of Peru, whom this government had recognized. Mr. Blaine made the inquiry in such a tone, in the opinion of the President, that Chili could not have made a pacific response without embarrassment. He thought best to ask the same question upon the assumption that Chili had no belligerent intentions, which, of course, made easy the declarations desired. In the first place, Chili could only have declined a pacific response owing to the way the question was put, and a recall of diplomatic representatives and the establishment of a protectorative over Peru would have been the inevitable result. As it was, Mr. Trescott's instructions were modified and the disclaimer desired from Chili was obtained. The next point of policy was indentical, as shown by instructions, asking Chili to be as lenient as consistent with her interests with Peru. The next was to proffer the good offices of this government in making the final adjustment of the difficulty, between the two belligerents. So far the President's friends and Mr. Blaine's friends regard their policy to have been indentical as to the ends desired, and only differed as to the manner of accomplishing the object arrived at.

A prominent Republican Senator said to the Inter Ocean representative:

I see very little in the so-called controversy between Blaine and the President. It is about the difference between of saying prayers in English or Latin. There is a certain diplomatic style of stating things in platitutes which Blaine does not seem to have fallen into, and, in consequence, wrote some pretty vigorous English, that meant about the same thing as the latter modifications. I think it unfortunate certain friends of these gentlemen seem bound to fan the flames into a fire. It is very unfortunate, also, when a man gets so big that he thinks some one is trying all the time to overthrow him.

This is the simple fact of the matter, the only difference of any moment at all being the question of whether we should call a conference of American powers, as proposed in Mr. Blaine's circular letter, sent out in November, or whether that invitation should be recalled, as was hinted at in Mr. Frelinghuysen's communication to the Senate. Mr. Blaine thinks such recall would be interpreted to mean that this country is afraid of offending England and France. He says, in his letter published Saturday, asking the President to consider well before recalling the invitations:

If that move is now to be arrested for fear it may give offense in Europe, the voluntary humiliation of this government could not be more complete, unless we should petition the European governments for the privilege of holding the congress.

In his sensitiveness over the reversal of a plan which he had resolved upon, and which he says was adopted with the sanction of President Garfield, and afterward confirmed by President Arthur, Mr. Blaine may magnify the importance of this circular letter and the effect of its withdrawal on the public mind. It is hardly wise or politic for a nation like the United States to do anything through fear that it will be regarded as lacking in courage if it refrains from the act. The time for us to be sensitive about our bravery and our disposition to assert our rights is past, or at least ought to be passed. A country with a record such as ours need not go about with a fear that it has been insulted or commit any folly lest its courage be impugned. Conscious of its great power, the United States can well afford to do what is right without any misgivings as to the impressions that such a performance of its duty may excite. Such motives ought not to figure in the decisions of the President or the Secretary, and the bare suggestion that they ought to be considered weakens what is otherwise a strong presentation of the case by Mr. Blaine in his letter to the President. His position that a conference of American powers is desirable for the purpose of agreeing upon "such a basis of arbitration for international troubles as would remove all possibilities of war on the western hemisphere "seems well grounded, and that such a conference would afford any just cause for complaint on the part of European powers cannot be granted. The plan appears to be in the interest of peace and good will, and though Mr. Blaine mentions material advantages which would accrue to this country from such a congress, it is not to be considered that this is the moving cause for the suggestion. While the proposition seems eminently proper, and in every way unobjectionable, it is hardly such a vital one as to occasion the feeling that appears to be growing out of its contemplated abandonment. Parties and leaders in this country should have a more important issue between them than the question of whether a conference of nations shall be called at a certain time or whether the peculiar wording of a dispatch to an envoy is correct and politic or otherwise. It seems to be determined that a quarrel shall be precipitated between Mr. Blaine and the President, or rather between Mr. Blaine and Secretary Frelinghuysen, and if such is the determination, it is probable that it will be brought about whether there be ground for the quarrel or not; but certainly we can as yet see no reason for the severe reflections on the ex-Secretary or ground for any important differences between him and the President.

It is barely possible that Mr. Frelinghuysen is too anxious to find grave errors in the conduct of his brilliant predecessor, and it is just possible also that he may find too many for public justification. Where Mr. Blaine has been wrong the country will willingly set him right, but it will not do to reverse a policy merely because it happens to be Mr. Blaine's. It must be remembered, too, that though the ex-Secretary may have instigated the policy toward South America, that policy is regarded by the world as the President's and it would be hardly dignified to alter it merely at the suggestion of a new Secretary of State and without positive reasons for so doing. We speak now particularly of the circular letter inviting a conference. If this letter has been forwarded as stated, it is not the thing to cancel it without grounds more relative than those advanced by Mr. Frelinghuysen. If done at all it should have been done without arguing the case to the public, as Mr. Frelinhuysen has seen proper to do.

The place for such arguments is in the privacy of the Cabinet and not to Congress, except when called upon for defense.—Inter Ocean.

Mr. George I. Seney, whose noble charities ought to entitle him to the prefix "Hon.," was interviewed by a New York Tribune reporter the other day concerning the motives for giving so profusely of his wealth to public causes. His reply is worth pondering: "First of all because I feel that I am a trustee, responsible for the right use of money given me. With the experience that I have, I believe that I am the person best qualified to carry out the provisions and duties of that trusteeship. What certainty have I that these provisions and duties would ever be duly carried out after my death? Absolutely none. Whereas now, by making these gifts in my lifetime. I am sure that the precise object I desire is accomplished in just the way I want. And then, too, I am more and more convinced of the truth of the words: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."

The great danger of increasing riches is that it fosters a disposition to hoard money only for the sake of hoarding it. Slightly to alter a common word it becomes a money-mania with them; they gloat over their millions, just because they are millions and not because of the happiness producible from them. Now I maintain that such a spirit is unworthy not only of a true Chrisrian but of a true man, and I have determined never to let it appear in my character." His gifts to date amount to $1,485,000.

Californians talk seriously of dividing that State.

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

Clarke Chapel.

Immediately after Conference the work of another conference year commenced. The members were stil regretting the removal of that much-beloved pastor, Rev. D. W. Hays, whose three years were out, and were anxiously awaiting the arrival of the newly-appointed pastor. Four services were held on Christmas Day, commencing at 5 a. m. The "watch-night" services were exceedingly precious to all present. Each departed promising to be more faithful and useful in God's service than before. The week of prayer was observed, and as a result several requested special prayer for themselves. It was decided to continue the meetings, and they have not closed yet.

Bishop Peck, on his way South, stopped over in the city, preaching three times on Sabbath, and the third sermon was for us. He had a full congregation, and as the people left, could we have heard their thoughts, we would probably have heard, "Did not our hearts burn as he talked with us by the way?" It is simply necessary to say all were sorry when the "amen" came. The students from Vanderbilt and Central Tennessee College Theological Department were out in attendance, and we understand that they followed him all day. They are not to be blamed, but commended. Those who heard him speak of the seeing through a glass darkly hope to meet him where they will see face to face.

The evangelists Hammond and Parsons are now in the city, and have held three very profitable meetings for us. These brethren have not met the warm welcome here that they have elsewhere met. It is owing partly to the fact that only one of them was born in the South. There is no disguising the fact that some people do not yet know that the war is over. But we are digressing.

The following brethren rendered valuable service: Revs. Moreland, Williams, Cook, Phillips, Holland, Bowen, House, Nelson, of Central Alabama Conference, H. W. Key, and P. E. Pickett. The Church has been much revived every way by these meetings. This is evidenced by the manner in which they work and give for the Lord's cause. It was estimated that not less than one thousand persons were present Friday night week. At the end of this week there were 59 forward for prayer at once. We sum up the work since Conference as follows: 33 professions, 48 accessions, and $75 collected for incidental expenses, etc. A collection was taken each night to defray expenses, with the above result. We have let the contract for re-roofing the church, and as soon as the weather will permit intend to rehang the bell and repair the church. The Sabbath-school is moving on nicely. We hope also to increase our benevolent collections this year. Quite a number of our members from other places are moving into this city. They come often without a letter, and sometimes never find their own church, but stop in some other, and when it is known that such persons are there the doors of that church fly open as if by magic. They go forward to join under the "watch care" of that church, and we never meet them again. Others come and bring letters, and never find time to go to church, and they drift into idleness and sin. Now it does seem that we might remedy this evil by "warning them from time to time that none are to remove from one circuit to another without a note of recommendation from the preacher of the circuit." It seems that much good could be done by observing this rule. Now if the preachers who know of any members of their charges who have recently moved here, since or before the commencing of this conference year, will notify the preacher in charge, he will take great pleasure in looking them up. Or if a letter has been granted, and the preacher where they intend to move is notified, they will be looked after. Now we owe this much to them and the Church.

A Small Request To Pastors.

The Christian ministers, patriotic statesmen, and all thoughtful men and women, to whom its facts are known, alike deeply deplore the Indian record of our nation and the continued oppression of Indians; and these classes deem a righteous, speedy, and permanent settlement of the Indian question as one of imperative obligation and highest importance. Such a settlement would, manifestly, secure the repeal of oppressive laws, and would give legal recognition to Indian personality, and thus secure to Indians what all other men in the land now enjoy, the full protection of the courts.

But such reformation of our Indian policy cannot be secured unless a clear knowledge of our goverment wrongs to Indians can be widely spread, and thus the present need of a new Indian policy—imperative for our nation's sake as well as for that of Indians—can be popularly felt. Such knowledge would create on this whole subject a speedy public Christian sentiment. Who shall spread this knowledge? Who shall point out our nation's sin in its past Indian record, and lift upon the nation's future heaven's own light, that of the Right? Are not Christians God's authorized and empowered "light of the world," to make known govermental as well as home sins, the "light" to indicate the cure for them and the "salt," to work out the elemental cleansing of public as of private corruptions? Was it not to these that Christ said "As my Father hath sent me, so send I you?" and did he not declare it to be his work to "destroy iniquity," to "break every yoke," and to make "the crooked straight?"

May not the Association then upon whose hearts God has specially laid this subject, look to the pastors of all the churches, as to ministers of righteousness, to aid in spreading the needed knowledge; to aid in making the needed appeal to the conscience and heart of the nation, by reading and commending its leaflets, and by requesting from the churches an endorsement of its petition which has in substance been already authorized by various leading denominations. Copies of the petition and leaflets will be sent to any person who may ask the Secretary for them. The pastor having read and commended the petition to his church, and having secured for it a rising vote of endorsement, may sign it as representing his people, the whole proceeding taking but few moments, and yet contributing to make a vast aggregate of moral influence towards the obliteration of a vast iniquity. The petition should be returned to the Secretary.

The Association earnestly begs the above aid, because of the wrongs and sufferings of Indians, and because our wrong mode of solving the Indian problem has cost our nation many thousands of lives and five hundred millions of dollars in Indian wars. Please help, by prayerful effort, to end our nation's long record of loss, suffering, and guilt from our treatment of Indians, and to place these native Americans under circumstances where they will not be, as too often hitherto, compelled to commit crime, but will have opportunity to develop into Christians citizens.

Called Out and Shot.

Marshal Smith, colored, living on Dr. A. A. Currath's plantation some eight miles northwest of Clinton, was called from his house on the night of the 26th ult., and while on the gallery answering questons put by the party, was shot down—three shots being fired and each taking effect. He lived but a few minutes. The following parties, on circumstantial evidence, have been lodged in jail to await a judicial investigation, to wit: Harrison B. McKie and Samuel Singletary, both young white men, and natives of the parish, with Peter Sadier, colored. For the credit of our parish and the honor of the families of these young men we hope that an investigation may relieve both of the odium which must attach to so foul a crime.—Clinton Watchman.

The Secretary of the Navy has ordered the return to America of Lieutenant Danenhower, of the Jeannette search expedition, and has sent two other officers to continue the search of Lieutenant De-Long and the missing boat.

Lord Granville, Foreign Secretary, has verbally and energetically protested to Prince Lobanoff, Russian Ambassador, against the action of Russia in reference to terms of treaty concluded with Persia, by which the former acquires the Akhal Tekke oasis.

The Cairo correspondent of the Times considers that changes contemplated by the Chamber of Notables in reference to the budget, will virtually transfer the supreme power from the Khedive to the Chamber, which is under the absolute control of the army.

The London Times suggests that the United States should invite the maritime powers generally to accede to the stipulation of neutrality for interoceanic communications, which now, by the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, binds Great Britain and the United States. It considers that the American people would view such action favorably.

Some years ago Russia made the outrages in Bulgaria the occasion for a vehement protest against England's policy as to Turkey, and later made the agitation as to the outrages the excuse for war. England is now returning the compliment with interest, and is making the outrages on the Russian Jews the basis for an anti-Russian agitation in Europe.

THE SOUTHWESTERN

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, FEB. 16, 1882.

The annual catalogue of the University of Rochester, M. B. Anderson, LL.D., president, is a neat specimen of typography.

The first thing to do on your new charge, is to secure a list of subscribers to your church paper, that it may help you throughout your pastorate.

The Home Visitor, the monthly paper issued by Wiley University, Marshall, Texas, comes to us this month considerably enlarged, and well filled with religious news and miscellany.

Some are working grandly for the SOUTHWESTERN, others are to be heard from soon we hope. We could easily have 5,000 subscribers, if each pastor would devote a few minutes at each service to canvas.

While rejoicing that the prize fight did not take place in Louisiana we must yet sympathize with the Mississippi people who suffered the brutal infliction, through the negligence of officers of the law. If there is any merit in the anti prize fight law, the Sheriff of Harrison county ought to lose his office. Gov. Lowry could at least give him a deserved rebuke.

Hon. Wm. R. Moore, a member of Congress from Tennessee, has introduced a bill to give the unclaimed bounty of colored soldiers, to form colored schools in the South, all under the control of the Congregationalists. This is wrong. Let us have no appropriations for classes or sects by the government of this country. It may be advisable to have liberal appropriations for a national system of education.

John Bright, the veteran English Statesman, said to Gen. Clinton B. Fisk: "There is nothing that is going to give such stability to this government as the religious instruction of our children in the Protestant Sunday schools of this realm; and I have read all about them in your country, and your people are going to be safe if you only stand by your Sunday-school men and train up your children in the way of the Lord."

The annual meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Mission in Mexico closed a week's session in the City of Mexico, on the 3d inst., Bishop Andrews presiding. Twenty-three missionaries attended. The year's work has been remarkable. The number of Churches established is beyond the means and men at the command of the mission. The most notable event of the year was the conversion of the prominent and learned Spanish priest, Dr. Trientes.

During the temporary absence of Democratic leaders on the 17th inst., which was general bill day, Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, obtained the floor, and moved the suspension of the rules and the passage of his anti-polygamy bill. His motion was carried, and the bill is now before the Senate, where the prospect of its passage is considered hopeful. This bill provides that no bigamist or polygamist shall hereafter sit in Congress. This will dispose of Cannon's claim, and is the first earnest work of Congress on the subject.

The New Orleans University, under the efficient management of President I. N. Failor and his able staff, is having the most prosperous year the institution has ever enjoyed. Over one hundred young ladies and gentlemen are now connected with the University. President Failor informs us that he has all the students that he can accommodate, and that during the past two weeks he has turned away upwards of twenty, who have made application to enter the school. The one great present need of New Orleans University is larger and better buildings. Where is the Stacey who will come to our rescue in this our time of need?

The Times-Democrat, to use its own language, "objected to the policy of sending out missionaries and spending vast sums of money upon the unconscious heathens of Africa and Asia, while right here in the United States, within the shadows of our homes, is worse heathenism, more revolting degradation, darker crime and more [illegible] misery than any missionary ever gazed upon in [illegible] or Soudan." The Times-[illegible] to think it con-[illegible] that because a small [illegible] of Christian philanthropy [illegible] to the heathen, the [illegible] the charitable are [illegible] home work. For what [illegible] churches [illegible] published, [illegible] to the [illegible]?

Good-bye and Welcome.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 11, 1882.

Life is too short and the demands for earnest work too many, for any of us to spend much time in mere formalities. The mail by which this leaves in time for next week's SOUTHWESTERN, and the train by which I leave for a tour of conferences in the Eastern States, both depart in a few moments. So my words in relinquishing the editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN to my successor must be few. For nearly nine years the paper has gone on its regular visits to thousands of people with something of my spirit and words in each. The Lord be praised for the good done, and the Lord forgive the errors committed. I am called by the church to a larger and more important field, having to do directly with the educational work of our great church in the whole South. I ask the prayers of every reader of the SOUTHWESTERN for success in my new field.

And to you, my successor, Brother Cushman I give my hand and heart. You take this place not of your own choice, but you will succeed in it through strength and love of the Master whom you serve. You have a noble young assistant and a careful business associate, who will love and help you as they have me.

And now, pastors and friends of the SOUTHWESTERN, put up the list of subscribers far above what it has ever been. You can do it, and to do it will be to greatly enlarge the influence and power of the church.

New Orleans shall still be my home and Louisiana Conference my conference, although my work will keep me mostly in the North.

RESIGNATION.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 9, 1882.

To the Chairman and Members of the Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

MY DEAR BRETHREN: I herewith tender to you my resignation as Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The reasons which lead me to this step are already known to each of you. Unexpectedly to myself, I was April 1st, 1881, by the unanimous voice of the Board of Managers of the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, called to be an assistant to its Corresponding Secretary. I accepted the position after full consultation with the Book Agents and others specially interested in our southern work, with the promise that the interests of the SOUTHWESTERN should be cared for. The way is now clear in the judgment of the Book Agents to meet that promise, and I embrace the first opportunity to present my resignation to the body authorized to receive and elect my successor.

Since April 1st, 1881, I have without salary from the paper, superintended its management, and have just completed a tour of all the patronizing conferences and carefully adjusted all the accounts, and the details of the office business, so that my successor can without embarrassment take the work where I leave it.

One of my last official acts was to call to my aid as an assistant editor, Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., a cultivated young colored man. This appointment has given great satisfaction to the many friends of the paper among the colored people, and is accepted by our white people as a very proper recognition of their devotion and faithfulness to the church.

I began the SOUTHWESTERN as a private enterprise in July 1873, and carried it as such until the General Conference of 1876, which body made it an official paper and provided for a limited subsidy. I did not receive any compensation for editorial and business management during the three years, while the paper was a private enterprise. The uncertainty respecting the editorship, caused by the election and resignation of Dr. Revels in 1876, made sad work with a large part of the outstanding accounts of the paper for that year. The result was that when I turned the paper over to the church I was personally liable to the amount of nearly $1500. I have reduced this to a little less than $1000, and it is mentioned here that my brethren may know that the work of founding and giving to the church of this paper has not only cost years of hard work (during three of which no salary was received) but also a large outlay of personal means.

The New York agents state in their report to you that the circulation of the paper is 4248, being 607 over last year. They also state that "The cash income with the subsidy will just about meet the expenditures." The SOUTHWESTERN has never received any credit in its yearly statements for outstanding accounts. The outstanding accounts for 1881 are $4191 97. Deduct 25 per cent for probable loss and we have $3443 98. Add this to cash income of the paper for 1881, as has been done each year for example in the accounts of the Methodist Advocate, and the SOUTHWESTERN would not only not have needed a subsidy, but would have had an additional balance for 1881 to its credit in New York of $1948 98.

My relations with the New York agents who have published the paper, and with the members of this committee and the one preceding it have been most cordial and pleasant, and as I enter now fully upon my new work I commend each of them and you to the grace of our common Lord, and ask in turn your prayers for my success in my new place of service in the church.

Yours fraternally,
J. C. HARTZELL.

On motion of J. D. Hammond, of Nevada, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

The Book Committee in its acceptance of the resignation of Dr Hartzell, hereby places on record its high appreciation of the able and careful manner in which he has since 1876 conducted the interests of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; and further that we hereby extend to him our best wishes for his success in his enlarged field of usefulness."

ELECTION OF REV L. P. CUSHMAN.

The Book Committee, after accepting the resignation of Dr. Hartzell, proceeded to elect his successor. Rev. L. P. Cushman was elected on the first ballot Editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. The election of the committee was concurred in by Bishops Wiley, Merrill, and Warren.

OUR SALUTATION.

We are not wholly unmindful of the difficult and delicate work that has, without our solicitation, fallen into our hands. To succeed to so clear, strong and vigorous a writer as Dr. Hartzell has shown himself to be, is no ordinary task. Thirty-three years of public life, spent in the Christian ministry—thirty of it in the pastorate—has afforded us what we deemed a sphere of honorable, delightful and useful activity. We have not been disappointed nor discontented in our work. Ours has been a service of love. In the early part of our ministry we were instructed by Bishop Janes to "act in all things not according to our own will, but as a son in the Gospel." Above all, we were told that if we labored with the Methodists in God's vineyard it would be needful that we should do that part of the work and at those times and places our superiors judged most for God's glory. Nothing less than the unsolicited call of the Church could have induced us to enter upon this new and, to us, untried field of Christian labor, even for a limited period. It is hardly possible for us to over-estimate the responsibility of our present position. At the present time the press fully shares with the platform and pulpit in the work of influencing the community. It gives, in fact, the widest hearing to both in its daily and weekly re-echoes of their lessons, while its own oft-repeated sayings are leaving impressions not to be easily effaced. In fact, we hardly know which should interest the Church most, the education of her youth so as to fitly occupy her pulpits or to become leaders and controllers of the press. The extensive circulation and ability of the secular press render the conducting of a religious newspaper more difficult. We are aware that all the great secular, denominational and undenominational papers of our country have able managing editors, and also a large corps of trained assistants, besides a large number of well-paid contributors, whose pens never rest. To assume a seat by the side of these powerful organs, with such limited means as the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE can command, may seem to men of experience a work of great rashness on our part. It would be a work of supererogation for us to say that we do not accept of this position either from a desire of fame or pleasure. We are too near Jordan, the time and place of crossing, to let go of the Lord Jesus for these play things of the devil. We are here as a loyal Methodist, and as such have no special reforms to 'propose,' or promises of improvement to make. We have but one resolution and one policy to announce: namely, with God's help and blessing, we promise to do the best we can to make this paper, as it has been in the past, what its name indicates, a Christian advocate. In the cause of human progress, and in the work of educating and elevating any and every member of society, whether colored or white, we most earnestly hope that the SOUTHWESTERN will not lose its honorable reputation under its present leaders. Limited as we are in our resources, we have no desire to see this paper a mere follower or echo, nor struggling to keep abreast of the ranks. Our ambition is to see it a leader in every reform; and while the editor will claim the privilege of discussing any and all questions of social and moral reform, he hopes to do it fairly, and, in all cases, "with malice toward none, and charity for all." He, therefore, offers the right hand of Christian fellowship to all them that love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity.

L. P. CUSHMAN.

Soul Beauty, and its External Manifestation.

One of the memorable incidents of the life of Moses was his forty days' communion with God on Mount Sinai. We are told that as a result of this remarkable event, when Moses came down from the mount "he wist not that the skin of his face shone while he talked with him." What was the probable significance of this radiance which illumined the face of the great law-giver? It was, doubtless designed to impress the Israelites with reverence and to prepare them for submission to the law which they were about to receive. But there were other instruction which it was adapted to give. It assuredly was intended to teach us that communion with God leads to a reflection of the divine glory, and that where glory exists it will have an external manifestation. Soul beauty must shine out upon the world. Its manifestation is inevitable. It is utterly impossible to keep its existence a secret.

Soul-beauty will appear in the person. Dante, describing the angels whom he met in the Paradiso, impresses us at once with their external glory and their spiritual effulgence. Invariably he makes the former a result of the latter: with closer faithfulness to physical science than he imagined he says:

"Another of those splendors
Approached me, and its will to pleasure me
It signified by brightening outwardly
As one delighted to do good;
Became a thing transparent in my sight,
As a fine ruby smitten by the sun!"

The same poet says of Beatrice as he saw her in the Paradiso:

"She smiled so joyously,
That God seemed in her countenance to rejoice."

Joseph Cook has a remarkable lecture on what he terms "solar self-culture," and he quotes these lines as illustrative of the solar light in the face of man. "God smiling in the countenance is truly a solar light in the face. And we believe that where there is moral excellence in the soul there will be external indications in the face. We all know how certain passions give a dark look to the countenance. On the same principle, we may expect that excellencies of soul will illumine and transfigure the countenance. It is narrated of Stephen that "all that sat in the council looking steadfastly on him saw his face as it had been the face of an angel." The angel-face upon which the council gazed was but the index of the brightness, calmness, benignity, and fearlessness which dwelt within his soul. This angel-face should be the characteristic of every godly man.

Soul-beauty will speak in the conversation. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." Speech as a rule is an index of the heart. The unkindly word is but the expression of pride, anger, and resentment. This being the case it stands to reason that when a man has caught the reflection of the Divine glory, when his soul is filled with the love of God, his speech will express the internal glory. The radiance within will play on the whole surface of the conversation, as the summer sun on the landscape. Speech will be wise, prudent, loving, "such as becometh the Gospel." There will be an utter absence of all conversation that is injurious to the character, good name, or reputation of our neighbor; of all censorious and uncharitable judging, of all evil speaking, slandering, backbiting and talebearing, all of which manifestations of speech are as alien to the spirit of love as the most flagrant vices, and are as expressly forbidden by the word of God.

Soul-beauty again will shine in the life. We cannot enjoy the glory that comes from Divine communion without letting the light shine out in our actions. Divine grace, and generous love in the soul will exhibit themselves in a spotless and loving life. "Make the tree good and its fruit will be good." The Divine light when it dwells within in its purity, warmth and power, will be expressed by external purity: and in as far as we exhibit this light among men, in the same degree do we live the life of the Lord upon earth. In all the actions of the life the beaming glory will appear.

The Lynching in Bossier.

In the jail of Bossier parish Louisiana, were two men last January. Henry Solomon, colored, was imprisoned on a charge of mule stealing, but had not been tried or convicted. Jack Chapman, white, had been convicted and sentenced to death for the crime of murder. During the night of January 10th these prisoners broke out of jail, but were subsequently recaptured and imprisoned. On the night of the 31st the floor of the cell occupied by Solomon was found to be on fire, and it is alleged he started the fire with the intention of making his escape. That night a dozen men came to the jailor's bed room took the keys, entered the prison, took out Solomon and hanged him just outside the building. An inquest was held but no one testified to a recognition of any of the lynchers, though it is not claimed they were either masked or disguised. The local paper, the Banner, expressed "the candid belief that the legal quibbles and quirks so freely used in defence of criminals every where, now-a-days, is answerable for this state of affairs."

The Donaldsonville Chief, in a pointed and admirable way, comments:

"It certainly appears on the face of the record that the Bossier lynchers made a very marked distinction between white tweedledee and colored tweedle-dum, and in three out of every four instances of lynching in Louisiana the same tendency is to be observed. Notwithstanding the fact that the proportion of criminals who escape punishment in this State is fully three white to one colored, a considerable majority of those murdered by the outrageous methods of Judge Lynch are colored prisoners whose facilities for taking advantage of "legal quibbles and quirks" are far inferior to those of the white malefactor. It is a great pity for the credit of the State and its people, an example can not be made of some of these cowardly murderers who, under the pretense of punishing crime, violate the sacred rights of citizenship, break through the most valuable safeguards of society, and place themselves on a level with the worst of malefactors that infest the country. We can imagine a state of affairs that would palliate and justify a resort to extra-judicial proceedings to restore good order and suppress crime, but no such condition exists in Louisiana or in Bossier parish, and there was no adequate warrant or justification for the application of mob law in the instance just noted.

Ames Church.

We clip the following from the Central Methodist, Church South:

The Philadelphia Methodist reports that "Rev. W. C. Webb, late of Ames church, New Orleans, will be appointed to Grace church, Philadelphia, next March. It is also reported that Ames church is to be closed, and that feature of our work in New Orleans abandoned." We copy the above from a North Methodist paper, knowing nothing as to whether it be true or false. If true it is rather a significant fact that Dr. Newman's New Orleans church, the only white church in connection with the Northern Church in that section of the South, should be "abandoned," at the same time the Dr. abandons Methodism. The law of the survival of the fittest must prevail here as elsewhere. God has not promised to bless a needless church enterprise, and will not.

No, no, dear Bro. Meek, the Ames church in New Orleans is not to be closed, nor is this the feature of the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be abandoned in this city. Dr. Webb may be transferred to the Philadelphia Conference and Dr. Newman may withdraw from the Church, but rest assured that we are not quite prepared to abandon the Ames church as yet. Of all the white Methodist churches in this city, we guess (and in this guessing we are confidant that we are more than ten thousand miles nearer the truth than the Philadelphia Methodist, in its statements with reference to Ames which the Central quotes with so much seeming satisfaction) that there is not one that can show a better financial record than Ames under the wise and judicious administration of Bro. Webb during the past year.

Yes, Dr, it is just as you say, "The law of the survival of the fittest must prevail here as elsewhere."

"The morning light is breaking
The darkness disappears."

You and we have seen wonderful changes in our day. Let us hope on, and hope ever. But how strange this sounds "God has not promised to bless a needless church enterprise." We have a conviction that the one great need of New Orleans is not places for religious promenades, and grand displays of silks, satins, and flowers and ribbons, but where there shall be a little more of the John Wesley type of Methodism.

Death of an Eminent Citizen.

The Unionists, and the Republicans who participated in the early struggles incidented to the organization of their party in this State, received with sorrow the announcement that Hon. Thomas J. Durant, counsel on the part of the United States before the American and Spanish Claims Commission, died at the residence in Washington, D. C., Feb. 4, aged 64. Born in Philadelphia, at the age of seventeen he settled in New Orleans, being for a time clerk in the post-office. He was admitted to the bar 1838, and became a leading lawyer of Louisiana. After serving as State Senator, he was appointed United States District Attorney by President Polk. He afterward became Attorney-General. During the war, he was a leading Unionist. General Butler tendered the position of Governor to Mr. Durant, but he declined the offer on the ground that he could not serve subordinate to military authority. He left Louisiana in 1865 and became a citizen of Washington, where he soon took high rank as a lawyer and had a large practice before the Supreme Court. Just before the meeting of the first Republican State Convention, in response to an invitation from friends, he declined to allow the use of his name as a candidat for Governor, and refused to return to Louisiana. He was noted for integrity and purity of character.

The Texas Christian Advocate (Church South) lately addressed Dr. Edwards, of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, relative to the Methodist Episcopal Church in the South:

Most of your Southern members are negroes, but they are not your Southern "work" by long odds. They are for the most part the "work" of the Southern Church, which you took from her by the tricks of politicians. We say this to you in all kindness; but we shall continue to say it until you temper your politics with religion.

The complacent assumption by our brother of the Church South that the negro invested with citizenship, desired political or religious fellowship with those who stoutly resisted his advancement, is as unfounded as the declaration that "the tricks of politicians" produced his present allegiance to our Church. Dr. Johns should adopt some other method to convince his readers that it is possible to have religious impulses independent of sectional politics.

A disagreeable sensation was produced last week by the publication of an appeal for aid, adopted by a meeting of citizens of Caldwell parish, on the 3d inst. It was asserted that drouth, short crops and overflow had brought destitution upon Caldwell and adjoining parishes of Louisiana, and the Governor was requested to make out a requisition on the Secretary of War for rations for 80,000 people. Since then other reports have been received declaring the destitution to have been exaggerated, and suggesting the possibility of the people tiding over their misfortunes without outside aid. This seems to be a resonable view of the case, and investigation will soon determine whether poverty or something else started the appeal.

Pastor, add one more name to the list of subscribers from your church, and send it on this week.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Bishop Wightman is gradually losing strength.

—Francis Murphy's temperance work in Scotland is successful.

—Longfellow has suffered much from vertigo, and is unable to write.

—Rev. Nathan Webb, the oldest minister of East Maine Conference, died at Searsmont, Jan. 18, aged 73 years.

—Rev. Thomas Bartlett, of North western Indiana Conference, died at Terre Haute Jan. 19 aged 70 years.

—The post office address of Rev. N. Cannon, is Pass Christian, Mississippi; that of Rev. G. H. Hill, Kosciusko.

—Rev. J. F. Buenger, for forty years an able minister of the German Evangelical Lutheran Church in St. Louis, died Jan. 23, aged 72.

—The Rev. Dr. Manning, of the famous Old South Church of Boston has been voted by his congregation for the rest of his life an annual pension of $4,000.

—Rev. Hermann Luders, of the the Mexican Mission, a native of Germany, died at Puebla, January 17. He was a faithful worker, and will be greatly missed.

—Ex-Canon Campello having a throat affection which seriously affects his ministry, hopes to become editor of a daily paper in Rome, in which to better serve the cause of evangelical religion.

—Rev. George C. Milu, pastor of Unity Church, Chicago, formerly presided over by Rev. Robert Collyer, announced to his congregation that he had abandoned his belief in a Deity and in the immortality of man.

—Bishop Foster lectured at Drew Theological Seminary on "The Spirit Forces of the Universe," The Bishop has been elected to preach the next Election Sermon before the Massachusetts Legislature in 1883. He received all the votes except two. On his return from his official tour in the South he reported the growing of a specially friendly and increasing fraternal feeling between the two Methodisms.

—Mrs. A. E. Fish, widow of the late Wright R. Fish, died on the 6th inst. at 3:30 p. m. at the residence of C. W. Gould, No. 305 St. Charles street. This estimable lady never recovered from the effect of the loss of her beloved husband, a few months ago, and gradually failed in health. Her death is mourned by many friends and relatives. With other accomplishments she possessed considerable talent as a writer, and articles from her pen were welcomed by the ADVOCATE.

—Margaret Haughery died last Thursday night in this city aged 64 years. Many hearts were made sad by this announcement. A sincere Catholic, Archbishop Perche conducted the funeral service. Among the pall bearers were Govs. McEnery and Nicholls. Thousands gazed upon her remains; the whole city mourned the decease of a good and Christian woman whose charity had caused her to be revered and blessed. Her life was a noble example, and we believe there is a crown in glory for her.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

A. J. Ford, Houma: "I met this people on the 31st. The house was crowded; collections for the day, $15. From all I can see, we have a nice people here. The Sabbath-school, under M. C. B. Mason, is a good one."

TEXAS.

R. Williams, Harmony: "I was welcomed by the people. Elder Pullam held my first quarter, and we had an interesting time.

Thos. Watkins, Davilla: "Could find no Church-record here. Only two or three families own houses. A log-house is used for school and Church. The prospect for building is poor. Our people must have a house to worship God in."

W. H. Jackson writes that considerable excitement was created on his charge over a report, first started by a pastor on the Houston District, that at the next General Conference, all the colored people were to be set aside in a separate body. He is right in telling the people the report in circulation is absurd. The suggestion comes from the M. E. Church, South, to organize a united body of colored Methodists.

TENNESSEE.

S. B. Danley, Capleville: "The presiding-Elder visited us. A large number took Communion. Collection, $10 45"

J. L. Massey, Linden: "Our people are very poor; they made poor crops last year. The weather was bad before Christmas, and now all the lowlands are covered with water. Not a steamboat, up or down the Tennessee river, for two or three weeks. We are going without mail, as it is impossible to carry it on horseback. The people will try to build a Church. I am endeavoring to meet my appointments."

ARKANSAS.

A communication from A. R. Clardy, Centre-Point, conveys to us some resolutions adopted at a meeting lately held. The resolutions, offered by G. W. Sams, set forth in strong language the evils of the liquor-traffic, and pledge all at the election to be held in the State in September, to be at the polls, and use their influence with voters to cast their ballots against the granting of licenses to sell liquor. Pastors will preach on temperance among all their congregations, and give to the cause active support. W. H. Crawford addressed the meeting effectively.

From Our Mission Rooms.

COBLEIGH SEMINARY, JAPAN. Rev. C. S. Long, gives the following interesting account of the origin of the "Seminary at Nagasaki." Two years ago when I was taking leave of my friends in the chapel of the East Tennessee Wesleyan University, on the eve of my departure from Japan, 'a certain poor widow' placed in my hands two dollars saying, 'I would love to do more for you, but this is all I have. Not feeling disposed to use this widow's mite for my personal benefit, I resolved, after prayerful reflection to make it the foundation of a school at Japan. Accordingly I wrote private letters to brethren in the various Southern Conferences, asking them to assist me in accomplishing my purpose. Liberal responses came from both north and south, and in a few months the two dollars grew to $500. This sum increased by grants from the Mission, soon became $1,200, with which we have erected during the past year, on a magnificent location overlooking the ancient city of Nagasaki, and its far famed bay, a beautiful two story house, 40 by 50 feet, containing twelve splendid rooms, which I now ask the Society to accept and recognize as "Cobleigh Seminary," in honor to the poor widow who gave me the two dollars, and in memory of her lamented husband, Rev. Nelson E. Cobleigh, D.D. LL.D., my old friend and teacher. Twelve young men have already matriculated and are studying English, Chinese, and their own language, with good success. All are required to recite a lesson from the Bible each day. The prospects for the school are all that we could hope for."

SUCCESS IN NORWAY.—Rev. J. H. Johnson, writes the Secretaries: "Our Chapels and Churches are crowded with people who hunger and thirst after the truth as it is in Christ Jesus; our Sunday-schools are taking hold of the children and young people among us as never before, our love feasts, prayer-meetings and class-meetings, are becoming more and more interesting and better appreciated. From every part of the work cheering reports are coming in, testifying that sinners are being saved, and the people of God made to realize richer baptisms of the Holy Spirit."

DR. YOUNG J. ALLEN, of the M. E. Church, South, China Mission, whose letters to Superintendent Hart on the educational movement in China was recently published, is going on with the collegiate enterprise in Shanghai. He has been entrusted with this work by the Southern Board. Our building is nearly completed and two others will soon follow. The Chinese subscribe liberally. We are rejoiced at what is being accomplished by our brethren and also at these tokens from other quarters that our own educational projects in China are on the right line, and likely to move on with grand success.

SOUTH AMERICAN MISSION. Bishop Harris, was expected at Montevideo about the 15th of January. Messrs. Milve and Correa, had, at our last advice, just returned to that place from an evangelistic tour on which many Bibles were sold and many tracts distributed. The largest audience room in Montevideo was crowded with Sunday-school children, and their friends on occasion of the Christmas festival. All was under the direction and inspiration of Senior Guelfi, who says our correspondent "promises to be the Dr. Vincent of this mission."

SERMON ON PRESIDENT GARFIELD.—At Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, an appropriate and earnest popular demonstration took place Sept. 25th in memory of President Garfield. On Sunday Oct. 1, memorial services were held in the Methodist Church, in that city. Rev. M. Thomson, the devoted and energetic preacher in charge of our Spanish Mission there delivered a discourse in English in the morning, and the same in Spanish at the evening service.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.—The enormous immigration into the United States during the past year from various countries in Europe is a matter that greatly concerns the Churches, and stands in intimate relation to our Domestic Mission work. The latest account received from the Statistical Bureau at Washington, shows that the total number of immigrants arrived during the year ended Dec 31, 1881, as far as reported, was 716,-868. Of this number there arrived from Germany, 248,323; England, and Wales, 77,750; Ireland, 70 896; Scotland, 16,441; Dominion of Canada, 94,159; Austria, 19,667; Norway, 28,824; Sweden, 55,805; China, 20,628; all other countries, 86,375. Mr. Nimmo the Chief of Bureau, states the probability that returns yet to be received will show the total number of arivals for the year to have been about 710,000.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

Superintendent Bloss, of Indiana has decided that two little colored children, aged respectively six and eight years, living within fifty yards of school No. 4, in Center township, Marion county, Ind., cannot be compelled to leave said school, composed of white children, and go from two to two and a quarter miles to attend a negro school. The county superintendent had decided against the little colored children.—Western.

A call has been issued, signed by G. W. McCranie, president, and L E. Bentley, secretary, for the second annual session of the Press Association of Louisiana, to be held at Alexandria on Monday, March 20, to which place and time the Association adjourned at Baton Rouge in September of last year. Appointments for the approaching session are as follows: Orator—Ex-Chief Justice T. C. Manning of Rapides; Alternate—Geo. W. Cable, Esq., of New Orleans. The annual poem is assigned to Mrs. Mollie Moore Davis, of New Orleans.

The following is a Western press dispatch:

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 9.—The Methodist Book Committee to-day decided to abandon the Book Concern now maintained at Atlanta, on account of the losses incurred in its maintenance. Walden & Stowe, of this city, were empowered to make arrangements at Atlanta for the sale of books. The resignation of Dr. Hartzell, editor of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, New Orleans, was accepted, and the Rev. L. P. Cushman was elected by the committee and the concurrent vote of Bishops Wiley, Merrill and Warren. It was decided to discontinue the Methodist Advocate at Atlanta if its income and subsidy failed in any one quarter to pay expenses. The sum of $78,000 was apportioned for the salary of bishops this year.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

In the March Wide Awake, under the title, "How I Entertained Two Little Girls," an old schoolmate of Miss Louisa M. Alcott, will give some charming reminiscences of that popular author.

The "Home and Society" department of The Century Magazine will be devoted, during the next three or four months, to a subject of first importance to home life—the proper construction of houses with reference to protection against fire, and the dangers to health arising from imperfect drainage, bad ventilation, and damp walls. The articles will be written by experts, whose aim will be to give practical hints to persons intending to build, so that they will be able to examine intelligently the plans of architects and the work of builders. In the March number will appear the first of the series, by George Martin Huss, on "House Foundations," in which attention is also given to remedies for damp walls and cellars.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine for March opens with No. 3 of Dr. Talmage's interesting papers, "People I Have Met," descriptive of Henry Wilson, ex-Vice-President of the United States, with his latest public address and Dean Stanley. There is also an article by him on "Guiteauism," and a sermon "Thumbscrews." W. O. Gray has an admirable article, "The True Doctrine of Fairyland;" and among the other illustrated articles of great merit are "The Church of the Holy Sepulchre," "Reminiscences of an Old New Yorker," "Rome, the City of Surprises," "The Feast of the Annunciation," etc., etc. The serials, "Prudence Winterburn" and "Margaret's Enemy," are continued, and there are several highly interesting short stories, sketches and essays by distinguished writers. Address Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York City.

St. Nicholas opens for February with a story of the adventures of a Mexican prince, illustrated with a beautiful frontispiece by F. H. Lungren. Other short stories are: "The Man in the Moon," a tale full of humor, by Sophie Swett, "The Round Stone," a Hungarian Folk-story, contributed by the Hon. Jeremiah Curtin, and strikingly illustrated—"Cornwallis's Buckles," an incident of Revolutionary times, in which figure a small girl, a cow, and the English commander-in-Chief;—and "Lady Ann's Valentine," a tale full of interest and tender feeling, by Sargent Flint. "Men and Animal Shows, and How they are Moved About" is the title of an entertaining article by William O. Stoddard, crammed with information about the doings and fittings of circus-menageries. The "Very Little Folks Department" has a short illustrated story by Charles Barnard,—"Jack-in-the-Pulpit," the "Letter-box," and the "Riddle-box" are full of short and interesting paragraphs, letters from young readers, puzzles, etc., —and there is a long Report concerning the St. Nicholas Agassiz Association, which has has now 1,700 members.

The National Temperance Society has published, in pamphlet form, the able and convincing address of Gov. John P. St. John, of Kansas, delivered in the Brooklyn Tabernacle (Rev. T. SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Feb. 19, 1882.—PARABLE OF THE SOWER.

Scripture.—Mark 4: 12-20.

Golden Text.—"He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches."—Rev. 2: 29.

Quarterly Central Thought.—Christ the Healer.

Lesson Topic.—The Healer and his Word.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

The parables in this chapter of Mark and in the corresponding chapter in Matthew (Matt. 13) "are costly pearls strung on a single thread"—for they all relate to the kingdom of God. The parable of the sower illustrates its introduction into this world—"the sower went forth to sow." The parable of the tares sets forth the fact that in it there will be counterfeit members. That of the seed growing secretly presents the truth that its growth is owing to God's inward quickening grace rather than to man's care. That of the mustard seed is a prophecy of the extent of its growth—"becometh greater than all herbs." That of leaven shows its inward transforming power. That of the treasure hidden in the field, and that of the costly pearl exhibit its value. That of the net indicates the final destiny of those who are in it—good and bad. All are deeply significant, and are worth a special study both singly, and with regard to their relations to each other. A parable has been defined to be: "A serious narration, within the limits of probability, of a course of action pointing to some some moral or spiritual truth." Teaching by parable was not wholly new. It was in that way that Nathan reached the conscience of David in his story of the one ewe lamb. The disciples knew that "the sower" [illegible] sowing of the word they had often witnessed. All of the sowing that did not result in fruit failed of its object. In [illegible] sowing the seed did not spring up at all; in the second it sprang up, but withered away; in the third it sprang up, and endured, but did not bring forth fruit; the fourth only realized the desire of the sower. From this is to be [illegible] the lessons that have their evident spiritual applications: 1. That the life of the seed depends upon [illegible] the soil. [illegible] 3. That the fruiting of the [illegible] The truths in the parable were a 'mystery' only because they lay in it half revealed. Not that there are no real mysteries in the kingdom of God—but they were not yet given them to know, and some of them they never knew. There are such mysteries as the incarnation of Christ, the trinity, the presence of the Holy Spirit, etc., etc—facts, but unexplainable. Those are given to no one yet to know. Matthew makes it plain that it was addressed to those who had closed their eyes and their understanding, lest they might perceive and understand, and be healed. The purpose of the parable was to reach just such hearers. It was to reach their conscience unawares. It was to get them to see the truth in spite of their resolution not to look at it. The "word," as is explained in Matthew and in Luke, is "the word of the kingdom," and "the word of God." The 'way-side' represents the one, who because of the hardness of his heart, is an inattentive hearer. He of the rocky ground is a superficial character. His feelings lie on the surface, and are easily stirred. In the heat of a revival, he is quickly and wonderfully affected. The seed scarcely is planted before it springs up, and gives marvelous promise. Before others are moved, he is exhorting. But, after all, there is in him no real depth of feeling. But a little underneath his nature is as hard as ever. They of the good ground, according to Mark, are: "Such as hear the word and accept it." In the interpretation of this parable, there is one danger to be guarded against, and that is the thought that, in the nature of things, there is no hope for the wayside hearer, and none for the one represented by the rocky or the thorny ground. That is not true. The hardened heart represented by the way-side and the rocky ground may be broken up, and the thorns may be thoroughly uprooted. Every one, if he so chooses, may receive the word, into an "honest and good heart, and bring forth fruit with patience."

No wise woman who has flowers in her house or garden will throw away her soap-suds. They are a most valuable fertilizer for flowers and especially for the verbena. If watered with soap-suds and its seed picked off, it will flower profusely. Soap-suds are good for vinegar currant bushes and fruit trees. Indeed, they are food for plants, corresponding to milk for animals, and it is very wasteful to throw them away if there are plants anywhere within reach that may be benefited by them.

Mr. John D. Brothers, of Portsmouth, O., writes: "Two years ago I suffered from a severe attack of malarial fever; I was brought very low to death's door; I had never fully recovered, and often was distressed with biliousness, headache, sinking chills, night sweats, indigestion and painful urination. About three months ago I noticed an advertisement of Brown's Iron Bitters in a Cincinnati paper. From the first, it seemed to be just the medicine I had long needed. I am now just as strong and hearty as a buck, and weigh nearly one-half again as much as I did three months ago."

The Solution of the Problem, by J. M. Coyner.

Every mail brings letters from the East asking for documents, facts, etc., on the Mormon question, To gather these requires time and money, that becomes a great tax to the Missionary

But the information must be sent abroad over the land. Hence the actual necessity of the compilation of this Hand-Book, and of making a charge that will cover the expense.

Price, postage paid, 50 cents a single copy; 5 copies for $2; 12 copies, $3 60; 25 copies or over, 25 cents a copy.

Will not the officers of Missionary Societies, Pastors of Churches, Teachers in the Day Schools, and Superintendents of Sunday Schools make an effort to give this book a general circulation, and thus aid in arousing the public to the importance of checking the spread of this national cancer?

Money should be sent by P. O. Order, Draft, or Registered Letter. Less than one dollar can be sent in one and three cent stamps.

A WONDERFUL and SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH, Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

CHEMICO—SCIENTIFIC.

Messrs. Water and Oil
One day had a broil,
As down in the grass they were dropping,
And would not unite
But continued to fight,

He jumped in the midst of the clashing ;
When all three agreed,
And united with speed,
And Soap came out ready for washing.

Circumstantial Evidence.

A lawyer in Central New-York, gives the following account of one of his first cases:

My client sued a neighbor for the alleged killing of a favorite dog. The proof consisted in the mysterious disappearance of the animal, and the possession of a dog's skin by the defendant, which, after considerable argument, was brought into court in evidence. It was marked in a singular manner, and was positively identified, with many tears, by the plaintiff's wife and daughter, as the undoubted integument of the deceased Bose. In summing up to the jury, I was in the midst of a highly colored picture of the virtues of the deceased, and of the love of the children for their four-footed friend, when I was interrupted by a slight disturbance in the crowd near the door of the little school-house which served as a court-house. Looking around, I saw my client's youngest son, a tow-headed urchin of twelve, coming forward with a dog whose skin was the exact counterpart of the one put in evidence. The dog wagged his tail with good natured composure, and the boy cried, in his childish treble, "Paw, Bose has come home." I gathered up my law books and retreated, and I have never had perfect confidence in circumstantial evidence since.—Harper's Magazine.

Putting Off.

A preacher determined to preach on the text, "Now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation." While in his study thinking, he fell asleep and dreamed he was carried into hell, and sat down in the midst of a conclave of lost spirits. They were assembled to devise means to get at the souls of men. One rose and said:

"I will go to the earth and tell men the Bible is a fable, and that it is not divinely appointed of God."

"No, that will not do," said another, "let me go; I will tell them that there is no God, no Saviour, no heaven, no hell;" and at the last word a fiendish smile lighted up their countenances.

"No, that will not do; we cannot make men believe that."

Suddenly one arose, and with a wise mien, like the serpent of old, suggested: "No, I will journey to the world of men, and tell them that there is a God, that there is a Savior, that there is a heaven—yes, a hell too—but I will tell them there is no hurry; to-morrow will do, it will be 'even as to day;'" and they went.

A Laughable Story.

Once upon a time, as the story runs, a man owned a parrot, which, try as he would, he could never teach to say any thing, except, "There is no doubt about it."

The gentleman took the parrot to the fair one day, to see if he could sell it.

"Who'll buy my parrot? Only ten dollars!"

A gentleman passing stopped and looked at the bird, and then asked:

"Poll, are you worth that much?"

"There is no doubt about it!" answered Poll.

He was very much pleased with the bird and bought it; and one day, after he found out his mistake, he was standing near the cage, and he said to himself, out loud:

"What a fool I was to give ten dollars for that bird!"

"There is no doubt about it!" sang out Poll.

And this time she was right.

Sunshine at Home.

Many a child goes astray, not because there is a want at home, but simply because home lacks sunshine. A child needs smiles as much as the flowers need sunbeams. Children look little beyond the present moment. If a thing pleases, they are apt to seek it; if it displeases, they are apt to avoid it. If home is a place where faces are sour and words harsh, and fault-finding is ever on the ascendant, they will spend as many hours as possible elsewhere.

UNDOUBTED CURES OF CONSUMPTION.

The Originals of the following Letters, as well as many thousand others, which lack of space in this paper prevents our publishing, can be seen by any one at the Office of Dr. J. H. Schenck & Son, in Philadelphia.

We ask the afflicted to go and see the people who write these Letters. If this is impossible, write to them, enclosing a stamp for return postage.

For other Certificates of Cures send for Dr. Schenck's Book on Consumption, Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. It gives a full description of these diseases in their various forms, also, valuable information in regard to the diet and clothing of the sick; how and when exercise should be taken, &c. This book is the result of many years experience in the treatment of Lung Diseases, and should be read, not only by the afflicted, but by those from who, hereditary taint or other cause, suppose themselves liable to any affection of the throat or lungs.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, Philadelphia:

Dear Sir—Some years ago I was taken with inflammation of the lungs, and although treated by two of the best physicians of this city, I gradually grew worse, until I had hemorrhages quite frequently. They usually occured in the morning, and averaged fully a pint of clear blood at a time. I had night sweats every night, and my weight, which was 168 lb. when I was first taken sick, gradually ran down to 122 lb. My nights were almost sleepless, owing to the severe pain in my breast, back and shoulders, and a continual cough. I was so sick that my physicians gave up all hope of my recovery. I then began to try medicines, that I saw advertised, but without any lasting benefit. At last, by the advice of a friend, I concluded to use your remedies.

I began by using all your medicines as you direct and in a very short time all my worst symptoms left me and I began to gain in every way. As my appetite came back I gained flesh very fast. From June to November the increase was over fifty pounds. My present weight is 174 pounds and has been about that since my recovery several years since. I was told by my physicians that I had Consumption, and I believe myself I had, and that your medicine cured me. Yours Very Truly,

J. C. ELLIOTT.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

New York, November 8th, 1881.

DR. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—In looking over one of your books, in which I find so many letters recommending your medicines, I have thought to myself how negligent I have been in not making my case public, that others may take warning. In visiting my friends in New Jersey a short time since my attention was drawn to the many advertisements in large letters on different buildings and fences: Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, Mandrake Pills. As I looked at these tears of gratitude fell from my eyes, and I thought with a blessing that such a man as Dr. Schenck should be sent among us. Twenty-seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold, which settled on my lungs. I took many things that were recommended for colds, but nothing seemed to relieve me. I made gallons of syrups with many different kinds of herbs; still I got no better. My husband would consult doctors, but they gave him no encouragement, only said I must die. I had then been afflicted over 7 years. One of my sons came in one day and said to me "mother, I have heard of a Dr. Schenck that is making great cures in Consumption; will you see him?" I had given up all hope of recovery, but he insisted upon it. Consequently I was taken over to Dr. Schenck, then in Bond St. He examined my lungs and gave me encouragement. I took the Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills about two months and felt as well as ever I did. I have enjoyed good health ever since, and if any of my family take cold it is our only medicine. I am this day 67 years of age, and can walk and attend to business as well as any man at 40. If there are any that wish to know the particulars of my case they are at liberty to call on me.

Yours Truly, MRS SARAH LAWSON.

FROM F. NARMANDIN, Jr., Esq. OF Woonsocket, R. I.

DR. SCHENCK & SON, Philadelphia:

Dear Sirs—I have been cured of what I believe to have been Liver Complaint in its worst form, which, before I got relief, affected my lungs quite seriously. I had used the medicines prescribed by a physician of this place for a long time without benefit before I began to take your remedies. I first heard of them by your advertisement in the Patriot of this place, and concluded to use them. I purchased a bottle of Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic. They gave me great relief, and by the time I had used them up I felt almost well. So I stopped using them for some time, but I soon found that the disease was not broken up. I then got more medicine and continued using it until I was well.

My symptoms were continuous cough, night sweats, raising of matter streaked with blood, soreness in my lungs and at the pit of my stomach, which was also very swollen at times. I was so weak that I could not go up stairs without help and was confined to the house for many weeks. I was very much reduced in flesh, and had no appetite, and nothing I ate seemed to digest.

Since my recovery I have recommended your medicines to a great many, among others, a lady who had what everybody supposed to be Consumption of the lungs for four years. She has entirely recovered by the use of them, and is now a strong healthy woman. I can also refer to others in this place who have been greatly benefited by their use.

Yours Truly, E. NARMANDIN, JR.
Woonsocket, R. I., June 1st, 1881.

The Rev. Joseph S. Lame, Pastor of 18th Street Methodist Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, writes under date of September 1st, 1881:

Five years ago I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, Bronchial Affection and Pulmonary trouble. I tried many remedies without receiving any benefit. I was so sick that I thought many times that I should be compelled to give up preaching. I at last procured Dr. Schenck's remedies; in a short time they restored me to perfect health, and I have remained well to this day. I believe them to have great curative properties.

Why I have the Utmost Confidence in Dr. J. H. Schenck and his Medicines.

During the past two years, my mother and brother have died of Consumption. I was myself quite unwell most of this time, and when, shortly after their death, I was attacked with cough and severe hemorrhages, I naturally concluded that I was destined to go with the same disease. I immediately consulted a physician, who made a speciality of lung diseases. After examining me, he said that he thought my lungs were sound, and that I would soon recover. In less than a week after this, I had another hemorrhage. Thinking that my physician had made a mistake in my case, I consulted another doctor. He thought my lungs affected, and prescribed for me for a long time. I got no better under his treatment, but gradually grew worse. My cough was very bad, my appetite entirely gone, I had severe pain in my right side, and for months I did not sleep more than two or three hours in a night. My tongue was heavily coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth. I had the headache almost all the time.

Feeling that something must be done, I at last concluded to consult with Dr. Schenck, the physician who, I think, I have good reason to believe to be the best in treatment of lung disease. I went to his office in Boston, and was examined. He found my left lung quite badly diseased, and my liver seriously affected. He told me that I could be cured if I would follow his directions. Of course, I consented to do so, and I very soon saw that my confidence in his ability was well placed. I took the Mandrake Pills, Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup all at one time, as directed by him, and within one month my worst symptoms were gone. I went to see the Doctor on his visit to Boston, which was one month after the first time I saw him, and he said, "Only continue with the medicine and you will surely get well." I did so, and kept on gaining in every way until I was perfectly well, and able to work as usual. Since my recovery I have not lost a day's time, except when I have made friendly visits to the Doctor at his Boston office. My cough is gone, my appetite is good, I have no headache or pain in my side, I sleep better than I ever did in my life, and my lungs are apparently healed, as I have no hemorrhages.

These are the reasons why I believe in and recommend Dr. J. H. Schenck and his medicines. He did just what he said he would do for me, and I believe that I owe my life to his medicines and care. FRED. F. TRULL.

Hereditary Consumption Cured.

DR. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—In the autumn of 1877 I had a severe cough, with terrible pain in my sides and between my shoulders. I had very little appetite, and what little I could eat only distressed me. I consulted physicians, who said my condition was a very bad one and gave me five different cough syrups and tonics, from which I received no benefit, but seemed to grow worse, and kept losing flesh and strength. I had night sweats, and sweat most of the time during the day. I coughed and raised blood and a salt, foamy phlegm; my throat was filled with ulcers, I could hardly swallow; sometimes I could not speak a loud word for weeks; my lungs grew more painful every day with difficult breathing, while pleurisy pains would almost stop my breath. I had colic pains, sour stomach and vomiting up everything I ate. My whole body was filled with pain. I could not lie down, but had to recline in a sitting posture to breathe.

I gave up and did not think of getting up again, as it was hard moving myself; my feet and ankles began to swell badly, and my hips had given out long before.

In this sinking condition, I thought I would try your remedy for consumption; it might do me some good, it could do me no harm, for I was certain I could not live a month longer the way I was.

At that time, May, 1878, I procured your Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Pills, and took them as directed. In a week I was better and began to throw off from the lungs a greenish yellow matter streaked with blood.

I could eat a little without throwing it up, the pains in my sides were not so severe, I could sleep an hour very soundly, and that was what I had not done for three months.

I took your medicines steadily six months, my cough got better, I did not sweat so bad at nights, kept gaining slowly, and in a year after I began your medicines I could say I felt well.

I began to gain flesh, and last September weighed one hundred and thirty-five pounds, fifteen pounds more than I ever weighed before in my life.

Your medicines, I know, saved my life; and I would say, from my own experience, to all consumptives, take Dr. Schenck's medicines, for they will certainly cure you.

I had Consumption, it is hereditary in our family, my father and two brothers having died of it.

I have had better health the past Winter than for ten years previous. Yours Respectfully,

MRS. SARAH A. CARTER.

Carlisle, Mass., April 5th, 1880.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—About sixteen years ago, while living in Canada, my health became very poor. My disease came on gradually, beginning with a loss of appetite and afterwards great weakness, which brought on night sweats and a dry, hacking cough. My chest and back were very weak, and so sore that I could not bear my weight against the back of a chair. At different times I raised considerable blood, which my physician said came from the lungs. I employed several doctors, but they all told me the same thing—that my lungs were badly affected; and the last one that I had also said that I could live but a short time, and that I had better go to my mother's home in Winstead, Ct., as soon as I could, that with careful nursing I might live for some time. When I got to my mother's I was very low indeed, so that my mother sent for her doctor. He pronounced me beyond help. He, however, left me some medicine which he said would relieve my worst symptoms. After this, my mother employed another doctor, who said that one of my lungs was nearly gone. I ate scarcely anything for several months, and never expected to get well. One day, a friend who lived in Collinsville, Ct., gave my father one of your pamphlets on Consumption. He brought it home and told me to look it over and see if any of the cases described in it were like mine. I read the book through, and found so many cases described there that seemed as bad as mine, that were cured, that I began to hope that I too might recover by using the medicines. My father, finding that they were not kept in Winstead, sent to New York and got a supply. In one week after I began their use, my night sweats ceased, and my appetite began to improve. In two weeks after this I was much better in every way; I commenced to use the medicines in March; in July I felt quite strong; in two months more I was well, and I have had good health ever since. I believe that I would not be alive to-day but for the use of your medicines, as all the doctors I had said my disease was Consumption, and that I was incurable.

Yours Truly, MRS. CHAS. PLUMMER.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir—Seeing one of your agents distributing your books in this village a few days ago, he reminded me of the past, and has made me feel that I ought to acknowledge with gratitude the benefit I once received from your medicines.

I was a soldier in the army from 1862 to 1865, and when mustered out was in a crippled state, having had during my service, scurvy and camp fever, which, with malaria of the swamps in which much of our operations were carried on, left me diseased all over. I was soon attacked with chronic diarrhœa and a constant, hacking cough. My whole nervous system was completely prostrated. I was apparently fast approaching the grave. In looking over the newspapers to find something advertised that would do me good, I found the advertisement of your medicines. Though I had but little faith, I bought the Syrup and Tonic, and commenced their use. I soon found that what you said of your medicines was true, for they worked an entire revolution in my system—my cough gradually grew less until it disappeared altogether, as also my diarrhœa and other alarming symptoms, and I was entirely cured.

I shall always hold in grateful remembrance two things: the "Cooper Shop" Free Refreshment Saloon for Soldiers, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Schenck's Medicines, of Philadelphia. I believe the medicines saved my life, as I have stated. Pardon the late acknowledgement of the great benefit I have received from you.

Your Obedient Servant,
JOEL S. STEVENS.

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Do not produce sickness at the stomach, nausea or griping. On the contrary, they are so mild and agreeable in their action that a person suffering with sick headache, sour stomach, or pain in the bowels, is speedily relieved of these distressing symptoms. They act directly on the liver, the organ which, when in a healthy condition, purifies the blood for the whole body.

They are a perfect preparation of that great and well know remedy, Mandrake or Podophyllin, a remedy that has displaced the use of mercury, as many other poisonous drugs, in the practice of every intelligent physician.

Prof. John King, of the College of Medicines, of Cincinnati, says: "In constipation it acts upon the bowels without disposing them to subsequent costiveness. In Chronic Liver Complaint there is not its equal in the whole range of medicines, being vastly more useful than mercurial agents, arousing the liver to healthy action, increasing the flow of bile, and keeping up these actions longer than any other agent with which we are acquainted." (See the American Dispensatory, page 790.)

In all cases of Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, when there is great weakness or debility, Dr. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic should be used in connection with these Pills.

DR. HARTER'S
Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession, for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.

GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and sinking chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark, and Phosphates, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It serves every purpose where a Tonic is necessary.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

Circumstantial Evidence.

A lawyer in Central New-York, gives the following account of one of his first cases:

My client sued a neighbor for the alleged killing of a favorite dog. [illegible] friend, when I was interrupted by a slight disturbance in the crowd near the door of the little school-house which served as a court-house. Looking around, I saw my client's youngest son, a tow-headed urchin of twelve, coming forward with a dog whose skin was the exact counterpart of the one put in evidence. The dog wagged his tail with good natured composure, and the boy cried, in his childish treble, "Paw, Bose has come home." I gathered up my law books and retreated, and I have never had perfect confidence in circumstantial evidence since.—Harper's Magazine.

Putting Off.

A preacher determined to preach on the text, "Now is the accepted time; now is the day of salvation." While in his study thinking, he fell asleep and dreamed he was carried into hell, and sat down in the midst of a conclave of lost spirits. They were assembled to devise means to get at the souls of men. One rose and said:

"I will go to the earth and tell men the Bible is a fable, and that it is not divinely appointed of God."

"No, that will not do," said another, "let me go; I will tell them that there is no God, no Saviour, no heaven, no hell;" and at the last word a fiendish smile lighted up their countenances.

"No, that will not do; we cannot make men believe that."

Suddenly one arose, and with a wise mien, like the serpent of old, suggested: "No, I will journey to the world of men, and tell them that there is a God, that there is a Savior, that there is a heaven—yes, a hell too—but I will tell them there is no hurry; to-morrow will do, it will be 'even as to day;'" and they went.

A Laughable Story.

Once upon a time, as the story runs, a man owned a parrot, which, try as he would, he could never teach to say any thing, except, "There is no doubt about it."

The gentleman took the parrot to the fair one day, to see if he could sell it.

"Who'll buy my parrot? Only ten dollars!"

A gentleman passing stopped and looked at the bird, and then asked;

"Poll, are you worth that much?"

"There is no doubt about it!" answered Poll.

He was very much pleased with the bird and bought it; and one day, after he found out his mistake, he was standing near the [illegible] I was to give ten [illegible]

The Best REMEDY KNOWN to Man!

11,000,000 Bottles SOLD SINCE 1870.

This Syrup possesses Varied Properties.

It Stimulates the Ptyaline in the Saliva, which converts the Starch and Sugar of the food into glucose. A deficiency in Ptyaline causes Wind and Souring of the food in the stomach. If the medicine is taken immediately after eating the fermentation of food is prevented.

It acts upon the Liver. It acts upon the Kidneys. It Regulates the Bowels. It Purifies the Blood. It Quiets the Nervous System. It Promotes Digestion. It Nourishes, Strengthens and Invigorates. It carries off the Old Blood and makes new. It opens the pores of the skin and induces Healthy Perspiration.

It neutralizes the hereditary taint, or poison in the blood, which generates Scrofula, Erysipelas, and all manner of skin diseases and internal humors.

There are no spirits employed in its manufacture, and it can be taken by the most delicate babe, or by the aged and feeble, care only being required in attention to directions.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

[illegible] I was so sick that my physicians gave up all hope of my recovery, I then began to try medicines, that I saw advertised, but without any lasting benefit. At last, by the advice of a friend, I concluded to use your remedies.

I began by using all your medicines as you direct and in a very short time all my worst symptoms left me and I began to gain in every way. As my appetite came back I gained flesh very fast. From June to November the increase was over fifty pounds. My present weight is 174 pounds and has been about that since my recovery several years since. I was told by my physicians that I had Consumption, and I believe myself I had, and that your medicine cured me. Yours Very Truly,

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

New York, November 8th, 1881.

DR. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—In looking over one of your books, in which I find so many letters recommending your medicines, I have thought to myself how negligent I have been in not making my case public, that others may take warning. In visiting my friends in New Jersey a short time since my attention was drawn to the many advertisements in large letters on different buildings and fences: Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic, Mandrake Pills. As I looked at these tears of gratitude fell from my eyes, and I thought with a blessing that such a man as Dr. Schenck should be sent among us. Twenty-seven years ago I contracted a heavy cold, which settled on my lungs. I took many things that were recommended for colds, but nothing seemed to relieve me. I made gallons of syrups with many different kinds of herbs; still I got no better. My husband would consult doctors, but they gave him no encouragement, only said I must die. I had then been afflicted over 7 years. One of my sons came in one day and said to me "mother, I have heard of a Dr. Schenck that is making great cures in Consumption; will you see him!" I had given up all hope of recovery, but he insisted upon it. Consequently I was taken over to Dr. Schenck, then in Bond St. He examined my lungs and gave me encouragement. I took the Pulmonic Syrup, Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills about two months and felt as well as ever I did. I have enjoyed good health ever since, and if any of my family take cold it is our only medicine. I am this day 67 years of age, and can walk and attend to business as well as any man at 40. If there are any that wish to know the particulars of my case they are at liberty to call on me.

Yours Truly, MRS SARAH LAWSON.

FROM F. NARMANDIN, Jr., Esq. OF Woonsocket, R. I.

DR. SCHENCK & SON, Philadelphia:

Dear Sirs—I have been cured of what I believe to have been Liver Complaint in its worst form, which, before I got relief, affected my lungs quite seriously. I had used the medicines prescribed by a physician of this place for a long time without benefit before I began to take your remedies. I first heard of them by your advertisement in the Patriot of this place, and concluded to use them. I purchased a bottle of Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic. They gave me great relief, and by the time I had used them up I felt almost well. So I stopped using them for some time, but I soon found that the disease was not broken up. I then got more medicine and continued using it until I was well.

My symptoms were continuous cough, night sweats, raising of matter streaked with blood, soreness in my lungs and at the pit of my stomach, which was also very swollen at times. I was so weak that I could not go up stairs without help and was confined to the house for many weeks. I was very much reduced in flesh, and had no appetite, and nothing I ate seemed to digest.

Since my recovery I have recommended your medicines to a great many, among others, a lady who had what everybody supposed to be Consumption of the lungs for four years. She has entirely recovered by the use of them, and is now a strong healthy woman. I can also refer to others in this place who have been greatly benefited by their use.

Yours Truly, E. NARMANDIN, JR.

Woonsocket, R. I., June 1st, 1881.

The Rev. Joseph S. Lame, Pastor of 18th Street Methodist Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, writes under date of September 1st, 1881:

Five years ago I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, Bronchial Affection and Pulmonary trouble. I tried many remedies without receiving any benefit. I was so sick that I thought many times that I should be compelled to give up preaching. I at last procured Dr. Schenck's remedies; in a short time they restored me to perfect health, and I have remained well to this day. I believe them to have great curative properties.

Why I have the Utmost Confidence in Dr. J. H. Schenck and his Medicines.

During the past two years, my mother and brother have died of Consumption. I was myself quite unwell most of this time, and when, shortly after their death, I was attacked with cough and severe hemorrhages, I naturally concluded that I was destined to go with the same disease. I immediately consulted a physician, who made a speciality of lung diseases. After examining me, he said that he thought my lungs were sound, and that I would soon recover. In less than a week after this, I had another hemorrhage. Thinking that my physician had made a mistake in my case, I consulted another doctor. He thought my lungs affected, and prescribed for me for a long time. I got no better under his treatment, but gradually grew worse. My cough was very bad, my appetite entirely gone, I had severe pain in my right side, and for months I did not sleep more than two or three hours in a night. My tongue was heavily coated and I had a bad taste in my mouth. I had the headache almost all the time.

Feeling that something must be done, I at last concluded to consult with Dr. Schenck, the physician who, I think, I have good reason to believe to be the best in treatment of lung disease. I went to his office in Boston, and was examined. He found my left lung quite badly diseased, and my liver seriously affected. He told me that I could be cured if I would follow his directions. Of course, I consented to do so, and I very soon saw that my confidence in his ability was well placed. I took the Mandrake Pills, Seaweed Tonic and Pulmonic Syrup all at one time, as directed by him, and within one month my worst symp-

Hereditary Consumption Cured.

DR. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—In the autumn of 1877 I had a severe cough, with terrible pain in my sides and between my shoulders. I had very little appetite, and what little I could eat only distressed me. I consulted physicians, who said my condition was a very bad one and gave me five different cough syrups and tonics, from which I received no benefit but seemed to grow worse, and kept losing flesh and at length I had night sweats and sweat most of the time during the day. [illegible]

Your medicines, I know, saved my life, and I would say, from my own experience, to all consumptives, take Dr. Schenck's medicines, for they will certainly cure you.

I had Consumption, it is hereditary in our family, my father and two brothers having died of it.

I have had better health the past Winter than for ten years previous. Yours Respectfully,

MRS. SARAH A. CARTER.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK:

Dear Sir—About sixteen years ago, while living in Canada, my health became very poor. My disease came on gradually, beginning with a loss of appetite and afterwards great weakness, which brought on night sweats and a dry, hacking cough. My chest and back were very weak, and so sore that I could not bear my weight against the back of a chair. At different times I raised considerable blood, which my physician said came from the lungs. I employed several doctors, but they all told me the same thing—that my lungs were badly affected; and the last one that I had also said that I could live but a short time, and that I had better go to my mother's home in Winstead, Ct., as soon as I could, that with careful nursing I might live for some time. When I got to my mother's I was very low indeed, so that my mother sent for her doctor. He pronounced me beyond help. He, however, left me some medicine which he said would relieve my worst symptoms. After this, my mother employed another doctor, who said that one of my lungs was nearly gone. I ate scarcely anything for several months, and never expected to get well. One day, a friend who lived in Collinsville, Ct., gave my father one of your pamphlets on Consumption. He brought it home and told me to look it over and see if any of the cases described in it were like mine. I read the book through, and found so many cases described there that seemed as bad as mine, that were cured, that I began to hope that I too might recover by using the medicines. My father, finding that they were not kept in Winstead, sent to New York and got a supply. In one week after I began their use, my night sweats ceased, and my appetite began to improve. In two weeks after this I was much better in every way; I commenced to use the medicines in March; in July I felt quite strong; in two months more I was well, and I have had good health ever since. I believe that I would not be alive to-day but for the use of your medicines, as all the doctors I had said my disease was Consumption, and that I was incurable.

Yours Truly, MRS. CHAS. PLUMMER.

April 29th, 1881. 274 Main St., Springfield, Mass.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir—Seeing one of your agents distributing your books in this village a few days ago, he reminded me of the past, and has made me feel that I ought to acknowledge with gratitude the benefit I once received from your medicines.

I was a soldier in the army from 1862 to 1865, and when mustered out was in a crippled state, having had during my service, scurvy and camp fever, which, with malaria of the swamps in which much of our operations were carried on, left me diseased all over. I was soon attacked with chronic diarrhœa and a constant, hacking cough. My whole nervous system was completely prostrated. I was apparently fast approaching the grave: In looking over the newspapers to find something advertised that would do me good, I found the advertisement of your medicines. Though I had but little faith, I bought the Syrup and Tonic, and commenced their use. I soon found that what you said of your medicines was true, for they worked an entire revolution in my system—my cough gradually grew less until it disappeared altogether, as also my diarrhœa and other alarming symptoms, and I was entirely cured.

I shall always hold in grateful remembrance two things: the "Cooper Shop" Free Refreshment Saloon for Soldiers, of Philadelphia, and Dr. Schenck's Medicines, of Philadelphia. I believe the medicines saved my life, as I have stated. Pardon the late acknowledgement of the great benefit I have received from you.

Your Obedient Servant,

JOEL S. STEVENS.

DR. SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS

Do not produce sickness at the stomach, nausea or griping. On the contrary, they are so mild and agreeable in their action that a person suffering with sick headache, sour stomach, or pain in the bowels, is speedily relieved of these distressing symptoms. They act directly on the liver, the organ which, when in a healthy condition, purifies the blood for the whole body.

They are a perfect preparation of that great and well know remedy, Mandrake or Podophyllin, a remedy that has displaced the use of mercury, as many other poisonous drugs, in the practice of every intelligent physician.

Prof. John King, of the College of Medicines, of Cincinnatti, says: "In consitpation it acts upon the bowels without disposing them to subsequent costiveness. In Chronic Liver Complaint there is not its equal in the whole range of medicines, being vastly more useful than mercurial agents, arousing the liver to healthy action, increasing the flow of bile, and keeping up these actions longer than any other agent with which we are acquainted." (See the American Dispensatory, page 720.)

In all cases of Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, when there is great weakness or debility, Dr. Schenck's Seaweed Tonic should be used in connection with these Pills.

NOT LOST.

The look of sympathy, the gentle word
Spoken so low that only angels heard,
The secret service of pure self-sacrifice,
Unseen by man, but marked by angels' eyes,
These are not lost.

The happy dreams that gladden all our youth,
When dreams had less of self and more of truth,
The childhood's faith, so tranquil and so sweet,
Which sat like Mary at the Master's feet,
These are not lost.

The kindly plan devised for others' good,
So seldom guessed, so little understood,
The quiet, steadfast love that strove to win
Some wanderer from the ways of sin,
These are not lost.

Not lost, O Lord! for in thy city bright
Our eyes shall see the past by clearer light;
And things long hidden from our gaze below,
Thou wilt reveal, and we shall surely know,
These are not lost.

The Negro's Remaining Disabilities.

BY BISHOP WARREN.

Dear Methodist: Your request for an occasional letter, suggested by observation and experience, shall have immediate response.

Your own manly protest, in the issue of January 21st, against the practical exclusion of the negro from West Point, furnishes a theme. Good, my brother! stand for the rights of all at your end of the country, and we will do our best for the rights of all at ours. We of the South have had so many kindly things said of us lately that we almost blush at the compliments, and forget that they are not the truth. One of your own correspondents puts in your columns the following: "All the Southern States east of the mountains have good systems for common schools, equally good for both races, and administered with impartiality." Let that statement be tested for truth. We do not want any flattery. Take the case of Bibb County, including Macon, Ga. The schools of this county are exceptionally good, and under a board containing several distinguished names. Their report of August, 1881, gives the following facts: White persons in the city of school age, 1,453; colored, 1,881. Teachers for whites, twenty-eight—one for every fifty-two pupils; teachers for colored, eight—one for every 235 pupils. Number of white persons outside city of school age, 1,289; colored, 3,281. Teachers for whites, seventeen—one to every 75.7 pupils: teachers for colored, fifteen—one for every 218.7 pupils. "Equally good for both races and administered with impartiality!"

In the city there are six schools, for whites, two for colored—one of them taught by seventeen white ladies. There is a high school, crowning the whole system with inciting prizes and the competition of ardent minds; above that is a grand female college with a magnificent endowment. Can a colored youth be admitted into either of these? On no consideration whatever, even if the fraction of negro blood is so infinitesimal that it requires an expert or pedigree to recognize it. They must be content with schools of lower grade lamentably deficient in number and accommodations, and subsequent exclusion from rights of social and political [illegible] are an incentive to every [illegible] youth of Caucasian blood.

Of the colored pupils in the city, there is an average attendance of one to every 7.5 and in the country of one to every six pupils. In the country there is a teacher of whites for every 19.5 in daily attendance, a teacher of colored to every thirty-[illegible]. The white schools are a month longer than the colored. A principal of a white grammar-school in the city gets $80 per month; of the one colored grammar-school, $40 a month. "Paint me as I am," says stern old Cromwell. So says the South.

There are yet two States that give nothing for the education of colored people, except the pittance than can be raised from their own poverty. We do not publish that we administer with impartiality. Thirty years ago, De Bow's Review said: "What the South needs is an aristocracy. We know it takes half a thousand serfs to support one aristocrat. Nevertheless, we want an aristocracy. We practised on that idea and fought for it; to expect us to so change in a decade or two as to treat the serf and the aristocrat with impartiality is expecting too much."

Disabilities other than educational yet remain. The negroes in many States are compelled to ride in filthy smoking-cars, and at the same time pay first class fare. The ladies trained in refinement in our colleges are compelled to go into the herd of rude fellows of the baser sort, and the vile atmosphere of the smoking-car. It is not so in North or South Carolina. A gentleman who had travelled through the North told me that for two months it never occurred to him that he was not a man. But reaching Kentucky he was reminded that he was only a nigger by being ordered out of a car. In Atlanta, no colored person can buy a glass of soda-water at the druggist's. Small matters, say you? Yes, but it is not a small thing for a race to get used to being insulted, nor a small thing for a race to get used to insulting another. The slave collar galls even if it is on a favored servant, and one of the worst parts of one's nature to develop is that which swings a whip, be it of leather or of that which stings sharper.

The Planter's Journal, "pronounced by a united press the most important movement of modern times for the South," quotes approvingly from the Kentucky Live Stock Journal: "One of the questions to be decided in the near future of Kentucky is to get rid of the redundant colored population. The question of inducing colored emigration from Kentucky is not, in our opinion, so difficult of satisfactory solution as some think. If proper sanitary laws are adopted and enforced in our cities and towns where they do most congregate, it would act virtually with prohibitory effect upon the most objectionable of this population. It is right that the people of Kentucky should be stirred up to get rid of the redundant negro population. Let the coming legislature adopt some plan to induce the negro to emigrate from Kentucky." The policeman finds a cold, hungry, weary wretch sheltering himself in a doorway; his word is not an offer of clothes, food, warmth, but "move on." It is the part of humanity to feed the starving crew rather than to cut down their flag of distress or tow them out of sight. The remedy for unwholesome sanitary condition is not to set men on a life like the wandering Jew's, with a horror worse than death haunting him in every place, but to induce reform. There is need enough of it, God knows.

Before me lie the statistics of mortality of a moderate-sized, well drained, healthy city. The mortality is sixty per cent greater among the colored than the whites. How can it be otherwise? The thermometer took a surge down to zero or near it, in Atlanta, last Christmas a year. The homes of the poor could hardly be called a protection; their clothes were rags; wood was at famine prices. I wonder they did not perish by hundreds. Then they are too poor to pay for physicians, and are often suspicious of them, especially if one or two of their acquaintances chance to die under their care. Many are vehemently opposed to vaccination. They are ignorant of sanitary nursing, and know little of articles of diet for the sick. It is pitiable in the last degree. If these statistics are applicable to the South at large, there is a needless mortality of 60,000 a year—a frequent Gettysburg slaughter, and every one unmoved. There has been but one medical college in the South for the training physicians for this suffering race. It does the grandest work, but is crippled for want of funds for a dormitory and dispensary. It never cost but $12,000, and is supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society. Many physicians will read this article in your columns. They are also professing Christians. If they respond with $5,000 to help the medical college at Nashville, no one may question their faith in the reality of their Christian profession. When we have the yellow fever, the North, anxious to express its sympathy, sends down a Mississippi of charity, hundreds of dollars for every man, woman and child attacked. These perils demand as great Christian charity and immediate help.

This letter begun in Chattanooga is finished in Charleston. Weeks ago. streams of the exodus from South Carolina were going through Atlanta. These negroes have the impression that they yet have remaining disabilities. The answer of one to the question, "Why do you go?" was, "We can't see why fifty white men should allers outvote two hundred negroes. We want our rights and will go till we get them." Alas! who got their rights by going? I am most happy to say that this emigration is from only a few counties, and those in which there has been the most reported political persecution. Where our church has given them education, church homes and a guiding ministry, very few leave. It will illustrate our difficulties in the South when I repeat what was told me by those in position to know, that in a former exodus, in another State, we lost one thousand members by removal from a single district in one year.

We are grappling with the greatest problem of this age of humanity. You must not expect a speedy and complete solution. Weakness, wickedness, selfishness, all elements of evil, are leagued against success. Only a few elements of good are thoroughly combined and determined to prevail. A nation has been born in a day, but, if it comes to the perfect stature of manhood in half a century, it will outstrip all previous growths. Continue in every possible way to help.

The World Moves.

BY J. W. E. BOWEN.

How imperceptible is the revolution of this earth. Say to an ignorant man that the earth revolves upon its axis once in twenty four hours, and he at once, with an egotistic air of victory, makes use of his logical argument and to him incontrovertible, "Why doesn't the pail empty itself of the water we have put into it? We stand upon any part of our earth and look around upon our horizon skirted and furrowed with hills, and mountains, and vales all wooded and alive with God's creations, praising God with a thousand voices, and ask, does this world turn over and wheel around through space? The answer comes from the common school boy, we are whirling through space at the enormous rate of nineteen miles per second. Marvelous speed!

So marvelous in its speed, and revolutionizing in its effect is the changed state of affairs in dealing man with man. Take the following incident as an evidence of this change: The Rev. Mr. Hammond has held a series of meetings in our three Institutions in this city, and has been quite successful. On Sabbath, February 5th, all the converts from our Institutions were invited to attend services in the Cumberland Presbyterian church of this city, the Rev. Baird pastor. The spacious audience room was filled, over one-third colored and two-thirds white. Great care was manifested that the colored students should all sit together. While this is not what was expected, yet it marks a changed state of feelings in our white brethren, in that, the good Dr. Baird has had the Christian friendliness, and manhood, to dare to do right, to cut loose from his old moorings, to trample under foot the current conventionalism, and invite his "brother in black" to worship God with him.

How difficult it was for Peter to overcome his prejudice, and comprehend the truth, that out of one flesh God made all nations is told us in the sacred narrative. Human prejudice will not down at our bidding; civil laws are powerless in their influence to eradicate it; it is a barrier of no mean consideration, and must be taken into account.

Only by careful training, right education, and the benign influence of the Gospel of Truth can a man rise up out of these trammels and look out into the great universe and realize more than "me, my wife, my son John, his wife and nobody else."

It is an admitted fact that law cannot create sentiment, but sentiment creates law, hence the logical sequence where sentiment, there, law. If the Christian churches were in favor of the "brother in black" worshipping with the brother in white, that would be a law in itself. But we discuss not this question at this juncture. More anon.

If in a community there is a sentiment against intemperance, this of itself is an unwritten law, and thought tacitly acknowledged is a power that cannot be overcome. Talk of the sacred obligations of man as found in the eleventh commandment to the Turk, and his sabre will glare in your face; so talk to some of our good (?) Christian brethren that live in the past (for many live in the past) of the manliness of the negro, and of his God-given rights, and of his prerogative to worship God with his white brethren, and you will immediately find out his metal. Create first a sentiment. But the world does move in spite of the false teachings of charlatan scientists, and as straws show which way the wind is blowing, we discover in this small straw that favorable winds are rising. We welcome every change that will give to the negro the privilege to become all that Providence has destined him to be.

I read the article under the above caption in your issue January 19. All is true, and more besides. In the last week of January, a poor man (white) was shot down in our streets over a dispute, about a whiskey bill of $2 50. The bar keeper killed the poor man, and his wife gave birth through the excitement and sorrow over the death of her husband. The white ladies of the neighborhood gave her all the attention they could, but, alas, her husband could not be restored to her and her poor children. He is gone to the judgment; his wife and children are at the mercy of charity. If it should fail at this particules time starvation would overtake them. Where shall we trace the crime or to whom? I leave you kind reader to ferret it. Again, a half brother of the boy that was hung over in our sister town Pineville last winter a year ago, fell a victim to the deadly weapon week before last. A man wanted to borrow some money from the young man and on his refusal the white man told the colored boy to come and go with him. He did so, and when about fifteen or twenty minutes walk away he fired upon the colored boy, who lingered a few days, and passed away. The man who did the shooting cannot be found. The one who killed the white man was given a preliminary trial and bond was given. Does it make any difference whose ox is gored or who gored the ox? There is a difference. I leave it to you and the world that they may know these things and be the judge. Our mail is irregular, I received a letter fourteen days old from Cheneyville, La., 32 miles. Where is uncle Sam?

American Bible Society.

The regular meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, New York, on February 2d. Frederick H. Wolcott, Esq., occupied the chair, and religious services were conducted by Secretary Gilman.

The decease of the Rev. John Cotton Smith, D. D., late chairman of the Committee on Versions, was announced.

A resolution was passed expressing sympathy with Dr. S. Wells Williams, who was detained from attending the meeting in consequence of a painful accident.

The Committee on Versions reported their conclusion, based upon careful inquiry and correspondence, that the Burmese and Karen Versions, for publishing which an appropriation had been asked by the American Baptist Missionary Union, are deficient in the quality of catholicity, as that term is used in the by laws of the American Bible Society and the regulations of the Committee on Versions.

Interesting communications were presented from foreign agencies, including an account of colportage work in Siberia, and a report of Mr. Milne's recent expedition to Matto Grosso in Brazil, where he found in the hands of the people Bibles which had been sold them years before. Letters from Dr. Bliss speak hopefully of arrangements for making such a revision of the modern Armenian version of the New Testament as will lead to its approval by the authorities of the Armenian Church.

A grant was made for the purchase of Hebrew Scriptures for circulation in Jewish Missionary work at St. Petersburg.

Grants were also made to various auxiliary societies, individuals, and churches in the United States, the total value being about $15,700.

The receipts for January were $40,890 05; copies of the Scriptures issued from the Bible House, 88,687 volumes.

St. Paul's M. E. Church, Shreveport. La.

This is our leading church in North Louisiana, and has a grand mission for the Master in the city where it is located. There is a great work to be done for the Lord in this part of the State. The moral standard has trailed in the dust of vice and infamy since ante bellum days, and our church has had a large hand in bringing about a better state of affairs. Thank God the day of reformation dawns! and the refulgent rays of the "Sun of Righteousness" are reaching the deepest ravines of sin and pollutedness with a salutary effect. Have served as pastor one year at this place; during which time, with the hearty co-operation of the officers and the faithful labors of the good sisters, we were able to do a grand work for the cause of Christ. And severing now my connection for another field of labor, I rejoice in the fact, and feel it due the people to mention, that I leave bearing many a kind expression and prayer for success wherever my lot may be cast in the Master's vineyard. While this is gratifying, it is also humiliating when viewed from the standpoint of human unworthiness.

A PLEASANT MEETING.

Providentially I met the Rev. R. Thompson, my successor in this charge, in his first meeting for the conference year—it was a class meeting, peculiar to old fashion Methodism. The Holy Spirit was present with his vivifying influence, and it was no task to speak for Jesus, and cheer each other on to his prospective year's work.

Rev. T. J. Johnson of Mansfield was also present, and spoke in glowing terms of impressions received at the annual conference just held in Franklin, La.

Correct the Mistake.

The committees which may hereafter be appointed for the purpose of providing entertainments for those annual conferences styled colored, during their sessions in any place, should correct a mistake which has been repeated over and over again to our great shame. I refer to the foolish custom of assigning the presiding bishop and the general conference officers, who happen to be in attendance, to homes among white persons exclusively. Such unMethodistic practice, besides ignoring our colored families, does manifest injustice to the men themselves, arousing the suspicion that they, fearing the verdict of a vitiated public sentiment, are unwilling to honor the house and table owned by a black man, with their dignified presence. I believe they would enjoy spending a few days with us in our homes on these occasions, sharing the hospitality of our board, though known to be inferior to that offered at the palatial residence of Colonel Brown, or Judge Smith, but the decision of the committees uninfluenced by any expressed preference on their part, compels them to forego the privilege of doing so. Thus our chief officers, men who are known to be in deep sympathy with us, and willing to aid us in every possible manner, are turned away year after year, from our friends by the awkward arrangement of a few short sighted men. I say again, let the mistake be corrected. Let the best homes among our own people be reserved for these worthy messengers at our conference sessions, and it will be found that more satisfaction will be given all around.

Mrs. Lucy Simpson, of Detroit, Mich., has been laboring lately in the interest of the temperance cause at Seymour, New Albany, Jeffersonville, and now in Evansville, cities in southern Indiana, with great success among the colored people. Hundreds have signed the pledge, and many temperance societies have been found. But for the ostracism to her color, although quite light, she would succeed still better, working as she does under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. and Grand Council of the State. Prejudice to race dies hard, particularly on Mason and Dixon's line. No matter, though Mrs. S. is a perfect lady, a true Christian, a delightful speaker, understanding her theme, on the basis of an excellent education obtained in Canada, where the color prejudice does not exist. But she is a heroine, and will make her way grandly.

Notes on Mormonism.

It should be generally known that there are several peaceful and industrious settlements of anti-polygamy Mormons in the West (we mean the Northern-Central States), and that they are as urgent as "the Gentiles" for the suppression of polygamy. A delegation of them, from Illinois, recently waited on President Arthur, to urge vigorous measures. It should be further known, first, that the "book of Mormon" has not a syllable about polygamy as a duty; and second, it is to be remembered that these non-polygamous Mormons are not subject to any persecution. That disposes of the idea that the Utah Mormons are the objects of a religious persecution. These are very important facts to be kept in mind, and pressed upon the attention of Congress.—Methodist.

The N. Y. Herald very distinctly intimates, that the secret of the slowness of Congress to do anything effective against polygamy in Utah is in the fact that "the Mormon Church has for years kept a record of the private life, especially at Washington, of every Senator and Representative." It is rather hard, often, to know whether the Herald is serious or simply sensational. But it may be worth asking: What if it were so? and what is to hinder? and if so, what would be the result on legislation? May there not be a system of blackmailing for extorting votes, as well as money, from the guilty and terror-stricken?—Christian Intelligencer.

Mr. Sedgwick contributes a paper on the subject of Mormonism to the January number of the Century Magazine. It is his opinion that no more legislation is needed: that the evil will be cured by the gradual influx of a population opposed to polygamy; and in the meantime the best policy for the Government to pursue is to let the thing alone. On that, however, the following from Harper's for October may be read as an adverse and warning comment:

The men of the East should remember that once before there was an institution in this country around which there was a shield of sympathy, but there came a day at last when we had to choose which should rule, that institution or this nation. The history of what followed is fresh in all minds; and little as the masses believe it, if this monster in Utah is left to grow, there will come a time when there will be another call for volunteers; and, as before, the whole country will be hillocked with graves, and the land moistened by the rain of woman's tears.

Christian Statesmanship.

In our final determination of the Panama Question, there are three things for a Christian nation to observe. First, we must stand by our words in the past. By the Clayton-Bulwer treaty of 1850 we distinctly bound ourselves, for value received (the relinquishment by England of the protectorate of the Mosquito coast), to a joint guarantee of neutrality of a ship-canal through the Isthmus. Second, we must be brave enough not to go to war, and wise enough not to place ourselves where we will be in danger of it, and civil enough not to put ourselves in any bullying attitude while talking the thing over. And third, it is time we set the example,—demanded by the demolition of natural boundaries and the annihilation of distances which modern science has produced, as well as by the spirit of our world-wide and heaven-high religion,—of rising above the narrow and foolish traditions of national selfishness into the idea of mankind, of human fraternity, and community of interest; and this all the more, if by a joint protectorate we bind ourselves and others to keep the peace. Christian Intelligencer.

Some Things to Disbelieve.

When a man advertises for a partner, and wants a young man to put in a small investment of one hundred dollars and promises to him a realization of fifty or one hundred per cent profit, don't believe it.

When a man offers to give gold watches or jewelry worth fifty to one hundred dollars for one dollar, don't believe it.

When a man offers to give away knowledge of the utmost value for the cure of consumption, and any and all diseases, by merely sending a three-cent stamp to prepay postage, don't believe it.

When a man proposes to do his utmost to make every one else rich, and looks to other people's interest more than his own, don't believe it.

When a man offers to give you something of great value for less value—in other words, to give you something for nothing, don't believe it.

Before entering into any speculation which may be offered you, take advantage of the many means at command and ascertain the facts with reference to the proposed business before you invest.—Good Templar's Gem.

Are You Really Sincere?

Here is a true anecdote, and one showing us a very practical way of testing the character of our Christian profession: An old Methodist preacher once offered the following prayer in a prayer meeting: "Lord, help us to trust Thee with our soul." "Amen," was remarked by many voices. "Lord, help us to trust Thee with our bodies." "Amen," was responded with as much warmth as ever. "Lord, help us to trust Thee with our money." But to this petition the "Amen" was not forthcoming. Is it not very strange that when religion touches some men's pockets it cools their ardor at once and seals their lips? We hear men speak of the "peace of God in his heart," and to the phrase we raise no objection; but it has often occurred to us that if the "peace of God" could only get into people's pockets it would be a blessed thing.

The central Pan-slavist committee, at Moscow, has issued an appeal for support of the insurgents in Herzegovina.

Oscar L. Baldwin, late cashier of the Mechanics' Bank, Newark, N. J., was sentenced to fifteen years in State's Prison.

The Shah of Persia has granted to a French company concession for the construction of a railway from Teheran to Reshet.

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Montreal has served notice to quit on all tenants of church property who are selling liquor thereon.

An epidemic, strongly resembling the plague, recently appeared near Sanjbulagh, Persia. Forty deaths have occurred since February 8th.

A detachment of Yemen rebels is advancing on Meca, via Saatch, to proclaim there the spiritual deposition of the Sultan of Turkey and the restoration of the Arabian caliphate.

A modest man in Delaware wrote to Postmaster General Howe asking appointments in the postal service for himself and his two sons. His modesty is discovered in the fact that he asked nothing for the old woman and the girls.

It is agreed that the present state of things in Bulgaria cannot continue; that a return to the constitutional form of government is necessary, and that a great majority of the people favor a revision of the constitution. Russia is disposed to advise Prince Alexander to re-establish parliamentary control, and a fresh political crisis is therefore regarded as probable.

Kairwan, in Tunis, recently taken by the French troops, is a walled city, of about 15,000 inhabitants. It has long been regarded as the Holy City of Africa, and has been held as specially sacred by all African Mohammedans. Previous to this war no Christian or Jew has been permitted within its walls. The city has a famous Akbar Mosque and a holy well, said to be connected with the Mecca well by a subterranean passage. It was founded by the Arabs more than a thousand years ago. Every Moslem dynasty has left a mosque there. The recent capture was a terrible blow to the Arab leaders.

The Engineer Department has furnished the House commerce committee a statement which explains why the appropriations for some of the public works in Louisiana have not been expended. A contract was made last October for the improvement of the Amite river, but the contractor has not yet furnished the necessary bond required before the contract can be approved by the chief of engineers. The work on Vermilion river has been contracted for, but no work has been done on account of high water. The bids for Tangipahoa were rejected because they were too high, and the chief engineer ordered the work to await a sufficient appropriation to warrant the commencement of work. The Tchefuncta and Tickfaw rivers are under contract, but the latter is suspended on account of high water. Additional examinations are required for locating the lock on Bayou Teche, between Port Barre and St. Martinsville. These examinations will be made as soon as practicable. No work can be done in the matter of connecting Bayou Teche with Grand Lake and Charenton until the United States acquires title to the land, and steps are now being taken to bring that about. A dredge-boat is now being built for use on the work to be done on Bayous Black and Terrebonne. No work has been done on the Calcasieu river, from Phillips' Bluff to its mouth, the chief engineer having directed that it be deferred until a sufficient appropriation be made to warrant the commencement. The other works in Louisiana are in progress, with the exception of the improvement of the harbor of New Orleans, where work is suspended to await the report of the Board of Engineers, who are considering the subject.

THE SOUTHWESTERN

THURSDAY, FEB. 23. 1882

For "Good Tidings" apply to Rev. J. M. Freeman, 805 Broadway, New York.

Destitution prevails, caused by floods in Southeastern Arkansas and Northeastern Louisiana.

A Little Rock commercial signboard says that "Second handed goods can be bought and sold at Noah's Ark."

The sixth ward of the city of Little Rock, the only one having a negro majority, is the only ward in which whisky has been driven out. Are the negroes opposed to temperance?

The SOUTHWESTERN is a temperance preacher as well as a moral and religious educator. Have you urgently requested your members, friends and neighbors to subscribe for it?

The New York Observer which suffered so terribly in the recent fire in New York asks subscribers to send information regarding their subscription, in order to get their lost mail list as correctly as possible.

One of our bishops has recently found a preacher who has been drinking whisky for the last three years, to cure his wife of an incurable disease. His wife was not cured but his drinking so "persecuted" his work he was invited out of the conference. He is out!

Get ready for your temperance fight brethren. Strong drink is the greatest enemy of modern Christian efforts and well deserves your steel. Preach temperance and practice it, get your neighbor to do likewise; let your Sunday-schools and churches exert temperance influences that shall be felt in tangible results.

Bishop Warren has an excellent lecture upon the "Forces in the Sunbeam," which he delivers in an eloquent and entertaining manner. If you ever get a chance to hear it don't you miss it. It is full of interest and information. Wherever he has delivered it the marvel has been that so much astronomical and scientific information could possibly be given in a single lecture, and in such an entertaining manner.

While in Aberdeen, Miss., we were agreeably surprised to see the local interest being manifested in favor of the masses. Providing for the white children the colored children are not neglected in the public schools of Aberdeen. The public school building for the colored children is a large two story building 48x75 feet having four large recitation rooms down stairs and a good large hall for the whole school up stairs. The grounds occupy ten acres upon a hill overlooking the city. 150 scholars are being daily thought therein. Prof. Sims and his cultured lady, assisted by an excellent gentleman, compose the corps of teachers. We hope them much success.

We have two conferences in the State of Arkansas; the Arkansas, composed exclusively of white; and the Little Rock composed of colored with a few white ministers. Bishop T. Peck, D. D., LL.D., presided over the Little Rock and Bishop Warren over the Arkansas Conference. Bishop Peck was entertained by members of the white conference and Bishop Warren, visiting the Little Rock on his way to the seat of the Arkansas Conference, was entertained in Little Rock by Bro. A. L. Richmond and his family, members of our church, and one of the wealthiest and most cultured families among our colored citizens there. How is this for kind fraternal relations between our white and colored works?

The New Orleans Price Current comments on the appeal for aid from North Louisiana: "The people have suffered and are still suffering from failure of crops, it is true, and their financial postion is [illegible] the best, but all who worked faithfully, we are assured by competent authority, have ample means of subsistence to keep the wolf from the door. It appears, however, that there are a number, a large number, of shiftless people in the parishes mentioned, who in flush times live on the industry of their more provident neighbors, who now, not having much to spare, have narrowed the limits of the liberal charity; hence the cry of starvation. There are, however, no doubt cases in the highland parishes of North Louisiana where the [illegible] completely ruined the [illegible] these people may need [illegible] which should be, and [illegible] liberally bestowed without [illegible] upon the general government."

Peace.

In the Christian's experience peace holds a sovereign seat. It is the first gift of Christ to his disciples. "My peace I give unto you." It arises from his previous state. All who are in the world and of the world must be troubled in conscience unless they are stupefied by their sins. They can but see that their lives are in no way conformed to the law of God, their passions, appetites, tempers, ambitions and practices, are far from being in harmony with the precepts of the Bible. Their ways of sin may be pleasant to some of their fellows, and in some of their gratifications to themselves, but they always leave a sting behind them—they are full of self-condemnation. "The wicked are like the troubled sea when it cannot rest whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked." They may seek it by trying to stupefy themselves with false theories. They may try to exalt their own nature and lower the nature and claims of God, but this brings no peace of mind. When the Holy Spirit sets himself to stir up the soul of the sinner and flashes through the fog of his delusions a few of God's thunderbolts, and sets him front to front with death, judgment and eternity, he loses all thought of trying to forestall God in crying peace, peace, when God says "there is no peace." Faith in the blood of the Lord Jesus Christ alone gives to the soul peace. This delivers it. This speaks the blessed, blissful word, peace. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee because he trusteth in thee." How perfect this calm. How delightful this sense of victory to the struggling and tormented soul. Most people have seen the beautiful and touching picture of the Martyr asleep before his combat with lions. The jailor coming to open the door, which reveals the vast crowd awaiting in the amphitheater, the lions fierce with hunger thirsting for blood, the calm celestial peace on the face of the Christian yet asleep and so soon to be a martyr. "Few words could express more forcibly the calm repose of holy peace, that peace which gives such boldness in life and fearless faith in the prospect of so cruel death." The martyr had conquered his great enemy, the devil and all of his own carnal lusts, the "old man was crucified," "the body of sins destroyed," the world was under his feet, "his soul was filled with a light far above the brightness of the sun and his mind with a peace that passeth all understanding."

Years ago we read of the dying soldier who was mortally wounded in the Crimea. To his comrades who were carrying him he said, "put me down, do not trouble to carry me further, I am dying." They put him down and returned to the field. A few minutes after an officer saw him weltering in his blood and said to him, "Can I do any thing for you?" "Nothing, thank you." "Shall I get you a little water?" said the kind hearted officer. "No, thank you, I am dying." "Is there any thing I can do for you? Shall I write to your friends?" "I have no friends you can write to, but there is one thing for which I would be much obliged. In my knapsack you will find a Testament, will you open it at the 14th chapter of John and near the end of the chapter you will find a verse that begins with 'peace'—will you read it?" The officer did so and read the words "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you, not as the world giveth give I unto you: let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

"Thank you, sir," said the dying man; "I have that peace. I am going to that Savior; God is with me; I want no more;" and instantly died. May the peace of Christ, which passeth all understanding, keep the mind and heart of every reader of the SOUTHWESTERN in the knowledge and love of God and of Jesus Christ our Lord.

Editorial Correspondence.

The cold, rainy and disagreeable afternoon of January 17th found us on board the train of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, bound to Aberdeen, the seat of the Mississippi Methodist Episcopal Conference. For something near one hundred miles on our way, we rode side by side with Hon. Jeff. Davis, ex-President of the "lost cause" and the defunct Confederacy. To him was paid by his fellow passengers and the railroad officials all the kindness and regards that could possibly be shown. Though aged and careworn, he steps comparatively quite firmly, and seemed more the majestic lion crouched in his lair than the head of the dead and never to be resurrected sovereign confederation of 1860.

Next morning, a few hours after parting from the great Southern leader, we fell in company with Rev. H. R. Revels, D. D., the first negro U. S. Senator, who was the successor of Jefferson Davis. Dr. Revels is a man of fine talent, possessing true greatness and reflecting with unassuming gravity his Senatorial dignity. He too was on his way to the conference. Notwithstanding the many tempting and lucrative openings to his continued official life at the close of his senatorial term, he has persistently refused every thing in that direction, prefering to preach the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ to the masses, and teach the youths of his race in the Alcorn State University, near Rodney, Mississippi. This institution, under the able and wise administration of Dr. Revels, is doing more for the education of the colored people than any other one State school in the South. It was never more prosperous or under better influence than at present. Too much praise cannot be awarded to the Doctor for his faithfulness and devotion in building up this interest. He is seconded by an exceptional corps of teachers and professors. The board of trustees, also is made up of some of the very best men of the State, who show that they want to see the colored children have equal chances to secure as good and liberal an education as that afforded in white institutions. God bless them and all like them! While to the credit of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad we are glad to record, that they have no special accommodations, in the smoking car, for negroes having first class tickets, great humiliation must be confessed for the fact that while such marked regards the night before were given to Jeff. Davis, his worthy and gentlemanly successor, as well as the rest of our colored ministers on the train, when they stopped at Artesia Station for lunch, had to either stand up in the kitchen and there eat a lunch in their hands or do without. This too, while white men, who in character, ability and dignity, were not worthy to stoop down and unlatch their shoes, were seated comfortably at table in a nice public dining room. This fact still remains a burning shame all through the South, and disgraces our empty, high-sounding caricature of Christian civilization. Arriving at Muldon, nine miles from Aberdeen, on the 18th inst., at 9 a. m., and finding that we could proceed no further on account of a break on the branch railroad—in which the fireman on an engine lost his life only a few days before, when the engine fell through in this break—after a whole day of anxiety and indecision in the depot here, we returned to West Point ten miles south, Next day, however, we left West Point to arrive at Aberdeen by some means or other. Coming within seven miles we could go no further by rail, so like the good old pioneer Methodist preachers, we swung our bundles on our shoulders and "footed it," reaching Aberdeen about 1 o'clock p. m., tired, muddy, hungry and worn out. We were soon replenished however. Arriving at the conference we found that Dr. Hartzell, having snatched a ride upon the hand car, was, by invitation of Rev. J. M. Shumpert president pro tem, and the request of Bishop Peck in the chair, dispensing its functions with dispatch and really becoming episcopal ease and dignity. We were highly pleased to meet the brethren. A finer set of men seldom meet. As we noticed them performing all the duties of the session, extorting commendation and praise from friends and foes, our heart praised the Lord.

On Friday the 20th inst., Bishop Peck succeeded in reaching the seat of the conference; where as soon as he was introduced he announced and the conference joined heartily in singing the doxology: "Praise God from whom all blessings may flow." After the arrival of our venerable bishop the session was very cheerfully and agreeably continued. Two very wonderful meetings were held during this session. In one, after able addresses from Rev. Drs. Revels and Hartzell, over $4000 were subscribed toward the erection of an additional building for Shaw University at Holly Springs. This is but another of the many evidences of the maxim, that wherever two or three Methodists are gathered together there is bound to be a collection. And a grand one it was too; proving most effectively the fact that our people in the South intend helping themselves. The Lord bless this effort with numerous friends and much prosperity is our fervent prayer.

The other remarkable meeting was in the interest of the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. A more enthusiastic meeting in support of a church paper was never held. Expressions from young men and grayheaded fathers, pledging renewed and more zealous efforts for the spread of the paper, were animating and reassuring. Especially are we still forcibly impressed with the grateful commendatory allusions paid by Dr. Revels to Dr. Hartzell for his unswerving faithfulness in the advocacy of the best interest of our work and people in the South, and for the appointment of our humble self to the assistant editorship of the SOUTHWESTERN. The whole conference subscribed for the paper. After which fifty odd promiscuous subscriptions were taken in the congregation.

The spirituality of the exercises was in striking contrast with the natural hurry of the session. Our loving and faithful Bishop Peck, by his inspiring and instructive addresses and sermons, and by his fatherly, admontions and advice, has intrenched himself in the citadel of the heart of every member and visitor of the Mississippi Conference. May it please the Lord to spare his precious life for many more years of usefulness to the church, or pleasant sunshine in the bosom of his dear family and friends, is the united prayer of his children here.

The conference was well and kindly received by all classes. The bishop preached for the Southern M. E. Church. All other churches closed and their congregations crowded to hear him. After reading the appointments, which was preceded by a touching paternal address from Bishop Peck, the conference adjourned sine die. Thus ended one of the most enjoyable conference sessions it ever was our privilege to attend. And now off for Franklin, La. A.

Aberdeen, Miss., Jan. 23, 1882.

This is a good time to secure subscriptions for the SOUTHWESTERN. We hope that all the friends of the Church will work for us. Let there be a strong pull, a long pull, a pull all together for the SOUTHWESTERN. A prominent pastor in New York in sending a list of subscribers to his church paper said to the publishers: "Now remember this is not for my sake, nor for your sake, but for the sake of the people." It would be difficult for any pastor to show a better appreciation of the real interests of his people. We ask our brethren in all the Southwest to circulate the SOUTHWESTERN. It is your paper. Don't go after other gods. They may offer some attractions, some good, but more bad. But no matter if they come to you in the number of legion hold on to the paper that against every combination, social and political, has urged forward every true reform, not in lust for power, but under the inspiration of the Gospel of Christ. Put it into your neighbor's family. Don't stop it. Bishop Gilbert Haven used to say when he was editor of Zion's Herald that "next to receiving an obituary is a letter saying "stop my paper." To us the obituary would be much more agreeable, since it generally shows some great saint has died in the Lord and gone home to heaven, while the "stop my paper" shows that he who was a great saint has died in soul and is soon to die in intellect. Don't stop the SOUTHWESTERN. Keep it up, and read it.

Church fairs in their best estate are a very questionable and costly luxury. They may do for dancing and theatre-going Methodists, but ordinarily for a real lover of the Lord Jesus they cost far much more than they come to. But the chief mischief of these fairs is in the sugar-coated gambling to which they resort. Look out for that. This is evil and only evil continually. The laws against gambling or raffling in most of the States forbid all such operations. The sin of stealing is not in the amount stolen, but in the stealing. So the offense of lottery gambling is as real and as reprehensible in a church or in a hall for the church as in the grand schemes of the lottery located here in New Orleans. Look out for them.

Not all the last words of great men" are worth preserving. Some of them are artificial, others deceptive and misleading, and still others are the mere accidental mutterings of a diseased brain and irresponsible lips. But we remember of reading the last words of a poor little deformed boy in California that are worthy frequent utterance and long remembrance: "I love Jesus and Jesus loves me" were the last words of a little fellow whose short life knew nothing but suffering. They are worth preserving; they will bear repeating.

The causes of deafness among school children, numerous and important, have been investigated by Dr. Samuel Sexton, of New York city, and Circular No. 5, 1881, of the Bureau of Education gives the results to the country. The sympathetic relations between the teeth and ears are demonstrated, and suggestions of a hygienic character made. School teachers should read it.

Will our ministerial brethren all along the line please press the SOUTHWESTERN. Let us have a large new list. Circulate the paper outside and inside of your congregations. Please brethren "push things."

PERSONAL MENTION.

—B. H. Lanier, contestant for the seat of Congressman King has been appointed an inspector in the postal service.

—The resignation of W. B. Hyams, as Surveyor of the port, was forwarded as requested and accepted by the President.

—Col. A. B. Meacham, prominent in connection with Indian affairs in Colorado and the Modoc war, died in Washington on the 16th.

—Our assistant was royally entertained by Bro. Bumpers at our church at Aberdeen during the session of the Mississippi Conference.

—Bishop Wm. May Wightman, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died at his residence in Charleston, on the morning of the 15th inst., after an illness of over 18 months, aged 76 years. He was licensed to preach in 1827, and was successively professor in Randolph and Macon College, Virginia, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate and president of Wofford College, South Carolina, and Chancellor of the Southern University, at Greensboro, Ala. He was elected bishop in 1866, was a fine scholar, a pulpit orator of rare power, and universally popular.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TENNESSEE.

Bro. Key writes that Bro. John Seay proposed to give our church in Lebanon (Tenn.) property to the amount of $5,000 to help them in their need, instead of $500, as given in the Methodist Advocate.

TEXAS.

E. E. Cooper, Alleyton: "We have a sweet toned bell that will ring for Methodism for four miles on the grand Colorado bottoms. Elder Richardson held our quarterly conference. 78 members met at the Lord's supper."

J. Henderson, Gonzales: "I found the work here greatly embarrassed, the people hardly able to feed their families, corn and meat very high. Have collected on salary $1.25 to date. I was in charge of this work in the year 1880 and left three Sunday schools, now there is not a Sunday school on it. At Canoe Creek I left 20 members, now I find three. I expect to stand against the tide with the Lord's help."

MISSISSIPPI.

W. W. Hooper, Holly Springs: "Please say in your next issue that the subscription of A. M. Trotter for Shaw University should have read $100 instead of $50 as reported in SOUTHWESTERN."

N. Cannon: I wish to give credit to the kind people of Pascagoula charge. On the Christmas tree of 26th of December, 1881, they made me a present of a suit of clothes worth $25 00, for conference. The tree was valued at $30. By the agreement of myself and Rev. J. B. Smith, the present pastor, February 5th, 1882, the congregation at Saint Paul's Church collected and paid me $25 00, on the 7th of February, the night before I moved, some of the sisters and brothers and ladies and gentlemen surprised my wife with a nice purse of money. Many thanks to the people of Pascagoula charge. May the Lord bless Brother Smith, in his new field."

A Wonderful Meeting in Little Rock, Arkansas.

One of the grandest and most enthusiastic educational meetings ever held in Arkansas, was held during the session of the Little Rock Conference, which adjourned on the 13th inst., on their Anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid Society. Although the weather was very threatening, the church (Wesley Chapel,) was crowded to the doors. Rev. B. St. James Fry, D. D., editor of the Central Christian Advocate, and Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., assistant editor of Southwestern Christian Advocate, were the orators of the evening. After an able, instructive and entertaining address, full of facts, and vivid experiences, from Dr. Fry, then followed the real Methodistic feature of the meeting, the taking up of the collection, under the general superintendance of Bro. Albert, who was ably assisted by Revs. Pollard, Emory, Sams and Mason, the worthy president of our Walden Seminary in which interest the meeting was held. Such interest was never surpassed in the cause of education. Our work in Arkansas demands the permanent establishment of a good conference school; and the avidity with which the subscriptions were taken up tells that they mean to have it. The following were the subscriptions which were taken up and which will be raised and paid over to the treasurer of the Walden Seminary, A. L. Richmond, Esq., Little Rock, Arkansas:

G. W. Sams $100, W. O. Emory $100, G. Baber $100, I. G. Pollard $100, Henry Dunlap $100, J. P. Mack $100, B. McCain $100, Edward Pinkett $100, A. L. Richmond (layman) $200, T. Mason $100, A. W. Decker $100, Fred Nelson (layman) $100, A. J. Philips $100, Sampson Wilson $100, A. L. Richardson $100, G. W. Taylor $100, M. Lockman $100, H. H. McAllister $100, A. E. Carr $100, W. H. Higgins $100, U. S. Kitchens $100, G. G. W. Taylor $100, L. B. Boston $100, Alex Hardeman $100, W. J. Pernell $100, Edward Spencer $100, Seth Neal $100, John Clayton (layman) $50, Samuel Downing $50, W. H. Crawford $76, Isaac Hay $50, F. L. Donohoo (student) $25, Dr. B. St. J. Fry (St. Louis) $10. Total $3,060.

These very liberal subscriptions, are certainly calculated to inspire the friends of our educational movement in the South, to take a more liberal and philanthropic view of our work. We hope many friends will come to the aid of this infant institution. A beautiful site, very conveniently located on a hill, overlooking the city has been secured upon which the board of trustees hope to build a commodious and substantial building during the year. They are going to help themselves and should expect the aid of generous friends of Christian education.

The Little Rock Conference.

The fourth annual session of the Little Rock Conference convened in Wesley Chapel, in the city of Little Rock, on Thursday the 9th instant at 9 o'clock a. m. with Rev. Bishop Peck in the chair and Revs. I. G. Pollard, G. W. Sams, A. J. Phillips and W. O. Emory as secretaries. The two presiding elders Revs. I. G. Pollard and G. W. Sams reported very progressive work and a large number of accessions in all parts of their district; churches have been built, souls have been converted, and a better feeling toward our church exists among all classes of the people. The financial reports however, showed a marked decrease both in ministerial support and benevolent collections. These discouraging facts are due not to the lack of interest on the part of the people, but rather on account of the extreme poverty growing out of general failure of the crops. The people are opening their hearts to our church, and a grand field is now inviting and accessible to us. The great needs are men and means. Good men, Christian men, men filled with the Holy Ghost! May the Lord of the harvest send more such men into his vineyard! Sixteen bright and intelligent young men were admitted on trial. Four were ordained to the order of deacons and one elder. Two members of conference died during the year and went triumphantly to their reward. The next session convenes at Pine Bluff. Many distinguished ministers from sister churches attended the session. Bishop Peck, by his tenderness and venerableness, has endeared himself to this conference and he leaves them followed by their many prayers and "God bless you's." The session closed on Monday the 13th inst. The following are the Little Rock Conference.

According to direction by the Little Rock District Conference held Feb. 13, 1882, we hereby publish the assessments to the district and several charges. We think they are very moderate, and every cent should be collected. We recommend that the pastor of each charge strive to raise the several amounts in the early part of the year. And by a little attention to the matter all can be raised at once except the presiding elder's claim. As he will not be able to hold at most more than three quarterly meetings to the charge, we recommend that he be paid at least one third at each quarter.

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

The House committee on public buildings favor an appropriation of $100,000 for court-house and post-office buildings at Shreveport.

The Readjusters renominated S. Brown Allen for Auditor, and by the accession of one Republican Senator have again obtained control of the Virginia Senate.

Senator Jonas re-introduced the long-standing claim of the Merchants and Traders' Bank of New Orleans for $20,000 captured by Gen. Ben. Butler's troops in 1862.

Secretary Hunt is showing a great energy in pushing his scheme for a new navy, and it is now probable that a bill will be reported appropriating $10,000 for the purpose of building it.

The boundary trouble between Guatemala and Mexico will probably result in war. Troops from Guatemala have occupied disputed territory, and Mexican forces have been sent to protect the frontier.

The President has removed from office Andrew Clark, revenue collector for the Northern district, and E. C. Wade, revenue collector for the Southern district, for opposition to the liberal movement in Georgia.

A special from Knoxville says: Prof. Lamar, of Marysville College, has gone to New York to solicit aid for the college. Fifty white students have left or been expelled on account of troubles about negroes.

The report of the Board of Indian Commissioners, urges Congress to provide the Commissioner of Indian Affairs with a much larger school fund, to be used in educating 20,000 Indian children, now growing up in ignorance.

A member of the Methodist Episcopal church in Troy, N. Y., recently brought action against his pastor in a Justice's court for refusing to give him either a letter or a trial. The case was dismissed as being not in the jurisdiction of a civil court.

State Treasurer Polk, of Tennessee, informed a Tribune reporter that the decision of the Supreme Court declaring the funding act of 1881 to be unconstitutional, was a great surprise to him. He said the amount of the State indebtedness was $20,000,000, with accrued interest, and the decision will repudiate all but $2,500,000, The general feeling among the people is in favor of paying the debt.

Bills were introduced by Senator Kellogg providing for the following appropriations: For the improvment of the river front of New Orleans, $300,000; Ouachita river, $50,000; Red river above Shreveport, $50,000; Bayou Lafourche, $75,000; Bayou Teche, $50,000; Calcasieu river, $50,000; deepening the channel of the Atchafalaya river, $300,000; building a lock at the mouth of Bayou Plaquemine, $250,000; for a post-office and court-house at Shreveport, $250,000; for a court-house and post-office at Opelousas, $250,000; and for a custom-house and post-office at Morgan City, $150,000.

Louisiana Congressmen have introduced the following bills: Mr. Ellis a bill authorizing a survey of ship canal route, 400 feet wide and 30 feet deep, from the river above Carrollton to the river at the barracks below New Orleans. Referred to the commerce committee. Mr. Gibson a bill making appropriation for a Custom-house building at Morgan City. Mr. Darrall a bill appropriating $10,000 for marine hospital at Morgan City. Also a bill to quiet the title of John Cofield, of Ascension, to certain lands held under a Spanish grant.

The House adopted an apportionment bill for 325 members of Congress as follows: Alabama, 8; Arkansas, 5; California, 6; Colorado, 1; Connecticut, 4; Delaware, 1; Florida, 2; Georgia, 10; Illinois, 20; Indiana, 13; Iowa, 11; Kansas, 7; Kentucky, 11; Louisiana, 6; Maine, 4; Maryland, 6; Massachusetts, 12; Michigan, 11; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 7; Missouri, 14; Nebraska, 3; Nevada, 1; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 7; New York, 34; North Carolina, 9; Ohio, 21; Oregon, 1; Pennsylvania, 28; Rhode Island, 2; South Carolina, 7; Tennessee, 10; Texas, 11; Vermont, 2; Virginia, 10; West Virginia, 4; Wisconsin, 9.

The House Committee on the Signal Service will recommend the passage of a bill creating another executive department, the head of which shall be a member of the Cabinet, and have control of matters relating to agriculture, commerce, manufactures, and science. It has long been the opinion of men of experience in public life that the Treasury Department should embrace only those branches of the service that relate to the collection and disbursement of the public moneys, and the coast survey, marine hospital service, inspection of vessels, life-saving service, and the bureau of statistics should be placed under a distinct department, which should also deprive the War Department of the weather bureau, the Navy Department of the government observatory, and the Interior Department of the patent office and the geological survey.

Letter from Alexandria.

ALEXANDRIA, LA., Feb. 4, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR: Although I am very late in doing so, I think it is not exactly out of place to say a few words about the Alexandria and Pineville charges. First, let me say I have just returned from the Louisiana Annual Conference. I enjoyed an excellent time attending the sessions and watching its proceedings, also listening to the speeches and little sermons of our venerable and fatherly Bishop Peck. God bless him! I hope the Lord will spare him to come to us again. I believe this last session of the Conference to be the grandest it ever recorded in its history; and its future never looked brighter than now, from the fact that much of the material entering our ranks is composed of young men, determined by God's help to win, it matters not what the opposition may be. My prayer is, May the Lord bless them in all they do for his glory. Moreover, even our presiding elderships are as they never have been in some respects, which gives potent significance to the future prospects of our church work and ministry. God is indeed with us! Oh, ho! I do believe I am diverging from what I proposed to do, so let me begin.

The old year is past and the new one begun. Another page of our life's history is written and sealed. No doubt, many hopes and fears have been realized, with all their attendant consequences. Days bright with God's choicest blessings and the light of his divine countenance it has frequently been our good fortune to enjoy. Sometimes days with mixed cloud and sunshine; again days dark and stormy passed over us, bringing from our eyes tears, or on our face smiles of contentment or clouds of disappointment, as occasion gave cause, yet there was not one day of any that the all-providing hand of our Almighty Father in Heaven was not plainly seen, and now that I am looking back from the threshold of a new year, and see the many dangers the Lord has brought me through; and what success he has fitted to my unworthiness, my heart and soul joins together and sings, praise God from whom all blessings flow!

It will be a grand thing to me to meet my Lord face to face in heaven and thank him for all he has done for me. Now about our year's work. First of all I want to say, the children had a very nice time with their Christmas tree. Bro. H. Beason, Sister C. L. Armsted (who are superintendents of the Sunday-school) conducted the affair, assisted by the officers and teachers; the audience room was filled with parents, relatives and friends of the little ones; a good fire was burning in the stove which was all aglow, radiating redhot particles of heat into the atmosphere around, therefore comfort was apparent on every face; however, just now every one seems to be anxious and highly expectant and continually casting furtive glances first at the door and then at the Christmas tree for there it stands, just in front of the pulpit, well loaded with toys and presents of various description, the little ones are singing loudly and at the top of their voices, Jingle, Jingle, Oh, Kris Kringle etc., there is a rustle at the door, and the old gent himself enters at this juncture. It would be vain to attempt a description of his arrival at the tree, except that the little ones went wild with delight for a few moments. When quiet was restored he asked promises from the boys and girls to be good children for the future, they all promised heartily; leaving the presents on the tree in care of Sister Cora L. Armstead for distribution, he took his departure in haste for other parts, having many other places to visit. This was the signal for distribution, therefore preliminaries were begun, no doubt many hearts were made happy at every point of the room, smiling faces were to be seen. After distribution of presents was over we all went home, thanking God earnestly for preserving us so near the close of another year. A week is now passed and it is New Year's eve, it is midnight, we have been singing and praying to God in thanksgiving for his love and kindness, and have begged for the continuance of his grace, we have promised to come nearer him than we have before, and now we are singing hymn 948 of our Hymnal; we are just singing the last verse, earnestly the solemn deep-toned sounds of the ... bell come tolling on the ... to us, we are impressed that the old year has gone forever, and a new one begun. With humble hearts, we bend our knees and bow ... prayer to God. ... from the depth of our ... more ... do ... his ... his ... the ... from our hearts to give each other the ... hearty, happy, New Year's greeting. New Year's day was a time of good things from the presence of the Lord; at each service ... the Holy Ghost ... no doubt every ... intended ... better work ... God grant ... may keep our ... A week later Bro. L. P. ... held our fourth ... his presence ... peculiar interest to us. [illegible]

... galla $30 85, given to Committee on Missions $7 50, given to Committee on Freedmen's Aid $7 50; balance on hand in treasury $3 90, Total amount $49 75; amount brought forward $67 75; grand total $117 50; total expense for the year $106. Balance in treasury, cash, $11 50.

And besides all this, the good people done a good part for me for which I am satisfied. The following statement will show the work of the church. God bless the good people here:

Paid to pastor $980; paid to benevolent collections $71 45; paid for repairs, oil, fuel, sexton and insurance of church, $225,75, Total amount for all purposes $1,277 20.

Four converts and thirteen backsliders reclaimed and several joined by letter. This I believe makes somewhat of a showing on a small scale for our good people here; and right here I would like to return my heartfelt thanks to sisters C. L. Armstead, M. A. E. Thomas, and others, for their untiring efforts in giving the concert, to send their preacher in charge to conference; and also special thanks to Mr. William Murray and sister Cora L. Armstead for favors. For the first time the annual conference meets here next year. Already our people have begun preparation for it. I guess you will find this letter a long one, but you see I don't write but once a year. I hope you will not prune it nor thin out out any of it. No more until next year, if I live and am well.

Truly yours,

SAMUEL E. H. MORANT.

From our Mission Rooms.

A LIVE MISSIONARY CHURCH.—The Haine Street M. E. Church, Germantown, Penn., Rev. J. H. Hargis, pastor, is showing grand evidence of growth in devotion to the cause of missions. The missionary collection, church and Sunday-school combined, was $715 10 in 1880, $1,735 in 1881, and for the present year, by the recent collection, $2,000 is the figure reached. This is not the only token received that the tide of missionary zeal is rising. The true motives, once apprehended, intelligently and warmly cherished, ought to inspire a constant growth of zeal.

A BOY'S COLLECTION.—A pastor writes: "My little boy collected $100 mission money last year. I want to offer the five parent certificates to which he is entitled as mission prizes." Thus the influence of a good work multiplies itself. Who shall estimate the "prizes" which that $100 will give in the far off lands to which it is sent?

A SWEDISH GIRL'S EFFORT.—A poor Swedish girl in New York has been very successful in her pious endeavors to promote the subscription for a church which our Swedish brethren desire to build in that city. She has within a few weeks obtained reliable subscriptions, from five to fifty dollars each, amounting to $1055.

NUMBER OF MISSIONARIES IN CHINA.—Rev. L. H. Gulick, agent of the American Bible Society at Shanghai, reports in a table recently published, the number of ordained Protestant missionaries in China at 228, total foreign laborers 615, number of societies 31.

REV. J. W. WAUGH, D. D., of the North India Mission, at present in the United States for the recruitment of health, was recently a welcome visitor at the Mission Rooms. It is encouraging to hear his fresh accounts of the work in India. The labor bestowed there by our mission is obtaining its reward. Not only is the church exhibiting a greater solidity, and doing a specially good work for its future through our educational institutions, but the silent effect upon the Hindoo community in general is becoming very evident. Formerly, respect was paid to our missionaries as the supposed representatives of a powerful foreign nationality. It was assumed in native circles that they had some connection with the British Government. Now they are more justly recognized ... as the ministers of a ... which inspires them to a ... long effort to benefit the souls of their ... men. The true ... of Christianity begins to ... by the higher class ... ... MEXICO MISSION.—On ... which has suffered the ... death, as announced last ... esteemed missionary ... the membership ... The society is ... poor people who live, ... in the midst of ... persecution ... influence of the Gospel is seen in many who were formerly idle, inebriate and clothed in rags and filth, but who now attend our services with punctuality, clothed and in their right mind. It is said that there are many friends to our cause in the town who do not yet declare themselves; that the Governor of the State and other officials are decidedly favorable to Protestantism.

EAGER BIBLE READING IN MEXICO.—J. W. Butler communicates the following interesting case of the conversion from Romanism, of an entire family who came to Mexico City, some months ago from the State of Michoacan. "The family consists of two brothers with their wives, and another brother unmarried. One of them was favorably disposed towards Protestantism when they first came, and hence was easily led to accept the truth. Then followed the second brother, who after a little explanation gladly received the word. With all the enthusiasm of new converts, they then tried to persuade the other three members of their family. Now, thank God we have the joy of seeing in nearly every service the happy faces of the entire family. When we called the other day to see them we found all seated around a small table, on which lay open the large family Bible, so recently purchased, and which, with Berean Leaves in hand, they seemed to be searching with great eagerness. On approaching still nearer we found that the oldest brother who is a book-keeper, had indexed the entire Bible, by pasting slips to the margin at the beginning of each book, and allowing them to project sufficiently to permit the title of each to be readily seen."

NEW BOOKS.

A new edition of Banvard's "Life of Daniel Webster," is to be published by D. Lothrop & Co., with some additional matter brought to light by the recent centenary observances.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Art Interchange for February 2d has a full sized embroidery design for infants crib cover. New York, $2 a year.

The Boston Musical Herald for February describes the Tambour or drum, and has eight pages of music with notes. Price 15 cents.

The Southern Musical Journal for January announces a reduction in price from $1.25 to $1 per year Ludden & Bates, Savannah, Ga.

The Southern Pulpit for February has a large department of Illustrations for Sermons and Lectures. Subscription, $1 50. Specimen, free Jackson & Lafferty, Richmond Va.

The February number completed the third volume of the Louisiana Journal of Education. Every teacher, school official, and friend of education could well afford to become a subscriber at one dollar per annum, and would thereby be benefited.

From A. Meyiner, Jr., publisher, New Orleans, we have received the first number of Louisiana Biographies, to be issued every Saturday at $5 per annum. Gov. S. D. McEnery, Geo. W. Cable, Esq., and Congressman Randall Gibson are sketched in this number.

Public Questions of Current Interest receive attention in The Century Magazine for March. Arthur G. Sedgwick contributes a pungent review of "The Copyright Negotiations," and Allen G. Campbell, the contesting delegate from Utah, makes, from the anti-Mormon point of view, the pertinent query, "Has Utah a Republican Form of Government?" The foreign policy of the Government, author's rights, and Oscar Wilde as a social phenomenon, are discussed in "Topics of the Time."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

Feb. 26, 1882.—THE GROWTH OF THE KINGDOM.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 4:21-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"There shall be a handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; the fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon."—Ps. 72:16.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer and His Kingdom.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

This lesson is intimately connected with the last. It is a part of the same discourse. In the parables of this lesson the thought of the growth of the kingdom is still further carried out. In the parable of the sower the introduction of the kingdom was illustrated. In that of the seed growing secretly the method of its growth is set forth. In that of the mustard seed, the extent of its growth is prefigured. In this lesson our attention is turned from the discouraging beginnings to the satisfactory conclusion—from the depressingly small proportion of seed that was fruitful to the power of the word in the human heart, and to the greatness of the final result. There was a hint to the disciples, that what they had learned, they were to make known. They had been given a lighted lamp, and now were not to conceal it, but to place it where it could be of benefit to others. There is a great deal of suggestiveness in the phrase, 'hiding the truth under a bushel.' Christians hide the truth under a bushel, who never bear a word of testimony for the gospel, and who never utter a note of warning to the impenitent. In Matthew (5:14, 15,) Christians themselves are compared to lamps. "Ye are the light of the world. A city on a hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a lamp, and put it under the bushel, but on the stand; and it shineth unto all that are in the house." The hearts of men are lit with a divine flame, that they may be light-bearers to others—not for their own comfort and convenience merely. Especially are they to be a 'household' light. Its aim is to expose falsehood—not to conceal it. It is not the nature of light to fear the light. Men receive the truth just in proportion to their heedful attention to it. Those who are wise in the Scriptures and in the wisdom of God are those who have pored over the words of God. The more they study, the 'more' is given them. Unused acquirements are quickly lost. Disused Christian graces seem to disappear faster than any other acquirements. The 'more' precious is the perfume the quicker it evaporates. Do not listen to a sermon with a criticizing spirit, but rather with a desire to see what truth there is in it that will help you. If men went to hear preaching with this purpose uppermost, there would not be so much dissatisfaction with ministers as there is. Hear, with a desire to know the truth and to do it. Hear, without prejudice. Hear, with the resolution to investigate, and to follow up any new suggestions. Hear, not for other people, but for yourself. Hear humbly, hear prayerfully, and your hearing will become of great spiritual benefit, and will show blessed results in life and experience. The sowing of seed is a little act, but is productive of great results. It does not take much time, nor pains, nor knowledge. In the sowing of the Word, as in the sowing of the seed, it is true, there is a wise choice of times and seasons, but no farmer is so senseless as not to sow, at all because he fears that he may not cast his seed into the ground just at the right moment. It grows from its own inward quickened power. It is not wise to fret over the fact that no immediate results are apparent from one's seed sowing. Spiritual harvests, like earthly ones, are the result of natural development. There is, first, a wish, then a purpose, then a principle, then a habit, all ending at last in fullness of life and of fruit. No emblem could more faithfully represent the beginning of the church than the mustard seed. What prophecy was there of future greatness in the manger—the despised little band of Galileans—the cross? No seed ever was sown of more apparent insignificance. Against all natural expectation that it would amount to anything, the little church that was planted by the hand of our Savior has grown until now to its shade the people of all lands fly for rest. With the prophecy thus far fulfilled, we can wait with patience and certainty for its complete realization.

Fees and Doctors.

The fees of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in just at present. We believe the schedule for visits is $3, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of daily visits, over $1000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1000 and all the year's sickness.—Post.

A WONDERFUL And SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH, Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

Young Folks' Corner.

"RISE, HE CALLETH THEE."—(Mark ix. 49.)

He calleth thee in childhood,
When life is young and free,
When youth and beauty dawns
On hearts of purity.
"Such is my heavenly kingdom,"
The blessed Jesus said;
Oh hasten then to enter
While youth yet crowns the head!

He calleth thee in childhood,
Ere sin's dark shadows fall
On life's meandering pathway,
The buoyant heart to enthrall.
Seek first my righteous kingdom,
All [illegible] added thee—
Life, [illegible], and wealth, and honor,
And [illegible] eternally.

And when the head is silvering
From [illegible] frosts of time,
And [illegible] feeble, tottering,
His [illegible] call is thine.
Leave earth's [illegible] treasures
For those of heaven true,
And seize the crown that's offered
Through Jesus' love for you.

Christ calleth—now is calling
To [illegible] sinful thee,
That all [illegible] heaven may enter
Through his unfailing grace.
His mercy follows ever,
From infancy to age;
Redeeming grace is proffered
Our [illegible] hearts to engage.

Praying Better than Stealing.

Some poor families lived near a large wood-wharf. In one of the cabins was a man who, when he was sober, took pretty good care of his family; but the public-house would get his earnings, and then they suffered. In consequence of a drunken frolic he fell sick. The cold came in his cabin, and but one stick was left in the cellar.

One night he called his eldest boy [illegible] to the bedside, and whispered something in his ear.

Shake Hands.

Shake hands with somebody as you go out of church. The more of it the better, it is expressive of real interest and feeling. There may be a great deal of the spirit of Gospel put into a hearty shake of the hand. Think of St. Paul's four times repeated request—"Greet one another"—after the custom then in common use, and one which is expressive of even warmer feeling than our common one of hand-shaking. Why not give your neighbors the benefit of the warm Christian feeling that fills you to your finger tips, and receive the like from them in return? You will be benefited by it; and the stranger will go away feeling that the church is not, after all, so cold as he had thought it to be.—Anon.

Mr. Alexander Grunnell, of Albany, N. Y., says: "I had been for years troubled with great weakness of my digestive organs, which seemed to be always out of fix. Most usually I suffered from constipation, and at other times a severe running-off at the bowels would set in. No remedy I ever tried would regulate this function until I tried Brown's Iron Bitters. It really benefited me from the first day I used it. My habits are now perfectly regular, and as a strengthener of the digestive organs, I think Brown's Iron Bitters worth its weight in diamonds."

Showy jewelry is becoming unfashionable in the street. The Baltimore Methodist thinks it ought to be so in churches. It says: "It is in America alone that the church is made to serve as a show-room for the display of costly ornament and showy attire. Good sense, good taste, good feeling, all should teach a woman to discard upon the street whatever would serve to attract attention to herself, and in church whatever would tend to distract either her own thoughts or those of others from the worship of God."

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 233 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., is rapidly acquiring an enviable reputation for the surprising cures which daily result from the use of her Vegetable Compound in all female diseases. Send to her for pamphlets.

When attendance at public worship or at a prayer meeting is not large, we are apt to think the meeting will not amount to much, as there are so few present. Just as if God could not bless a small number as well as the multitude. We think when such feelings steal into the hearts of those assembled that they need an special blessing to teach them that the Lord does not depend on the size of the congregation for an opportunity to pour out his Spirit.

The Mississippi river will do to tie on to, and people who feel the need of an anti-monopoly league need never fear that the Father of Waters will ever be brought into the service of the monopolies. Every dollar spent in the improvement of the river saves a thousand to the people in the regulation of traffic rates. That is an economical fact of vital importance.—St. Louis Republican.

Beatty's Organ Factory.

The large organ factory of Mayor Daniel F. Beatty, at Washington, Warren Co., New Jersey, which was entirely destroyed by fire on Sunday, Sept. 18, 1881, has been entirely rebuilt, and resumed business on Jan 18, 1882, just four months from the time it was destroyed. It is now in full operation, and, by the use of electric light, work on building cabinet organs is kept up till 9 P. M. Over one hundred wood-working machines, from Wood's Machine Company, have been set in operation, and are driven by a 200-horse power engine, furnished by the Hartford Buckeye Engine Company. The factory covers an area of nearly four acres. Mayor Beatty has now immense facilities for building organs, and hence he can now afford, and does build and furnish to the public direct, better organs for far less money than ever before.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to make inquiry through your most noble paper for my sister Charlotte. She married a man during the war by the name of Brownwood. Charlotte was taken from us at Clinton, La., where we were living at that time. She was carried off by a man named Mathew Borman, who took her to Shreveport, Morehouse parish, La. Father and mother go by the name of Joe and Lizer Onely. We are six sisters and two brothers, viz.: Brother Norman, Harrison and Prince Albert; sister Charlotte, Julia, Mariah, Silva, Tempy and Lutita. I had two children at that time named John Henderson, and Joe Edy. Please address Tita Hayend, Summit, Pike county, Miss., care of John H. Cook.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for information leading to the whereabouts of my mother. She was sold from me in Marion county, Arkansas, about twenty eight years ago; her name then being Amy Ray, (belonging to Morse Ray.) Her husband's name was Harry Ray. I came to Texas twenty odd years ago. Persons living in Arkansas, also Louisiana who see this inquiry, will please ask among neighbors; who are living and who dead none can tell. With best wishes I am yours truly,

SARAH ANN RAY CALDWELL.

Round Rock, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother. I left her at Honey Island, Churly lake. My mother's name is Dusey Thorton. My brothers' names, Alfred Thornton, Edmond Thornton, Nelson Thornton, Caroline Thornton, Sara Jane Thornton, Lucy Thornton, and my name was Mary Jane Thornton, my mother's oldest daughter. My owner's name was Henry Thornton, he had a daughter by the name of Adeline Thornton. My name is now Mary Jane Buchanan. Address to Algiers, La., postoffice box 54.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my mother's brothers who belonged to Major Molden when sold. My eldest brother Thomas was sold in Red River, Texas, to Capt. Enrie; brother August was taken off by Jack Mabry, brother-in-law to Press Molden. Mother and eldest sister were both named Anna Molden; other sisters were Eliza and Martha. When we were separated brothers James Hayward and Moses Molden were sold to Widow Ward. Sister Amy's husband was Henry Molden. Address, Martha Lott, Perdido, Texas.

DEAR EDITOR—I would like to hear from my sister Priscilla Brown, brother Andrew Brown, and Henry Wilson. It has been so long since I heard from them that I fear some of them are dead. I also have several cousins I would like to hear from—Louis Johnson and Maria Johnson. I am living in Bremond, Texas. I used to belong to Phil Key on Arcadia place. My brother and sister belonged to Mr. Cox. SARAH ANN KEY.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

MANUFACTURED BY THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., NO. 213 NORTH MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup
FOR THE CURE OF FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.
The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.
The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

INDIAN CORN PUDDING.—Pour a quart of boiling milk in a half pint of Indian meal, stirring it all the time. To this add a teaspoonful of salt. Beat up three or four eggs, and when the batter is nearly cold stir them into it. Put the pudding into a cloth or tin mold and boil two hours. Serve with cream, butter, syrup, or any other sauce you please. Maple syrup or golden syrup is very nice.

LAST NIGHT I SAW AN ARMED BAND.

BY ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS.

[illegible]

[illegible] Amen.

[illegible]

Jesus by living godly, shall suffer persecution, going forth weeping, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, his sheaves with him. Wesley was the master spirit of the band. He willingly resigned a life position of distinction and emolument, and a home, to follow in the footsteps of some of his countrymen to America as a missionary to the colonies, and to preach to the Indians, being regarded as the most suitable person for this high mission. Consulting his mother before making up his mind to come, she replied in these memorable words: "Had I twenty sons, I should rejoice that they were so employed, though I should never see them more!" The rest of the family agreed. His brother Charles accompanied him, after overcoming his scruples. Such was the rise, and such has been the progress of Methodism to this time. But you will naturally ask, What is Methodism? What does this new word mean? Is it not a new religion? This is a very common, nay, almost a universal supposition, where it is not properly understood. But nothing can be more remote from the truth. It is a mistake all over. Methodism, so called, is the old religion of the Church, with a new soul. This old religion is no other than love, the love of God, and of all mankind; the loving God with all our heart, soul, and strength, as having first loved us, the fountain of all the good we have received, and all we ever hope to enjoy. This love is the great medicine of life, the never failing remedy for all the evils of a disordered world, for all the miseries and vices of men. Wherever this is, there are virtue and happiness going hand in hand. There is humbleness of mind, gentleness, long-suffering, the whole image of God. This religion of love, joy, and peace has its seat in the inmost soul, but is ever showing itself by its fruits, continually springing up not only in all innocence, for love worketh no ill to his neighbor, but likewise in every kind of beneficence, spreading virtue and happiness all around it. Whoever allows the Scriptures to be the word of God must allow this to be true religion. This is the religion of the primitive Church. It is clearly expressed, even in the small remains of Clemens Romanus, Ignatius, and Polycarp; and is seen more at large in the writings of Tertullian, Origen, Clemens Alexandrinus, and Cyprian; and even in the fourth century it was found in the works of Chrysostom, Basil, Ephrem, Cyril, and Macarius. It would be easy to produce a cloud of witnesses testifying the same thing, were not this a point which none will contest who has the least acquaintance with Christian antiquity. Many imagined that the little society would be dispersed and Methodism (so called) Mr. Wesley says, "come to an end, when in October, 1735, my brother, Mr. Ingham, and I were induced by a strange chain of providences to go over to the new colony in Georgia. Our design was to preach to the Indian nations bordering upon that province. We were detained at Savannah and Frederica by the people." About the middle of October, 1735, they took their leave of Oxford, friends, and relatives, for America, not to avoid want, for, says Mr. Wesley, "God having given us plenty of temporal blessings." They were not very successful in Georgia. After one year and nine months' toiling, they returned to England. In his journal of January 8, 1738, he wrote: "I went to America to convert the Indians, but oh, who shall convert me?" After receiving the answer to his inquiry, the line of demarcation between the Wesleys and the other clergy was distinctly drawn. The[y] had already organized themselves into a society for mutual improvement. This took place in London, May 1, 1738, and is regarded as the origin of Methodism, using the term in a very common sense of it. This is a mis[illegible] but if it be used to designate [illegible] is no [illegible] Mr. Wesley relate[s] [illegible] own judgment, but, if we mistake not, you will recognize God as its author, springing forth at that period of the world when vital religion was at a low ebb.

THE SPREAD, AND INCREASE OF METHODISM.

The Wesleys were now objects of special attention, considered over much religious, but they counted their righteousness, as filthy rags, and long-cherished hopes as vain and deceptive; were supposed to be crazy because they spoke of the faith and experience of Christ as a Savior, and the universal help and refuge. Methodism, you see is a fire that strikes the awakened sinner, like the lightning glance. It burned in Mr. Wesley's heart. So he took a tour into Germany to confirm his faith, by conversing with the Moravian brethren, while his brother Charles earnestly contended for the faith at home among the formalists. Both obtained the object of their desires, a clearer evidence, and a deeper experience. A few words uttered by them was like the smith's hammer stroke on the heated iron upon the anvil; sparks flashed in every direction, and professional men cried out, what shall we do to be saved! Such a Methodism is still pushing on to the world's conquest, gladdening the nations of the earth, gathering new strength as it sweeps down the ages of all time since. Ten ministers of the Gospel in England, at that time laid the right foundation, viz. that the blood of Jesus cleanseth from all sin, but the way was still hedged up. Mr. Whitefield had returned from America and united with the Wesleys, in the work of God. The churches were closed against him. He betook himself to the fields and highways, and thus attracted thousands to hear the gospel. He proclaimed the glad tidings to three thousand people near Bristol, from an eminence near the city. Many who set all laws, human and divine at defiance, and were utterly without God in the world, now fell before the majesty of Heaven, with cries and tears, which drowned the speakers voice, acknowledging a prophet had risen in the land. This led to the forming of a new society in Bristol, like the one in London. This suggested the idea of building a meeting house. And the corner stone of the first Methodist meeting house the world ever saw, was laid on Saturday, May 12th, 1739, just 142 years, and two days since. We find ourselves going through the same holy exercise, for our holy calling; and with what we style modernism, or up to the times. Perhaps we are entitled to what we claim, at least in part. These extraordinary circumstances seem to have been designed by God, for the further manifestation of his work if you please. So true is that word, "My ways are not your ways, nor my thoughts, your thoughts." Not satisfied to confine the gospel within the limits of his own country, he visited Wales. The churches there were also closed against him, as they were at home. He preached Jesus in the streets, and in private dwellings. Mr. Charles Wesley had overcome his scruples about preaching out of church, joined with his brother and Mr. Whitefield. About this time there were many fightings without and fears within. After considerable discussions on points of difference as to the order of things of that day and time, Mr. Wesley says, "I believe we shall go on best when we only preach the simple gospel, and not interfere with each others plans." Full and sublime words are these! Behold, what a blessed thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! During these stirring events, the class meetings and love feasts were commenced, which are of so much value to continue the active exercise of a lively faith in Jesus! They excite our highest hopes and joys! These peculiarities of Methodism, were of providential origin, springing out of the spiritual necessities of the pious and the perishing sinner. Mr. Wesley being refused the privilege to preach in the church, his father had been rector of for many years, preached on his father's tomb stone, to such a congregation as Epworth had never seen. And in 1743, at Wednesbury, Mr. Wesley in three months formed a society of three hundred members. Satan was there also, a mob rose and dragged him through the streets, he says, "without losing anything, but only one flap of my waist coat, and a little skin from one of my hands." For several years the preachers travelled from place to place, as circumstances seem to require, without any plan.

The society become numerous and extensive. The first meeting for this purpose was held at the foundry in London, June 25th, 1744, being six in number. Mr. Wesley denominated it the first conference, a term better understood now than then, and of high significance both in Europe and America. The second commenced August, 1745 consisting of ten persons. The rules of the discipline were reviewed; the minutes of the several conversations held, formed the discipline of the several societies, and was last revised by himself in 1789, two years before his death. In 1747 a Mr. Williams crossed the English channel to preach the new doctrine in Ireland. On hearing this Mr. Wesley was at his side; soon followed by his brother Charles. About this time, many foolish people in Christian experience talked of finished salvation in Christ, or of a state of justification and sanctification, while they knew little of themselves and less of Christ. Mr. Wesley says, "Their whole behavior testified that their hearts are void of humble love, and full of carnal confidence. They cry, Lord! Lord! with as much assurance and as little right as the foolish virgins." The conference of 1770, called up the subject, and reaffirmed certain propositions directly opposed to the Antinomian theory. Mr. Walter Shirley wrote a circular letter to the serious clergy of England, to meet at Bristol on the 6th of August, 1771, to insist on a formal recantation of said minutes. But it availed nothing. Fletcher's four checks to Antinomianism, being written in a charming style, breathing the very spirit of heaven in every line, closed the long controversy which ensued. Methodism had now been planted in Scotland, but the Scots were strongly fortified, entrenched within the lines of religious opinions, and their modes of worship. Mr. Wesley was now well advanced in life. His health and strength remained undiminished, and he continued his labors and triumphs without interruption of health, till March 2, 1791, when he departed this life in glorious hope, of a blissful immortality in the 88th year of his age, and 64th of his ministry; leaving numerous and flourishing societies throughout Great Britain and Ireland, the Isle of Wight, the Isle of Man, the United States, Canada and Newfoundland, Holland and others. The societies in America were then divided in thirteen conferences, and embraced 250 itenerant preaches, and more than 68,000 members. The latter part of Mr. Wesley's life or career differed in one respect from the former; his early travels were constantly interrupted by mobs and persecutions which embarrassed his work, and often endangered his life; but God permitted him to live to command the respect and veneration of his greatest enemies. His old age was honored with all the attention that was safe for any man to receive. The churches in London closed against him in 1738, are now opened to him. And he has more applications to preach in those very churches, for the benefit of public charities than he can possibly fill. In many places in the country a visit by him created a sort of general festival; on his visit to Cornwall accompanied by John Nelson, he plucked blackberries from the hedges to allay their craving hunger, and slept upon boards, his saddle-bags was his pillow, he is now received in that country as an angel of God. On the 17th of August, 1789, on visiting Falmouth, he says, "The last time I was here about forty years ago, I was taken prisoner by an immense mob, gaping and roaring like lions." But now the streets are lined by high and low to honor him.

MILK TOAST.—Scald a quart of milk in a double boiler, and thicken it with two even tablespoonfuls of corn starch dissolved in a little cold water. Add a teaspoonful of salt and a heaping tablespoonful of butter. Have ready a dozen slices of toast, which, unless wanted quite rich, need no butter. Pour the thickened milk into a pan, that each slice may be easily dipped, in it, and pile them when dipped in a deep dish, pouring the rest of the milk over them. Serve very hot. Cream is sometimes used instead of milk, in which case no thickening is put in.

Salt for Senators.

We can understand readily enough how it is necessary for Senators to have nine gallons of alcohol and 300 pounds of "refined camphor." We can even imagine that there are times when the two and a half gallons of castor oil mentioned in the official account of articles purchased for the use of the Senate might be no more than sufficient to "go round" and set all the Senatorial wheels in motion. But pray what can Senators want with forty pounds of rosin and two gallons of turpentine and one pound of borax? There are, of course, a number of distinguished gentlemen in the upper house of Congress who play the fiddle, and play it remarkably well. We know the junior Senator from this State draws a clever bow over that favorite instrument, and it is said that David Davis himself is no "slouch" with it when it comes to old-fashioned tunes like the "Opereel," "The Arkansas Traveler," and solos of that sort. Vest, of Missouri, is said to be an expert, and those who have heard Garland say he can draw more weird music from a hard-looking fiddle than Rubenstein can from a grand piano. There are other musicians in the Senate, including Edmunds and Bayard, though the latter is not a violinist, but excels on the clarionet. But if every Senator was an Ole Bull, and practiced nine hours a day, forty pounds of rosin would be too great an allowance for one session. What, then, means this large quantity of rosin, and, if used legitimately, why do Senators "rosin the bow" so extravagantly?

Then there a few other items that puzzle us. What should the Senate do with three barrels of salt? The winter has been unusually warm in Chicago, but quite cold in Washington. There has scarcely been a necessity for pickling anybody around the Senate in order to keep him until spring; and alum, too! What do Senators do with five pounds of pulverized alum? So with sal-soda. Eleven pounds of this article are charged in the account, and we can't see precisely what the Senate wants with it. Is it bought for its elevating ingredients? Does it make a man rise to a point of order, or enable him to "heave in" a few remarks, when he might otherwise be slumbering in cloak-room? Let us know. Then we have turpentine and spirits of niter and arnica and glycerine, etc., etc. One would imagine from the articles in this line that the Senate was a livery stable, where every animal in the barn was ring-boned, spavined, or covered with "wind-galls." We suggest as a relief for a very natural curiosity that the object of all these articles be specified in the bills. So far as the 500 pounds of soap charged are concerned, nobody cares for that. We want our good men to keep clean if we "don't lay up a cent," and 500 pounds of good strong bar soap ought to do this business pretty thoroughly for ninety days. We think it would be cheaper to start a factory and make our own soap, the old-fashioned, soft kind, for which there is still a great demand, but we won't quarrel about that. The soap is all right, but do tell us about the rosin and the pulverized alum.—Inter Ocean.

"My Smoke-House."

A man who lives in Albany, N. Y., and whose business is that of a clerk, said that he had lately built a house that cost him three thousand dollars. His friends expressed their wonder that he could afford to build so fine a dwelling.

"Why," said he, "that is my smoke-house."

"Your smoke-house! What do you mean?"

"Why, I mean that twenty years ago I left off smoking, and I have put the money saved from smoke, with the interest, into my house. Hence I call it my smoke-house."

Now, boys, we want you to think of this when you are tempted to take your first cigar. Think how much good might be done with the money you are beginning to end in smoke. What would you think of a man who, to amuse himself, should light a paper twenty-five cents and watch it burn? Is it any more sensible to take for your quarter a roll of dry brown leaves, light it and see it smoke?—Ex.

From Our Mission Rooms.

AT SILVER CITY, NEW MEXICO MISSION, Rev. E. L. Allen, pastor, there is plenty of room for work and good promise in it. The congregations are six times as large as the church membership. This means aggression and growth. It means also a demand for busy pastoral work. A great deal of this work is done which has fruit not apparent in statistical tables and formal reports. In these newly settled territories the population is fluctuating. Many are uncertain as to the locality in which they will choose to remain. Those who come as Christians gladly join in the service of the Mission Church, others are respectful listeners, some are converted, but really all who come in at a given period may perhaps move on before the year closes, and the church shows but moderate increase. At Silver City, for instance, some forty regular attendants upon the services had moved away within two months to three "mining camps." For all this, the congregations were not diminished. It hardly needs assertion money bestowed on these Domestic Mission fields is not thrown away. Who however thought that it was wasted? "There is great hope for the future," writes a pastor in the field. The religious lines are tightening. Sabbath desecration is being frowned down; the law of right is respected; ministers services are more in demand and better appreciated than formerly, while the whole social structure is undergoing changes and moral revolutions are quietly bringing about the glory of God. Revivals of religion will be next.

THE SCHOOL WORK IN FOREIGN MISSIONS.—This is necessarily assuming larger proportions. The number of native teachers engaged in the day schools under our care has advanced during the past year 390 to 527. We have now 12 high schools or colleges with 39 teachers and 653 pupils. We have 8 theological schools with 18 teachers and 79 students.

Hon. Wm. P. Frye, member of Congress and ex-Attorney General of Maine, writing to Hon. Neal Dow says:

"I can and do, from my own personal observation, unhesitatingly affirm that the consumption of intoxicating liquors in Maine is not to-day one-fourth as great as it was twenty years ago; that in the country portions of the State, the sale and use have almost entirely ceased; that the law of itself, under a vigorous enforcement of its provisions, has created a temperance sentiment which is marvelous, and to which opposition is powerless. In my opinion, our remarkable temperance reform of to-day is the legitimate child of the law." The foregoing was concurred in by United States Senators, Hon. Lott M. Morrill and Hon. Hannibal Hamlin; also, by members of Congress, J. G. Blaine, John Lynch, John A. Peters and Eugene Hale.

Lieutenant Governor Haskins, of New York, said at a recent meeting of the Grant Club:

"Your club takes the name of the most illustrious statesman and soldier of modern times. [Cheers.] One who more than any other has helped make this a land of freedom safe from the assault of foes without or foes within [Cheers.] I am proud to-night to be known as a member of the Grant Club, and I shall salute you as friends—friends socially and politically—and I am proud, aye, more proud than of any one political act of a life filled with political experience, to be reckoned as one of the 306 who stood through thirty-six ballots at Chicago."

Kansas has increased during the past eighteen months in population at least 100,000, and that that increase is made up of the very best citizens we ever had come to our State. It has been composed of that class of people who build school-houses, who build churches, who establish Sabbath-schools, who help to build up and make a State strong and vigorous and worthy of the respect of the civilization of the world.—Gov. St. John.

The bill introduced by Representative Kelley, in regard to prize money, appropriates $966,120, or so much thereof as may be found to be due officers, seamen and marines of Admiral Farragut's fleet for the capture made in the Mississippi river at New Orleans, April 25, 1862.

What It Costs.

A gentleman was walking in Regents' Park, in London, and he met a man whose only home was in the poor-house. He had come out to take the air and excited the gentleman's interested attention.

"Well, my friend," said the gentleman, getting into conversation, "It is a pity that a man like you should be situated where you are. Now may I ask you how old you are?"

The man said he was eighty years of age.

"Had you any trade before you became penniless?

"Yes, I was a carpenter."

"Did you use intoxicating drink?"

"No, O no, I only took my beer; never anything stronger; nothing but my beer."

"How much did your beer come to a day?"

"Oh, a sixpence a day, I suppose."

"For how long a time?"

"Well, I suppose for sixty years."

The gentleman had taken out his note-book and he continued figuring with his pencil while he went on talking with the man.

"Now, let me tell you," said he, as he finished his calculations, "how much that beer cost you my man. You can go over the figures yourself." And the gentleman demonstrated that the money, a six-pence a day for sixty years, expended in beer, would, if it had been saved and placed at interest, have yielded him nearly eight hundred dollars a year, or an income of fifteen dollars a week for self support.

"Let me tell you how much a gallon of whiskey cost," said a judge after trying a case: "One gallon of whiskey made two men murderers; it made two wives widows; and made eight children orphans."

"Oh!" it's a costly thing."—Dr. Richard Newton.

The Christian who is always finding difficulties in his own way is pretty certain to be an effectual block in somebody else's way. There ever seem to be difficulties in plenty for one who spends the time in hunting after them; but they either vanish before the resolute soul that presses forward toward the mark of the high calling of God which is in Christ Jesus, or else grace is given to overcome them as they are met. The point is simply to press forward; and above all things, to make sure that one's self is not a difficulty.—Examiner and Chronicle.

The devil has a peculiar affection for idlers. He employs them to do all his little dirty jobs. They are his retailers of scandal, strife engenderers and mischief makers generally. They are his most faithful servants ever ready to obey his commands and always on hand when needed. They take special delight in defaming the character of honest, hardworking men and women and stirring up strife and contention in the community.

An English exchange has this: "A bluff old farmer says, "If a man professes to serve the Lord, I like to see him do it when he measures onions as well as when he hollers glory, hallelujah." This remark applies to more transactions than measuring onions." True; and to none, in this country, more than to measuring cord-wood.

Without earnestness no man is ever great, or does really great things. He may be the cleverest of men; he may be brilliant, entertaining, popular; but he will want weight. No soul-moving picture was ever painted that had not in its depth a shadow.—Peter Bayne.

It is reported by the Religious Tract Society, of London, that more copies of the Scriptures have been purchased by the Spaniards during the past twelve years, in proportion to population, than by the French or Italians.

The 50,000,000 of our population have a Protestant minister for every 728 persons, and a Sabbath-school teacher for every fifty-six. One in every five is a member of an evangelical church.

Better be cold than affect to feel. In truth, nothing is so cold as assumed, noisy enthusiasm. Its best emblem is the northern blast of Winter, which freezes as it roars. —Channing.

The Resurrection.

That the word of God teaches the resurrection of the dead is admitted by all who read it. But all are not agreed as to the nature of the resurrection. Upon this point there is quite a diversity of opinion even among devout Christian men who receive the Bible as the word of God and bow with reverence to its teachings. The prevailing faith among the Jews at the time of Christ's advent and during his ministry was that there was to be a resurrection of the bodies of all men from their graves. If in this they were wrong, it is equally clear that Christ in no way ever attempted to correct this error, but rather encouraged them in it, as he did the doctrine of the immortality of the soul and future rewards and punishment.

Frequently in his personal words Christ comes to us with the blessed assurance of His own resurrection, not as a spiritual recovery from a fallen state, as the emerging of the soul from the body at the hour of death, but as the literal rising up of the body from the grave to die no more. This resurrection is no myth, no fable, no dream. Strauss, with just and discriminating power, has pronounced it to be "the center of the center, the real heart of Christianity," by which "the truth of Christianity stands or falls." This conveys a deeply significant lesson to every Christian, telling not of a risen spirit but of the body coming forth alive from the grave. When the Lord Jesus called forth to life the dead Lazarus it was not the spirit that leaped forth from the tomb. It was no spirit, no divine soul that was bound up in those special bondages as that was imprisoned in the tomb of pious Joseph. It was Christ's body that slept there. It was Christ's body that must rise from that grave, and so the victory of the Father's love and power was made complete in releasing the body of His Son from the bonds of death. The preaching of Paul and the early Apostolic Church centered around Christ's resurrection and the resurrection of the body. They tell us that "the hour is coming in the which all that are in their graves shall hear his voice. And shall come forth they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." They tell us that "this corruption shall put on incorruption," that this mortal must put on immortality, that there is a natural (mortal) body, and that there is a spiritual (immortal) body. Just what this relationship is or how it is that we are to have this wonderfully mysterious connection between form and spirit "doth not yet appear." Nevertheless it is a grand and glorious truth that our bodies shall rise again, and we do well to take it to our hearts. We accept in all its grandly solemn and grandly joyful significance too the lesson of Christ's resurrection. We see in it a pledge, a promise to the Christian of his resurrection, and have no foolish fears nor questions to ask about our friends who have gone before us, or who may come on after us as to whether we shall know them in heaven. We frequently turn our thoughts to the place of the dead, but it is never without looking forward to the time when "all that are in their graves shall hear His voice and come forth." Oh, what a change! This frail body so full of pain and infirmity shall come forth from the grave purified, incorruptible and adapted to the residence of the sin[illegible]

Grow.

Far too many Christians stop at the very first stage of their faith. They never put away childish things. They are always delighted with the cradle, the trundle-bed, with marbles and kites. They never grow from milk to meat. Perhaps they have a creed and make confession, but they know but little about a new heart. Were they covetous before, they are so still. Were they passionate before, they still have much to say about being angry and sin not. Were they foul-mouthed, the grace they have found has not sanctified the words of their lips. This redemption from sin has more reference to the branches than the root, to the stream than to the fountain. Brethren these things ought not so to be. God wants us to show the signs of the new birth. He calls upon every Christian to grow in grace. We are his disciples, his scholars. This makes it necessary that we study and progress in knowledge. If we are in reality born from above, this requires that we seek those things that are above, that we be separate from the world, that we abandon all sinful and worldly pleasure, that we move on out and up from all carnal mindedness to spiritual mindedness. We want to find ourselves daily growing stronger, and more and more the master of ourselves, and a growing similitude to the character of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Texas.

Texas is a vast Empire of wonderful possibilities. Railroads are fast opening up all parts of this grand and great State. This is the time for the Church of the Lord Jesus to lay her plans, upon a large scale for the future. Dr. Rust on his recent visit bought a most delightful site at Austin, the capitol of the State, for a college. We need and must have one at Houston. We doubt if there is another point in all the State where a first class school would be so well patronized and bring so good a harvest to the Church. We do not want to have Dr. Rust forget Houston. In a recent visit to this city we found our people greatly interested in the contemplated school. We know them, we have tried them, they will stand by the Church and do all they can. Bro. Nichols as presiding elder of the district, Scott at Trinity, Watrous at Mt. Vernon, Taylor at St. James and Davis on the circuit are noble men and will do a good work. The Houston District may, with propriety, be called a first class district. Trinity is one of the finest churches in the city, and many of the most flourishing societies in the Texas Conference are within the bounds of this district. We hope that in the work of saving lost men, like the creature in Revelation, they may push northward and southward and eastward and westward. To us nothing could be more beautiful or desirable.

The Galveston Christian Advocate of Feb. 4 complains of indefiniteness as follows:

Bishop Warren reminds us of Bishop Gilbert Haven in his Texas correspondence to the New York Christian Advocate. We fear the good bishop does not err from veracity the manner of which the following "buncombe" is manufactured: "I am surprised," he says, "at the number of white people who come to hear our colored preachers. One of them has half of his regular congregation made up of white people. They can find no better preaching, and are often at the altar."

"The number" and "one of them" are very indefinite terms. The bishop ought to say what is the number and character of such "white people" necessary to surprise him. "They are often at the altar" where the colored preachers preach, etc., is also somewhat indefinite.

We will supply the definite information desired by our confrere by stating the experience of one colored minister stationed by Bishop Warren in a Texas conference. His presiding elder says: He has succeeded in gathering a membership of fourteen members (since conference), only two of whom are colored. As to their "character" it is presumable that like other church members, editors not excepted, they are sinners saved by grace.

Baldwin Seminary.

We take pleasure in placing this new enterprise before our readers. Bro. Baldwin has donated his beautiful house property at Baldwin to the Freedman's Aid Society for the establishment of a school for the benefit of white students. The movement was inaugurated at the late session of our conference by Bishop Peck and Dr. Hartzell, and accepted by Dr. Rust on his late visit to Baldwin. Rev. W. H. Fitch is elected principal, and Mrs. Fitch [illegible] work in the school, Bro. Baldwin [illegible] paying the salary for [illegible] present year, at the close of which it is to be supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society. It is placed under the control and patronage of our Church, and it is designed to make it an instrumentality of great power in the elevation of the white people of the South. We shall refer to this matter more fully hereafter.

A Visit to Wiley University.

While in Marshall, Texas, a week or two ago, we took occasion to visit Wiley University, one of the many excellent institution of learning, supported by the Freedmen's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This school, which, as one of the professors expressed it, is the outgrowth of necessity, has grown up nicely. The university is beautifully located upon one of the highest hills overlooking the whole town. Two substantial two story brick buildings, in the center, affording chapel, recitation rooms, and a few dormitories for girls, with two cottages, one upon either side occupied by the president and professors; a two story frame building for a boarding hall, with accommodation to lodge about forty young men, and a plain wooden structure for the primary department, all in the midst of a well graded ten acre campus and orchard, make up the building accommodations. The winter term has opened grandly, with 200 on roll, and still they come! President Davis, ably assisted by Professors Webb and Elder, and two very excellent lady teachers, waves his hands bidding many more to come on and obtain a good Christian education, almost without money and without price. It is simply wonderful to see and estimate the work being done here with such limited means and facilities. Students are here taught from the alphabet to the higher mathematics, and through the sciences and languages, with all the polish of a complete university course of instructions, almost without any means. It is indeed wonderful! The boarding department especially, is a perfect marvel of economy and physical satisfaction! There are few objects of Christian charity, if any, more deserving of aid than these institutions! Who will next inscribe his name upon the scroll of honor and imperishable fame by donating liberally to these Christian enterprises?

What shall we do when the doctors disagree? Alexander H. Stephens, who is writing the history of the Administrations of this country, places that of R. B. Hayes, among the first. At a commemoration of Abraham Lincoln's 73d birth-day in New York, by the Lincoln Club, Emory Storrs, a distinguished lawyer from Chicago, is said to have spoken with greatest contempt of the Administration of President R. B. Hayes. The Chicago lawyer will die and be forgotten, but the verdict of history will put the Hayes Administration among the first.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Queen Victoria will spend three weeks in Switzerland.

—The address of Rev. R. L. Beals, is now No. 522, Morales street, New Orleans.

—Rev. T. G. Bebanall, has been elected moral instructor of the Indiana State Prison South.

—Rev. J. F. Marshall, requests his correspondents to address him at 212½ St. Joseph street, New Orleans.

—The Rev. Dr. Vincent and Rev. A. H. Gillett will conduct a Sunday-school Congress in Des Moines, Ia., March 19-21.

—Right Rev. Patrick N. Lynch, Roman Catholic Bishop of Charleston died, Feb. 26th, aged 65. He was consecrated in 1858.

—The widow of Bishop D. S. Doggett, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died at Richmond, Va. Feb. 18, aged sixty-nine years.

—The widow of President Polk, has not the means to keep up the home left to her by her husband in trust for the State of Tennessee.

—Rev. Samuel Dunn, well-known among Methodists on both sides of the Atlantic, died in Hastings, England, Jan. 24, aged nearly 84 years.

—Dr. William Nast is busy at work on his Commentary. The first three Gospels have been published in German, and he is now at work on John.

—Rev. L. J. Terrell, having been assigned by the presiding elder to the work at Ripley, Miss., desires his correspondents to address him at that place.

—We had a pleasant call from Joseph Horner, D. D., Agent of the Methodist Book Depository, Pittsburg, Pa. Dr. Horner represents the Depository as in a prosperous condition.

—A Christian lady of Whitman Texas, writes to our assistant: "I congratulate you. I am interested in the elevation of the young people, and I will labor to do them good, praying that God may grant you grace for your trying position."

—Rev. Egerton Ryerson, D. D., LL. D., for many years a prominent and influential Methodist minister in Canada, died in Toronto, Sunday, Feb. 19, aged 78.

—The Professors of Yale College presented to ex-President Woolsey a handsomely engraved gold medal, commemorative of his fifty-year's service at Yale College.

—Rev. Jonathan F. Stearns, D. D., for thirty years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Newark, has been made Pastor Emeritus with a salary of $2,500 for life.

—Rev. L. H. Carhart, of Austin Conference, recently appointed by Bishop Warren to the Financial Agency of the Texas Wesleyan College and other educational interests, is residing for a time with his family at No. 456 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn.

—We were pleased to meet in Marshall, Texas. Prof. Franklin O. Long, A. B., a graduate of Leland University of the city. Prof. Long fills the chair of mathematics in Bishop's College, Marshall, Texas. Their new building when finished will make this College, one among the finest owned by the Baptists in the South, for the education of their colored members.

—Last week we had the pleasure of riding from New Orleans, to Houston, Texas, with Dr. Rust, Corresponding Secretary of the Freedmans Aid Society. The Dr's. hair is a little whiter, but his step is quite as elastic, and his heart full as young as when we first knew him as the popular President of the New Hampshire Conference Seminary, and Female College. He believes that his head was made for thinking, his heart for loving, and his mouth for talking, but he is as sparse of his jokes as ever. Whether his days are few or many he will leave a work that will remain long after he is gone to immortality. Few men have a stronger hold upon our people in the South. He has promised to jot a few words for the SOUTHWESTERN.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

A. R. Norris, Austin: "We are trying very hard to build our new church, and raising as fast as we can. The people subscribe liberally. Presiding elder Madison held our first quarterly meeting, preached two glorious sermons, and administered the sacrament to near 200 persons. We are also trying to raise money for our conference school. If the building can be erected and in readiness for the fall term, it will infuse new life and vigor into Methodism in Western Texas."

W. Goodwin, Goliad: "I entered my work Jan. 13, 1882, and found my work in a very good condition. It was under the supervision of Prof. E. P. Westbrooks, who was appointed by the elder on his last quarter. I would have been at my post sooner but the weather would not admit, though my congregation seems to be in good spirit. Our Sunday-school is in a growing condition, also our high school, which was founded by the joint stock company, composed of the people of this community, styled Jones' Male and Female Institute. It is a fine school; Prof. Westbrooks and wife are the principal teachers. He is like a city that is set on a hill that can not be hid, and he is leading our people out of gross darkness into the beautiful sunlight of pleasure. I send you twenty-six new subscribers who willingly take the paper. I anticipate a protracted meeting in the light of the next moon. Pray for my success." [Yes Bro. Goodwin, these young converts will need religious food, the SOUTHWESTERN will do them good and help you in educating and training for God and his Church.—Ed.]

TENNESSEE.

T. Woods, Cedar Grove: "Elder Price held our first quarter; two joined by letter, collection $7. We have commenced a parsonage on an acre of land deeded to us; one room has been finished so I can move in. Elder Price awakened the people on Sunday-school interests."

Rev. A. Burdett appointed lectures for the following places and dates: Mary Grove, Feb. 24; Friendship, Price chapel, March 10; West Tennessee Preparatory School, Mason, March 15 and 16; Midgett chapel, March 24; Linden, April 8; St. Paul church, Waynesboro, April 21; St. James church, April 29.

Wm. Dwegans, Bell's Circuit: "I have three preaching places, and two Sunday-schools with 140 scholars enrolled. One of my largest churches burned down on the night of Jan. 20. The elder had previously held the quarterly meeting there with good results. The brethren are going ahead to build another church soon at Alamo. One of our best local preachers, Bro. Waters, departed this life Feb. 8."

LOUISIANA.

Bro. Lyon at La Teche is having large congregations, and the church is nobly aiding him in his efforts.

At Morgan City Bro. Claiborne is gladly received. Sabbath-school and congregation increasing. The people are soon to have a parsonage.

Sixth Street with Bro. Dyer as pastor is starting off with a glorious revival. Bro. Dyer reports over twenty-five mourners and six converts.

The Lord is wonderfully cheering the heart of Bro. Richardson at Centerville with a good increase in his Sunday-school and in a general religious interest.

Report of Book Committee.

The Book Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church held its second annual session for the current quadrennium in Cincinnati, O., opening Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 11 o'clock a. m.

The East and West, North and South, were fully represented; the member from each district being present.

The local sub-Committees were also present, with a single exception.

The Eastern and Western sections met on Tuesday, 7th, at 2 p. m., preparatory to the meeting of the General Committee on Wednesday morning.

The Book Agents, Phillips & Hunt, of New York, and Walden & Stowe, Cincinnati, were present, and made their annual reports of the "Concerns" which they respectively represent.

The reports were carefully canvassed, and they were found, on the whole, to be very satisfactory.

The results of the year show the highest order of business tact and competency in the Agents, while they assure the Church at large that the General Conference did not make any mistake in putting these men into the important positions they now occupy.

It would be to the Committee a satisfactory service to spread before the whole Church in detail the work and results of these two great publishing houses, as shown in their annual reports, if such a service were practicable.

A few aggregates only can be given here:

The total sales of the New York Concern, together with its several Depositories, for the year ending Nov. 30, 1881, are	$852,719
Of the Western Concern	714,020
Making a grand total of	$1,566,739

The circulation of periodicals Nov. 30, 1881, was as follows:

The periodicals of the Western House are issued in the English, German and Swedish languages—and the reports shows that no class of Methodists equal the Germans in conducting and sustaining our periodical literature published in their own language.

The Committee were particularly gratified by that part of the report of the Agents at New York, touching the progress in paying the bonded debt incurred in the year 1869 by the purchase of the property at 805 Broadway.

The old 7 per cent bonds have been called in and paid or refunded at a lower rate of interest, so that the bonded debt is now only about $260,000 funded at 5 per cent. The Agents here say, "We were gratified to find that we had no difficulty in disposing of the new bonds, and we were obliged to decline applications for many which we could not supply."

The Western Conference has also been able to reduce its indebtedness, besides making a very favorable sale of a large amount of real estate in Cincinnati, which it had carried for many years.

The total sales of both houses are found to be slightly less than in 1880, caused mainly by reduction in price of The Christian Advocate at New York, yet the Committee were fully satisfied that the financial condition of the publishing interests of the Church was never better than now.

The Agents at Cincinnati were recommended to close the Depository at Atlanta, Ga., it having failed to pay its expenses for the year, but they were authorized to provide for the sale of our books at Atlanta in some way that shall not involve a loss to the Concern.

The Depository at Boston having failed to pay its current expenses, the Agents at New York were recommended to make such arrangements for the sale of our books at Boston as shall not subject the Book Concern to any loss.

The Methodist Advocate was found also to have used its income and the subsidy of $1,500 provided by the General Conference, and incurred a loss of several hundred dollars, and the Agents were instructed to put the paper on a cash basis, hoping that in this manner the Advocate may be continued until complete success shall crown the efforts of its Editor.

The Southwestern Christian Advocate at New Orleans has paid its way, with no margin of profit, though the report shows it is gaining a hold on the people it serves.

Dr. Hartzell, its Editor, having been appointed Assistant Secretary of the Freedmen's Aid Society, found it necessary to resign the editorship of the paper, and the Committee accepted his resignation, and elected to the vacancy the Rev. L. P. Cushman, who will immediately enter upon his work.

The report of the Northern Christian Advocate shows a handsome increase in its circulation, and in cash receipts about $2,186 more than its expenditures.

The California Christian Advocate according to report of Agents, has more than met the expectations of the Committee, having carried itself handsomely through the year without embarrassment of debt.

Among the most interesting documents presented for the consideration of the Committee was the report of the Treasurers of the Episcopal Fund, Messrs. Hunt and Stowe. The Treasurer say: "When we remember that this is the first year of the history of the Methodist Episcopal Church when the Bishops have been dependent for their support upon the voluntary contributions of the Church, the result is certainly gratifying and creditable to all parties."

From a careful analysis of this report, and the tabulated statistics of its apportionments to the several Conferences, and the collections which have been raised in response to the apportionment, the Committee were fully convinced that it is necessary for the pastors to present the claims of this fund to their congregations, with such explanations and facts as will help the people to comprehend the propriety and justness of their obligations to support their chief pastors, and thus secure an ample fund for that purpose.

The Committee last year tried the experiment of recommending a dividend of the "proceeds" of the Book Concern, to the Annual Conference to the amount of $15,000. The dividend was made by the Agents accordingly, and it is now being distributed to the several Conferences as they occur in 1882. The distribution was ordered to be made on the basis of Conference membership as shown in the Minutes of 1881.

The Committee made a similar recommendation again this session of the same amount, the distribution to be made to the Conference in 1883 on the basis of membership of 1882.

The Committee at this session found themselves compelled to part with one of their number, James H. Taft, Esq., a member of the Local Committee. For ten years Brother Taft has rendered most unremitting and efficient service to the Church, and specially to the Book Concern at New York, but now under the pressure of personal business obligations tendered his resignation. His resignation was regretfully accepted, and William Hoyt, Esq., of New York, was elected to fill the vacancy.

At 4 P. M. Friday, Feb. 10, the Committee adjourned to meet on the second Wednesday of February, 1883, at 805 Broadway, New York City.

I. S. BINGHAM, Secretary.

A Sinner Saved.

Marion Bailey, husband of one of our devoted sisters, got into a difficulty with James Alexander, Feb. 4, and was cut on the left side of the abdomen very badly. He lingered until Monday night. I called to see him about 11 o'clock, read a passage of scripture and exhorted him to appeal to God for saving power. This he gladly accepted, and we prayed with him until half past 12 o'clock. He then expired, shouting glory to God in the highest. When the end was near and he could hardly speak, I asked him if all was right between himself and his Lord, and his repeated reply was "yes." Let there be joy in Heaven over one sinner that repenteth, but it is dangerous to put off reconciliation with the Lord until the dying hour. He leaves a wife and several little children to mourn his loss.

That Church Manual.

A live presiding elder of the Northwest writes thus: "I have seen the January number of the Manual. I have been impressed with its value, and must make extra efforts to have our official members to take it. It is just the thing for them."

We concur with this. It is difficult to see how presiding elders and pastors can render a more valuable and permanent service to the various benevolent causes of our Church than by freely circulating the Church Manual.

Jottings from the Rock City.

The high water in this city has left its mark, as the highest in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. The damage was great to property. Many of the smaller houses were lifted from their foundations, and a number of foundations were softened and the structures fell, or were rendered unsafe and are entire losses. The greatest loss was the stopping of the industries, by which hundreds of men were thrown out of employment. As so large a portion of the laboring classes of our city expect only to make both ends meet when they labor, as soon as they are thrown out of work, they are short of the necessaries of life; there was much suffering among these poor. The rains continue so that the river is still high, and the farmers are prevented from doing the usual work of this month. Rev. E. P. Hammond, the evangelist, has been here, and has done a good work in the colored colleges of our city. His visit at the Central Tennessee college will long be remembered. His success among the white people was only moderate. He is an earnest man, devoted to his work of preaching and pointing men to the cross, and has been very successful in many places where he has held meetings. His manner of conducting meetings, his style of speaking, and the character of his addresses, are not pleasing or impressive to all; God honors his work however, and souls are saved, and all Christians will bid him God speed.

The present session of the Central Tennessee College has been prosperous. Over 330 students have been enrolled. The spring term begins on the 2d of March, which will be a good time to enter. The Meharry medical department closes on the 1st of March. The graduating class numbers eight, two of them have the A. B., and others have nearly completed the college course. Dr. J. B. Lindsley, medical educator for over thirty years in this city, member of the State board of education, and professor of chemistry in the medical department of the Nashville University, gives a month, to a visit to some of the northern cities to solicit aid for this medical department. He expects to spend the month of March in this work. He does this as a labor of love for the medical education of physicians for four millions of colored people, in the valley of the Mississippi, south of the Ohio river, many of whom find it exceedingly difficult to secure proper medical attendance in times of sickness. The doctor is a member of the colored Presbyterian church, a warm friend of the education of the colored people, and especially of their medical training. He expects to call specially on the medical profession to aid him in his plan, of helping on this work. The college has been visited with a gracious revival, and thirty of our students have professed their faith in Jesus, and are giving testimony of their joy in believing in class and prayer meetings and in their lives. The out look for the college is most cheering, except the want of more room, which is preventing a large attendance from the city, as we have no building suitable for a model school, which is required to perfect our normal department. We hope some Vanderbilt or Seney will remember us.

GENERAL NEWS [illegible]

The population of Chicago, according to the latest statistics, is 630,000, an increase of 125,000 since the census of 1880 was taken.

The rapid spread of missionary work in foreign lands is well illustrated by the fact that 50 years ago there were 502 mission stations, whereas now there are 5765. In that time the number of ordained missionaries has increased from [illegible] to 6696, and the number of other laborers and assistants from 1236 to 33,856. Then there were 70,000 communicants; now there are 857,332. The contributions from America for the purpose of carrying on this work have grown from $250,000 to $2,500,000 each year.

The Mayor of Rome declares the people would rather see the city in ashes than again bow to Papal domination.

Congressman Farwell, of Chicago, and Senator Kellogg, were accepted as sureties upon the bond of P. B. S. Pinchback, as surveyor of the port of New Orleans.

Last Friday the President sent to the Senate the following nominations: Roscoe Conkling, to be Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court; A. A. Sargent, to be Minister to Germany; Walter H. Johnson, Collector of Internal Revenue, Second District of Georgia; Henry F. Griscom, postmaster at Chattanooga, Tenn.

H. C. Astwood has been appointed U. S. Consul to St. Domingo.

[illegible] help to memory and interest in the subjects if the reader makes his own index. With this plan you will always know where to turn for information; where at least you can find sure help in preparing an address on a given topic. The Manual has a missionary index to all the church papers. Whosoever will send to the different editorial offices for the several numbers of the papers which contain important missionary articles will possess a grand collection of such material, enough to give a very instructive and satisfactory view of our work. Consider how much is written on missionary topics in all our church papers together. Let this reading be combined with a study of the Annual Report and of the Quarterly Manual, and nobody will lack the means of [illegible] Church papers. Care- [illegible] charge of a girl's school which was unexpectedly passed over to us by the ladies of the Plymouth Brethren Mission, who have been obliged to return to England. Mrs. Lewis has also charge of a woman's weekly meeting, and a daily meeting of women at the hospital. Reports concerning the reinforcements are very favorable. It will be remembered that brother Lewis was sick on his way out, and was obliged to remain for a time in Japan. He recovered his health, and is now reported in good condition.

Brother and Sister Pilcher of the Peking Mission, rejoice over the birth of a daughter. Superintendent Lowry does not inform us whether the new missionary contemplates entering the service of the W. F. M. S., or "sticking to the parent board." He also says Bro. Davis and family are settling into line, as though he had not been absent. Bro. Gamewell gives great satisfaction, and promises to be a very useful missionary. He is systematically and zealously applying himself to the language.

Calliope, a mission point in the Northwest Iowa conference, of which Rev. G. M. Pendell is pastor, sends twelve names for the "Standing Army," paying $5 each. This for a mission point not six months old, speaks well for Iowa.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

March 5, 1882.—CHRIST STILLING THE TEMPEST.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 4: 35-41.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He maketh the storm a calm, so that the waves thereof are still."—Ps. 107: 29.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer's Power Over Nature.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

The day at the sea-side was packed wonderfully full with deeds and with instruction. In the parables of the last two lessons we have been considering a part of its record. On the part of the Savior the labors of the day were herculean. He healed the sick, cast out demons, and taught the multitude in parables. All day long he used his divine power without stint for the healing of the souls and the bodies of men. Before he gave commandment to depart to the other side, there were three who manifested their desire to become his disciples. The first one was a scribe, who declared with great positiveness, "Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest." All that was needed to turn him back was the discouraging statement of Christ: "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven have nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." He was the rash volunteer, who had not counted the cost. The second was told to follow, but replied: "Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father." To him it was answered: "Leave the dead to bury their own dead, but go thou and publish abroad the kingdom of God." The last one said: "I will follow thee, Lord, but first suffer me to bid farewell to them that are at my house." To him it was said: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God." After the terribly exhausting labors of the day, Christ needed rest. To obtain rest he must get away from the multitude. A throng is pitiless. The many have no consideration for the individual. Each one considers only his own need. Especially would this be true of a multitude made up in a large part of those who came to be healed, and of the friends who brought them for that purpose. Though his heart was moved with compassion for them, from many such a multitude the Savior had to flee. They would have given him no time to eat or sleep. He fled from them, but only that he might return again. The raging of the wind, the shock of the waves, and the tumult [illegible] of the disciples made no [illegible] upon the sleeping [illegible] could his humanity [illegible] impressively shown! [illegible] of the boat upon [illegible] as exhausted as any day [illegible]. So far as the elements were [illegible] there was reason for the [illegible] of his disciples. The storm, [illegible] that lake, was unusually [illegible]. Just as the boat was about [illegible] engulfed, as it seemed to them, they expressed their terror in the [illegible] words, "Master, Master, we [illegible]." The raging wind and the [illegible] did not for an instant [illegible] him from his tranquillity. NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The American Agriculturist, for March, has an article on Cutworms and other insects of Georgia.

The March St. Nicholas, has an entertaining article on "Men and Animal Shows," a fairy tale, and a portrait of the painter Titian.

The Southern Pulpit for February, 1882, conducted by Rev. H. M. Jackson, and J. J. Lafferty, Richmond, Va., comes to us full of great things. It can be read and studied with profit.

The Scientific American came out of the late New York fire in good shape. The new offices are located at 262 Broadway. We congratulate the publishers of this most excellent paper on their good fortune.

The March Wide Awake, is brilliant with fine pictures, stories and solid articles. Miss Mulock's "Mill Song" is set to music, and the Chautauqua Reading Course is useful. Terms $2 50 per year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, publishers.

The Nineteenth Century, Contemporary Review, and the Fortnightly Review, each for the month of January have been received. These excellent foreign monthlies are reprinted by George Munro, New York, and may be purchased at 20 cents per copy or subscribed for at $2 25 per annum. European political, social and scientific movements are carefully recorded in their pages. Lovers of pure literature may read them with delight.

The North American Review for March, 1882, edited by Allen Thorndike Rice, 30 Lafayette Place, New York, has 1. The conduct of the Guiteau trial. 2. The progress of the French Republic. 3. Trial by Jury. 4. The sessions of Protestantism. 5. Law for the Indians. 6. The Fallacies of Homeopathy. 7. Results of Prohibitory Legislation. This number well sustains the reputation which the Review has gained for vigor, freshness, and variety. The last article is fully worth the cost of the Review, which is five dollars a year.

The Century Magazine will, in the next and succeeding numbers, be largely occupied with the Jewish question. In March, James Bryce, M. P., the historian, writes about Beaconsfield, and incidentally about the Jews in general. In April, Miss Lazarus will answer the question. "Was Lord Beaconsfield a Representative Jew?" In the same number, Madame Ragozin will describe the present situation in Russia, from a Russian point of view. A reply to Madame Ragozin, by a Jewish writer, will appear in the May number, and other papers will appear in which the relations between the Israelites and Christians in America will be discussed.

The numbers of The Living Age for February 4th, and 11th contain the conclusion of The Future of Islam and the journals of Caroline Fox, Fortnightly; Westminster Abbey, by Matthew Arnold, Nineteenth Century; Old and New Canons of Poetical Criticism, Contemporary; Mrs. Sheldon at Pisa, and a Visit to Voltaire, Temple Bar; The Colors of Flowers, Cornhill; Cervo, and Labedoyere's Doom, Fraser; Four days in Tripoli, and the Stage from 1600 1700, Month; Coleridge Marginalia, and the Open Door, Blackwood; A Prisoner's Note-Book, Golden Hours; The Pope at Rome, and The Giustiniani, Pall Mall; Burmese Lacquer-Ware, St James' Gazette; Mental Work, Modern Thought; and the usual amount of poetry. Littell & Co., Boston, are the publishers.

There is a varied and thoroughly popular interest in the February Popular Science Monthly which has not been surpassed in any former number. The first article, a translation from the German of Emil Du Bois-Reymond, is a masterly paper, entitled "The Seven World-Problems." "Dreams and the Making of Dreams," by Dr. Mortimer Granville, is a very fresh and most instructive handling of an old subject. Professor Pettenkofer continues his golden words on "The Sanitary Relations of the Soil," words which vitally concern everybody. But the most brilliant and striking paper is by Dr. Robert S. Ball, Royal Astronomer of Ireland, entitled "A Glimpse through the Corridors of Time." There is promise of some new and interesting African revelations under the title of "The Mountains of the Moon; or, Travels and Adventures of a Moslem Doctor named Hakim Ben Sheytan." New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Louisiana and the Mississippi Valley owe a debt of gratitude to Capt. Eads for his able and irrefutable argument Saturday before the House committees on the levees and improvements of the Mississippi river, in favor of levees as an essential factor of the improvement of the river.—*N. THE AMERICAN
ART EXCHANGE

Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. We shall, as rapidly as possible, bring out in this country all the famous art works of the Old World, and at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.

As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be produced, we will take pleasure in forwarding a Complimentary Copy of the first edition of art work produced by us in America.

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb Painting, occupying nearly the entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled

"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."

Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is impossible to secure a copy at a less price except through this house. The engraving represents the Savior as He is leaving the Pretorium or Court after being condemned to crucifixion. He is descending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps are two burley executioners in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendant. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Poutius Pilate, who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly descends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion. There are upward of One thousand figures represented, prominent among which are Our Savior, Caiphas, Annas, Alexander, The Virgin, Mary Magdalene, Judas, Pilate, Herod, and a host of other historical names. An outline engraving, with numbers and figures, indentifying the prominent characters, accompanies each of the the large works, thus making the picture a valuable historical reference. It stands to-day unquestionably.

The Finest and most Valuable Engraving in the World.

The engraving of the plate alone cost upward of $80,000, and no copies are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to not less than $40 per copy.

This splendid work is the first of a series of the prominent art works of Europe which the American Art Exchange will produce in America, simultaneously with their production in the Old World, and at prices which will enable the multitude to purchase.

This first work will be used as an introductory advertisement, and will be furnished

Free to all Applicants.

It is a correct reproduction of the English plate which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price, who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size (25x36 inches) and with the same attention to perfect work as characterizes the $30 copies.

The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when future works are announced the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted we will ship a perfect copy of this work, together with a smaller outline key engraving, to any applicant. The engraving, which is a very large one, will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage (the shipping being done by contract) which will be 36 cents or twelve 3 cent stamps. It was at first thought that 30 cents would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags, it was decided to increase the thickness of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of accident. This necessitated an increase of charge to 36 cents. On receipt of application the engraving will be immediately forwarded, all charges prepaid, to any address in the United States, when twelve 3 cent stamps are inclosed in letter to cover charge.

Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be forwarded at a charge of 27 cents each copy, as one tube can be used for several copies. We advise clubs to send together, as several copies can be sent together with greater safety than single engravings. Not more than ten copies will be sent to any address for distribution, and the name of each member of the club must be sent. Address all letters to

The Facilities and Advantages Offered by the Louisville and Great Southern Railway,
THE LEADING RAILWAY of the SOUTH.

THROUGH PASSENGERS.
The Louisville and Great Southern is the great thoroughfare between all points North East and West.

THROUGH TICKETS
By this line will be found on sale at the Ticket Office, corner Camp and Common Streets. The Louisville & Great Southern offers all the attractions of an unsurpassed line in construction, equipment and management. THROUGH CARS to all the principal cities North, East and West connect with this Trunk Line at Louisville. On all first-class through tickets stop over privilege is granted at Cave City to passengers desirous of visiting

MAMMOTH CAVE.
Thus a view of the greatest of natural curiosities, marvelous and wonderful beyond description, can be enjoyed with little expense or detention, if Through Tickets are secured by the Louisville & Great Southern. The Mammoth Cave is situated eight miles from Cave City, which is eighty-five miles South of Louisville on the Louisville & Great Southern Railway Line. McCoy's Concord Stages run to and from all passenger trains. The Cave Hotel is under the management of Wm. Miller, Esq., and is first-class in all its appointments.

Hon. BAYARD TAYLOR said of the Cave: "It is the grandest natural curiosity I have ever visited, Niagara not excepted, and he whose expectations are not satisfied by its marvelous avenues, domes and starry grottoes must either be a fool or a demi-god."

A visit to Mammoth Cave at any season of the year is delightful. The temperature, 59°, being the same the year round, the most delicate can visit it without fear of cold, heat or exhaustion.

A WONDERFUL and
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.

2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.

3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.

4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH, Medicated.

Ko Kun Hua, Professor of Chinese at Harvard University, died at Cambridge Feb. 15 of pneumonia, after a brief illness. Ko Kun Hua was born at Ningpo in 1838, and his whole life was devoted to literary pursuits. He was admitted by the Emperor to the rank of mandarin. In 1879 he began a three-years engagement at Harvard College as instructor of the Chinese language and literature. His wife and five children accompanied him to this country, two of his sons being elevated to the rank of mandarins before leaving China. Another child was born in Cambridge last year. At the time of his death he was engaged upon the translation of his poetical works into English.

A Willing Sacrifice.

Some years ago, a minister was called to see a little girl seven years old, who was dying. She lived in a back street. When the minister got there, a woman showed him where the child was and he sat down to talk to her.

"What do you want, darling?"

"Well, sir, I wanted to see you before I died."

"Are you dying?"

"Yes sir."

"Would you not like to get well again?"

"I hope not, sir."

"Why not?"

"O, sir, ever since I became a Christian I have been trying to bring Father to church, and he won't come; and I think if I die, you will bury me, won't you?"

"Yes, darling."

"Well, I have been thinking if I die father must come to the funeral then you will be able to preach the Gospel to him, and I should be [illegible] for him [illegible]."

[illegible] expected, [illegible] called [illegible] out his hand.

He did join, and became a true friend of Christ. That little girl was truly walking in the footsteps of Jesus, because she was willing to die even, that her father might be saved from his sins. If we do not need to die for others, we should at least try to be like Jesus in living for them and in doing all we can to lead them to be Christians.

Lost Friends.

[We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.]

DEAR EDITOR—My mother Milly Bush, after her second marriage Milly Johnson, and from her owner Mrs. Sally Ward Grayson sometimes called Milly Grayson, was sold before the war at Louisville, Ky, to a negro trader who brought her to New Orleans. She left seven children. I have heard of her twice through a lady from New Orleans. I am her daughter, and will reward any one who will furnish information of her whereabouts.

MRS. JANE GRAY.
529 Sixth Street, Louisville, Ky.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire for my mother. Her name was Charlotte. She used to belong to a man by the name of Tom Harkins and was sold to a man by the name of Peacocks in Paris, Lamar county. There was three sisters of us, Eliza, Betty, Mary. Mary was the youngest. Sister Betty was sold with mother. Sister Mary and I came out here together. Sister Mary died. Tom Harkins married Agnes Tanner, daughter of John Tanner. Address Eliza Yancy, care Rev. W. H. Davis, Columbus, Texas, Lock Box 35.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to find my kin people, my father and mother. We were brought from Mississippi before the war to Texas by Mr. William Johnson. Then he carried father and mother back to Mississippi. Father and mother were sold to a man by the name of Mr. Sumptars Jarrell. There were seven children of us, father's name Friday Reed, mother's Anna Reed; brothers names M. Reed, P. Reed, Samuel Reed, Charles Reed, Jack Reed; sisters names Susan Reed, Darkns Reed. I will be glad to hear from them. Address Susan Reed, Galveston, Texas, care Rev. G. W. Smith, Tabernacle Church.

DEAR EDITOR—I want to enquire for some uncles of mine. They lived in Lawrence District. When my grandmother came here to this state, from South Carolina, my mother was a baby; when my grandmother came here with Mr. Matt Lockheart, and Sam. Lockheart, their misses names were, Mary and Lucinda. Mr. Matt, and Tom were sons of Gen. Lockhart. My mother left three daughters, and our grandmother raised us. My name is Emma Jane Spencer, and sister's name is Mary Maria Ellis. The uncles names I want to find out about, I will give, as their ages come: Peter Lockhart, Robert Lockhart, Stephen Lockhart, and Joseph Lockhart. I have an aunt also, I wish to find out about, her name is Isoleni, she was sold to Mr. Russell, of Alabama. My grandfather's and grandmother's names are Isaac Lockhart, and Mary Lockhart; she died the 19th. of July, 1864, and was buried on the 28th. I am a member of the Methodist church, and sister is a member of the Missionary Baptist. The last words of my grandmother were for sisters and myself, to hunt up our uncle and aunt, so you will greatly oblige us by sending to the different churches a copy of this letter.

EMMA SPENCER.
Aberdeen, Miss.

DEAR EDITOR—I wish to inquire of an old friend of mine. His name is Ben Herbert. He has a son with us. His son's name is Joseph Herbert, and he says that in 1878 he lived in Jackson, Miss., but since that time he has removed, and that he could not learn where. In 1881 his son heard that he had went through Vicksburg, Miss, and was living somewhere on the river, but he never could find out where. In slavery he belonged to Dr. P. Wilson. His wife's name is Nelly. She died one year before emancipation. I will describe him: He is a low small man, weighs about one hundred and twenty pounds, about fifty years of age, dark complexion, high forehead, bald on the top. He has got two sons and one daughter. The eldest Joseph Herbert, younger son's name is Thomas Herbert and the daughter's name Caroline Halthy. She is married to Isam Halthy. Joseph Herbert is a school teacher in our vicinity and he stays with me. Dear editor if such a man can be found please address me at Lexington, Miss. Yours truly,

BEN FORD.

DR. C. W. BENSON'S NEW REMEDY AND FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION.

The story is told of an eagle that, flying over an ice-covered valley, saw a dead animal, and, descending from its lofty flight, feasted so long upon the carcass that when it thought to mount, it could not, its wings having become frozen to the ice. Like to this is what is oftened witnessed of the influence of the world on the soul. How men seem to be completely earth-bound!—Ex.

The Senate by a vote of 35 yeas nays 17 passed a bill authorizing the President, in recognition of the eminent public services of Ulysses S. Grant, late General of the Army, to nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint him to the army with the rank and grade of general, to be placed on the retired list with pay accordingly.

The Herzegovinians, after four days' siege, captured Fort Ustikolina, commanding the defile of the upper Driena, between Fatcha and Gorazza. An Austrian battalion, forming the garrison, was pursued with loss to Gorazza. Two cannons were captured. The whole population on the Upper Driena has joined the insurrection. Fatcha is surrounded by three insurgent divisions, and the commandant of the place is treating for its surrender.

on ancient army rolls. Sitting with a friend in the gallery of the House of Commons one night after a long day's labor in this field of research, he said with evident elation that in every war in which for three centuries patriots of English blood had struck sturdy blows for constitutional government and human liberty, his family had been represented. They were at Marston Moor, at Naseby and at Preston; they were at Bunker Hill, at Saratoga, and at Monmouth, and in his own person had battled for the same great cause in the war which preserved the union of the States.

HIS EARLY HISTORY.

Losing his father before he was 2 years old, the early life of Garfield was one of privation, but its poverty has been made indelicately and unjustly prominent. Thousands of readers have imagined him as the ragged, starving child, whose reality too often greets the eye in the squalid sections of our large cities. Gen. Garfield's infancy and youth had none of their destitution, none of their pitiful features appealing to the tender heart and to the open hand of charity. He was a poor boy in the same sense in which Henry Clay was a poor boy; in which Andrew Jackson was a poor boy; in which Daniel Webster was a poor boy; in the sense in which a large majority of the eminent men of America in all generations have been poor boys.

No man ever grew up in the agricultural regions of the West, where a house-raising, or even a corn-husking, is matter of common interest and helpfulness, with any other feeling than that of broad-minded, generous independence. This honorable independence marked the youth of Garfield, as it marks the youth of millions of the best blood and brain now training for the future citizenship and future government of the republic. Garfield was born heir to the land, to the title of freeholder which has been the patent and passport of self-respect with the Anglo-Saxon race ever since Hengist and Horsa landed on the shores of England. when 24 years of age, he seemed at one bound to spring into conspicuous and brilliant success. Within six years he was successively president of a college, State Senator of Ohio, major-general of the army of the United States, and Representative-elect to the National Congress. A combination of honors so varied, so elevated, within a period so brief and to a man so young, is without a precedent or parallel in the history of the country.

HIS ARMY LIFE.

Garfield's army life was begun with no other military knowledge than such as he had hastily gained from books in the few months preceding his march to the field. Stepping from civil life to the head of a regiment, the first order he received when ready to cross the Ohio was to assume command of a brigade, and to operate as an independent force in Eastern Kentucky. His immediate duty was to check the advance of Humphrey Marshall, who was marching down the Big Sandy, with the intention of occupying, in connection with other Confederate forces, the entire territory of Kentucky, and of precipitating the State into secession. This was at the close of the year 1861.

The result of the campaign is matter of history. The skill, the endurance, the extraordinary energy shown by Garfield, the courage he imparted to his men, raw and untried as himself, the measures he adopted to increase his force and to create in the enemy's mind exaggerated estimates of his numbers, bore perfect fruit in the routing of Marshall, the capture of his camp, the dispersion of his force, and the emancipation of an important territory from the control of the rebellion. Coming at the close of a long series of disasters to the Union arms, Garfield's victory had an unusual extraneous importance, and in the popular judgment elevated the young commander to the rank of a military hero. With less than 2,000 men in his entire command, with a mobilized force of only 1,100, without cannon, he had met an army of 5,000 and defeated them—driving Marshall's forces successively from two strongholds of their own selection, fortified with abundant artillery. Major-Gen. Buell, commanding the Department of the Ohio, an experienced and able soldier of the regular army, published an order of thanks and congratulation on the brilliant result of the Big Sandy campaign which would have turned the head of a less cool and sensible man than Garfield. Buell declared that his services had called into action the highest qualities of a soldier, and President Lincoln supplemented these words of praise by the more substantial reward of a Brigadier General's commission, to bear date from the day of his decisive victory over Marshall.

The subsequent military career of Garfield fully sustained its brilliant beginning. With his new commission he was assigned to the command of a brigade in the army of the Ohio, and took part in the second and decisive day's fight in the great battle of Shiloh.

His military duties closed on the memorable field of Chickamauga, a field which however disastrous to the Union arms, gave to him the occasion of winning imperishable laurels. The very rare distinction was accorded him of a great promotion for his bravery on a field that was lost. President Lincoln appointed him a Major General in the Army of the United States for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Chickamauga.

ELECTED TO CONGRESS.

The Army of the Cumberland was reorganized under the command of General Thomas, who promptly offered Garfield one of its divisions. He was extremely desirous to accept the position, but was embarrassed by the fact that he had, a year before, been elected to Congress, and the time when he must take his seat was drawing near. He preferred to remain in the military service, and had within his own breast the largest confidence of success in the wider field which his new rank opened to him. Balancing the arguments on the one side and the other, anxious to determine what was for the best, desirous above all things to do his patriotic duty, he was decisively influenced by the advice of President Lincoln and Secretary Stanton, both of whom assured him that he could, at that time, be of especial value in the House of Representatives. He resigned his commission of major-general on the 5th day of December, 1863, and took his seat in the House of Representatives on the 7th. He had served two years and four months in the army and had just completed his 32d year.

THE WAR CONGRESS.

With possibly a single exception Garfield was the youngest member in the House when he entered, and was but seven years from his college graduation. But he had not been in his seat 60 days before his ability was recognized and his place conceded. He stepped to the front with the confidence of one who belonged there. The House was crowded with strong men of both parties; 19 of them have since been transferred to the Senate, and many of them have served with distinction in the gubernatorial chairs of their respective States, and on foreign missions of great consequence; but among them all none grew so rapidly, none so firmly as Garfield.

The great measure of Garfield's fame was filled by his service in the House of Representatives. His military life, illustrated by honorable performance, and rich in promise, was, as he himself felt, prematurely terminated and necessarily incomplete. Speculation as to what he might have done in a field, where the great prizes are so few, cannot be profitable. It is sufficient to say as a soldier he did his duty bravely; he did it intelligently; he won an enviable fame, and he retired from the service without blot or breath against him. As a lawyer, though admirably equipped for the profession, he can scarcely be said to have entered on its practice. The few efforts he has made at the bar were distinguished by the same high order of talent which he exhibited on every field where he was put to the test, and if a man may be accepted as a competent judge of his own capacities and adaptations, the law was the profession to which Garfield should have devoted himself. But fate ordained otherwise, and his reputation in history will rest largely upon his service in the House of Representatives. That service was exceptionally long. He was nine times consecutively chosen to the House, an honor enjoyed by not more than six other Representatives of the more than 5,000 who have been elected from the organization of the government to this hour.

A COMPARISON WITH OTHER PARLIAMENTARY LEADERS.

Differing, as Garfield does, from the brilliant parliamentary leaders, it is not easy to find his counterpart anywhere in the record of American public life. He, perhaps, more nearly resembles Mr. Seward in his supreme faith in the all-conquering power of a principle. He had the love of learning and the patient investigation to which John Quincy Adams owes his prominence and his Presidency. He had some of those ponderous elements of mind which distinguished Mr. Webster, and which, indeed, in all our public life have left the great Massachusetts Senator without an intellectual peer.

In English parliamentary history as in our own, the leaders in the House of Commons present points of essential difference from Garfield. But some of his methods recall the best features in the strong, independent course of Sir Robert Peel, and striking resemblances are discernible in that most promising of modern Conservatives, who died too early for his country and his fame, the Lord George Bentick. He had all of Burke's love for the sublime and the beautiful, with, possibly, something of his superabundance; and in his faith and magnanimity, in his power of statement, in his subtle analysis, in his faultless logic, in his love of literature, in his wealth and world of illustration, one is reminded of that great English statesman to-day, who, confronted with obstacles that would daunt any but the dauntless, reviled by those whom he would relieve as bitterly as by those whose supposed rights he is forced to invade, still labors with serene courage for the amelioration of Ireland, and for the honor of the English name.

HIS NOMINATION.

Garfield's nomination to the Presidency, while not predicted or anticipated, was not a surprise to the country. His prominence in Congress, his solid qualities, his wide reputation, strengthened by his then recent election as Senator from Ohio, kept him in the public eye as a man occupying the very highest rank among those entitled to be called statesmen. It was not mere chance that brought him this high honor.

One aspect of Garfield's candidacy was unprecedented. Never before, in the history of partisan contests in this country, had a successful Presidential candidate spoken freely on passing events and current issues. To attempt any thing of this kind seemed novel, rash and even desperate. The older class of voters recalled the unfortunate Alabama letter, in which Mr. Clay was supposed to have signed his political death warrant. They remembered also the hot-tempered effusion by which Gen. Scott lost a large share of his popularity before his nomination, and the unfortunate speeches which rapidly consumed the remainder. The younger voters had seen Mr. Greeley in a series of vigorous and original addresses, preparing the pathway for his own defeat. Unmindful of these warnings, unheeding the advice of friends, Garfield spoke to large crowds as he journeyed to and from New York in August, to a great multitude in that city, to delegations of every kind that called at Mentor during the summer and autumn. With innumerable critics, watchful and eager to catch a phrase that might be turned into odium or ridicule, or a sentence that might be distorted to his own or party's injury, Garfield did not trip or halt in any one of his 70 speeches. This seems all the more remarkable when it is remembered that he did not write what he said, and yet spoke with such logical consecutiveness of thought and such admirable precision of phrase as to defy the accident of misreport and the malignity of misrepresentation.

PRESIDENTIAL LIFE.

In the beginning of his Presidential life Garfield's experience did not yield him pleasure or satisfaction. The duties that engross so large a portion of the President's time were distasteful to him, and were unfavorably contrasted with his legislative work. "I have been dealing all these years with ideas," he impatiently exclaimed one day, "and here I am dealing only with persons. I have been heretofore treating of the fundamental principles of government and here I am considering all day whether A or B shall be appointed to this or that office." He was earnestly seeking some practical way of correcting the evils arising from the distribution of overgrown and unwieldy patronage—evils always appreciated and often discussed by him, but whose magnitude had been more deeply impressed upon his mind since his accession to the Presidency. Had he lived, a comprehensive improvement in the mode of appointment and in the tenure of office would have been proposed by him, and with the aid of Congress no doubt perfected.

But, while many of the executive duties were not grateful to him, he was assiduous and conscientious in their discharge. From the very outset he exhibited administrative talent of a high order. He grasped the helm of office with the hand of a master. In this respect indeed he constantly surprised many who were most intimately associated with him in the government, and especially those who had feared that he might be lacking in the executive faculty. His disposition of business was orderly and rapid. His power of analysis, and his skill in classification, enabled him to dispatch a vast mass of detail with singular promptness and ease. His Cabinet meetings were admirably conducted. His clear presentation of official subjects, his well-considered suggestion of topics on which discussion was invited, his quick decision when all had been heard, combined to show a thoroughness of mental training as rare as his natural ability and facile adaptation to a new and enlarged field of labor.

THE SOUTH

With perfect comprehension of all the inheritance of the war, with a cool calculation of the obstacles in his way, impelled always by a generous enthusiasm, Garfield conceived that much might be done by his administration toward restoring harmony between the different sections of the Union. He was anxious to go South and speak to the people. As early as April he had ineffectually endeavored to arrange for a trip to Nashville, whither he had been cordially invited, and he was again disappointed a few weeks later to find that he could not go to South Carolina to attend the centennial celebration of the victory of the Cowpens. But for the autumn he definitely counted on being present at three memorable assemblies in the South, the celebration at Yorktown, the opening of the Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, and the meeting of the army of the Cumberland at Chattanooga. He was already turning over in his mind his address for each occasion, and the three taken together, he said to a friend, gave him the exact scope and verge which he needed. At Yorktown he would have before him the associations of a hundred years that bound the South and the North in the sacred memory of a common danger and a common victory. At Atlanta he would present the material interests and the industrial development which appealed to the thrift and independence of every household, and which should unite the two sections by the instinct of self-interest and self-defense. At Chattanooga he would revive memories of the war only to show that after all its disaster, and all its suffering, the country was stronger and greater, the Union rendered indissoluble, and the future, through the agony and blood of one generation, made brighter and better for all.

Garfield's ambition for the success of his administration was high. With strong caution and conservatism in his nature, he was in no danger of attempting rash experiments or of resorting to the empiricism of statesmanship. But he believed that renewed and closer attention should be given to questions affecting the material interests and commercial prospects of fifty millions of people. He believed that our continental relations, extensive and undeveloped as they are, involved responsibility, and could be cultivated into profitable friendship or be abandoned to harmful indifference or lasting enmity. He believed with equal confidence that an essential forerunner to a new era of national progress must be a feeling of contentment in every section of the Union, and a generous belief that the benefits and burdens of government would be common to all. Himself a conspicuous illustration of what ability and ambition may do under republican institutions, he loved his country with a passion of patriotic devotion, and every waking thought was given to her advancement. He was an American in all his aspirations, and he looked to the destiny and influence of the United States with the philosophic composure of Jefferson and the demonstrative confidence of John Adams.

DISTURBING POLITICS.

The political events which disturbed the President's serenity for many weeks before that fatal day in July, form an important chapter in his career, and, in his own judgment, involved questions of principle and of right which are vitally essential to the constitutional administration of the Federal government. It would be out of place here and now to speak the language of controversy; but the events referred to, however they may continue to be the source of contention with others, have become, so far as Garfield is concerned, as much a matter of history as his heroism at Chickamauga or his illustrious service in the House. Detail is not needful, and personal antagonism shall not be rekindled by any word uttered to-day. The motives of those opposing him are not to be here adversely interpreted nor their course harshly characterized. But of the dead President this is to be said, and said because his own speech is forever silenced and he can be no more heard except through the fidelity and the love of surviving friends: From the beginning to the end of the controversy he so much deplored, the President was never for one moment actuated by any motive of gain to himself or of loss to others. Least of all men, did he harbor revenge, rarely did he even show resentment, and malice was not in his nature. He was congenially employed only in the exchange of good offices and the doing of kindly deeds.

There was not an hour, from the beginning of the trouble till the fatal shot entered his body, when the President would not gladly, for the sake of restoring harmony, have retraced any step he had taken if such retracing had merely involved consequences personal to himself. The pride of consistency, or any supposed sense of humiliation that might result from surrendering his position, had not a feather's weight with him. No man was ever less subject to such influences from within or from without. But after most anxious deliberation and the coolest survey of all the circumstances, he solemnly believed that the true prerogatives of the Executive were involved in the issue which had been raised, and that he would be unfaithful to his supreme obligation if he failed to maintain, in all their vigor, the constitutional rights and dignities of his great office. He believed this in all the convictions of conscience when in sound and vigorous health, and he believed it in his suffering and prostration in the last conscious thought which his wearied mind bestowed on the transitory struggles of life.

More than this need not be said. Less than this could not be said. Justice to the dead, the highest obligation that devolves upon the living, demands the declaration that in all the bearings of the subject, actual or possible, the President was content in his mind, justified in his conscience, immovable in his conclusions.

THE ASSASSINATION.

On the morning of Saturday, July 2, the President was a contented and happy man—not in an ordinary degree, but joyfully, almost boyishly happy. On his way to the railroad station to which he drove slowly, in conscious enjoyment of the beautiful morning, with an unwonted sense of leisure and a keen anticipation of pleasure, his talk was all in the grateful and gratulatory vein. He felt that after four months of trial his administration was strong in its grasp of affairs, strong in popular favor, and destined to grow stronger; that grave difficulties confronting him at his inauguration had been safely passed; that trouble lay behind him, and not before him; that he was very soon to meet the devoted wife whom he loved, now recovering from an illness which had but lately disquieted and at times almost unnerved him; that he was going to his alma mater to renew the most cherished associations of his young manhood, and to exchange greetings with those whose deepening interest had followed every step of his upward progress from the day he entered upon his college course until he had attained the loftiest elevation in the gift of his countrymen.

Surely if happiness can ever come from the honors or triumphs of this world, on that quiet July morning James A. Garfield may well have been a happy man. No foreboding of evil haunted him; no slightest premonition of danger clouded his sky. His terrible fate was upon him in an instant. One moment he stood erect, strong, confident in the years stretching peacefully out before him. The next he lay wounded, bleeding, helpless, doomed to weary weeks of torture, to silence, and the grave.

DEATH.

Great in life, he was surpassingly great in death. For no cause, in the very frenzy of wantonness and wickedness, by the red hand of murder, he was thrust from the full tide of this world's interest, from its hopes, its aspirations, its victories, into the visible presence of death—and he did not quail. Not alone for the short moment in which stunned and dazed, he could give up life, hardly aware of its relinquishment, but through days of deadly languor, through weeks of agony, that was not less agony because silently borne, with clear sight and calm courage, he looked into his open grave. What blight and ruin met his anguished eyes, whose lips may tell—what brilliant, broken plans, what baffled, high ambitions, what sundering of strong warm, manhood's friendships, what bitter rending of sweet household ties! Behind him a proud, expectant nation, a great host of sustaining friends, a cherished and happy mother, wearing the full, rich honors of her early toil and tears; the wife of his youth, whose whole life lay in his; the little boys, not yet emerged from childhood's day of frolic; the fair, young daughter; the sturdy sons just springing into closest companionship, claiming every day and every day rewarding a father's love and care; and in his heart the eager, rejoicing power to meet all demand. Before him, desolation and great darkness! And his soul was not shaken. His countrymen were thrilled with instant, profound and universal sympathy. Masterful in his mortal weakness, he became the centre of a nation's love, enshrined in the prayers of a world. But all the love and all the sympathy could not share with him his suffering. He trod the wine-press alone. With unfaltering front he faced death. With unfailing tenderness he took leave of life. Above the demoniac hiss of the assassin's bullet he heard the voice of God. With simple resignation he bowed to the Divine decree.

As the end drew near, his early craving for the sea returned. The stately mansion of power had been to him the wearisome hospital of pain, and he begged to be taken from its prison walls, from its oppressive, stifling air, from its homelessness and its hopelessness. Gently, silently, the love of a great people bore the pale sufferer to the longed-for healing of the sea, to live or to die, as God should will, within sight of its heaving billows, within sound of its manifold voices. With wan, fevered face tenderly lifted to the cooling breeze, he looked out wistfully upon the ocean's changing wonders; on its far sails, whitening in morning light; on its restless waves, rolling shoreward to break and die beneath the noonday sun; on the red clouds of evening, arching low to the horizon; on the serene and shining pathway of the stars. Let us think that his dying eyes read a mystic meaning which only the rapt and parting soul may know. Let us believe that in the silence of the receding world he heard the great waves breaking on a further shore, and felt already upon his wasted brow the breath of the eternal morning.

The eulogy was concluded at 1:50 having taken just an hour and a half in its delivery. As Mr. Blaine gave utterance to the last solemn words the spectators broke into a storm of applause, which was not hushed for some moments.

Benediction was offered by Rev. Dr. Bullock, chaplain of the Senate. The Marine band played the Garfield dead march as the invited guests filed out of the chamber in the order in which they had entered it, the House was called to order by the Speaker.

Mr. McKinley of Ohio, offered a resolution of thanks to Mr. Blaine for his masterly address, which was unanimously adopted. The House then adjourned.

The private fortune of Queen Victoria amounts to $80,000,000, and she possesses an annual income of $3,250,000. Before her birth her parents were so poor that they had to borrow the money to pay their passage to England, that the expected princess might be born on British soil; and she remained in comparative poverty until she ascended the throne.

Mr. C. W. West has placed the people of Cincinnati under great obligations by adding to the $150,000, which he had already donated to the proposed art museum, $150,000, more, making a total of $300,000. His last gift is made up of railroad bonds of the face value of $150,000, but really worth ten per cent. premium. They bear seven per cent. interest, and as the next coupons came due in May, there is about $5,000 of accrued interest upon them. Thus the donation amounts to about $170,000. It is to be used as an endowment.—Western Advocate.

Kentucky is the banner Democratic State. The Louisville Courier-Journal gives some facts which may account for the firm hold which that party has in the state. It says that the last report of the superintendent of public instruction shows that there are nearly 300,000 children in the state, of pupil age, who do not attend school. In 2500 school districts there is no semblance of a school. The money distributed for school purposes has been growing smaller for ten years past. For the education of the whites, the small sum of $1.25 per head is only allowed, and for the negroes this has been reduced by one-half. The state contains between fifty and sixty thousand voters, or about the regular Democratic majority, who cannot read or write. Thus the ascendancy of the Democratic party is built upon pretty solid foundations for the present.—Milwaukee Republican.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, D. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1882

A portrait of the late Bishop Wightman appears in Harper's Weekly, 4th inst.

The Donaldsonville Chief has the thanks of the new editor and his assistant, for a kindly notice of themselves, our paper, and its late editor.

Queen Victoria escaped the assassins ballet, God be praised. The American nation responds with a fervent amen to this sentiment. Her tender sympathy with our Lucretia Garfield is not forgotten.

A student one day asked the late Professor Pierce how he knew that the sun would rise to-morrow. Pierce answered: "In the same way in which I know every other law of nature, on the veracity of God."

Henry Ward Beecher says, "A minister is useful in proportion as he is in sympathy with the wants of men. He lives in the souls of his fellow-men, and that is one of the noblest callings that God ever opened to humanity."

A Christian must consent to be misunderstood, to be misrepresented, to be considered foolish, as fanatical, as a heretic, and yet be happy all the while. He can afford to wait for vindication, honor and glorification until coronation day.

From [illegible] Boston, secretary of State Sunday-school Executive Committee, we have received the first number of Progress, a new [illegible] devoted to [illegible] Sunday-school work. We welcome all such helpers in the Lord's [illegible]

Ministerial Qualifications.

Everything that lies as a basis to ministerial usefulness is of almost infinite value, as it takes hold of the highest nature of man, and must reach into the vastness of eternity. The true theory of ministerial qualifications is found in the Bible. It is here clearly stated that the means of bringing the world to Christ are the faith, the consecration and holiness of the ministry. There must be a new heart, a good heart. A new heart constitutes a new man. As soon as God gives a man a new heart he becomes a new creature, old things pass away and all things become new. A good heart makes a man a good man. When God gives a man a good heart he instantaneously becomes a good man and is morally prepared for every good work. Such a heart will have a strong governing influence over all the powers and faculties of his mind, over all his internal views, purposes and designs, and consequently over all his external conduct. It is not the understanding nor any other faculty of the soul that governs a man in all of his moral actions but his heart and his heart alone. "The heart commands the man. It carries both mind and body with it." With such a heart a man will enter the office and work of the ministry, not for filthy lucre but of a ready mind. Paul was a young man of high expectations, but as soon as his heart was changed and moulded into the spirit of the Gospel he went to his work as a preacher at the risk of every earthly interest. As soon as Christ called Matthew he left his lucrative office; and as soon as he called Simon, James, Andrew and John they left their nets to follow Jesus and preach His gospel for hardly a penny a day. The salvation of men seemed to be the one sublime purpose and object of their lives. They sustained the most intimate relation to Christ and God, a relation expressed in these words, a dwelling in Christ and God and Christ and God dwelling in them. These early workers for the conversion of the world it must be confessed had a wonderful preparation for this work. But under the mission of the Holy Spirit every worker may have the same or similar preparation. "It shall come to pass in the last days, saith the Lord, that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall dream dreams, and on my servants and on my housemaids I will pour out in those days and they shall prophesy." There you can see the workmen God selects for the conversion of the world, and the qualification he gives them. This is just as it was at Pentecost and as it should be now. God's method has been to save the masses by the masses. By the masses he works among the lowest of them, and from the same source he draws his workmen, workmen whose chief learning has been gained as they have toiled in the field and many of them in biblical literature have been workmen who need not be ashamed; "the foolishness of God is wiser than men, and the weakness of God is stronger than men." Ill will it be to the Church that shuts out God from calling men from lowly positions to minister as shepherds to his people. God can come out of Nazareth. Here we see something of the qualification God gives. This baptism of the Holy Spirit was a "Tongue of Fire," the symbol of the power by which the kingdom of Christ was to be built up. As Methodists we do well to remember that while John Wesley was a good man, good from his youth up, a polished man, yet with all his learning, fasting and praying for the first ten years of his ministry, hardly a single soul was converted to God. But when he felt that strong "fire in his heart" the fire and the light were inside of him and burned and shown out in his life, then he took the simplest, the plainest forms of speech he struck the masses at Moorfield and all over England, and to-day no man can count the number of the saved. The minister who hopes for the largest measure of success in saving men must have a strong faith in God, a clear inward experience of the power of God to save and keep [illegible] come himself up in God. Look out for the men thus equipped.

Editorial Correspondence.

Since my last correspondence giving account of my trip to Mississippi, I have attended the session of the Louisiana Conference, full [illegible] of which have already been published, and in company [illegible] Bishop Peck, visited the Little Rock Conference. Procuring [illegible] and a section on the [illegible] upon the "Morgan's [illegible] and Star Line" on Monday, February 6 [illegible], crossing the [illegible] New Orleans and traveling [illegible] p. m., we were [illegible] for nearly [illegible] of the finest [illegible] groves, and [illegible] the [illegible] The fruit-trees were nearly all in blossom, and all vegetation, reanimated by the magic touch of advancing Spring, was creeping in greenness everywhere. The vegetable life and verdure so very profusely displayed in early February, especially to one like Bishop Peck, whose home is in Syracuse, New York, was a novel sight which lent enchantment to the sceneries. Speeding onward through these gardens, groves and pleasant fields, we were crossing some of the most valuable and productive rice farms and sugar plantations in Louisiana. The rice farms were being plowed and otherwise prepared for this year's crop. Away in the distance were seen upon the sugar plantation scores of plowmen plowing around the stubble canes, opening up new grounds and the like; while large gangs of laborers were busy, some unmattressing the seedcanes, some hauling them in wagons through the fields to be planted; while others, men, women and children, all colored, planted the seeds in the newly made furrows. At 4:30 p. m. we had traveled eighty miles and had arrived at Morgan City, where we enjoyed the pleasure of crossing Morgan's new iron bridge across Berwick bay upon the first passenger train that ever crossed it. The bridging of this bay, which for years had been despaired of, through the progressive advancement of modern engineering, is now an accomplished fact. The bridge is about a mile long, resting upon firm creosoted pilings about 130 feet long, and reaching a solid foundation in the bay. The bay crossed, we were soon making lightning express time through the heart of the Acadian settlements along the Bayou Teche, which has been immortalized in Longfellow's celebrated poem, Evangeline. This region is generally called, the sugar-bowl of Louisiana. It is as beautiful a section as can be found anywhere. By 8 o'clock p. m. we had arrived at Vermillionville, the station for supper. Having had a good and palatable lunch but a short while before, I thought I would take no supper, but leaning upon my arms I escorted Bishop Peck to the table in the dining room. The Bishop seated I stepped just out of the dining room and fell in conversation with fellow-passengers upon the platform, but waiting a moment longer I decided to take a cup of tea, so stepping in again for my tea, I was ordered to a side table with servants in a corner of the kitchen. This being the only alternative to get the tea, I submitted, but on coming out bearing the grand old Bishop, says he to me, "Did you take tea?" Upon my answering in the affirmative he continued: "Why did you not tell me that objection was made to your presence in the dining room? I would not have remained in there! Why I should have preferred to have gone to the side table and be with you!"

Saddened by this unpleasant experience I was glad to leave this station at 8:30 p. m. Comfortably quartered in a sleeper, although this portion of the road was quite rough, the balance of the journey till our arrival to Houston was under the dark mantle of night. We arrived at Houston about 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. Our first introduction was to the deep and threatening mudholes of the city. Taking the stage or hack going from the depot to Hutchins' hotel, with nearly all the other passengers on the one side and the bishop on the other to regulate the equilibrium, we were knocked about and made acquainted with the mudholes and deep places in real earnest. The bishop kept in good cheerful spirits, and interested his fellow-passengers with his entertaining and appropriate jokes and classical allusions, assisting in diverting the attention of all from the general roughness of the trip; but it was apparent to all that he suffered from its effect. But we were soon at the hotel. After we had entered the hotel, laid aside our burdens, registered our names and had prepared for breakfast, having already observed some of the prejudices against me on account of my color, upon being introduced to the proprietor the bishop says to him of me: "I want that you should treat this gentleman in every respect as you will treat me. He is no servant but a brother minister, one of our presiding elders, who in view of my feebleness goes with me as a traveling companion to the Little Rock Conference." With the assurances that everything would be all right we entered the dining room, were seated to a table shown us by a servant, bills of fare were presented and everything was in readiness for a good breakfast, when lo, and behold, the order came from the proprietor, "to tell that colored man to get up from that table and take his place, if he wants breakfast, upon a side table in the kitchen."

Fired up with indignation and mortified at the idea that notwithstanding my gentlemanly bearing and the quality of my company (Bishop Peck, one of the presidents of the late Ecumenical Council of the whole Methodist family, which reaches and influences directly probably not less than twenty-eight or thirty millions of people) because of my color, being a few shades darker than some of the others who sat at the table, I was thus treated, I hardly knew what to do with myself. My resentful feelings amounted almost to perfect hatred, and it seemed that in my sullenness, like Achilles, I could call upon some Minerva to intercede the gods to hurl destruction on the place and bring me sweet revenge. Greater than the man who taketh a city however, I succeeded in ruling my own spirit and possessed my soul in patience. The dear bishop was sorely grieved, and waited but to hear what I would first suggest. As the train for Little Rock would soon leave, and we had no time to lose, said I: "Bishop, I accompany you for your comfort; don't disturb yourself because of me. We can't well help it now and must submit." Protest entered, breakfast eaten, tickets bought and sleeper section secured, we were out again leaving Houston behind us; carrying, with me at least, such a sense and impression of mortification as shall perhaps be reproduced in the final judgment.

Houston is a fine growing city, however; something of a railroad center; lighted with gas; having several lines of street cars; the mail carrier system; splendid public markets; a large number of places of resort, especially where chained lightning is sold by the glass, and last though not least a goodly number of nice churches. Here we have two or three churches, one of which, Trinity Church, to which Rev. I. B. Scott, who coming to our conference from Tennessee was transferred to Texas, was appointed, when finished will be one of the finest in the city.

After thirty-three hours ride over the International and Great Northern; the Texas Pacific; and the Iron Mountain railroads; passing through Palestine, Longview, Marshall, Jefferson, Texarkana and other towns, both in Texas and Arkansas, that are springing up like enchantment everywhere, we reached Little Rock early Wednesday night. As the brethren had been expecting us, we were soon escorted to our entertainers, where we found very pleasant and agreeable homes, where we were nicely cared for during the entire session of the conference. Shall resume my letter from Alexandria. A.

Shreveport, La., Feb. 21, 1882.

Another Kansas.

We learn from our exchanges that one of the most extraordinary business transactions ever made, is the grant by the State of Texas of that immense tract of land lying in the north-west corner of the State, called the panhandle, larger than the State of Vermont or New Hampshire, to the Chicago syndicate upon the condition that the syndicate shall furnish the funds with which to build the new State House. The men to whom this great territory is ceded, will push railroads, build school-houses and churches, and thus secure a much better class of settlers than the Texas government could, and in the north-west of that great empire we will soon have another Kansas.

It is said that the meetings of Messrs. Moody and Sankey in Edinburgh, have been a wonderful success in a very unusual direction. In one of the largest halls of the city Corn Exchange, they have held special meetings for the lowest of the people and outcast class. These meetings continued two full weeks, and large numbers give good evidence of conversions to God. This might be a little obnoxious to persons who have much to say about cultivated society. Perhaps it might bring the blushes to the cheek of the high-toned intellectual church members who have so much faith in serving God decently and in order, but we believe that it would please God to have Messrs. Moody and Sankey hold similar meetings in some American cities.

We hear of one of our presiding elders who is faithfully bringing to the attention of every one of his quarterly conferences the importance of carrying out the resolutions of our last annual conference, touching the subject of temperance. The resolutions aim at the instilling of temperance sentiments in the children, the absolute purity of our members from all contamination from the liquor traffic, the reclamation of captives of the rum legion and the growth and healthy development of a strong public opinion in favor of temperance. What are you doing in these directions brother? There is something for all to do in this matter. Some may commence to work with their neighbors, and from there extend their efforts in wider fields; while others need to begin the work upon themselves, before they may very profitably aid others. Wherever the work needs to be started there's no better time to make a good decisive move than right now.

We clip the following from the Pacific Methodist, M. E. Church South:

> The relation of our Church to the negro is being discussed "down South." Some radical changes of sentiment are being manifested. Dr. John E. Edwards writing to the Richmond Advocate from Petersburg, Va., as to the "color line" in a Sunday-school convention, he says: "For myself, I am strongly inclined to the opinion that duly accredited representatives should be admitted to seats without respect to race, color, or 'previous condition of servitude.' Now, then, for the other side. I speak for myself. In my judgment the time has come for some more real co-operation with the colored race in Sunday-school work. It is the dictate of policy, as it is of true religion. So I think."

Ah yes, my brother, there are great radical changes of sentiment as to the so-called "color line" going on all over the South. In fact, some of these changes are strictly of a physical nature, and have been going on for years, until now in many cases it is difficult to tell where the color line really begins. Personally, we do not approve of this miscegenation process of doing away with the color line, but we do believe that all the accredited members of the Church of the Lord Jesus Christ should be admitted to seats without respect to race, color, or previous condition of servitude. And in the sweet by and by, when the race out of childhood has grown, it will come.

Welcome News.

We have just received a letter from Dr. Rust, corresponding secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society, dated Cincinnati, March 4, in which he says he has closed the bargain for the Vosmer property, Houston, at $7500 cash. This is intended for the Texas Conference Seminary, and of the purchase price the Freedmen's Aid Society pays $4000, and the conference is to raise $3500. He adds "now let Houston prove her power."

Of the religious movement in Cincinnati; says Dr. Rust: "Our revival goes on gloriously. Last night God's spirit swept the congregation with mighty power. For 25 days the average number of conversions has been 14, over 800 converted, 1200 have been forward for prayers."

It is too bad there was a great civil war in this country; and it is also too bad that the conduct of Southern Methodists justified the government of their country in taking possession of some of their property. Having voluntarily chosen to antagonize the government, there is no grace in subsequent complaints of its defensive and aggressive policy. Besides there was a Cape May settlement of property matters, which had caused some friction between the M. E. Church and the Church South. These facts are a sufficient reply to all direct or insidious attempts to revive sectional feelings or animosities by one sided allusions to past history.

"Readings on Beer" is an octavo pamphlet of forty-eight pages prepared by Miss Julia Colman, Superintendent of the Literature Department, W. N. C. T. U. It consists of short articles prepared or obtained from authentic sources on the nature of malt liquor, of lager beer. Each article is in the form of a handbill tract, and can be had by itself for $1 per thousand. An article on the last page, showing how the brewers have received this series of handbills, gives good proof of their effectiveness, and is worth more than the five cents asked for the pamphlet. Address Miss Julia Colman, 76 Bible House, New York City.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—John B. Gough, in improved health is ready to resume his labors.

—Messrs. Moody and Sankey have met with great success in Glasgow, Scotland.

—Rev. Dr. John Scott, editor of the Methodist Recorder, Pittsburgh, Pa., has been very ill with typhoid fever, and is now better.

—L. E. Bentley, editor of Donaldsonville Chief, called last Saturday while on a visit, to participate in the firemen's parade with other invited guests of that town.

—Senator Lamar and Hon. T. J. Semmes have been selected as the orators at the La Salle bi centennial celebration, to be held in New Orleans on April 9.

—From California Christian Advocate: "Bishop Bowman's services while resting here have been highly enjoyed, and he bears the love and good-will of hundreds."

—Bishop Andrews, fresh and hearty, just from Mexico, called at this office, and on some of his friends in this city on Thursday last. He took the evening train northward the same day.

—We learn from the Christian Advocate that Dr. Hartzell is making his tour of the Spring and Eastern Conferences. His correspondents will address him until May 1st at 805 Broadway, New York.

—Says the South Kansas Tribune: Gov. St. John's public and private record is above reproach, he is an uncompromising Republican, and if he will accept the nomination, he can secure it by a large majority.

—Rev. F. Von Schulembach, who has been dangerously ill for some time past, writes from Stuttgart to a friend that he has submitted to a very serious operation at the hospital there, and is hopeful of his recovery and his return to his American friends.—N. Y. Advocate.

—From Northern Christian Advocate, Feb. 23: "Bishop Peck, returning from his Episcopal tour in the South-west, reached home on Saturday last, considerably fatigued by the hardships of his journey, and somewhat unwell, not having fully recovered from his serious illness in Cincinnati."

—Our hearty respects, Editor Cushman! Upon the resignation of Dr. Hartzell, editor of the Southwestern Advocate, in order that he might give himself wholly to the important work of the Freedmen's Aid Society, our old and excellent friend, Rev. L. P. Cushman, formerly of New Hampshire Conference, was elected editor in his place, by the Book Committee at their late session in Cincinnati. He will make a good one.—Zion's Herald.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS

W. H. Mosby, Seguin: "My first quarterly meeting was held by Elder Hanson. Two late Baptists joined our church. We are going to build a parsonage."

LOUISIANA.

At Terrebone Bro. Carr is delighted with the people, and the people are pleased with their new pastor. We predict a prosperous year.

At Live Oak, Hon. Mr. Oragin has donated to the Methodist Episcopal Church, a site for a Church. Bro. Armston is hard at work. May he have abundant success.

At Wesley Chapel, New Orleans, last Sunday, 318 participated in the sacrament, 88 of whom were young converts. The pastor, Samuel Davage, is cheered by the progress of his work.

J. W. Lewis, Pearl River: "The appointments are as follows: Third Sunday in March at Mandeville; fourth, Pearl River; first in April, Pearl River; second, Springfield; third, Mandeville; second in June, Springfield."

First Street, with Bro. Montgomery, is moving on harmoniously. The people were justly strongly attached to Bro. Priestly and did not want to give him up, but their love for Christ and loyalty to the church triumphed, and with open hands and Christian hearts, they welcomed their new pastor. Sabath, Feb. 24, nine young men and ladies were received on probation.

The La Teche Seminary is really putting on strength. Dr. Godman reports upwards of one hundred scholars in attendance. The work on the Home building is being pushed forward with vigor and will, soon he opens both for students and orphans. Bro. Lyon, their pastor, has received thirteen on probation, the young and old are rallying grandly to his support, and the congregations were never better since the formation of the church.

We were pleased to receive a visit last week from Rev. Wm. Smith, the new pastor of the St. Peter M. E. Church of Donaldsonville. Mr. Smith has been located in St. James for some time past, and the good reputation he made there as a successful minister, led to the transfer to the more important charge he has now undertaken. Already the beneficial effects of his advent and influence are visible in the increased attendance at the church services. A protracted meeting is in progress under the new pastor's direction.—Donaldsonville Chief.

J. W. Lewis, Pearl River: "On coming back to my appointment for the second time, I feel inclined to do more for the Master than I did last year, nothwithstanding we did all we could. A protracted meeting at Mandeville brought many to the altar. The following were appointed missionaries: Mrs. M. Charles, Minta Johnson, Giley Williams, Mrs. C. Smith, Loney Lewis, Mrs. R. L. Williams, secretary, At Pearl River, Bro. Elijah Lewis had the church in charge during my absence, and from him I received a good report. The following are the missionaries of West Pearl: Mrs. Mary A. Field, Mrs. Martha Lewis, Mrs. Sarah A. Lewis, Mrs. Charlotte Vaulty, Mrs. Eliza Porter, Mrs. Jane E. Porter, Mrs. Mary Porter and Misses Lizzie Cloud, A. Washington and B. Avery."

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

March 12, 1882.—POWER OVER EVIL SPIRITS.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 5: 1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"For this purpose the Son of man was manifested, that he might destroy the works of the devil."—John 3: 8.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer and Evil Spirits.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

In regard to demoniac possession there are two theories. From the fact that in the most instances the affliction was connected with some strongly marked disease, such as blindness, deafness, dumbness, epilepsy, or insanity, there are those who hold that the power or the extravagance of maladies so little understood and so mysterious is sufficient to account for the popular belief that they were the infliction of evil spirits who take delight in tormenting mankind. This would reduce the doctrine of demon possession to a mere popular superstition. The Savior they aver, did not contradict this false notion, for the same reason that he did not disabuse the minds of the people in regard to many others. And they argue further, that it is not likely that there should have been such a thing then, and no such exhibitions of the power of demons now.

On the other hand, it is averred that there is no escape from the conclusion that the possession of the bodies of men by demons was an actual fact. That is the plain language of the Scriptures. In each case it is evident that that was the belief of the evangelist who records the rescue. The Savior addresses, not a disease, but a person, or persons. He commands these spiritual tormentors to "come out." These evil spirits, with supernatural sagacity, recognize Christ as the Son of God.

No man is gentle who has an unclean spirit in him. He learns to hate his fellow men, and delights to do them an injury. He becomes a formidable foe to the peace of society. The brawlers, roughs, rioters, dangerous men of any community, are the men of unclean spirit.

Christ came that he might destroy the works of the devil. It is no sign that Jesus will have nothing to do with him. The time is coming when he shall judge the quick and the dead.

Doubtless the supernatural character of the event took a strong hold upon their imaginations and upon their fears. The citizens when they beheld him that had been possessed with demons sitting, clothed and in his right mind, were more afraid than they had been in his paroxysms of rage and fury. Why? Because it was made evident that there was one in their midst that could overcome even the power of demons. They stood in greater dread of the one who had released these two men from their spiritual thraldom than they had of the demons who had reduced them to a bondage so fearful. It was a most singular instance, in which the healer was feared more than the disease! They began to beseech him to depart from their borders when "they that saw it declared unto them how it befell him that was possessed with demons, and concerning the swine." Plainly enough, they were afaid that more men might be restored—and more swine lost.

Some such problem as this seems to have been running through their minds: "If, in the cure of demoniacs, two thousand swine are destroyed, how many swine will it take to restore all the demoniacs there are in the coutry?" The possible sum total frightened them. They did not feel that they could afford it. Hence their earnest appeal for him to depart. Their petition was granted. Christ went away in accordance with their wishes. And he never came back to them. The Savior may be sent away never to return! The faithful witness besought him that he might be allowed to stay with him. His love and gratitude for his healer were so great that he could not bear the thought of living out of his sight. He desired to be with him all the while. Very likely, too, he thought that Christ had blessed him in one way could do so in others, but Jesus suffered him not, but said unto him, Go to thy house unto thy friends, and tell, etc. It was a great kindness to the man; for it gave him a great work to do. He made more spiritual progress testifying for Christ than he would have done had he been sitting at his feet. It gave him an opportunity to pick up his character just where he had lost it.

He was a zealous witness. He far exceeded the letter of his instructions. He not only went to his own house, and told his friends, but went out into the city, and then through all Decapolis. He made every one know what a benefactor had been sent out of the country. He went where Jesus never had been. Doubtless many who heard his story went over the lake to see and hear more of this wonderful Jesus of Nazareth. Yesterday a madman, to-day a missionary! There was no danger of the demons repossessing him. He was too faithfully at work for the Master. He was not one whose last estate could be worse than his first, for his house not only was swept and garnished, but it was occupied. Christ the Lord reigned in it supreme.

From Our Mission Rooms.

THE MORMONS IN DENMARK—Pastor Eitzholtz, stationed at Harsens, Denmark, begs for books and other weapons to fight the monster vice which is making sad inroads upon society there. His charge is new, and the people have had to worship in a cellar and dining hall or a dining room, but a gentleman is now building a house that will contain a suitable chapel, and a comfortable parsonage, and the church hopes soon to be in the way of success. He has also entered Aarhus, the largest city in Germany, but one, and the prospect is very bright, the people ready for salvation. Bro. Eitzholtz was the originator of the total abstinence movement in Denmark, it has been spreading rapidly, and must soon triumph. Our people are to be filled with more "af den Helligand ay Kraft."

Rev. F. Ahgren sends the following card from the seat of the late conference. Our protracted meeting began with the week of prayer, and is still in progress. 157 have joined on probation. Since conference we have had 197 accessions to the church. My third year thus bids fair to be my best.

GOOD NEWS FROM SCANDINAVIA—The words of presiding elder Larsson are full of cheer.

Having completed my second tour of the district, since the close of the annual conference. I now give you a short account of the condition of affairs.

The cause is progressing, revivals have taken place now here, now there, souls have found peace with God, and many children of God have grown in godliness.

The unusually large congregations are increasing. That the people are willing to hear is proved by the fact that our largest chapels and halls are far too small, especially on Sundays. Love feasts, prayer and class meetings have been well attended. In a number of places protracted meetings have followed the week of prayer. Bro. Jansson at Kalmar, writes that the meetings there are continued and attended by crowds. "Last Sunday night twenty persons asked for intercessions, and yesterday evening about fifteen, and so on.

Brother Carlsson at Westervik, writes that the freedom of his movements in the pulpit is restricted by the throng which comes to catch his words. Twenty or thirty persons have asked for intercessions every night.

In Matala after the quarterly meeting and Lord's supper, seven persons entered on trial. In Gottland the spirit of God has worked powerfully during the last quarter. At Wisby, for the same quarter forty persons have announced their determination to leave the State church. Fifteen persons have entered on trial for the same time.

In the Sunday-schools, revivals have taken place, and the number of children has increased greatly, and thus the work is becoming larger in all provinces. It is impossible for our preachers to attend all the places to which they are called to preach. "The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Lord send laborers unto thy harvest."

GENERAL NEWS ITEMS.

The Russo-Jewish committee has prepared a statement confirming the report of outrages on Jews in Russia, including many cases of murder and rape. The committee's statement is founded on letters received from persons occupying high official positions in the Jewish community and upon personal evidence of Jewish refugees. A letter from an eminent rabbi indicates that steps have been taken by the Russian authorities to conceal the truth.

Address of Rev. M. Henson, at the Laying of the Corner-Stone of Simpson Mission M. E. Church, Austin, Texas, May 14, 1881.

[Concluded from last week.]

The largest and oldest Methodist organization in this country is the M. E. Church. It took its rise about 115 years ago in New York City, and near Baltimore, simultaneously; but the war of Independence interrupted, and in 1784, the M. E. Church, was organized in Baltimore, with two bishops. In the 97 years of existence as an organized body, the Church has had 35 bishops, of whom 20 have died, two dying in the Church South. Its annual conferences have, in 103 years, increased from one to 95, and its members, from 7,000 in 1777 to 1,742,000. The Church has spread itself over the whole country, entering the Southern States a second time, after the civil war; and now counts no less than 17,561 pulpits, all of which are always occupied.

CHURCH BUILDING AND FOUNDING LITERARY INSTITUTIONS.

In 1766, a company of emigrants, arrived in New York City; among them, was a mother in Israel. Mr. Philip Embury who was their first preacher, preached in his own hired house, to the people, and soon found it necessary to seek a larger room. This new room was soon overflowed, and other accommodations had to be found. This led to the hiring of a rigging loft in William's street. However, it did not answer the purpose long. The increase of their Society suggested the building of a meeting house; after much prayers, planning and begging, resulted in the erection of the grand old John Street church, the first Methodist meeting-house in America. It was dedicated by Rev. ... October 30th, 1768 ... our stand nearer this epoch, and on this side of the civil war. When on January 1st, 1863, the question of slavery had reached its culminating point, President Abraham Lincoln issued the famous Emancipation Proclamation. Freedom! Upwards of four millions of slaves, our bleeding comrades, were made God's freemen. Naked, poor, despised, without education, and with no means to procure the comforts of life, or friends near us, so to speak. The Freedmen's Aid Society of the M. E. Church was organized. It was also recognized by the General Conference and recommended to the sympathy and patronage of the whole Church, and placed side by side with our older connectional societies.

It has done, is still doing, a noble work educationally, among our people. In 1874 the collections amounted to $37,028 29, but has increased gradually ever since. In 1879 it amounted to $75,000 and in 1880 this amount was greatly exceeded. To reach out among the poor whites of the South, the Church asks to raise $125,000 this year for the Society. It has in the Southern States 6 chartered institutions and 3 theological schools and ten unchartered institutions. In these we had in 1879 2,510 pupils. This number has greatly increased from that time onward. When we seriously contemplate the amount of work done in a few years, and the victory achieved, we can but exclaim in joyful amazement, O, what hath God wrought! I am pleased to note that we are not alone in this great work for humanity, but we lead in it, God be praised! Surely, God is a great deliverer, for none can deliver after this sort. His dominion is an everlasting dominion, and he doeth whatsoever He willeth in the armies of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth! Shout for joy ye Redeemed!

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND ITS LITERATURE.

This great work was began in England by Mr. Robert Raikes, in 1784. Mr. Wesley hearing of his plans gave it his decided approval, and recommended its adoption to the societies, with this improvement, that the services of teachers should be gratuitously. So it continues to day. We therefore agree, to some extent, that the Sabbath-school is the freest of all organized institutions among men, to elevate fallen humanity. In 1827 the conference adopted a complete code of rules for their government. Since 1883 the conference has annually appointed a committee on education to urge a higher attainment of religious education. In 1840 a ... report was presented, with better plans, which was afterwards adopted. The children's fund was instituted in 1819, which has worked charmingly to relieve the embarrassed itinerant machinery. The Church commenced Sunday-school operations as early as 1790, but was much embarrassed for want of Bibles and other books; has since waked such interest with efficient instrumentalities as to renovate the world. Our Sunday-school literature is second to none in use throughout all Christendom. The The Teacher's Journal and Lesson Leaves are truly healing to the nations. Considerable progress has been made. The report for 1880 shows the number of Sunday-schools at 20,840, the officers and teachers 226,367, and scholars 1,638,311, being a grand increase within a few years. One of the most gratifying features of the Sunday-school work is 352,908 conversions in four years, which reminds the Church to look largely to ... scholars for its future growth. We again notice with ... delight at important points Sunday-school workers have met to promote their own improvement. The International Lessons and the ... other appliances ... has been provided, and ... is now increasing ... catholicity of ... The children of ... are educated carefully in the doctrines of the Gospel, and they see and understand them, thank God. We do not go beyond or stop this side of the Bible for any authority concerning the destiny of man.

THE DIVINE COMMISSION TO ALL NATIONS.

The important missionary work for many years conducted under the direction of Dr. Coke, who ... the kingdom and ... for its support. He ... successful and extensive ... West Indies. The re... of Africa, in ... [illegible] ... to proceed to the ... there, but was opposed by his brethren out of respect for his advanced age, but he burst into tears and said: "If you will not let me go you will break my heart!" They withdrew their opposition. On the 3d day of 1813 he was found dead in his cabin. Thus ended the labors of an estimable man. However it did not frustrate the enterprise. The soft breeze wafts the glad tidings into Ceylon's isle, and India was reached by his companions and the foundation laid. The missionary fire gleams like lightning glances, and flames from Land's End to the Tweed, and money from year to year, flows into the sacred treasury beyond all precedence. The South Sea Islanders abandoned their idols and became true worshippers of God. The missionary has so widened that the sun goes not down on the work.

The Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, was organized in the city of New York, April 5th, 1819. As the church increased very rapidly, our contributions keeps pace with our numerical increase, till in 1875 we raised for missions $667,360,80, in 1876 some $262,355 of indebtedness has been reduced, and permanent fund of $30,000 accumulated by pure benevolence. Our missions now reach all nations, and through all countries, and in these the church has increased beyond expectations, but not beyond its desire for man's salvation. The interior of Africa will soon be penetrated from Liberia.

> Waft, waft, ye winds, His story,
> And you, ye waters roll,
> Till like a sea of glory,
> It spreads from pole.

In the face of many difficulties produced by the long and degrading influence of the church of Rome, Mexico is being redeemed. South America has been reached, and the gospel banner floats unfurled in the vernal breezes from the Amazon plains. Rev. Dr. F. B. Hendrix, the traveling companion of Bishop Marvin of the church South, in his trip around the world, says of the India Mission: "It was chosen by the M. E. Church, and had scarcely begun operations, when in 1857, the threatening tempest bursted. A war of munity," etc. "Thus, their field is one of average difficulty at least, and to achieve any success amid the religious prejudice is a result full of encouragement." And from the North India Conference minutes he says, "there are over 2000 native communicants, fifty local preachers and 160 adults, and 193 infants baptisms. The converts are from Hindooism and Islamism, besides 8093 pupils in the the day school, and 6751 Sunday scholars." The above statements, dear hearers, fully illustrates our mission work abroad. Let us shout, "all hail the power of Jesus name!" He states further, "the missions of the M. E. Church girdles the globe." And the missionaries in those benighted lands cry, behold this is an open door, and no man can shut it! Let us sing "Praise God from whom all blessings flows." To continue this grand soul sav-work, the church asks to raise one million dollars this conference year. Many of our missions have become self-supporting, and others will be soon. The old M. E. Church is truly a missionary organized machinery brim full of zeal. Amen, glory to God, and hallelujahs for king Jesus reigns and triumphs here;

THE HISTORY OF SIMPSON MISSION M. E. CHURCH.

The foundation of it was laid August 5th, 1878, by organizing a Sunday-school under the direction of that keen eyed prince in Israel—the Rev. C. L. Madison, then pastor of Wesley chapel, in the city of Austin. Mr. Ananias Brown was appointed superintendent; Mrs. Hannah Stuart, assistant superintendent; Laura Evans, librarian, Miss Tennessee Hardwell, treasurer; Misses Hattie Green, Lizzie Madison and Lucy Dodson, were the first teachers, and Mr. Jefferson Penn was secretary. These were among the best informed and most pious young Christian Sunday-school workers in the community. The school increased to thirty five during th year. In 1879 M. Henson was appointed by Bishop Gilbert Haven, as first regular pastor, with two other preaching places, also as the financial agent of the West Texas conference seminary, which took fully half of his time away. He arrived at his new field of labor, February 4th, and proceeded at once to organize and give shape to the work, with six persons on probation, as they did not bring the certificates with them. During the year a few more persons joined in the same way, as the opposition to a second charge was very manifest. The pastor was able to report to the annual conference, at Victoria, Dec. 18, 1879, sixteen full members and two probationers in new charge, making in all eighteen persons. The pastor received as support from this charge $48 65, the other two points paid $47 90; and the Missionary society assisted $40, total $136 55, from these named sources. However, the Lord had blessed his servant with a few hundred dollars, which was nearly or quite used before the end of the year for house rent and family support, etc. The agency was new both to the agent and the people, and but little over and above traveling expenses was realized, as 1879 was noted for long draught and poor crops, and great financial embarrassment, depression, more so among the poorer class of people. The increase of scholars and members was slow and gradual. And we here asert to you if this charge don't continue to build up in every reasonablesense, Methodism among you will fail far below the height of its mission in this city. We ought to have a second charge here, we must have it! The Rev. Granville Norman is your second and present pastor, was appointed to this charge in 1880 by Bishop S. M. Merrill, and has been reappointed to you by Bishop E. O. Haven. Bro. Norman has done and is doing a noble work among you for God and humanity. During my pastorate, Rev. Samuel Gates, then my presiding elder, rendered much valuable aid to this people and the pastor. He has proved more than once a wise counseller and son of consolation in troublous times. Your pastor's report shows forty-five full members, and Sunday-school scholars to be thirty-five. And by his unceasing efforts, assisted by his little faithful band, purchased a lot, but soon afterward sold it, partly or mainly, because of prevailing sentiments among the people in that locality, against a church so near them. Yet whisky shops, billiard saloons, and houses of ill-fame are near some of our best citizens, and seldom meet such opposition. They since have purchased themselves another lot, the one on which we now stand, and are met to-day to do the honorable, noble deed, to lay this corner stone! May all our hearts beat in unison with those immediately engaged in this enterprise. And may we lend to them our sympathies and a helping hand in the work; till the cope stone be finally adjusted, and the building stand out in majestic beauty, and the people about us sing, Grace! grace be unto it. Who is she that sips the morning dew, that playeth among the tufted forest bows of the hills? that has become enlarged? Who is she that lifts her cressed head upon the top of these capitoline rockies of Austin? I conjure you, O! ye daughters of Salem! to stay me up with roses, for my heart melteth at the voice of her, in whom my soul delighted. Blow, O! ye South winds, over the meads and over the flowery vines of ingedi! and shed your sweetest perfumes upon her that cometh forth, lovely as the morning, bright as the noon day's sun, and as fair as the moon, and as terrible as an army with banners.

A handsome collection and other appropriate exercises, closed by singing the doxology; benediction.

Buckwheat Cakes.

Science has even revolutionized the method of making buckwheat cakes. The old way, setting to raise over night, souring, fermenting, decomposing, and destroying the nutritient part of flour, carbonic acid gas was produced and the cakes made light. But a well founded suspicion has always existed that buckwheat cakes made in this manner are unwholesome and indigestible, because the chemical action that takes place so alters the flour from its original character that the souring or decomposing process continues in the stomach and gives rise to dyspepsia and kindred troubes.

The new way does away with all decomposing, all fermenting or souring, and places upon our tables smoking hot buckwheats in less than 15 minutes. The leavening element of the new process, which is the "Royal Baking Powder," being mixed with the flour and moisture added, evolves the leavening gas, and in no way changes the dough from its original sweet and nutritious condition.

In point of healthfulness it is a positive fact that buckwheat and griddle cakes made in this way with the "Royal" power are very healthy, and can be eaten with impunity by dyspeptics and invalids without discomforts.

Various preparations and mixtures have been put on the market from time to time to take the place of the 'Royal Baking Powder," such as "self raising" or griddle cake" flours, but analysis shows them to be made from unwholesome substitutes and strong acids, which have a corroding affect on the membranes of the stomach. It is much safer for all consumers to purchase flour themselves that they know to be good and reliable, and add the baking powder at a considerable saving, than to purchase any of the so-called "self-raising" flours which are usually compounds of the vilest nature, containing alum or phosphates. It is stated that three fourths of the "self-raising buckwheat" sold in the market is nothing more than "middlings," or the dark colored siftings and impurities which form the refuse in the manufacture of the higher grades of flour.

The following is a good receipe, and most economical:

QUICK BUCKWHEAT CAKES.—To one pint of buckwheat flour, while dry, add two heaping teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, a tea-spoonful salt, one scant tablespoonful brown sugar or New Orleans molasses to make them brown, mix well together, and when ready to bake add one pint cold water or sufficient to form a batter, stir but little, and bake immediately on a hot griddle.

As pure buckwheat is very rich, some prefer a little flour and Indian meal added, and the receipe given below will be found an excellent one:

One pint pure buckwheat, one-quarter pint each Indian and wheat flour, three heaping teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, one and a half teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful brown sugar mixing as directed in the receipe first named Remember always to mix the baking powder with the flour dry. N. Y. Tribune.

DEATHS.

Sister Queen Washington, wife of Bro. George Washington, departed this life January 30th. She had been a member of the M. E. Church for eighteen years and a leading sister of the church. She made her will and was aware of her approaching death, said that she was going with Jesus and wanted everyone to meet her in heaven. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, two grand sons, and a host of friends. The writer visited and prayed with her, as was her desire fifteen minutes before her death. Her funeral was largely attended. Our loss is Sister Washington's eternal gain.

On the night of Feb. 23, 1882, Bro. Amos Graham departed this life in full triumph of faith. He was a member of the church for a number of years and also a member of the I. O. G. Templars of this place, and of the temperance society, organized Aug. 8, 1878. The societies turned out in their uniform to pay their last respects to Bro. Graham. He leaves a family and a host of friends to mourn his loss. The church has lost a saint, but heaven has gained a jewel. The white store keepers of Houma in reverence to Bro. Graham, closed their stores while the funeral procession was bearing his remains to the grave.

A WONDERFUL And SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

MRS. M. L. DALE,
Wishes to inform her friends that she is prepared to Accommodate Gentlemen, Ladies and Families With Board, by the MONTH, WEEK OR DAY, at Pass Christian, Miss., on FRONT STREET, short walk from Railroad Depot and Boat Landing. Any one visiting the Pass will do well to give her a call.

CASH FOR LAND WARRANTS! Address W. C. HILL, Washington, D. C.

It is believed the Republicans of Louisiana will have the good sense to close up their faction fights and make an earnest contest in the next election. Messrs. Dumont and Pinchback, it is reported, have agreed to subordinate their differences to the party's need of unity, and the announcement is everywhere received with satisfaction.

Mr. Palmer F. Dale, living near Savannah, Ga., says: "Myself and family have always, since living in this locality, been troubled with malarial disorders. Hearing that Brown's Iron Bitters were a sure preventive, we have all used it sparingly, and as a result none of us have since been sick."

A petrified alligator is said to have been found imbedded in solid rock, twenty feet under the ground, in a quarry two miles from Saratoga Springs. It is five feet seven inches in length, and measures, two feet back of the head, nine inches in diameter.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. This remedy has stood the test of time, having been a popular remedy for a quarter of a century. Sold by druggists.

Something over $1,000,000,000 of national indebtedness have been paid off since the close of the war between the States. The indebtedness of Great Britain is more than double, and that of France treble that of the United States. Spain has a larger debt than this country.

The most reliable stimulant for the growth of infants and children, and the one most gentle in its soothing effect is Brown's Iron Bitters.

There are 1400 blacks in the Georgia Penitentiary, and 115 whites.

Young Folks' Corner.

THE BOY THAT LAUGHS.

BY GEORGE COOPER.

I know a funny little boy—
  The happiest ever born;
His face is like a beam of joy,
  Although his clothes are torn.

I saw him tumble on his nose,
  And waited for a groan;
But how he laughed! Do you suppose
  He struck his funny bone?

There's sunshine in each word he speaks;
  His laugh is something grand;
Its ripples overrun his cheeks,
  Like waves on snowy sand.

He laughs the moment he awakes,
  And till the day is done;
The school-room for a joke he takes—
  His lessons are but fun.

No matter how the day may go,
  You cannot make him cry;
He's worth a dozen boys I know,
  Who pout and mope and sigh.

The Elder Brother.

"Oh! Charlie, be careful, little brother; you are skating too near that hole."

The words came too late. Charlie did not see the hole, and before his brother had finished speaking, he saw the little fellow go out of sight under the ice.

With all speed Harry hastened to the spot. He could see his little brother, and ... [illegible]

George Ehret's beer is delivered in wagons bearing the name of "Hell-Gate Brewery" upon them. This refers to the location of the brewery. But it would be a good name for every brewery, distillery, and rum shop in the country, and for every house of evil resort. These are all hell gates, even if they that go in know not that the "guests are in the depths of hell."—N. Y. Advocate.

"Twenty-one years ago I was dying with the Consumption. There was no escaping that terrible death—at least so all the doctors told me—when a friend advised me to send to 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, and get Cannabis Indica, which finally and fully cured me." O. S. BISLEY, DEKALB, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.

"Send another $12 box of Cannabis Indica for a friend. Your medicine has cured me of Consumption. I am as sound and as well as ever I was."

Shrewdness and Ability.

Hop Bitters so freely advertised in all the papers, secular and religious, are having a large sale, and are supplanting all other medicines. There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of these Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability in compounding a Bitters, whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation.—Examiner and Chronicle.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

E. Henderson, Georgetown: "Elder Madison held my first conference February 18. There were 70 at the communion table, and a good sermon was preached; collection for elder, $13."

Henry Christmas, Fredericksburg: "It has fallen to my lot to have a small number to serve, but they are in a good spiritual condition. We shall cut down the rough timber and build up."

MISSISSIPPI.

N. Toole, Waynesboro: "Elder Dunn was with us. Owing to continued rains the meeting was not very large. The conference estimated for minister's support this year $248—pastor $205, elder $30, bishops $1, claimants $2. Elder's collection $5 55. Our church here is growing, and meets with much less opposition than it did five years ago. We will remember the educational cause this year."

ARKANSAS.

The first session of the Hot Springs Conference convened at Piret township, February 3, 1882, in the M. E. Church. Presiding elder G. W. Sams called the meeting to order. On motion A. R. Clardy was elected secretary with A. E. Car assistant. The weather was bad, but a good number of members were present. The business and affairs of the conference was nicely disposed of. W. H. Crawford preached to a large audience Sunday. The people will not soon forget that sermon. It was full of logic and spirit. At night the sacrament was administered to a good number. A resolution was offered by W. R. R. Duncan on temperance, and after an excellent speech delivered by W. H. Crawford in its behalf it was adopted. On motion, W. R. R. Duncan was elected recording secretary, W. R. R. Duncan and W. H. Crawford were appointed a committee on literary exercises. Hot Springs was elected for the seat of the next conference. A resolution was offered by Rev. W. H. Crawford respecting a Sunday-school and class-meeting convention, to be held in connection with the District Conference, and after an address of commendation delivered by the president in its behalf the resolution was adopted; after which the president requested the Committee on Literary Exercises to select, from any part of the District, class leaders and young ladies to speak on Sunday-school and classmeeting. Also we would be proud to receive other visiting brethren from afar.

WHAT THEN?

BY MRS. S. L. ROWELL.

We wreathe our brows with fairest flowers,
We quaff the cup of pleasure,
We dance through hours of giddy mirth
To music's gayest measure;
The garlands fade—the cup is drained,
The restless feet are weary,
The eyes are dim with mists of tears,
And hearts are sad and dreary;
What then?

We build us monuments of fame
We twine us wreathes of glory,
Our names through deeds of honest worth
Are told in song and story;
But hand and brain grow weak at last,
By pain and care o'ertaken;
We watch the busy world go by,
Forgotten and forsaken;
What then?

Ah, then we sigh for blossoms fadeless, sweet,
Which once we might have nourished in our breast;
We long to fill our cup from crystal rills
And turn our footsteps to the vales of rest;
We learn the worth of temples built above,
Of names engraven in the Book of Life,
Of hearts made purer by the furnace fires,
[illegible] by the years of toil and strife.
O thoughtless one, turn not from wisdom's ways,
Nor all the higher aims of life forget,
Else memory will mock your misery,
And fill the after years with vain regret.

Meharry Medical College.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT.

(Nashville American March 2.)

The sixth annual commencement of the Meharry Medical Department of Central Tennessee College was held last night in Thompson Chapel, on Maple street, in the presence of a large and elegantly-dressed audience, among which were many prominent citizens, Gov. Hawkins, Dr. Crook and Rev. Oliver McCutcheon, of Ireland, as well as a number of well-known physicians and others [illegible]

some years principal of the city school known as Vandaville.

Miss Lu Ella Lewis the sang "When the Leaves Begin to Fall" in the most admirable manner and in a very sweet voice.

THE VALEDICTORY.

A thesis on Phthisis Pulmonalis was then read by Jacob J. Durham, of South Carolina, who also delivered the valedictory address. The lungs, their structure, subdivisions and physiological functions were briefly but comprehensively treated, and the affections to which they are subject referred to, after which the disease under consideration was taken up. Its pathology was stated, heredity, locality and prevalence in Tennessee were discussed, together with the conditions of life favorable to its development, as well as the best ways in which to guard its approaches and to alleviate its painful consequences. Its course, symptoms, diagnosis, and most-approved treatment were succinctly and correctly stated. The valedictory address was as follows:

I now come to the most difficult and undesirable part of my task. It has fallen to my lot to say in behalf of my classmates that which is most trying amid circumstances like these that now surround us—to say farewell. From this part of my task, I fain would shrink, did not the occasion, justice to my classmates and a due regard for our able and faithful instructors demand it. Duty however painful must be performed. Farewell to the happy associations of schoolrooms and classmates, of friends and instructors whose varied but welcome forms must still haunt us in our dreams, until we shall have reached that land where dreams come no more. Fellow-students, be of good cheer, and rest assured that you have our sympathy in your struggles with the stern difficulties that lie along your course of study. We go, but shall anxiously look for your coming. Fellow-classmates, having completed that course of study prescribed by this institution, it now becomes our duty to start on our mission to the homes of the sick and the dying, to engage in terrible conflict with disease and death, and other opposing influences that poison this Southern atmosphere. To meet these difficulties we shall need prudence, patience and courage. Our association here has indeed been pleasant, but it must now be severed—perhaps forever. May our friendship, constant and undisturbed in the past, be severed only when the sunbeams of eternity upon us fall, and all things earthly recede from our mortal vision. Bearing in mind the fact that we hold in our hands, to some extent, the reputation of Meharry Medical College, and that we are representatives of a race whose ability to grapple successfully with scientific principles and difficulties is still a quæstio vexata, let us be true to ourselves, true to our profession, true to those who may commit their lives into our hands, and true to our God. Gentlemen of the faculty, to you we must say farewell. It now becomes a necessary that those friendly and hitherto undisturbed relations that have so long bound us together as student and instructor, must now be severed forever. For you we have nothing but words of commendation and feelings of gratitude for the patient, earnest and faithful manner in which you have sought to prepare us for the great field of investigation and discovery which we are about to enter. So far as we know you have done well your part, and it now remains for us to determine whether we shall be an honor or a disgrace to the medical profession and the institution from which we go. As we go forth from you to assume the grave responsibilities, both moral and professional, whose mighty touch we already feel pressing on our shoulders, we go cautiously, tremblingly, [illegible] firmly and resolutely. We are not unmindful of the fact that our mission is not one of ease, but of toil and beset with many and great difficulties. Gentlemen of the faculty, we shall still need your encouragement, sympathy and advice, and [illegible] of this we go to our [illegible] fields of labor to rejoice [illegible] success or to weep over [illegible] [illegible] classmates and [illegible] of the faculty, we bid [illegible] gave them authority to go out and do all the good they could for themselves and humanity. To-night made them equals in the profession. Wherever they went they should remember that they were men, and they should ever conduct themselves as men. They were now admitted to an old, a glorious and a jealous profession. As had been said by one of the students, this was rather an experiment and it remained for them to show that it was a successful one. Let no seductive influence draw them from the true standard. They should not be allopath, homeopath, or any other path. They should acknowledge no ism. Whenever a remedy was found they were entitled to it. Even if a quack had a good remedy they were entitled to use it. They were doctors, and were not bound down by any chains of ism or ology or pathy. They were going out to teach millions of their people, and the eyes of all the medical world would be upon them, and they should ever remember and trust in God.

[illegible] "The Heathen" [illegible] and greeted [illegible]

A melody, "My God is writing down the signs," was sung and loudly applauded.

Dr. G. W. Hubbard then stated these eight had stood a thorough written examination, and had been found worthy of graduation.

Rev. John Braden, President of the College, presented diplomas to the following graduates:

James E. Ashbury, Pendleton, S. C.

Wade H. Ballard, New Middleton, Tenn.

Albert G. Banks, Vicksburg, Miss.

Robert F. Boyd, Pulaski, Tenn.

Jacob J. Durham, A. B. Columbia, S. C.

William J. Gunn, Tallahassee, Fla.

Charles H. Phillips, A. B. Milledgeville, Ga.

Dr. Braden then addressed a few words of advice to the graduates upon the necessity of thorough and close study. The deplomas entitled them to go to work in earnest. They must go to thinking now. The boast of the profession was its thinking. While he would not ask them to think in old ruts, still he did ask that they would have good foundations for their logic. The world had got along pretty well so far and it was not expected that the world was going to be righted or changed by their graduation. They must make circumstances, carve their own way, and make men of themselves. They should think only on subjects that would benefit mankind. It made no difference whence they come; the question was, whither they were going and how they were going to get there.

The Quartet, "The Morning Sun," was then rendered in very fine style.

Resolutions of thanks to the founders of the college and to the faculty, and to others, adopted by the class, were read and received with genuine good will.

Gov. Hawkins was then called on and said he had been thinking a little of the past. This was truly a solemn and instructive occasion, from which valuable lessons could be gathered. This was a progressive age, and the graduates of to-night must keep up with it or they would be run over. Now that they were armed and equipped for the battle of life, they must not be satisfied until they had reached the topmost round in the ladder of their profession. They were now only at the threshold of the profession. Who in all this country could or would have believed 20 years ago that such an exhibition could be given here to-night. No one. But it was here, and he was to join them in gratitude to those who had brought these blessings upon these people. He had no doubt that as means were furnished, this work would be pushed on to greater and grander accomplishments. A new era was upon us when the question would not be, what is the color of a man's skin, but what is the worth of his intellect and his heart. These young doctors would win success by laboring to succeed.

Dr. Crook, of Dublin, Ireland, said he had never doubted the brain and capacity of the African race. He did not think there was any more in the color of a man, than in the color of his eyes. It was not the color of a man, but the kind of man that was behind the color. Among the most pleasant memories of his visit to America would be the memory of this [illegible].

Rev. Mr. McCutcheon said he was most happy to be present. At the Ecumenical Council in London a prominent colored minister had said that in the past the great trouble had been that the true relations of the black race to the rest of humanity were not rightly understood. He heartily congratulated the class and the institution on the great work in store for them.

Dr. T. O. Summers said that when the graduates came into the medical profession they belonged to humanity. The medical profession knew no north, no south, no east, no west, no age, no sect, no color, nothing but humanity. They should be men who dared to think, who dared to do what others only thought, who dared to glory in what others only dared to do. He wanted them to be a glory to their profession. However humble their station might be, they might make their influence felt.

Dr. J. B. Lindsley was called upon and made some spirited remarks on the revolutionary tendencies of the age. He said that in July, 1834, he was in New York. There was an alarm, and a minister named Cox took refuge in the house where he was staying. Rev. Mr. Cox and Arthur Catron had their houses robbed because they were leaders in a movement to elevate the colored race. See the change now. By the co-operation of prominent citizens this college had gradually increased its facilities for training physicians to work among three or four millions of people.

"There's a meeting here tonight," was sung to the intense delight of the entire audience.

The doxology was then sung and the audience dismissed with the benediction by Rev. Dr. Crook.

A Remarkable Document.

The Columbia (La.) Herald prints a letter from Hon. E. John Ellis, member of Congress, to Judge R J. Caldwell, of Columbia:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, D. C., Feb. 14, 1882.

My Dear Judge: Your favor of the 6th reached me two or three days ago. Parties are inseparable from the structure of popular government. They are, or they should be founded on principle to correct abuses, or promote ideas, and their sole, legitimate purpose is to establish such a rule, both of laws and men, as will give the greatest good to the greatest number of the people.

I have been, and as parties stand, am yet a Democrat, because I believe the success of that party would answer the legitimate ends of party organization, and give to Louisiana a wise and stable, as well as peaceful government. Alas, for my hope; it has gone into the hands of a corrupt ring of men, some of them deserters from the Republican camp, and others original Democrats, and we have to-day a most deplorable state of affairs—a Constitution which is a blotch and a disgrace; officers in many cases incapable of, or unwilling to execute the laws; laws so ignorantly and clumsily framed as to be incapable of execution; the stigma of repudiation on the fair name of the State; officials, even judges, speculating in State and city securities that fluctuate in decisions of the courts; taxes exceeding the constitutional limit; taxes in New Orleans over 3½ per cent.; commerce and business frightened at the very mention of the word "legislature"—office-holders and legislators grown suddenly rich, and the State stagnant and the people poorer—and yet the Democratic party (so-called) has been in power since 1877.

Now, I love my State and her people better than I love the Democratic party; and I propose to stand with the people, and not by any party, who have abused and wronged the people. Not long ago in New Orleans, I told some plain truths about the condition of public affairs in our State. For this I have been made the target for a lot of little editors and papers. * * * The trouble with these fellows is that I told some crushing truths, and the people know it, and are ripe and ready to snow the ring under so heavily and so deeply, that the voice of spring shall never wake them from hibernation.

And heart and soul, I am with the people of whatever name, or color, or party who love their State, and want law and order and peace, governors, legislators, and capable and faithful congressmen, and who are determined, come what will, that the penitentiary shall have the thief and corruptionists, and the high places shall be filled with honest men. Yes, I am with the brave, patient people, who are ready to turn their backs upon the prejudices and hates and dead ideas of the past, and with the light of a new and brilliant future mantling their faces, will press forward to realize and achieve it.

We have the power to do this, and the will and the brains, and why should we not do it? It is all untrue that I seek to sow seeds of dissension in any party. It is all untrue that ambition, personal to myself, prompts me to arraign the party. Had I sought, or did I seek, only my own petty advancement, I could certainly keep in with the Democratic ring by being silent. But enough now. I have written more than I intended when I sat down.

I want to get out of politics. It has beggared me. I cannot learn to steal, and hence I will grow poorer all the time. But I will stay in long enough to teach the plunderers what might there slumbers in the will of freemen.

With great respect, I am your friend and obedient servant.

E. JOHN ELLIS.

The Two Conferences.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Feb. 27, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR: We see the appointments of the Arkansas Conference in yesterday's Gazette. From the number of appointees as published in this paper, they lack one of having as many men connected with their conference as we have in the Little Rock Conference. Why is this? allow us to ask. When the demand for division was so persistently pressed, in 1878, one of the principal reasons assigned was, that the "white people had rights that colored people should respect;" and as it was "evident that the white work" could not succeed with the colored work attached, on account of popular sentiment opposing equality at the altar and bar of the conference, then "wise judgment would dictate (so it was said) that as brethren we should part, and each push his work as God opened the way." More than thirty took appointments in the Arkansas and about half as many in the Little Rock Conference. But why have not our brethren continued to advance as fast as we, against whom the stroke of public sentiment was said to be made? Certainly not for the lack of people, for there is a white population of at least 600,000 in the State, while the nearly 300,000 colored people would have been glad to receive the Word of Life from these good brethren of the old Church. Certainly not because the help has not been forthcoming from the Missionary and Church Extension Societies, for they have done all that could be reasonably expected. Certainly not because the sentiment of caste was against them. No; for one of the presiding elders of that conference stated that they at one time were the only organized Church in the State who did not, to his knowing, have a colored member. Beside, a number of them have talked favorably of the plan to organize all the colored people, or Methodists, into one "grand Colored Methodist Episcopal Church;" while one of their presiding elders said that the white people in a certain place on his district went to the M. E. Church South, because his conference had cast away the colored people. Certainly not because we have been in the way, unless our smallness and great weakness have elicited the sympathy of some of their more distinguished brethren and caused them, to their own detriment, to waste time looking after our business.

Why, again we ask, have they not reached the tens of thousands who could not be reached with us along? We are sorry they have not eighty instead of forty men in the field. As the stronger should help the weaker, we are, dear brethren, at your service. Our last conference was held here—their next is to be—and as the pastor of their church provided a home and entertained our bishop, we announce that the home and hospitalities of one of our best families will be, and are hereby, tendered to the bishop coming here to hold the next session of the Arkansas Conference. To write a private letter tendering the hospitalities of one of our homes after we learn which one of the bishops is to come, might bring the information that he had accepted the generous offer of one of their homes. Then to get him to change might call for another private letter "apologizing and explaining," and to keep up our secret scheme we would have to pass the pastor of their church on the street in silence, and wait until we met him at the depot on the day and hour the bishop's train was to arrive, when, to the great disappointment of our good brother, we should after taking him to one side, have to whisper in his ear that the bishop had consented to accept the hospitalities of one of our homes, and we "guessed" he "would not change." Moreover, such a private way of "apologizing and explaining," by which to secure the bishop's consent to accept might place their pastor in an unpleasant attitude before his people, for it so happens sometimes that having secured the guest's consent the pastor, in answer to many inquiries, announces from the stand where he has consented to stop, and we always had a dislike to any thing falling from the lips of one of our preachers having the semblance of falsehood. Therefore, we announce in this public manner, to prevent trouble and to help the "work," Not, we "would have you to understand, on account of color," but, among other reasons, "for the comfortableness and convenience of the bishop."

We would like to encourage our brethern over there, by way of giving our experience and making a few suggestions. For three years our conference had symptoms of a deathly disease, for the want of a better name, as right names are a little hard to find in this day of progress—we will call it color-line. Some of our more distinguished brethren opposed the admission of white brethren into our conference upon the ground that the colored people would not receive white pastors and seriously objected to white men as presiding elders, and also that white men made the work hard on colored brethren, etc. But the Lord saw all the time that it was only prejudice, and some of us believed that he so looked at the matter; hence we took, as we thought, the Lord's side, and so worked. Having heard of the curative waters of the Hot Springs, we selected that place for the site of our camp. But, as we learned, although many were healed at these waters, they nevertheless had need of the services of a physician. Fortunately for our invalids, a very skillful "medicine man" attended the Springs at the same time of our visit, who took our case under his special care, and after a minute special diagnosis of the case prescribed from a little book he usually carried with him, inscribed on the outside, if we remember correctly, "Holy Bible," and on the inside at the head of the page we noticed the word "Gospel," and think the words St. Matthew. But let the name of the prescription book be what it may, we very distinctly remember the scales fell off from the eyes of the sick, and they said they saw that of "one blood God had made all men." We learned since that the sick ones have received meat and been strengthened. As we remember, our distinguished doctor does not live at the Springs, but somewhere in Minnesota. The sick folks called him Dr. (Bishop) Foss. If desired, we will assist you in procuring his services, and also help you to state the history of your malady, and its effects, if it is the same as ours was. Since that time, with the exception of a chill or two, which seemed but a legitimate following after a bath, we have had perfect health; and if numbers should be taken for pounds then in a little more than twelve months we have about doubled in weight. We suggest a prayerful consideration of the case.

W. O. EMORY.

It looks like a waste of spiritual capital to see a minister die full of life and be buried fat, especially in such a world, where great prophets have wandered in sheepskins and goatskins, afflicted and tormented; where Jesus Christ was murdered and the apostles put to death, not counting their lives dear unto themselves. Then when the antagonisms of three worlds meet in conflict desperate and deadly, let it never be said that a minister of Jesus Christ died fat or of old age. Rev. B. Pomeroy.

MARSHALL, TEXAS 24, 1882.

A word for Wiley University may be of interest to you, and of advantage to us. We enroll this month 143. Our boarding hall is nearly full and under the supervision of Prof. W. W. Elder is a marvel of success, furnishing good board for $4 80 per month, room rent, including wood and lights, (rooms furnished,) $2 00, tuition $1, total for last month $7 80. The rooms are neat and comfortable, the whole nicely situated, with excellent water. Surely there is no excuse for any young man or woman to remain in ignorance. President Davis is the right man in the right place. The school is pervaded with a good religious influence. We were favored on the 16th inst with a visit from the assistant editor of the SOUTHWESTERN, who spared no pains to look into every nook and corner, with a keen eye to what was being done for his people. He dined with the boys at their hall, and expressed himself as surprised when he learned that such board could be furnished for $4 80 per month. His address to the school will long be remembered, his sermon in the church was a masterly effort, and spoke volumes for the future. Come again, Bro. Albert, and stay longer. Let me plead with the young men and women, especially those of the M. E. Church, read the SOUTHWESTERN and come to Wiley University. Get an education. Do not live in ignorance. There is no excuse, it is within your reach, crowd these halls, press in and up, come and make no delay. Parents, send us your young men and women, they will be safe in our hands. Think if you were young, with such advantages within your reach, how you would feel if your if your parents failed to help you.

"Camp-meeting John Allen" once "took down" a presiding elder who was preaching a peculiarly long and prosy discourse on the text, "Feed my lambs," in his own "quaint quiet and quizzical" way as follows: "Brother, I have had some experience in raising lambs, and find that the following rules are positively essential to success: First, feed them their food in season. Second, feed them a little at a time. Third, give it to them warm." It is good advice for us all, who have to deal with the children, and to deal out to them the Word of God.

WINNING BY LOVE.—We urge the duties of Christianity upon the consciences of men; but duties are constraints till they are changed into charms by love. The very word duty is a harsh one, until the heart grasps it, and then the lowliest service and the boldest endeavor are cheerfully accepted and welcomed. To win men to the performance of Christian duties, it is necessary to win them to the love of him who requires them, and to the love of those for whose benefit they are required. —Dean Stanley.

Gen. Sheridan has detailed Capts. Lee, of the Ninth Infantry; Benham, of the Second Infantry; Land, of the Ninth Cavalry, and Page, of the Third Infantry, to visit the flooded regions of the South, where relief is being distributed, and report to Commissary Beckwith, at St. Louis, on the condition and needs of the people. These officers are instructed to report promptly by telegraph.

Mr. Forster, in his speech at Tallamore, said that the reports of outrages were true to a great extent, and reproached Irishmen for a want of courage in yielding to intimidation. The government, he said, were determined that neither landlord nor tenant should mar the land act. The speech was well received and patiently listened to. No attempt was made to insult Mr. Forster, and he was everywhere courteously received.

The Mormon Legislature of Utah has called a convention for April 10 to organize a State government in the Territory. This is the most remarkable piece of impertinence that was ever recorded. Competition not Conflict.

There is a wide difference between conflict and competition. "Conflict is the hostile meeting of two or more parties." "Competition is the act of seeking the same object that another is seeking." Between the Churches of the Lord Jesus Christ conflict is always out of place, while competition is consistent with the most perfect Christian unity and the greatest religious prosperity. There may be many members and yet but one body. Competition can never militate against real Christian unity or any of the best interests of Christ's kingdom on earth. Between real Christians there can be no conflict, while without competition there is but little hope of progress. "Let us consider one another," says Paul to the Hebrews "to provoke unto love and good works." There never was a time when this kind of provoking "one another" was more needed than now. We regard loyalty and devotion to all denominational interests as perfectly consistent with the unity and well being of the entire Church of God. And while we believe in Christian unity, we have not much faith in church absorption; we are not just now over anxious to absorb any other church, nor do we care to have any other church absorb us. Churches like individuals will have the most prosperity when each attends to its own matters and lets others alone. There is little work more needed than this building over against our own homes.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has her mission. It is her work to extend her own borders and in the use of all Christian means to promote her own denominational interests. The minister or layman within her fold who is indifferent here, to say the least, is not a good Methodist. We are here in the South as in New England of necessity. The thought expressed by Bishop Pierce that this region of country belonged to the M E Church South, is a little too Don Quixotic to please us.

When Jesse Lee and his colaborers first visited New England they were frequently told that all of that region of the country belonged to the Congregationlists, and they wanted to be left alone and have the privilege of carrying the Gospel to the people in their own way. But our Fathers could not be persuaded to believe that New England belonged to any particular church, but to all churches, and they persisted in going there, but not for conflict, save with the power of darkness, not as arrayed against any church. And this outside competition did marvelously open the eyes, enlarge the vision, and quicken the pulse of the New England churches.

The two Methodisms in this country are two manner of people; in some respects their histories agree, but in others they widely differ; there is a work however for them both to do. The M. E. Church South can do a work that no other church can. We wish them well, God bless them, and bid them God speed in the Master's work and make them a hundred times so many. But we do our brethren of that church no injustice when we say that there is a work in these Southern lands that needs to be done which they are not "entirely competent to do," they "cannot take the whole contract." We do not think that it would be wise for all other Christian agencies to withdraw and give them the entire control of this extensive and promising field for Christian labor. Beyond all question, there is a work that the Methodist Episcopal Church ought to do here in the South, a work for which she is better suited than the M. E. Church [illegible] other church. She is [illegible] and wanted, and believes that this country belongs to God, and is a field for all his workers.

The [illegible] Conference did not [illegible] divide the two [illegible] of this country by drawing a line "north of which the one should not go and south of which the other shall not come," as Bishop Pierce hoped. The two [illegible] are here, but not [illegible] against each other, not [illegible], but in real Christian [illegible]. "If there be those who [illegible] to the M. E. [illegible]" as any other church [illegible], they understand neither [illegible] of the Gospel, nor that of [illegible] Episcopal Church." [illegible] our own work as [illegible] shall rejoice in all [illegible]

[illegible] question, [illegible] will meet [illegible] the [illegible] work [illegible]

How an Apostle of the New South Handles His C itics.

Dr. Haygood, editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate (Church South), pays his respects to those members of his Church whose thoughts turn lovingly to the old fleshpots of Egypt. With an admirable Christian spirit he effectively disposes of their attempts to disparage a liberal policy toward "our brother in black":

"THE SUN—IT DO MOVE"

The Rev John Jasper don't believe in any of the Copernican nonsense about the earth moving around the sun at rest. Don't he see "de sun move wid he two eye?" On this page we publish a sprightly and entertaining article from the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Our esteemed young friend gives us a delightful "extravaganza" that is not a "bonanza."

We copy also a letter from Atlanta, with Dr. Parker's wise note. We print them in the order in which Dr. Parker printed them. After all, we are inclined to believe that the Rev. John Jasper is wrong in his astronomy.

THE REV. DR. JACOB DITZLER, of polyglottal fame, and the hero of a hundred battles, writes three columns and a half in the Texas Christian Advocate of February 25, to show up and finally destroy all the absurdities we hear now-a-days about "the New South." He affirms roundly, "we do not want a new South." Very well; he can have the old; he is in no conceivable danger of the new. * * *

Not without special life insurance would we think of "tackling" the Doctor or his facts. We would as soon think of tackling the great American sea serpent as such a doctor, who carries all knowledge round in his head, and writes so wondrously "with not a book or table or note before" him—with not even "a table." This is too bad. When it is cold we frequently write on a plank adjusted to a chair so that we can sit close to the fire. The suggestion may be valuable to our learned friend.

WE HAVE SEEN BABIES cry for the moon, and we have heard nurses tell them it was made of green cheese. The statement seemed satisfactory to the babies. We hear another cry: "I don't want any new South—there is no new South—I won't have any new South—its just the same dear old sunny South it used to be, and it always will be just the same!"

Perhaps to the dead and the delirous. But facts are facts to the living and to the sane. Some of the facts may be mentioned; it is not easy to measure them.

Some millions of human beings who were slaves are now citizens; this is new, or nothing. It means something to those who can see. It means nothing to ecclesiastical and political "John Jaspers." Such facts with their consequents; one may see without being one minute ahead of his time; will see if he is not a generation behind it.

These once slave, now free people, to teach whom was once punishable by State law, and that, for the most part, was branded by social law, are being taught by State schools. This means something, and it is rather new than otherwise.

The overwhelming majority of white people are glad these people are free; there is nobody who would vote them back into slavery. This is new somewhat, comparing March, 1882, and March, 1861.

The vast majority of Southern white people are devoted to the Union of these States, and would fight for that Union. This is new—unless the majority were of this mind in 1861, and were tricked and driven into secession by their political masters.

The number of land owners has doubled in the last ten years in nearly every Southern State. The plantation gives place to the farm. But this signifies little to those who do not know the difference between slavery and freedom—between tenantry and ownership.

The South is entering upon all sorts of manufacturing. But this means no changed condition to those who are simply ignorant of these matters.

The syllogism runs thus:

"What I don't want can't exist;
I don't want a new South;
Therefore there is no new South."

Or:

"Whatever we wished, happened;
We wished to whip the fight of 61 65;
18Therefore we whipped it."

Or:

"Whoever don't agree with me is bad, or foolish, or fanatical, or disrespectful to the fathers, or untrue to the South. These folks who are talking about the new South don't agree with me." Therefore they are "no better than they ought to be."

We saw a poor fellow once in a hospital for the insane who offered to us a check for $30,000 if we would only ask the Governor to let him out. His reasoning was conclusive to him. Thus:

"What I think I have, I have;
I think I have a million;
Therefore I have."

Good logic for a mad house; and it was touching to see how hard the poor fellow leaned on his major premise.

Mumbled the old nurse: "If baby's good, baby shall have the moon—the dear, dear, old, old moon."

The great need of the churches of this city is not more wealth, but a little red-hot religion. We have plenty of the stale insipid half-and-half kind; but give us a little of the real concentrated red-hot reli[gion] [illegible] will see [illegible] to [illegible] from churches.

The Chinese Bill.

The heresies of slavery, nullification and secession, and later that of Mormonism, found their chief support within the ranks of the Democratic party. It is not surprising therefore, that Senator Jones, elected as a Republican, from a constituency impregnated with Denis Kearneyism, should make an appeal for the anti-Chinese bill on those lines which Democracy has invariably follow d, and that he succeeded by the aid of all the Democratic votes in the Senate. It is remarkable also, that a measure which is pretended by its advocates to belong to a high order of statesmanship, and not to be inspired by race prejudices, should be opposed by a majority of Republican Senators, who denounced it "in the most violent manner." The great statesman Judge Edmunds raised his voice against it, and has even predicted a veto from the Republican President. We do not overlook the declaration of Senator Brown of Georgia, that it is unwise to break treaties with any nation, while it is known that the present bill violates the spirit of the treaty with China.

Senator Jones found it convenient in addressing an evenly balanced Senate, to rehearse the thread-bare assumptions of Democracy relative to the negro. Most people of this country have conceded that grievous errors have been committed in this direction, and when Senator Jones speaks of an experiment to make the African race dominant in the South, which his party tried to make succeed, he passed beyond the boundary of historical truth into the region of Bourbon anathema. The negro was not expected to out live his ignorance or complete his training in citizenship in a day; the leaders of the Republican party never anticipated or preached any any such nonsense, and Senator Jones has read to but little purpose if he even supposes they did. The negro has progressed as all know who have examined assessment rolls, school statistics, and legislative records. A new South, without those strong material reasons which swayed the old in its treatment of the negro, is now moving in accord with the best civilization of the land, to give him fair Christian concessions and aid.

It was only a few years ago that Anson Burlingame, a statesmanlike Republican, opened the ports of China to the commerce of his country. Recently Gen. Grant resolutely opposed the ruin of that commerce by short sighted and retrograde legislation. It is hoped that President Arthur will be equally firm. Let us continue as a nation in the practice of that wise policy which has made us exalted among the nations of the earth, and not abase ourselves by a policy of injustice and the delusion that any good may be derived therefrom.

"He Went on His Way Rejoicing."

Who was he? He was a man of Ethiopia. He was a bachelor, a man without wife or children. He had charge of the treasures of Candace, Queen of Ethiopia. He was a great man. He was a praying man. He believed that the Jehovah of the Jews was God, hence he went to Jerusalem to worship. He was ignorant, but was not content to remain so. He carefully searched the scriptures. He found that wonderful prophecy in the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah, but did not understand it. Philip, a deacon, told him its true meaning. He preached Christ unto the man riding in his chariot. The Lord blessed the word and gave Philip a convert by the highway. There he and his convert parted to meet no more on this earth. But the Ethiopian "went on his way rejoicing" He could not help rejoicing. He had found Jesus. The Lamb of God had taken away his sins. He had found that Jesus was the true Messiah, the true light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world. His thoughts of himself as a saved man and of Jesus whose blood cleanseth from all sin, and of the preacher who had so unexpectedly appeared to him, and so delightfully opened up to his understanding the word of the Lord, made him glad. His burden of sin was rolled off. His iniquity was pardoned. His peace was made with God. His "mouth was filled with laughter and his tongue with singing."

Reader, you may be a very rich man, able to ride in your own chariot, but, you cannot save yourself, you cannot make you a clean heart without repentance, you are as far from the favor of God as hell from heaven, your life will be a total failure, and you must stand an eternal and unmitigated curse to yourself. O! be in haste to put on and take in Christ. He will save you.

Rev. W. M. Fuller writes from Texarkana: "There was a storm, and it blew a tree across my house and killed a woman, and hurt my wife very badly."

The report of the literature department of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, by Julia Colman, gives the following statistics: The beer series of handbills sold last year to the extent of 408.000, the whole from the first, 1.485 000. Four have been translated into German and 27.000 printed. The number of the Gospel series published in eighteen months was 338 000. The "Union Leaflets" count up 944,000 pages this year, and a total of 4 148 000 from the first. The "Catechism on Alcohol" has reached a total of 67 750 copies; the "Juvenile Temperance Manual" 5750 copies; the "Temperance School" 5016; and "Alcohol and Hygiene" 3250.

Pastors will note this timely information, and save the delay caused by misdirecting their applications to this office. The Good Tidings is a weekly periodical published by the Sunday-school Union and by the Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, for gratuitous circulation, especially in the South, among the Sunday-schools in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The following form of application is to be filled and signed by the preacher in charge or presiding elder. If signed by any other person, it can not be considered. Direct to J. M. Freeman, D. D., 805 Broadway, New York.

H. W. Featherstun, in the Pacific Advocate (Church South), asserts the Los Angeles Conference of his Church in California to be a failure, It now has but thirteen active workers, and the highest salary paid last year was $600. It has practically abandoned Arizona, and in San Diego, San Buenaventura, and Santa Barbara has left the M. E. Church to build largely on materials which should have been theirs. A reunion with the Pacific Conference has been suggested by two bishops, and is approved by the writer. He also suggests that Arizona be attached to Denver Conference.

"Our Continent," the new weekly paper, edited by Judge Tourgee, and which began February 15, of this year, is an attractive literary venture. The first number has a steelplate engraving of the editor, who will be remembered as the author of "The Fool's Errand," and other famous books. The paper is devoted to literature, general information, art, science, and humor. Price per copy, ten cents; $4 per year.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—The widow of Daniel Webster died at New Rochelle, N. Y., Feb. 27, aged 85.

—M. Levy, member of the Mississippi Legislature, from Madison county, called to see us last Monday. We were glad to see him.

—Bishop Foss has been in some pain and at some inconvenience by reason of a severely sprained ankle. But the accident does not interfere with his duties.

—Gen. Grant walks from his residence down to his "office" every morning. His hat is in his hand two-thirds of the way down, so numerous is his acquaintance.

—Rev. J. W. Robertson has recently been appointed district deputy master of the fourth and fifth districts, and is again in Houston, The Rev. Robertson is from the southwestern country, where he has been working up new lodges, and doing a good work for the U B F. and S. M. T.

—The Rev. W. C. Steele, of the New York East Conference, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Danbury, Conn., has been elected Chaplain of the House of Refuge on Randall's Island, N. Y. This is the post formerly occupied for many years by the Rev. Dr. B. K. Pierce, now Editor of Zion's Herald, Boston.

—Rev. Dr. J. C. Hartzell made a plea before the Senate committee on Education and Labor, March 3, in behalf of a government appropriation for the Freedmen. Dr. Hartzell is well qualified, by observation and intimate knowledge, to give most important evidence in regard to the necessities of the Southern colored men.—Northwestern.

—When Bishop Bowman returned from his recent tour of Episcopal visitation to the Missions in China and Japan, it was generally thought that his health had been improved by the trip. The sequel goes to show that this impression was not well founded. On Sunday, Feb. 19, while preaching in Union M. E. Church, St. Louis, he had an attack of vertigo, from which he did not fully recover during the week. On the following Sunday morning, Feb. 26, he preached at Central Church and was again attacked with dizziness. Later in the day unfavorable symptoms developed, and the family physician, Dr. A. S. Barnes, was called. During the week the Bishop was very ill, there being a tendency to pneumonia at first and afterward to typhoid fever. At this writing (Monday afternoon) it is thought that the Bishop is improving somewhat, and that a decided change for the better may be expected—Central, 8th.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

J. H. Hason, Columbia: "I found a good congregation at Negreet, with a little house which was put up for a school. At Columbia many were at the anxious seat. The weather prevented me from reaching Pine Flat. High water prevents my reaching two churches in my charge."

A precious work of grace is in progress in Sixth Street, this city. For three weeks special meetings have been held, conducted by the pastor, M. J. Dyer, consisting of nightly preaching services and prayer meetngs. The meetings thus far have been largely attended, and over forty have been converted and received on probation. This is good news to send out from this church.

Abraham Spruce, Plaquemine: "Our first quarterly Conference was held at Plaquemine, Feb, 25; P. Landry, presiding elder, was present, and introduced Randolph T. Louis, as pastor in charge, to the conference, who received him with joy, and gave expressions of gratitude to the annual conference for having remembered them in appointing a pastor in their midst. The Rev. P. Landry, organized a M. E. Church with 10 members, 2 local preachers, A. Spruce, and G. Parker, and 2 exhorters; on motion Bro. A. Spruce, was elected secretary. The following persons were present. Rev. P. Landry, P. E. Rev. R. T. Louis, pastor in charge, A. Randall, G. Taylor, F. Taylor, B Ricer, A. Spruce, G. Parker, and Rev. D. Askins, of the M. E. Church, Sisters, E. Randall, A Taylor, S Ricer, T. Taylor, and T. Ricer. The following committees were elected; on building, committee, A. Randall, G. Taylor, Rev. D Askins, B Ricer, and G. Parker. Trustees, A. Randall, G. Taylor, F. Taylor, B Ricer, and Edward Plunkett. Stewards, A. Spruce, A Randall, G. Taylor, Edward Plunkett, and F. Taylor. Sunday-School superintendant, A Spruce, assistant supenintendant, Mrs. Chana Nelson. Stewardess, E Randall, A. Taylor, S. Ricer. Recording steward, A. Spruce, district steward, A. Randall. The Rev. R. T Louis, presented a subscription list, and the following persons subscribed, Rev. P. Landry, $15, R. T. Louis, $10, A. Randall, $10, B. Ricer, $10, G. Parker, $10, E Randall, $5, C. Nelson, $5, Vic. Green, $5, S. Ricer, $5, S. Parker, $5, A. Spruce, $5, collected this quarter, $18 90.

ARKANSAS.

Thos. Mason: "A Wesley Little Rock Methodist Preachers' Meeting was organized in Wesley Chapel, Little Rock, on Wednesday afternoon Feb 23rd, 1882. Previous announcement being made, ten of the brethren (a number of them students of Walden Seminary) came together and were called to order by L. G. Pollard, P. E. of Little Rock District, Little Rock Conference, and a permanent organization was effected by electing W. O. Emory (pastor of Wesley Chapel,) president and T. Mason, secretary. Committee on rules of order, programme, etc., were appointed, considerable interest was manifested, and we predict great good as the result of the organization."

MISSISSIPPI.

M. Gatewood, Walthall: "We will do our best for our church paper this year."

Rev. P. H. Hill sent us the names and amount paid by each contributor to pastoral support on Attala circuit. We are glad to hear of this substantial appreciation of his services, but cannot spare the space for lists of this kind. Our good brother may give us the news of his charge, and tell us the total amount raised.

TEXAS.

D. Harper, Boxville: "When I took charge of my work, Jan 27, I found thirty members. I am well pleased. On the upper end of the work at Sublime, we have a church house."

From Our Mission Rooms.

Bishop Harris was expected in our south-east South American mission, Jan. 17.

Mrs. Dr. J. M. Thoburn sailed for India, March 4. A niece of Mrs. Rev. D. W. Thomas accompanies her to Bombay.

The great case of the Dalles, in which the Missionary Society is appellant, will be argued before the Supreme Court of the United States, in March next. Judge E. L Fancher for the Missionary Society.

The Joint Committee of Norway, Sweden, and Denmark, to organize and locate a Theological School for these nationalities, according to Dr. Reid's proposition, will meet in Goteburg this month. Some Christian philanthropist will find here a grand investment for $25,000. Who speaks first?

RAILROADS AND MISSIONARIES—A large yellow poster, in the Spanish language, hangs in the Mission Rooms, of which the following is a literal translation:

MEXICAN CENTRAL RAILROAD,
Grand Excursion
TO THE BULL FIGHTS
IN CUANTITLAN

Owing to the great number of passengers by this route, the excursion will be made in two parts with an increase of cars. One train will be composed of first class cars, and the other second and third class cars.

ON SUNDAY. THE 27th OF NOVEMBER 1881, SPECIAL TRAIN.

Time table of the special train from Mexico:

Tickets will be sold from Saturday the 26th until the time of the train leaving, Sunday the 27th.

J. H. GARNER, Traffic Manager. J. P. HARRIS, Gen. Pass. Agent.

This railroad, as we understand, is largely owned in New York and Boston, considerable of its stock by men who pray loudly and give largely to Christian missions. "Oh! consistency, thou art a jewel"—"and after that the judgment."

STATESMAN'S VIEW OF MISSIONS.—General Noyes, late the United States Minister to France, and formerly a popular governor of Ohio, when he was relieved from the diplomatic service, made a tour through the Turkish dominions. There he had his first view of mission work, and in his report to the State Department, he speaks in glowing terms of what he beheld. We can make room for only the following brief extract. Mr. Noyes says:

"The salutary influence of the American missionaries and teachers in the Turkish Empire, cannot be possibly overrated. By actual observation, I show that wherein a conspicuously intelligent and enterprising native young man or woman is found in the East, one imbued with the spirit of modern civilization, it is always found that he or she was educated at an American school or college in Constantinople, Alexandria, Cairo, Assirott, or Beirut.

"And with these educational influences comes a demand for the refinements and comforts of civilized life. The Arab youth who has graduated at the college in Beirut is no longer content to live in a mud-pen, to clothe himself in filthy rags, or not at all, and to eat raw sugar-cane. He aspires to live as his teachers do, who came from the great republic, on the other side of the Atlantic ocean. He tells his family and friends something of what he has learned, and an ambition, a longing for something better than they have known, is inspired in them. It is this influence, powerful and pervading, that is year by year creating a demand for those things which centuries of progressive civilization have produced in Europe and the United States. I see no great reason why America, the power in this educational movement, should not reap something of the advantages which must inevitably accrue to the civilized country, having the sagacity and enterprise to avail itself of the opportunity."

AN ABSENT SUPERINTENDENT.—Rev. Thos. B. Wood is now in Mexico, and in his absence his noble wife commands the field in South America. She reports a watchnight of great interest, in Montivideo, conducted in Spanish; a successful Bazaar at Buenos Ayres, that yielded between $3,500 and $4,000, which means that the debt on the Buenos Ayres church is to be paid this year. She also reports Signor Pensoti, and the report tells how the missionary spirit burns in her own heart, and how true our native workers in South America are. She says:

Signor Pensoti came into the city to bring his little girl that is to be sent to Mrs. Clement's Home in Rozano. Finding he would be in the city several days awaiting the steamer, he set about his master's work. He went to a little village some six miles from here to visit some relatives and old companions—to visit those who knew him when he was a profane, drinking and gambling man. Everywhere he went it was to tell what had been done for him and urge all to give up their sins and accept Christ. He would ask permission to sing a hymn, then drawing his little Bible from his pocket begged them to listen to a few words; then every time, he knelt and prayed with them. The next step was to seek some room to gather the people together; after much trouble he was able to get a place—not what you would look for, but the only one he had—a bowling alley right next door to the Catholic church. The first meeting held there were forty people present, both men and women. Last evening another service was held there with eighty present, perfect order and much interest. The proprietor of the alley promises the use of the place for a service every week free of rent.

Sr. Gnelfil consents to go over there for a service Saturday evening and Sunday morning to hold a Sunday-school, then to return to the city for his Sunday-schools here.

The place called El Cerro has some 3,500 inhabitants, is accessible either by street cars or by boat across the Bay. It is a very fanatical quarter, and to us it seems like an answer to the prayers for the advancement of the work that this door should open to us.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

March 19, 1882.—POWER OVER DISEASES.

SCRIPTURE.—Mark 5: 21-43.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Be not afraid, only believe."—v. 36.

QUARTERLY CENTRAL THOUGHT.—Christ the Healer.

LESSON TOPIC.—The Healer and Faith.

(Condensed from National Sunday-School Teacher.)

The miracles of the last three lessons are cumulative in their evidence of the power of Christ, Christ's stilling of the tempest does not exhibit the force of his divine authority so much as his control over the Gerasene demons, nor that, again, so much as his calling the daughter of Jairus back to life. In three successive days he manifested his supremacy over the forces of nature, over the malignant wills of evil spirits, over conquering and unconquerable death. By a word he brough peace to the troubled sea; by a word he brought peace to the more troubled souls of the demoniacs; by a word he brought peace to the heart of the bereaved and troubled father. In all of these miracles Christ proved himself to be indeed the Prince of Peace. The question of the awe-stricken disciples after the stilling of the tempest needs to be repeated to suit each succeeding miracle. "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?" Who then is this, that even the demoniacs are subject to his word? Who then is this, that even death yields up to his prey at his command? And with increasing force in each case the answer comes, This is none else than Christ the Son of the Most High God! "My darling little daughter." How much his father's heart was wrung may be guessed at from that, and from the fact that she was his "only daughter." It is not unlikely that he had employed physicians, and that he had exhausted all the remedies known to medical learning and to household experience. There is to be no blame attached to him that he came to Christ only in the last extremity. There are many hearts that are agonized over their sons and daughters, that would have only peace and comfort from them had they only taken them to the Savior at first.

The woman merely had "heard the things concerning Jesus." She had been an eye-witness of none of them. She believed from what others had told her. Her healing was instantaneous. It is plain that Jesus knew who had touched him. He looked round, not to find out who had touched him, but "to see her that had done this thing," He had a thought of kindness in calling out her confession. He meant to have her go home feeling that she had a right to her blessing, and not as though she had filched it. To him the child was not dead, but simply sleeping. He could call her back to life as easily as her father could awaken her every morning. The only witness to this miracle were the three favorite disciples and the father and mother of the child. The scoffing mourners had been put out of the room. They did not belong in the little sacred circle, made up of the bereaved parents and believers. How simple is the story of what followed! The Savior commanded that something should be given her to eat. That was a matter that the parents, in joy at her being given back to them, were evidently overlooking. Our joy is great at each new miracle of the awakening of the spiritual dead to life—but we are prone to forget to feed them after they are given back to us! They need spiritual nourishment. It is our duty to see that they have that

Well-Founded Alarm.

THE PRESS AND SCIENTISTS ON THE TIMELY QUESTION OF FOOD ADULTERATION.

The frightful and dangerous adulterations practiced by baking powder manufacturers is exciting an increased and wide-spread alarm among consumers. The evil has attained greater dimensions than the most extreme alarmists could have imagined.

The San Francisco Daily Bulletin, commenting on this subject, gives the following:

"In a city like New York, a Government Chemist makes an analytical examination, and discloses the fact that the very large proportion of powders sold there are made of alum. The action of alum on the stomach is precisely the same as on the mouth; it draws and puckers it all up, producing all sorts of unpleasant and dangerous disorders. In Germany, in England, and in France, any one found manufacturing or selling alum powders is subject to a heavy fine and imprisonment, but in this State of California may be found hundreds of brands made of this poisonous chemical. Pure baking powder should be made of grape cream tartar, which costs at wholesale from thirty to forty-five cents per pound. Many irresponsible and reckless manufacturers make this important domestic article from alum which costs but three cents a pound. The Royal Baking Powder Company of New York, a wealthy and honorable corporation, the largest consumers of grape cream tartar in the world, in their efforts to introduce their goods in this market were confronted by an army of alum powders, which were sapping and undermining the health of this community. If the average citizen were told that his oft-repeated attack of dyspepsia, constipation, heartburn, etc., arose from using an impure and poisonous baking powder, he would probably pass it by as an idle, sensational assertion; yet such is the fact.

"But any one of our lady readers [illegible] purchase of domestic supplies, ever notice that her grocer had nearly always a brand of powder put up under his own name?

"If she had an analysis from a competent chemist it would tell her that in nearly every case she WAS BEING OFFERED POISON [illegible] the health of her [illegible] The question then arises, why do grocers have their powders put up under their own name, instead of having some well-known, pure and reliable brand of powder? It is simply because [illegible] larger this way. [illegible] is made of alum at [illegible] the cost of a cream tartar [illegible], and they are enabled [illegible] in competition with an [illegible] like the Royal Baking Powder [illegible]. Nearly all the powders [illegible] the grocerymen [illegible] under their own name, [illegible] powder for its wholesomeness, did it wholly in the interest of the public. We do not hesitate to say that the Royal Baking Powder people deserve the gratitude of the community whom they are endeavoring to protect."

DR. EDWARD G. LOVE, the present Analytical Chemist for the Government, says the New York Tribune, December 17th, 1880, has recently made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use. And as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder.

It is proper to state that all the powders examined were from the open market, and that the original labels were in every case broken by Dr. Love himself.

In this report the government Chemist says:

"I regard all the alum powders as very unwholesome. Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their gas too freely in process of baking, or under varying climatic changes suffer deterioration."

Dr. H. A. Mott, the former Government Chemist, after a careful and elaborate examination of the various Baking Powders of commerce, reported to the Government in favor of the Baking Powder manufactured by the Royal Baking Powder Company.

An extract from the doctor's report is given below:

"It is not only my opinion, but a scientific fact, that the Baking Powder known as the Royal Baking Powder is, as is claimed, absolutely pure, being entirely free, (as demonstrated by Chemical Analysis) from all those inferior substitutes, such as Alum, Terra Alba, etc., which are so extensively used, and which are all more or less injurious."

NEW BOOKS.

THE TEMPLE REBUILT. By Frederick R. Abbe. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. Price $1.25.

A new edition of this poem, rewritten, enlarged and rearranged, has been brought out in obedience to a public demand, and will be found a work of high purpose and rare ability. Mr. Abbe is a poet in the truest sense, and his subject gives the largest opportunity for thought and expression. The poem involves the story of primal innocence, the fall of the soul, its restoration through Divine grace, and final salvation. By the "temple" the author typifies the soul of man; it is cast into ruins by sin; the new foundation is the plan of salvation as laid down by Christ; the builders are the Christian virtues and graces; the implements are prayer and good works; and through these the edifice again arises in its pristine purity and beauty. The closing portion of the poem is entitled "Hallelujah," and is a call to all created things on earth and in heaven to praise the Lord for his redemption.

PRACTICAL LIFE AS WAYS AND MEANS FOR DEVELOPING CHARACTER AND RESOURCES. By Mrs. Julia McNair Wright, Author of the "Complete Home," "Lights and Shadows of Sacred Story," "Early Church of Britain," published by J. C. McCurdy & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

We have read this book with interest and profit. It embodies and discusses in a pleasing manner a great variety of topics upon political and social life. There is not a dull chapter in the book, open it on any page and your attention is arrested. Its suggestions are all on the side of right, and it is a suitable book to be placed upon the table of any home.

Hall of Evening Star Lodge I. O. G. T., Houma, La., parish Terrebone, Feb. 24th, 1882. Whereas it has pleased Almighty God in his infinite wisdom to call from our midst, our beloved fellow member and brother, Amos Graham, while bowing with humble submission to the ediet, thus all must die, we can lament the departure of our said brother. Therefore, be it resolved, that this lodge has lost a useful and zealous member, and our heart felt sympathy is hereby extended to his bereaved family. Resolved, further that the usual badge of mourning be worn by the lodge for a period of thirty days, and that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the Terrebonne Times and SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Bro. Amos Graham was always a faithful member of his church and died in full faith.

BEATTY'S BEETHOVEN ORGAN
Walnut or Ebonized (Gold Laid) Case as desired. 5 Octaves, 10 Sets Reeds, 27 Stops.
PRICE, delivered on board cars here, with Stool, Book and Music (a complete musical outfit) for ONLY $90.00

WALNUT OR EBONIZED (GOLD LAID) CASE AS DESIRED.
Dimensions: Height, 75 inches, Length, 46 inches, Depth, 24 inches.

The Beethoven Organ can be shipped in 5 minutes notice, (now shipping over 50 a day, demand increasing.) Working nights by Edison's Electric Light to fill orders for this style promptly. Remittances may be made by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter, or by Express Prepaid.
SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY REFUNDED if the Beethoven Organ, after one year's use, does not give you entire satisfaction, kindly return it at my expense and I will promptly refund you the $90 with interest. Nothing can be fairer. My object in placing this organ at $90, is to have it introduced into every home in this country. Every one sold is sure to sell another. Often 50 sales can be traced from the first one introduced. All that is asked of the purchasers after giving the instrument a fair trial, kindly bring friends to see it and hear its musical effects, having no agents, no warerooms in large cities (selling direct only), I rely solely on the merits of the Beethoven to speak for itself and kind words from satisfied purchasers, which I am proud to say are many.
THE BEETHOVEN CASE.
[Height, 75 inches; Length, 46 inches; Depth, 24 inches.] Is, as the cut shows, the most magnificent ever made. The view is of a walnut case, highly polished, and ornamented with gold, but when preferred, you can order an ebonized case in pure black, inlay ornamentations in gold, which produce a fine effect, now very fashionable, and is furnished at the same price. When ordering, specify definitely which case is wanted. The designs are alike and no case as beautiful was ever put upon the market for any such money, even when ordinary music—as used by other builders—was put in them. Read the following description of Reeds and Stop Combinations carefully, and then give this more than liberal offer a trial by ordering one. The World can not equal this Beautiful Organ for anything like the money asked.
Ten (10) Full Sets Golden Tongue Reeds.
It contains 5 Octaves, 10 full sets of GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, as follows: (1) Manual Sub-Bass, 16 feet tone; (2) Diapason, 8 feet tone; (3) Dulciana, 8 feet tone; (4) Cello, 8 feet tone; (5) French Horn, 8 feet tone; (6) Saxaphone, 8 feet tone; (7) Voix Celeste, 8 feet tone; (8) Viola Dolce, 4 feet tone; (9) Violina, 4 feet tone; (10) Piccolo, 4 feet tone; also, Coupler Harmonique, Harp Æoline Grand Expressione, Vox Humana, Vox Jubilante and other grand accessory effects.
27 STOPS! (NO DUMMIES, ALL OF PRACTICAL USE.)
There are no Reed Organs made in this country but what when the stops are used wrong, some will give no sound, hence are then dummies. If used as directed every stop in the Beethoven is of practical use. Don't be deceived by misrepresentations of Monopolists or their agents. There are 14 perfect combinations on this organ, equal to 14 common organs usually sold by agents combined, and the full effect cannot be produced with less than 27 Stops and not then, without my Stop Action (applied to my Reedboard) which is fully covered by patents, and can be used by no other manufacturer.
SPECIFICATION OF STOP WORK. 27 IN ALL.
(1) Cello, (2) Melodia, (3) Clarabella, (4) Manual Sub-Bass (5) Bourdon, (6) Saxaphone, (7) Viol di Gamba, (8) Diapason, (9) Viola Dolce, (10) Grand Expressione (11) French Horn, (12) Harp Æoline, (13) Vox Humana, (14) Echo, (15) Dulciana, (16) Clarionet, (17) Voix Celeste, (18) Violina, (19) Vox Jubilante, (20) Piccolo, (21) Coupler Harmonique, (22) Orchestral Forte, (23) Grand Organ Knee Stop, (24) Right Knee Stop, (25) Automatic Valve Stop, (26) Right Duplex Damper, (27) Left Duplex Damper.
THE FIRE On September 19th, 1881, my Factory was entirely destroyed by fire, nothing but ashes remaining where was one of the largest factories of the kind in the world.
RE-BUILT Three days afterwards, with my own hands I lifted out the first relic where it stood, and by the aid of vast capital, perfect knowledge of what was wanted, and kind words of cheer from thousands, I was enabled in 120 days to put on steam and start more machinery, in a larger and better equipped Factory than ever on the same ground. The present establishment covers nearly 4 acres of space, and is now turning out a larger number of better instruments daily than ever before. This achievement is unsurpassed in the history of enterprise.
I am now receiving orders for the BEETHOVEN (price $90) at the rate of over 1,000 per month, and as I run my great works far into the night by the use of 640
the only Organ and Piano Factory in the world that uses it. I can fill all orders promptly for this style as I have now with a 300-horse power engine, driving over 100 wood-working machines in their construction.
REMEMBER! By the addition of the very latest approved wood-working machinery, (which no old establishment has) vast Capital, a new factory built after long experience of the wants to do work well and economical, and the addition of private switches and railroad tracks to the various doors of the factories, I am now enabled to build better instruments for less money than ever before, and my patrons have all the advantages of these facilities.
To prove the truth of the statements made in this advertisement I invite all to come to Washington, see for themselves. My manufactory is open to visitors always. (Five) $5 allowed for your travelling expenses if you purchase. Come anyway. You are welcome. A free coach with polite attendants, meets all trains. If you can not call, write for catalogue, or, better still, order a BEETHOVEN on trial, as you can save nothing from this price by correspondence, and I know you will be delighted with the instrument. If you do not wish to buy yourself, will you kindly call the attention of your friends to this advertisement, you will be doing them a real service. ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE FREE.

THE AMERICAN
ART EXCHANGE
Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. We shall, as rapidly as possible, bring out in this country all the famous art works of the Old World, and at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.
As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be produced, we will take pleasure in forwarding a Complimentary Copy of the first edition of art work produced by us in America.
Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb Painting, occupying nearly the entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled
"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."
Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is impossible to secure a copy at a less price except through this house. The engraving represents the Savior as He is leaving the Pretorium or Court after being condemned to crucifixion. He is decending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps are two burley executioners in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendant. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Pontius Pilate; who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly decends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion. There are upward of One thousand figures represented, prominent among which are Our Savior, Caiphas, Annas, Alexander, The Virgin, Mary Magdalene, Judas, Pilate, Herod, and a host of other historical names. An outline engraving with numbers and figures, indentifying the prominent characters, accompanies each of the the large works, thus making the picture a valuable historical reference. It stands to-day unquestionably.
The Finest and most Valuable Engraving in the World.
The engraving of the plate alone cost upward of $30,000, and no copies are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to not less than $40 per copy.
This splendid work is the first of a series of the prominent art works of Europe which the American Art Exchange will produce in America, simultaneously with their production in the Old World, and at prices which will enable the multitude to purchase.
This first work will be used as an introductory advertisement, and will be furnished
Free to all Applicants.
It is a correct reproduction of the English plate which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price, who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size (25x36 inches) and with the same attention to perfect work as characterizes the $30 copies.
The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when future works are announced the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.
Until the first edition is exhausted we will ship a perfect copy of this work, together with a smaller outline key engraving, to any applicant. The engraving, which is a very large one, will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage (the shipping being done by contract) which will be 36 cents or twelve 3 cent stamps. It was at first thought that 30 cents would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags, it was decided to increase the thickness of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of accident. This necessitated an increase of charge to 36 cents. On receipt of application the engraving will be immediately forwarded, all charges prepaid, to any address in the United States, when twelve 3 cent stamps are inclosed in letter to cover charge.
Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be forwarded at a charge of 27 cents each copy, as one tube can be used for several copies. USE THE

A WONDERFUL and SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.
These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:
1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.
The MEDICATED GLASSES are all stamped on the frame H. HOUSAH. Medicated. NONE GENUINE UNLESS STAMPED.

A RECENT EXCITEMENT INVESTIGATED BY THE HERALD AND THE RESULTS MADE PUBLIC.

[Cleveland, O., Herald.]

A few weeks ago we copied into our columns from the Rochester, N. Y. Democrat and Chronicle "A Remarkable Statement," made by J. B. Henion, M. D., a gentleman who is well known in this city. In that article Dr. Henion recounted a wonderful experience which befell him, and a few days thereafter we published from the same paper a second article, giving an account of the "Excitement in Rochester," caused by Dr. Henion's statement that for a number of years, up to last June he had been afflicted with what seemed at first a most mysterious trouble. He felt unaccountably tired at frequent intervals; he had dull and indefinite pains in various parts of his body and head, and was very hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. However, as a physician he thought, and so did his fellow physicians, that he was suffering from malaria.

But yet he grew worse, and was finally obliged to give up a large and lucrative practice. Still he was not conscious of his danger, nor that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon him, although all his organs had become gradually weakened. The symptoms above described continued, accompanied by others of an aggravated nature, and he noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids he was passing; that they were very abundant one day and very scanty the next, and were covered with froth, or filled with brick dust sediment. But even then he did not realize his real and alarming condition. At last, however, he was brought face to face with the fact that he was a victim of a most terrible disease, and he made heroic efforts for recovery. He traveled extensively and consulted the physicians, but they could give him only temporary relief, and that principally in the form of morphine. And so he grew steadily and constantly worse until his life became a torture. His pulse was uncontrollable. He lived wholly by injections, and for six days and nights he had the hiccoughs constantly, which are considered the sure indication of coming death.

When hope and life were nearly exhausted his pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's church, strongly urged him to try a means which the reverend gentleman had seen used with remarkable results. He objected at first, but finally consented, and was conscious of an improved condition the first week. His pains gradually disappeared; his stomach resumed digestion; his heart became regular; his headache disappeared; he had no more chills and fever, or acidity of the stomach; he gained twenty-six pounds in three months, and is a well man to-day, being entirely cured of a most pronounced case of Bright's disease.

Although conscious of the consequences from his professional brethren, still as a duty to his fellow-men, and according to a vow he made on what he thought was his dying bed, he published a card detailing his illness and remarkable [illegible]. "Since my recovery," he says, "I have thoroughly investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and I [illegible] more than one half the deaths [illegible] in America are caused [illegible] Bright's disease of the kidneys. It has no distinctive symptoms of its own (indeed, it often develops [illegible] any pain whatever in the [illegible] or their vicinity,) but has the symptoms of nearly every known complaint. Hundreds [illegible] die daily whose burials [illegible] by a physician's [illegible] of "Heart Disease," [illegible] "Paralysis," "Spinal [illegible]," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other complaints when [illegible] was Bright's disease of [illegible]. It steals into the [illegible] a thief, manifests its [illegible] the commonest symptoms [illegible] itself upon the [illegible] the victim is aware. It [illegible] hereditary as consumption [illegible] as common and [illegible] families, [illegible] their ancestors, [illegible] none of the [illegible] the mysterious [illegible] was receiving [illegible] symptoms [illegible] and [illegible] to be [illegible] did not regard Dr. Henion's case as particularly exceptional because he had known of very many such cures by the same means in all parts of the land. Kidney diseases, he said, are carrying off tens of thousands every year, while Bright's disease is increasing 250 per cent. a decade, and yet the people do not realize it or seek to check it until too late. He related how a New Orleans medical professor, lecturing on this disease, thinking to show his class what healthy fluids were, subjected some of his own to a chemical test, and although he had no suspicion of it before, discovered that he, too, had the dreaded disease, which proved fatal in less than a year. There was also an interview with the celebrated chemist of the New York State Board of Health, Dr. S. A. Lattimore, who said he had analyzed the remedy which cured Dr. Henion, and found that it was "entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances.

We have made these condensations in order that all the material facts may be set before our readers. Since the publication of these two articles, having been besieged with letters of inquiry, we sent a communication to Dr. Henion and also to H. H. Warner & Co., asking if any additional proof could be given to us as to the validity of the statements published. In answer thereto we have received the following letters, which add interest to the entire subject and wholly verify every statement hitherto made:

ROCHESTER, N. Y. Feb. 2, 1882.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor is received. The published statement, over my signature, to which you refer is true in every respect, and I owe my life and present health wholly to the power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. It is not surprising that people should question the statement I made, for my recovery was as great a marvel to myself, as to my physicians, and friends. * * J. B. HENION, M. D.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 31, 1882.

SIRS: Acknowledging your favor duly received, we would say: The best proof we can give you that the statements made by Dr. Henion are entirely true, and would not have been published unless strictly so, is the following testimonial from the best citizens of Rochester, and a card published by Rev. Dr. Foote, which you are at liberty to use if you wish. H. H. WARNER & Co.

To Whom it may Concern:

In the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle of December 31, 1881, there appeared a statement in the form of a card from Dr. J. B. Henion, of this city, recounting his remarkable recovery from Bright's disease of the kidneys, after several doctors of prominence had given him up, by the use of a preparation manufactured in this city and known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

We are personally or by reputation acquainted with Dr. Henion, and we believe he would publish no statement not literally true. We are also personally or by reputation well acquainted with H. H. Warner & Co., proprietors of this remedy, whose commercial and personal standing in this community is of the highest order, and we believe that they would not publish any statements which were not literally and strictly true in every particular.

To the Editor of the Living Church, Chicago, Ill.:

Will you allow the following card, personal to myself, to appear in your widely circulated paper?

There was published in the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle of the 31st of Dec. last, a statement made by J. B. Henion, M. D., narrating how he had been cured of Bright's disease of the kidneys, almost in its last stages, by the use of Warners' Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. I was referred to in that statement, as having recommended and urged Dr. Henion to try the remedy, which he did, and was cured.

Now the republishing of his statement in many of the leading journals of the day has been the cause of an incessant flow of letters to me making many inquiries, but chiefly whether the statement is true, or a mere advertising dodge, etc., etc.

I beg, therefore to anticipate any more inquiries and save time and labor, and some postage, by saying that the statement of Dr. Henion is true, so far as it concerns myself, and I believe it to be true in other respects. He is a parishioner of mine and I visited him in his sickness. I urged him to take the medicine and would do the same again to any one who was troubled with a disease of the kidneys and liver.

ISRAEL FOOTE, (D. D., Rector of St. Paul's church.

Beatty Investigated.

A representative of an Advertising Agency visited the new mammoth Piano and Organ factory of Daniel F. Beatty, at Washington, New Jersey, and thus speaks of the gigantic enterprise: "Leaving New York, foot of Barclay Street, a run of two hours brought us to the city made famous by its present Mayor, Hon. Daniel F. Beatty, who owns and controls one of the most extensive and well organized factories on this hemisphere, where is manufactured his well known and highly prized pianos and organs."

"Our party was met by his private coach, (run to all the principal trains for the sole accommodation of his visitors) and driven direct to the factory where we, in a hurried manner, took a run through the acres of floor in the new factory devoted to the manufacture of his celebrated instruments. We could hardly realize that this indomitable man had within five months been burned out entire, and these immense structures had been erected and put in operation since, and now turning out 30 musical instruments a day, which we were assured would be doubled in 30 days, and trebled in 90, for it must be remembered that the final finish on instruments in this new factory had but just begun.

At the well-known Beatty Building, in the heart of the city, he has the most magnificent and well arranged suites of office-rooms on the continent, and busy, intelligent and polite managers, correspondents and clerks, attest to the perfect system necessary to the transaction of such a mammoth establishment. We listened to the music of the Beethoven Organ, now being so well advertised, for nearly one hour. The instruments were taken at random from the lot, and we never heard better, sweeter toned reed organs than each proved to be, and it is yet a complete wonder to us how such a magnificent instrument, in appearance, in tone and in variety, can be made for anything like the money he asks for it. We can see how upon such a scale, selling direct to the consumer and having perfect organization Mr. Beatty can out-do all competitors, but that they should be out-done to the extent they are, is yet a mystery.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession, for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.

GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and [illegible] chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.

DR. JOHN BULL'S Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

I KNOW.

I know the crimson stain of sin,
Defiling all without, within;
But now rejoicingly I know,
That he has washed me white as snow.
I praise him for the crimson tide,
Because I know that Jesus died.

I know the helpless, helpless plaint,
"The whole head sick, the whole heart faint!"
But now I trust his touch of grace,
That meets so perfectly my case—
So tenderly, so truly deals:
Because I know that Jesus heals.

Editorial Correspondence.

Attending the session of the Little Rock Annual Conference which convened in the city of Little Rock, Ark., on Thursday, Feb. 9th, we were heartily welcomed and cordially entertained by Rev. W. O. Emory at the Wesley Chapel parsonage, where presided Sister Emory, [illegible] among Methodist preachers' wives, who joined her worthy husband in sparing no pains to make our visit both pleasant and agreeable. Bro. Emory is one of our most intelligent and promising young men in this conference, and has had great success, both in the financial management of the church and in spiritual power. The fine brick church that Wesley Chapel is building upon the Church Extension Society plan number six, under the direction of Bro. Emory, when completed will be one of the finest in the city.

In the Conference we had the pleasure of meeting the [illegible] dear-hearted, and hard-working Bro. Pollard, presiding elder of the Little Rock District. He reported a good work accomplished amid the severest difficulties and physical disabilities. Bro. Pollard's labors are appreciated, and he is greatly loved. He happens to be one of those loving [illegible] in the distribution of [illegible] has not yet discovered [illegible] Jacob's [illegible] Since Jesus died, all are [illegible] in him.

Bro. G. W. Sams, presiding elder of the Hot Springs District, was [illegible] his post, and reported much [illegible] bestowed. [illegible] a hard one, but [illegible] guards had [illegible] back and prepara[illegible] being [illegible] Bro. Sams [illegible] presiding elder [illegible] with him as he [illegible]

[illegible] structures are lighted with gas; and it enjoys all the facilities of the mail-carriers' free delivery system. It is simply wonderful to see the number of new buildings that are going up and that have recently been built in all parts of this city. Some of the colored, as well as the whites, are planting themselves here to grow in material wealth with the city. This Little Rock, situated upon the Arkansas river, opposite to a high and rocky bluff, itself sitting upon several large and hilly rocks, is surely destined to become a great city. We had a splendid time in Little Rock. Visited the very fine new postoffice, the Statehouse, and other places of public interest; gave the Mansion, that sprightly and well conducted negro sheet, a call; and had the pleasure of meeting the Hon. Gibbs, U. S. Land Officer for the State. Mr. Gibbs, we are informed, is one of the most efficient Government officials in the State.

Leaving Little Rock with many pleasant recollections of a most happy conference session, we started back for our conference work on Monday night, Feb. 13th. Stopping over at Texarkana, I was glad to meet Bro. Williams, of the Texas Conference, and his people. Our work opens grandly here. This is a new city, substantially spreading out in all directions, and our church promises to keep pace with it in leading in the development of pure and undefiled religion in the place. Our church here, however, labors under the disadvantage of being right next to the State line. The city is divided into two equal parts in Texas and Arkansas. The church is on the Texas side of the street, and disorderly persons often disturb the church and jump, in one leap, right out of one State into the other, thus evading the punishment they so richly deserve, to the great injury of the cause. Here, also, we have a church among the white people. Bro. Cunningham, the pastor, though laboring against fearful odds, has succeeded in building up a splendid work here. Their church, which is nearly completed, when finished, will be a model of neatness, and will compare very favorably with the best in the town. Bro. Cunningham deserves much credit for his excellent work done.

I had intended to have stopped in Jefferson, but circumstances intervened which prevented; so passing through, I came to Marshall, Texas, where I was pleased to meet Bro. Peter Morgan and his finely, crowded congregation. This is a grand, good work, and from all indications promises good and substantial results. I was very favorably impressed with the appearance of the place, and was even more decidedly so when I heard of the united effort that had been inaugurated by all classes of the community for the extirpation of the liquor traffic from the town. The temperance workers had succeeded in obtaining a call for an election to act upon the subject, and meetings were being held to persuade the citizens to vote for prohibition, with fair prospects of success. The Lord help them to succeed!

From Marshall, Texas, coming to Shreveport, in this State, I was met at the depot by our pastors, Rev. Reese Thompson and J. W. Hilton. Here Bro. Thompson had provided a most agreeable and comfortable home for me with Bro. Isam Hill and family, excellent members of St. Paul Church of Shreveport. Bro. Thompson takes hold of his work cheerfully. His people regretted very much the removal of Bro. Marshall, their former pastor, but so very sweetly and manfully has Bro. Thompson commenced his work among the people, he has succeeded in drawing the people near him and he is moving off with the work nicely. Bro. Hilton, at St. James Church, has commenced his second year's pastorate in good earnest. In a basket-meeting held while I was there, something near forty dollars were realized. Spending, while waiting for a boat, eight days in this city, I preached several sermons in both churches, secured many fair subscription lists for the SOUTHWESTERN, and enjoyed the other weekly services very much.

Our churches in Shreveport, are [illegible] our people are here [illegible] a reading people, and [illegible] is depicted all [illegible] both here and [illegible] that the morning [illegible] After many appre[illegible] when a boat would be [illegible] the river, in company [illegible] Frank Harvey of [illegible] who was at his [illegible] way to Conshatta to move his family, I succeeded in leaving Shreveport in time to commence my district work according to my published announcements. The trip was made on board the steamboat Jewel. Captain and officers were all very kind and aimed at the comfort of all. While in accordance with existing prejudices, I had to wait for the second table for my meals, I was given a room, had free access to the cabin, and felt for once that even here on Red River public opinion could be so educated as to secure for any man equal fare for equal means. The Lord speed the day! Among the other passengers, was a young man who was a former student of Straight University, who manacled in chains, and in charge of a deputy Sheriff was on his way to the penitentiary for two years, for grand larceny. Upon questioning him, I found out that he was very intelligent, and was familiarly acquainted with some some of the first families among the colored people in this State. Says he to me, "Elder I deserve this punishment. I did not steal that money, but I was with the one that did so. Bad company has put these handcuffs on my hands and these manacles on my limbs." With tears in his eyes he continued. "Pray for me, Elder. I will go to the penitentiary, will try and serve so as to win the favor of the keepers, and if the Lord helps me to ever get out and regain my freedom I shall forever shun evil company." I hope some wayward son or daughter will profit from the expressions of a convict and shun whiskey and bad company, two of the most dangerous enemies to integrity of character, and cling rather to temperance and good company, thus becoming fortified against every evil influence.

The water was high and for scores of miles vast areas along the river were under water. In many instances houses in which people were living were surrounded by water and others had to be removed on account of cavings in the river banks. Passing one of the points where many negroes were at work removing some buildings from the cavings, one of our fellow-passengers, referring to them, said to other white friends aboard.

"Now, sir, see how those niggers are working. I would not live where there are no niggers for anything in in this world. I was raised with them and I know them. They make the best laborers in the world. They are so very useful to do all the drudgery about a place, for almost little or nothing, and then a nigger knows his place. It is only once in a great while that you come across one who forgets that he is a nigger. Oh yes, they are all right. Of course I am opposed to all social and civil equality of the niggers, but I love a nigger." Just think of how grating such remarks, which formed the burden ot their discussions for hours, must have been to me, but the Lord be praised, there exists a strong and persistent under current that tends the other way. Providence is overruling many circumstances to swell the strength and volume of this under-current which must eventually, sooner or later, break down every barrier and let the waters take their own natural level. Let the negroes but continue to get education, build up character and amass property, and the united experience of the ages tell us that then will not need to court the favors of any one, but in common with the dominant race, command the respect of their every civil and political right. This is the great trinity of power for any race, education, character and wealth. After forty hours travel we reached here Sunday at 1. P. M. in time to begin my district work. Nothwithstanding the many disadvantages undergone during this trip, on account of the color God gave me, I enjoyed it very much, and am rejoiced to announce to our readers that "the morning seems to dawn" darkness seems to take its flight, doubts and terrors are withdrawing. Dark clouds over our political sky are scattering. In our schools and churches a new light seems to enter. "The morning cometh." A.

Alexandria, La. 27. 1882.

J. R. Kager writes from Verona: "The Governor of Mississippi has signed the bill incorporating the Colored Young Men and Ladies' Matrimonial Association. It pays young men and ladies $500 at their marriage. The incorporators are J. B. Wilkins, N. T. Spicer, J. J. Christian, G. G. Wiley, and A. S. Jones. It is said to be a bonanza for its members."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

San Antonio District.

MR. EDITOR: I have not felt much like writing since Conference, as I could not write as encouragingly as we could wish. We began our year's work on our knees at St. Paul M. E. Church, San Antonio, December 31st and 1st of January, 1882. We have enjoyed a part of what we prayed for, success. The winter has been wet and inclement, and but little could be done by the laboring classes. This says to you that there has not been much financial success among the churches. However, the people have shared liberally with their pastors and presiding elder. The end of the old and beginning of the new year are always unpleasant periods with a large portion of our people, as many of them have to change their homes. This changing, vacillating style of living causes much dissatisfaction among our people. I am sorry the dissatisfaction is not as great as we could wish and pray for. We want our people to become so dissatisfied that they will get homes of their own. The brethren, with few exceptions, are doing nicely. At San Marcos our church has been in imminent danger for want of means to pay off our indebtedness. Application was made to the Church Extension Society, and $2500, in addition to what had been granted, was given, and the trustees write to me that they are prepared to have their house dedicated to the service of the Lord on March 12th, with assistance of Rev. A. R. Norris, pastor of Wesley Chapel, Austin. We will comply with their request. Brother J. T. Jacobs, at Pleasanton, is getting their house ready for the same holy purpose. Bro. J. R. Carnes, at San Antonio, is moving forward full of faith and zeal. He has moved into their newly-purchased parsonage. Under his direction the trustees and people contemplate making desired improvement on the cracked, bare stone walls of their church. These walls should be a standing advertisement of the builder's inability. At Laredo, Bro. A. J. Turner is toiling on with success. His congregation is mostly Mexican, of whom thirteen are members of our Church. Bro. Turner has the advantage of being able to speak the Spanish language. We have no church property at this point, but are laboring to got some. While we were there we assisted the pastor to raise, by subscription, $57 25. Have received encouraging news since. Bro. J. T. Gibbons, of Riddleville and Floresville Circuit, is doing a noble work among his people, both in the pulpit and in the Sunday and day school. His new church at Riddleville will soon reach completion.

Bro. D. W. Tucker, on Lavernia Circuit, is doing a good work under embarrassing circumstances. The circuit promises to pay him only sixty dollars as support for the year. The Missionary Society helps thirty dollars. He says he intends to do his full duty by the people and trust to the Lord for the balance. A failure of crops last year and having to make payment on their land answers for this starving promise, in part. I find all churchless communities poor and weak. The Stephen's, Cruse's, and Docido colonies are owned by colored people. They have prepared their lands for cultivation nicely, Every thing indicates industry and thrift.

At Pleasant Grove, the people subscribed $217 50 to build them a church house. The roll will be called in June and October, by the writer; each subscriber is to answer to his name, and to pay the money, etc. This is a great victory on paper! but the money will make it still greater.

We rest a few days, and move on toward the lower end of the district.

Our best wishes and prayers attend Dr. Hartzell in his new field of labor. May the new editor be equally as successful in the editorial chair, with his able assistant! They shall have our full support, every way possible.

We ate our dinner, in the pulpit, at Nash's Creek M. E. Church, on Sunday, the 5th, between 12 m. and 1 p. m., rode thirteen miles, to Luling, to board the western-bound train, Sunset Route, and via the I & G. N. R. R. to Austin, where we took dinner (our next meal) at 1:30 p. m. on the 5th, all because we never suffer ourselves to eat in the kitchens and back ways at public places, the only accommodations offered to colored people, though they have complied with every civil condition of society. The civilization we cultured Americans are teaching to heathen in foreign is a mere hypocritical civil farce. All of this ill-treatment to us poor blacks of the South is practiced toward us by "our best friends!" Forbearance ceases to be a virtue. The half will never be told till the resurrection morning.

MACK HENSON,

Austin, Texas, March 10, 1882.

From Our Mission Rooms.

THE ANNUAL MISSIONARY REPORT FOR 1881, now issued, is a volume of 382 pages. There is here certainly no lack of interesting and valuable information from all our mission fields. There is also a systematic review of the work of the year. It makes mention of the chief events which have transpired and shows the special wants of each field. The statistical tables are very full and uniform, so as to exhibit in clear view the results attained. There can be no measure for the value of such a volume. We trust it will be duly appreciated and thoroughly studied by all our preachers. Here is the material for a great number of missionary addresses throughout the year. Inquiries which are often sent by letter to the Mission Rooms concerning our work, will find answers already provided in these pages of the annual report, in bound form, from the year 1861 up to the present time.

Every Sunday-school library ought to possess at least one copy of this report. With a view of supplying them, a number of copies have been bound which will be furnished on application and transmission to the secretaries, of the bare cost of binding and postage. Two styles of binding will be furnished, one in half leather at 40 cts., the other in plain cloth at 22 cts. The postage on each volume is 8 cents. We make the same offer to all the Theological Seminaries and libraries. We shall be glad also to furnish any member of the church or other person with a bound copy of the report on the same terms. Every layman interested in our missions will naturally be glad to possess the annual report in a form suitable for preservation. We can also furnish back numbers.

DEATH OF REV. J. S. PAYNE OF THE LIBERIA MISSION.—Mr. Payne's illness had been of some months continuance. A letter just received from his son announced his death at Monrovia, Jan. 31, at 11 a. m. His son writes: "O! that Col. Ingersoll could have been beside the death-bed of my father. He would never again utter an expression of infidelity. The scene was most touching. He said that he was about to enter the kingdom of his Lord, and that all was peace to him. Among his last words were 'this religion of our is no myth,' 'all is well, glory be to God for Jesus Christ.'" Mr. Payne was a highly valued member of our mission, having been connected with it for over forty years. He has been president of the Republic, was delegate to the general conference of 1880, and presided at the Liberia conference of 1881. His departure will be a serious loss to our mission in Africa, where his counsels are greatly needed.

THE LIBERIAN CONFERENCE OF 1882, opened Jan. 26, Rev. G. A. Pitman being chosen president.

REV. C. F. KUPFER and wife arrived at Kiukiang, Jan. 12. A letter from Rev. M. L. Taft at Chinkiang, under date Jan. 30, announces the arrival of Rev. M. C. Wilcox and wife, also for the Central China Mission, at Shanghai; and states that Rev. S. Lewis and wife who are sojourning at Chinkiang are making rapid progress in the study of the language.

REV. M. C. HARRIS and wife of the Japan Mission accompanied by Mrs. Soper and her children, sail from Yokohama, March 9, in the "City of Tokio" the action of the ladies' being necessitated by the state of their health. "Bishop Bowman's visit with Mr. Harris was in every way a delight and blessing to us and the native church. His charming lectures and addresses in Japanese, and cordial friendly manner toward our native brethren, greatly endeared him to them, and they will never forget the kind hearted bishop and his helpful counsel."

REV. G. F. DRAPER and wife, of the Japan Mission, whose return home was necessitated by the protracted and serious illness of Mr. Draper, arrived in New York, March 8. Their address will be Washington Heights, New York City.

DR. WHEELER ON THE TAUGTSE KIANG.—Rev. L. N. Wheeler D. D., who is pioneering our West China mission enterprise, reports his arrival at Ichang, a town on the Yangtse in the province of Hupeh, but not far from the borders of Sichuen, on Jan. 7. This was one month after leaving Hankow. The journey was made in a leisurely manner for purposes of observation. Dr. Wheeler writes: "Over six weeks on this magnificent river since leaving home have given me a somewhat trying but very interesting experience—especially the four weeks from Hankow in a native boat. Frequent visits to the shore and continual and close observations of junkmen have confirmed the impression that both the need and the opportunity of missionary work present this whole region as a most inviting field to the pioneers of evangelism in China. We have passed through a fertile and populous section of the empire, lying outside of all existing plans of missionary societies. But when once the great west has been occupied, that section will begin to feel the influence of an aggressive gospel coming up the river and descending with the floods."

"Szu-chuan grows upon me continually. The sight of numerous junks every day on their way from that province to ports below tends to confirm the much I have heard about its wealth and commerce. As we recede further and further from Christian civilization with pagan darkness, the Unseen Presence goes with us, and why therefore may He not go before us to prepare the way, and why not crown His own admission with speed and success. "Mr. Baynall, my associate and fellow traveller has been somewhat ill since we left Kiaukiang, but appears at the present writing to be quite restored. My own health has been excellent from the first until now, for which I am devoutly thankful. I hope to reach Chung king in a little over one month from this present date."

Concerning Ichang, Dr. Wheeler says: "Ichang is a foo city, (i. e. a city of first rank) of about 50,000 inhabitants." The city wall and the houses generally are of a rather superior order. An examination hall or college is located here, where about 3000 students gather triennially in eager strife for the literary degree. It stands for the present at the head of steamboat navigation, a side wheel steamer owned by the China Merchant Steamship Co., (native,) coming from Hankow once a fortnight. It is also the last customhouse stationed to the west for Hupah province. Its importance, however, is derived mainly from the fact that it is the great trans-shipping port for the Szu-chuan trade. Numerous junks from below stop here to equip for working up the rapids. I write in the midst of a very bustling scene, boats of every class around me constituting a large fleet. There is a district suburb called "The Island," occupied exclusively by Szu-chuan families, numbering some two or three thousand people. There seems to be no special unfriendliness toward foreigners, and the approbrious epithets so frequently offered to them in cities of Eastern and Central China are seldom heard here. A mountainous region stretches to the south and west, presenting to the eye a near and distant scene in which the wild, the beautiful and the sublime are strikingly commingled. A refreshing river or mountain breeze is a daily visitant during the summer, and the climate may be regarded as good.

"The church of Scotland located a mission in this city nearly four years ago, and the working force now consists of two clergymen and a colporteur and their wives. A few members have already been gathered from the city and country. They have entertained us with great kindness and hospitality."

Dr. Wheeler is inclined to advise the establishment of an intermediate station at Ichang for various reasons. There is every opportunity there for the study of Western Mandarin, the language of Szuchuan, which differs considerably from the Mandarin, dialect of Kiukiang. It more nearly approaches the Nankinese which Mr. Lewis has an excellent opportunity of learning at Chinkiang by the employment of a Nanking teacher.

A HOSPITAL AT YANG CHOW.—It will be remembered that this large city has been visited by Rev. M. L. Taft from Chinkiang. We are interested to learn that Dr. Edward P. McFarlane, who for sometime had charge of the Church Union Hospital at Yang Chow, is proposing to establish a hospital for the victims of opium smoking, with a general dispensary and surgical department at Yang Chow. In a letter to Mr. Taft he details many of the advantages of this work for evangelistic purposes. The charitable attempt thus made to cure the opium habit shows to the Chinaman that there is no connection between Christian missions and the opium trade, it is rather a silent protest against it. The opium patients are required to attend the Christian services connected with the hospital. An opium smoker can be cured in four weeks. During this time an intelligent Chinaman can learn the fundamental principles ot the Gospel. "When I was in Hang Chow" says Dr. McFarlane "I found that the opium patients came from very long distances. Going back to their own villages they never failed to speak of the religion which was taught at the Foreign Hospital." The hospital becomes in like manner spiritually profitable to surgical and dispensary patients. A suitable hospitable can be sustained at Yang Chow for $350 a year.

BULGONA.—The boys school has opened successfully at Tirnova Eleven young men are studying there, "all fine fellows," writes the missionary. Nine of them are preparing for our mission work. A brighter day is evidently dawning for our mission in this country. The press expected at Tirnova has arrived. Mr. Jones "means to make it talk."

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House, New York, March 2d. The chair was occupied by Frederick H. Wolcott, Esq., Vice President, and Secretary Hunt conducted the the religious exercises.

A communication was read from President Williams, conveying the pleasant intelligence that he was recovering from the effects of the accident which had befallen him as rapidly as could be expected.

Secretary Hunt made a report concerning a recent visit he had made to the Carolinas, Georgia, and Florida—with statements concerning many interesting Bible meetings held in those States.

Communications of interest were presented from most of the foreign agents. Mr. Milne reports again from Montevideo, and Mr. Whipple forwards a report ot the work of one of his colporteurs who is a convert from Islam.

Grants of books were made to the value of about $10,500, including 1200 volumes to the Hawaiian Board of Foreign Missions, and 150 volumes for missionary work among the Chinese in Chicago.

Appropriations in funds were also made to the amount of $28,238, including the annual estimate for the Society's agencies in Japan and Mexico, and more than 30,000, francs to the Bible Society of France.

One auxiliary was recognized in Michigan, and one in Florida.

The receipts for, February were $36,152 83; copies of Scriptures issued from the Bible House, 75,746 volumes.

A sick person, wanting nourishment and having lost appetite, can often be sustained by the following, when nothing else can be taken: Make a strong cup of coffee, adding boiling milk as usual, only sweetening rather more; take an egg, beat yolk and white together thoroughly; boil the coffee, milk and sugar together, and pour it over the beaten eggs in the cup you are going to serve it in. This simple receipt is used frequently in hospital practice.

Deacon Foster told a very fair story at the recent North Church fellowship meeting. In an adjoining town there was quite a religious revival a few years ago which began under Methodist auspices. But when the converts came to seek church membership most of them went to the Congregational fold. This so disturbed a Methodist sister that she remarked: "If I had known how this thing would turn out I never should have prayed as I did."

The anti-polygamy bill has gone to the President for his approval.

Temperance.

The temperance man who hopes to effect a temperance reform without continual and energetic personal action and co operation will be miserably disappointed. No mere legal statute, we care not how clear, strong and wise in its provisions, can take the place of individual action or do away with personal responsibility and exertion. There is no law that can enforce itself. hence all law increases human responsibility. Conscience we are told is a personal faculty, a sort of a divine authority, but never transferable. Conscience calls upon us to say the right thing and to do the right thing, not as an occasional habit but all the time and everywhere. This, like the laws of the Medes and Persians, is the unchangeable obligation conscience imposes upon us, and obedience to this is the surest test of Christian manhood and the only way of reforming others. Seeming faithfulness of this one truth has been a great hindrance in the temperance reform. Let us look at this matter. The enemies of free rum have made tremendous efforts to secure the passage of a prohibitory law, and in some of the States have succeeded, but with this success there have come some of the most shameful defeats to the temperance army, not because prohibitory legislation was wrong, but because they relaxed their efforts on the line of moral suasion. Public sentiment does not create itself, it is not of spontaneous growth. Laws, no matter how wise and beneficial, will not enforce themselves. A strong, healthy public sentiment lying back of the law alone will secure its enforcement. We presume that in all the States of this Union there are dead laws on the statute books. They are laws because they were once enacted and have never been repealed, they are dead because they are not enforced, and they are not enforced because the public sentiment out of which they grew is dead. If we wish to make any law a living force in the community, we must keep a strong public sentiment, the community must be kept in a perpetual state of moral agitation, this and this alone under the blessing of God, will infuse into the community the power of righteous and purifying principles. Agitate, agitate, should be the pass word of temperance men. In every State where there is a license law, they should ceaselessly agitate until the public sentiment out of which it grew shall be as thoroughly regenerated as to call for its repeal, and the substitution of a prohibitory or no license law in its place. Then this work has just begun, they must still agitate and use all moral agencies harder than ever. We do not expect to make men Christians or moral by mere legislation, we ask for law as a sort of straight jacket that we may use as a curb to help hold in check the evil propensities of society, but it is never to take the place of the living persuasive voice, the personal example. There must be the friendly inculcations of temperance truth, attended by a sympathetic and exalted human nature.

Communities are transformed as one individual after another imbibes some transforming precepts and is lifted into a higher and broader ideal of Christian life, and a nobler performance of its duties. It is only by agitation, by the constant presentation of precepts, that men are brought to experience their regenerative power and purifying influence. The law as such never [illegible] save a drunkard, but the living sympathetic temperance man or woman can. The law if we have faithful officers will wonderfully help us in our work. With the law we can close up the saloons and thus keep our sons from this temptation. Parents may be [illegible], both in theory and practice, home influences may be all right and free from the danger of drunkenness, but so long as the dram shops are open no young man is safe. This rum demon is no respecter of persons; he brings low the [illegible] the best families as well as those who take but little interest in their families. No young man is safe. Parents look upon their sons as pure and pure, they are trusty [illegible] excellent scholars, but when they know not of it they begin to [illegible] saloon and they "took to [illegible]" and were ruined tells the [illegible] family disgraced—hopes [illegible] man in the bottom[illegible] of strong drink. Some [illegible] but we suppose [illegible] but poor and [illegible] inebriates drop [illegible] grave every [illegible] there can be no [illegible]. To the [illegible] is full of [illegible] this and [illegible] conviction [illegible] there [illegible]

but mere moral power can never shut the gate through which the devil every hour is taking so many souls to hell. We can persuade the drinker. John B. Gough makes special mention of Jesse Goodrich and Joel Stratton who came to him as he lay floundering in the "slough of despond," and by their persuasive appeals induced him to sign the pledge. But there is no persuasive power that can reach the liquor sellers. We have seen anxious neighbors reason with them, wives and mothers with broken hearts and tears entreat them, barefooted, ragged, hunger-bitten children appeal to them, and still they sell. As long as money can be made in the traffic there are men who will sell and make the once sober, kind and affectionate husband and father a drunkard, and turn that home, once the emblem of heaven, into the emblem of hell. As long as there is money to be made there are men who would sell though their saloon were built in the "crater of a volcano." Persuade these men? We have tried it, have seen others try it, and we must confess with poor results. Persuade these men! When the iron grasp of the law or death seizes them, then they will stop, then they will be persuaded.

One Question Settled.

According to our neighbor, the New Orleans Christian Advocate, one warfare is ended, the conflict as to the relation of two great branches of Methodism concluded and settled, "organic union" is not desired and not to be discussed, as "it keeps up an irritation and opens the doors for disquieting and disturbing influences that would sleep and die if the matter were permitted to disappear from the field of discussion." To all of which we add a hearty amen. We desire "Fraternity," the real practical thing, not that fashionable gusto so popular at general conferences, National and inter-national camp meetings and ecumenical councils, that costs nothing and to some has the appearance of an intellectual craze; but to be shown here at home in our every day life by extending to each other real Christian courtesies, friendly recognition and brotherly greetings and salutations. We are to remember that the "world is our parish," and if in the course of human events, our "altars" shall be side by side, let it be distinctly understood that it is not as "altar against altar." There is no conflict. "We are fraternal," we will enter into all open doors with the distinct understanding that "each church is to attend to its own affairs, and to do the work to which it has been providentially called" without let or hindrance. "Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." The Methodist Episcopal Church is here in the South—here to stay. The Lord Jesus and Cape May gives her the right to be here. The Methodist Episcopal Church South is in the North looking wishfully towards good old New England, and she has a right to be there. She has the same authority to go into all the world. Go, brethren go, and let us see who can love most and work best.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company has recently completed its new passenger depot at the foot of Canal Street. Pandering to blind Bourbon Democratic prejudices, however, in the division of this depot into sections, it has not failed to attempt the humiliation of the colored traveling public, and to make another thrust at their public rights. The divisions complained of are as follows: the first division, "for ladies only," in which colored ladies are refused admission; the second division, "for gentlemen only," from which colored gentlemen are excluded, and the third, the one next to the baggage room, "for colored persons." How is this? Is a man or woman to be known to be a lady or gentleman by the color of his skin? Are all "colored persons" excluded from the ranks of ladies and gentlemen? And are all whites, whether libertines, drunkards, rogues, blasphemers, ignoramuses and the tramps in filthy rags, because they are not colored, either ladies or gentlemen? Oh for shame on him, who in the new light that beams upon a new South, would dare continue to assert this exploded system founded upon villanous logic! Gentlemen of the L. & N. R. R., permit us to advise you that the world moves! While your endeavors to satisfy public opinion may be commended by the traveling public, your method in this instance is certainly old fashioned. Such unnatural, abhorrent and invidious distinctions belong rather to the past decades. The present one has left such relics of barbarism behind! Let it not fall to you to resurrect them! There are ladies and gentlemen whose skins are not [illegible]! Why should not the L. & N. R. R. Co. recognize the fact?

Henry Highland Garnet, D. D.

The Christian Advocate, New York, gives the following appreciative sketch of this eminent man, whose death is profoundly deplored:

The career of this man, who died at Monrovia, Liberia, Feb. 14, where he was the Minister of the United States, was extraordinay. Grandson of a native African brought over in a slave-trader, himself born a slave, he was brought to Pennsylvania by his father, when he fled from slavery in 1824 Next we find him, at the age of seventeen, ridiculed for studying Greek and Latin; then mobbed in a New-Hampshire Seminary; then dragged from a street car in Utica; then studying theology with Dr. Beman in Troy, N. Y. Soon he was settled as a minister; afterward he traveled in Great Britain and on the Continent of Europe, and was sent by a Scottish Society as Pyrebyterian missionary to Jamaica, West Indies. He returned to New York, and was long the pastor of the Shiloh Presbyterian Church, his house escaping the riots in 1863 "by the foresight of his daughter, who wrenched off the door-plate." He was the first colored man who ever spoke in public in the Capitol at Washington, having preached there Sunday, Feb. 12, 1865. In 1881 he was appointed Minister to Liberia.

Dr. Garnet was equal in ability to Frederick Douglas, and greatly his superior in learning, especially excelling in logic and terse statement.

We heard him make a speech in 1865 which, in force of reasoning, purity of language, and propriety of utterance, was not unworthy of comparison with a sermon of Bishop Thomson or an address of George William Curtis. As he was "a full-blooded negro," he was a standing and unanswerable proof that the race is capable of all that has distinguished MAN. How much of history and progress could be crowded in a memorial inscription for him. It might be something like this: Born a slave in the country to which his grandfather was stolen away, he competed, under the greatest disadvantages, with white men for the prizes of life; attaining the highest intellectual culture, and a corresponding moral elevation, his career commanded universal respect in Europe and America, wherever he was known. He died the Minister of the United States to a civilized Nation in the land whence his barbaric ancestors were stolen. To God, who "hath made of one blood all nations of men for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation," (Acts xvii. 26,) be the glory. "How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out!"

MEMORIAL SERVICES IN NEW ORLEANS.

In response to a call by a committee composed of some of our most prominent colored ministers and laymen in this city, St. James A. M. E. Church and yard were filled to overflowing, last Sunday evening, with members of some of our best society, to honor the memory of the Rev. Henry Highland Garnett, D. D., late minister resident and Consul General from the United States to the republic of Liberia, and one of the grandest heroes of African extraction ever produced in this country. The platform and gallery were appropriately draped in deep mourning. The meeting was presided over by Rev. C. H. Thompson, D. D., as president; Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., secretary, and a long list of vice presidents; among whom were Hon. H. C. C. Astwood, U. S. Consul General to San Domingo; Gov. P. B. S. Pinchback, Col. James Lewis, Gov. C. C. Antoine, Dr. J. T. Newman, Hon. James D. Kennedy, Rev. W. S. Alexander, D. D., Rev. C. Hunt, Messrs. J. W. Pierce, Henry Adams, N. Jefferson, S. A. Mason, A. Zemar, Benj. Boerdley, M. E. Brower, Revs. S. Davage, S. Priestly, A. S. Jackson, Hon. C. F. Ladd, E. J. Davis and others. Rev. A. M. Green delivered the memorial address, and a masterly one it was. The Rev. Mr. Green had been upon very intimate terms with Dr. Garnett for many years, and was thereby well qualified to deliver a eulogy worthy of the man. All were made to feel his true merit and worth. The singing led by Hon. H. C. C. Astwood was most excellent and pathetic. The following preambles and resolutions, expressive of the sentiments of the meeting, offered by Rev. A. E. P. Albert, B. D., were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, In the inscrutable wisdom of an allwise Providence, it has pleased Almighty God to remove from the earth and the sphere of his useful activity, while in the zenith of his power and influence, to the haven of rest and eternal happiness, the spirit of Henry Highland Garnett, D. D., late Minister resident and Consul General from the United States to the republic of Liberia; and

WHEREAS, In his death we recognize the fall of a prince and great man in Israel; an eminent apostle of freedom, a ripe scholar and a profound philosopher and religious teacher; the removal of an ideal man, whose well-rounded life marks one of the grandest climaxes of human attainments;

Therefore be it Resolved, 1st. That while we obediently submit in deep humiliation to the unalterable decree of an Allwise Providence, that has thus afflicted us, we cannot refrain, under the very shadow of this great bereavement, from joining with the mourning family, our race and the nation in expressing our sincere regret at the loss of their devoted father, loving husband, faithful friend, and truly great and good man;

Resolved 2d, That in the death of Dr. Garnett, the State of New York has lost one of her most brilliant and valuable gems; the United States diplomatic service, one of her noblest representatives; the republic of Liberia, one of her best and most devoted friends; the Christian ministry, an able and worthy exponent and defender; the arts and sciences, a persistent scholar; the Negro race, one of its most eminent, scholarly, worthy and inflexible, representative champions; and mankind, a model of human perfection, worthy the ambitious aspiration of the purest and most exalted;

Resolved 3d. That we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy and condolence; and that we commend them in this hour of their deep anguish and sorrow, to that omnipotent and faithful "Friend that sticketh closer than a brother;"

Resolved 4th, That copies of these resolutions properly inscribed be forwarded to the family of our fallen hero, to the Hon. F. T. Frelinghuysen, Secretary of State; to the department of State of the republic of Liberia; and to the press for publication."

Thus is the precious memory of this worthy public man and Christian hero, honored at home and abroad.

Rest to his weary Spirit!
Peace to his ashes!

A Providential Opening.

In March, 1880, John Page, a builder and contractor in this city and a worthy member of the Ames Methodist Episcopal Church, contracted to erect a school-house in the third district, known as the twelfth McDonogh. Soon after entering upon his work, Bro. Page found himself much annoyed by the boys of the neighborhood.

He was under contract, and the work must go on, but with the boys as they were it would be to his disadvantage. He had however extemporized a shed for the benefit of the workmen and having great faith in the use of moral means in carrying out the work of reform, resolved to open a Sabbath schoool under the shed. He announced his purpose to the children and invited them all to come. The next Sabbath with a few tracts and such other help as he could command he was there at the appointed hour. The children who at first were a little shy soon gathered around him and his school was opened and in due time properly organized. On the following May, a roll of the scholars was made and fifty-two names were enrolled. From this time to the present the school has been growing both in numbers and interest. The members of the Ames Methodist Episcopal Church frequently visited the school and thus aided in the good work.

October 24, of the same year the school entered their new and convenient Chapel, and has ever since enjoyed an unusual degree of prosperity. It now has enrolled three hundred and sixty new names, with an average attendance of sixty-five scholars and eight teachers.

Education in the South.

The Daily City Item of this city, on the 5th inst, gave expression to broad and liberal minded views, on the subject of education in the South. We make extracts as follows.

We are indebted to the author, Rev. J. Hartzell, assistant secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society, for a copy of an interesting brochure showing the work which has been done by the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Southern States in the cause of education and the spread of the Gospel. Some of the statistics show the progress made.

The chief educational work of the Church has been conducted by the Freedman's Aid Society.

This is undoubtedly a great work, and of the right sort. The money to sustain the necessarily heavy expenditures, has been collected mostly in the Methodist Episcopal churches of the North, and it has been employed to elevate the minds of our Southern children, and adorn our cities, towns and villages with valuable and permanent improvements. The Freedmen's Aid Society is pushing its work vigorously all through the United States, and if it continues to make the progress during the next generation which it has shown in the last fifteen years, will be the greatest educational agency under a single management in the Union, unless Senator Kellogg's grand scheme for a national system of education shall, in the meanwhile, be established. The money spent by this great association among the poor children of the South, will be felt in its beneficial influences throughout the whole country by imparting to them an ambition to raise themselves from ranks of inorgance into something like a condition of enlightenment. For experience has demonstrated that education is necessary to a free people, and that the best citizens of a republic are those whose minds received the proper training in early youth, when the tender thought is susceptible of lasting impressions.

We give below "The Ebony Plank" of the Richmond Christian Advocate, M. E. Church South:

THE EBONY PLANK

We are expected, and, in good truth, requested to give our "platform" on the African question. "Forasmuch as many have taken in hand to set forth in order a declaration" on this subject, it seems good to us not to be a whit behind any candidate in mounting the kinky racer and spurring on to croslers, editorships, agencies, and stereotype plates. Our principles are broad, solid, and safe as the stump of a sequoia gigantea of California, where a whole General Conference can stand without jostling. We hold, 1. The negro has a soul. 2. He is our neighbor. These are our sentiments, and we are now "in the hands of our friends."

Here is another attacked of the "Negro Extravaganza," Brother Keener.

The Advance is a new evening daily of this city, published in the English and French languages, and which promises to be independent and progressive.

— United States Senator Hill, of Georgia, continues to suffer much from a surgical operation for the removal of a cancer from his mouth.

— The subscription list opened in this country for an American memorial window in honor of Dean Stanley at Westminster has been filled up.

— Gov. Pinchback announces that he will assume editorial charge of the Louisianian. H. C. Astwood, late editor, has gone to St. Domingo, as U. S. Consul.

— Bishop Hurst, visited Bishop Scott, at Odessa, Del, and found him almost blind, and helpless from paralytic strokes but spiritually "on the mountain top".

— Rev. J. S. Payne, of Monrovia, Liberia, died Jan 31. He was a highly valued member of our Liberia Mission, had been President of the Republic, and was delegate to the General Conference of 1880. He also presided at the Liberia Conference of 1881.

— Dr. Campello, ex-Canon of St. Peter's, at Rome, will shortly assume the direction of a new paper, Labaro, for which capital has been supplied by Anglican Dissenters in Italy. Its policy will be the furtherance of Count Cavour's idea of a free Church in a free State.

— Professor J. Berrien Lindsley, M. D., LL. D., a gentleman of high standing, eminent ability, and great public spirit, of Nashville, Tenn., will visit a few of the citizens of the leading cities of the West and North in the interest of the Meharry Medical College, which is the only institution in the Mississippi Valley where colored physicians may be educated. It is a most noble enterprise, and we trust that Dr. Lindsley will meet with great encouragement from our people. Many of the most distinguished citizens of Nashville indorse, in the strongest manner, Dr. Lindsley personally, and the enterprise for which he solicits aid.—Western.

— Hon. H. C. C. Astwood, U. S. Consul General from the United States to San Domingo, left this city, for San Domingo City, his post of duty, last Monday by the way of New York. Mr. Astwood is a native of Turks Island and is now 37 years of age. After being engaged in mercantile business for nine years in Porto Plata, San Domingo; and with the American Company in Samana Bay until the abrogation of the treaty between the company and the San Domingo government, eight years ago, Mr. Astwood came to this city, where by his sterling worth and dignified deportment he very soon gained admittance into the very best colored society, and secured the respect and recognition of all who knew him. Mr. Astwood, we learn, is the first colored consul to San Domingo City, and the first colored man appointed from Louisiana into the diplomatic service of the government. As this consulate is of a higher order than the one of Trinadad, to which he was at first appointed, this appointment is a perfect vindication of Mr. Astwood, against his traducers. This consulate being at the seat of government it ranks above all the others, it being the one through which they communicate with our department of State. Mr. Astwood's mercantile experience in the West Indies, his liberal education and fluent use of the Spanish language, well fits him for this mission; and from his interest in the city we may expect great advantage to to accrue to this city, through his ability and influence. We hope him much health and success!

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

ARKANSAS.

Rev. Foster Wallace is meeting with great success in his protracted meeting at Van Buren. A great many have been converted. About 600 have been added to the church this year.—Arkansas Mansion.

The Arkansas Conference met at Waldron from the 16th to the 20th ult., Bishop Warren presiding, T. B. Ford secretary, C. B. Bryant assistant, and G. E. Cunningham and A. J. Taylor statistical secretaries; H. Flood, Conference treasurer. Twenty nine members and probationers responded. The Bishop announced the transfer of G. W. Gray, D. D., from the Illinois Conference, and J. C. Barker, a probationer of the first year, from the Northwest Indiana Conference. Five preachers were admitted on trial. The following are the statistics: Members, 3950; probationers, 486; missions, $305 80; Church Extension, $40 90; Sunday-school Union, $9 90; Tract Society, $2 50; Freedmen's Aid, $39 55; Education, $12 55; Sunday-schools, 43 cents; scholars, 1900; churches, 42. The next session will be held at Little Rock.

TEXAS.

G. W. Townsend, of Oakland, is wide-awake to the assaults upon his church, and knows that the road to progress must be across race-lines. Pray for him.

W. H. Jackson, Patterson: Rev. Daniel Atkins presided at our quarterly conference. I presented a good deed, for land, on which to build a church, procured on J. F. Dickinson's tract, near Jones creek, to be known as Jackson's Chapel. Pastor's salary was fixed at $350, elder's $60, bishops $6, claimants $25. Total $441. Recommended Glasco Tolbert as an exhorter. The ministers are wide awake and will build two churches.

J. T. Gibbons, Floresville: "Elder Mack Henson, held our conference, his sacremental sermon was listened to by some of our best citizens. Among them were, Prof. Lopez, W. C. Agee, and Rev. H. Gillett. Collection $8. Have four appointments, with Sabbath schools at three of them, also very good day schools, the one at this place being taught by myself. Have had four months of public school and the trustees desire to continue it by private means."

B. M. Taylor, Houston: "Our first quarterly conference passed off well. Elder Nicholls preached two sermons with excellent effect. We protracted a meeting and added nine to the church. We will have to remove St. James church to a better part of the city. We have secured a lot, made one payment on it, and have four months time in which to raise the entire sum. We are doing all we can to finish up. We want the prayers of all Christians in behalf of our work."

MISSISSIPPI.

Dora Solomon, Augusta: "Our pastor, W. H. Mims, has brought the church together again, and is most acceptable to all."

A Lemona Durant, reports the visit of presiding elder, G. W. Barney, as one of refreshing to his charge.

LOUISIANA.

Rev. David Shelby, of Allenville: reports progress on his work, and twelve conversions on his first round.

M. P. Franklin, Bayou Letsworthy: "We are here in doors on account of the high water, and cannot attend church. Our people are greatly troubled."

T. Johnson, from Pleasant Hill, writes: "We shall soon have a new church 42 by 24 and a new parsonage 24 by 18 the lumber for the same is all bought. Our people here are mostly poor and live in log cabins. We thank the Lord and the conference for sending Rev. A. J. Pickett, among us; he is an instructor, just such as our people need."

At Sixth street, the work of the Lord is still going on. The first quarterly conference held March 17th. All reports were in order, and showed that there was still real vital force in the church and among the people. Bro. Dyer has received 54 on probation, of this number 49 have been converted to God. Sabbath 69 were forward to partake of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper. The Sunday-school organized and starts off under the most favorable circumstances. A choir has been formed and the young people are taking lessons in music.

TENNESSEE.

F. B. Summerhill, Lawrenceburgh: "We have a working elder, who stirs up wherever he goes. He spent several days lecturing and preaching with us. Collection for elder $8, pastor $12.30. We are going to raise up the West Tennessee district this year."

Societies Injuring The Church.

CORINTH, Miss., March 9, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR: Allow me to give a few hints, relative to what is fast becoming a great evil in our midst, in the way of societyisms. I have watched this matter steadily for sometime, and can say of a truth, that some of these societies are doing much harm to the Church. I am satisfied, that they have cut off the financial growth of many of them already, and it seems to me that all true ministers here, and elsewhere ought to feel it indispensable to blow up the concern root and branch. For I know a great many individuals who are wholly unable to do anything for the church, because of the expenses entailed by these awful burdens. One of these societies of which I speak is known by the name of Brothers and Sisters of Love and Charity, and takes into its membership, men, women, girls and boys, that too, of all sorts. If the thinking men of our Church will weigh this subject carefully, they will doubtless see, that it is one of vast importance to both the ministry and laity. I do not offer so much objection to the men becoming members of these societies as to the women, girls and boys, which renders them a down right nuisance. For instance, there are two of these societies here, and the sisters are constantly wishing to know of me, what is to be done about the means to pay their fees, etc. This in my humble judgment in a great measure accounts for the short reports brought in by some of the brethren at the last Conference, and also many of the destitute and distressed families throughout the State. It is not my intention to convey the idea of absence from membership and interest in secret societies, or opposition to their prosperity, but simply to let it be understood, that the advancement of the cause of Christ is paramount with me. Were it not for these irksome yokes, the members would take more of our church papers, and be better posted on religious issues generally. There are about seventy five of these church killers in this State. Those who are most instrumental in getting up these societies are making money hand over fist. Some of our ministers are making themselves swift agents in propagating the claims of this unrighteous scheme, and we know of some of other Conferences who are entirely engaged in spreading the ignominious evil. Oh! Oh! my brethren, shall we who are laboring under the mighty banner of the gospel, for the sake of a few society prarogatives, say to the church and sabbath schools, good bye. I have presented these few thoughts in the name of the Lord, and if opposed, shall summon to my aid the sword of the spirit, and make truth and reason my corpus delicti.

Yours Fraternally,
W. H. H. GALLION.

A Night Attack.

Friday night the 3d inst., the inmates of the Trinity Church parsonage were attracted by the sound of voices and footsteps from without, which convinced them at once there was something ahead. Next followed a tap at the window and the command: Open the door. But they have long since learned it is not always best to obey this command, especially when given at night. Hence they thought best not to be in a hurry about obeying. Whereupon the crowd burst forth singing: "Waiting to-night, watching for the light, etc." The pastor and family needed nothing more to assure them that the visitation was one of peace. So as soon as they could recover from the excitement of the moment the door was opened. Immediately there poured in a stream of humanity composed of members and friends of Trinity church, bearing baskets laden, as was soon found, with any number of good things, among which was the irrepressible and always welcome chicken. The captain of the klan gave orders to capture the dining room; this being done the table was prepared and all present invited to partake of lemonade, sweetmeats, etc., but the more substantial eatables were stored away to be pressed into the regular service by the pastor and family. Were it not that I wish to be brief I would give the names of those present. I will only add, the surprise was very much appreciated, and the pastor says he is glad Mrs. Scott did not scream for help and frighten the attacking party away while trying to gain admittance.

The Shaw University.

The friends and patrons of Shaw University will be glad to learn that the work on the long talked of new building has at last been begun.

On the 1st of March, the contractor, Mr. Adams of Chattanooga, Tenn, arrived and the work was begun the next day, to be completed by the first of August.

We now appeal to our friends in Mississippi, to come promptly to our assistance with the amounts they have subscribed.

To the members of the Mississippi Conference who have pledged themselves to raise certain amounts during the coming Conference year, we propose the following plan:

There are now just ten months until the Conference meets again, and we think it would be a good plan to raise, each month, just one-tenth of the amount pledged.

It will be much easier to raise it in this way than to leave it until near the close of the year and then attempt to raise it all in a short time; moreover, as the work progresses, and we trust that all who have obligated themselves will go to work at once and let nothing prevent them from raising these amounts.

All monies sent each month will be acknowledged in the SOUTHWESTERN, the first of the following month by the treasurer.

The Iodine Trick.

It is astonishing to what peculiar methods people will sometimes resort to endeavor to advance their own and injure others' interests. One of the latest and most unfair expedients is that of certain manufacturers of baking powders, who are endeavoring to prejudice consumers against all other preparations than their own by exhibiting from house to house a test purporting to show the quality of various powders. The facts are, this so called test, which we are told simply consists in adding a little iodine to a sample, can in no way reveal the true value of a baking powder, and is only calculated to deceive and prejudice the minds of the ignorant and unwary. Some powders are injurious, but this can only appear by analysis. The true value of a baking powder consists in the amount of leavening gas which is given off when heat and moisture are applied to the flour, and it is only the chemist with the aid of chemical apparatus, who can determine the volume of gas which any powder can evolve. We will venture to say that there is not an article prepared for food that might not be manipulated by chemical tests to prove that something was wrong about it, and when a person goes into a kitchen, or before a housekeeper, who is not to be presumed to understand chemical relations, and performs an experiment of even the simplest character, it is not difficult to impress one that something awful is the matter. As to baking powders, we could suggest a [illegible] that would be as ridiculous to give a fair idea of their relative merits to an uninstructive mind as the one here mentioned. The [illegible] best test to make of a baking powder is to try it in making [illegible] the one which makes the [illegible] and best. To this practical [illegible] the established brands of [illegible] have been put, and housekeepers have very gradually made up their minds which they prefer, and [illegible] will find, ultimately [illegible] households that have for years [illegible] brand will not be apt [illegible] a change in the test proposed.—American Grocer.

QUARTERLY REVIEW SUGGESTIONS.

In reviewing the lessons for the quarter, it is not wise to attempt to recall too much of each lesson, but only the more salient features of each one. Perhaps the following syllabus will aid the superintendents to grasp the lessons:

THE POWER OF CHRIST.

I.—Its Beginnings. The witnesses. a) Of John: "Make ye ready the way of the Lord." "He shall baptize you in the Holy Spirit." b) From Heaven: "The Spirit as a dove descending." "Thou art my beloved Son." c) Of Authority: "Straightway they left their nets." "Taught them as having authority." "With authority he commandeth even the unclean spirits."

II.—Over Diseases: 1. What Diseases Cured: Fever—Leprosy—Palsy—Withered hand. "All that were sick—possessed." 2. Why Cured. "Being moved with compassion." "That ye may know that the Son of man hath authority—to forgive sins." "The Sabbath was made for man."

III.—In Teaching. 1. Concerning Himself: "How can Satan cast out Satan?" "Whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother." 2. Concerning His Kingdom. a) Its Introduction: "The sower went forth to sow." b) The Method of its Growth: "The seed should spring up and grow, He knoweth not how." "The earth beareth fruit of herself: First the blade, then the ear," etc. c) The Extent of Its Growth: "Like a mustard seed—less than all." "Becometh greater than all."

IV.—Over Man's Foes. 1. Over Nature: "Rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, peace, be still." "Why are ye fearful? have ye not yet faith?" 2. Over Evil Spirits: "The unclean spirits came out and entered into the swine." 3. Over Disease and Death: "Go in peace, and be whole of thy plague." "The child is not dead, but sleepeth."

The Conference School.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 6, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR: I wish to speak a few words through your paper for the encouragement of the young men and ladies. I am now attending the conference school at Austin, and must say that the students are in a state of progression. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson are making every exertion to promote the education of our race. They are now prepared for as many students as wish to attend. Mr. J. J. Hamilton has agreed to board all who attend the conference school for $9 per month. If there are any who wish to attend the conference school my advice is to come at once. Mr. Richardson and wife are both able teachers, and are prepared to receive all who come. They are trying to sow the seed of education broad cast over the land.

We beg to call the reader's attention to the advertisement of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic, which will be found in another column. This medicine is a preparation of Iron and Calisaya Bark, in combination with the phosphates, and is indorsed by the medical profession, and recommended by them for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Complaints, Want of Vitality, etc. It is manufactured by the Dr. Harter Medicine Company, No. 213 North Main street, St. Louis, Mo. It is certainly the most valuable remedy in the market, and no family should fail to keep it in the house.—Toledo (Ohio) Northern Ohio Democrat.

Perhaps there never was a period in the history of the Christians Church, when there were so many persons studying the word of God as at the present time.

This volume will be found specially adapted to all Sunday-school workers in the study of the International lessons for 1882. The book is full of information. We most heartly commend this book, and urge every one to get it and study it for himself and judge of its excellence by his own delight.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The proceedings of the Teachers Institute, and some of the essays are live features of the Louisiana Journal of Education for March.

The exposure of humbugs by the American Agriculturist is more valuable to farmers than the subscription price, $1 50. Orange Judd Co., New York.

The Boston Musical Herald for March describes instruments of chords, and has two articles on the relation of music to church services. Price, 15c.

"Daybreak," an Easter poem, by Julia C. R. Dorr, price 60c; and an anchor shaped book of Easter couplets and verses, price 35c., have been received from A. D. Randolph & Co., 900 Broadway, New York. They are beautiful publications.

"Mrs. Mayburn's Twins," by John Habberton, author of "Helen's Babies," is in press and will be published in a few days by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. It is a charming bit of work, filled to the brim with fun, frolic, and reality and the author will have the thanks of every one that reads it for there is in it a sweet under-current of pathos that lends a special charm to the whole story from first to last.

The Southern Pulpit for March lays before its readers, "An Imaginary Symposium Between Colonel Ingersoll and a Lawyer," by Rev Wm. Platt of California. Prof. Mangum, of the University of North Carolina, and Dr. Gramberry, of the Vanderbilt University, each furnish a sermon. "The Demand of Unbelief" is by Rev. Mr. Williams, of Virginia. Rev. Mullally, of Lexington, Va., expounds the "Twelfth Chapter of Romans;" while Dr. DuBose, of Texas, and Rev. Mr. Lewis, of Louisiana, give outlines of Sermons. Subscription, $1.50 Jackson & Laferty, Richmond, Va.

The series of articles on the Christian Religion, by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll, Judge Jeremiah S. Black and Prof. George P. Fisher, which appeared recently in the North American Review, is now published in pamphlet form, in response to a very generally-expressed demand. Readers of the Review will be pleased to see these remarkable papers collected into one handy volume, and the general public, who have learned of the articles through the comments of press and pulpit, will be gratified to learn that a reprint has been issued. The price of the volume is 50 cents, and it is for sale at all news-stands and bookstores.

The numbers of The Living Age for February 18th and 25th contain Carthage and Tunis, Edinburgh; Old and New Canons of Poetical Criticism, Contemporary; The Sicily of Thucydides and Theocritus, Nineteenth Century; "The Man with the Red Hair," A Bit of Loot, and How the Stars got their Names, Cornhill; Inside Kairwan, Blackwood; An English Slave in Madagascar, Temple Bar; The Life of Richard Cobden, by John Morley, Macmillian; Youth and Age, and The Chinese Navy, Spectator; Blacks in Greenland, Pall Mall Gazette; The Persecution of the Jews in Russia and Germany, Times, and Morning Post; Bess l a Character Sketch, Chambers' Journal; and the usual amount of poetry. Little & Co., Boston, publishers.

The numbers of Littell's Living Age for March 4th and 11th contain Ancient Animals in South America, and The Life of Mr. Cobden, Edinburg; The Babylonian Account of the Deluge, Nineteenth Century; Bishop Thirlwall's Letters, Blackwood; Dr. Sheridan, Frazer; A Seventeenth Century Worthy—Sir Simon Harcourt. Macmillian; The Authoress of "Auld Robin Gray" and Marie the Frenche Quene, Temple Bar; Some Old Comedies, Belgravia; The Channel Tunnel, Spectator; A Bear Festival among the Ainos, Nature; and in the way of fiction "Let Nobody Pass" "Lord of all," and instalments of "The Freres" and "Robin," with the usual amount of poetry. The subscription price ($8). Littell & Co., publishers.

The March Popular Science Monthly is interesting throughout. The first article, by Miss Hardaker, of Boston, "Science and the Woman Question," gives a most rational view of the subject. Her aim is to fix woman's position by the laws of her constitution and her physiological destiny. "Muscular Expression of Nervous Conditions," by Dr. Francis Warner, is a most instructive paper on the action of the emotional mechanism. There is a capital article on "Sir Charles Lyell" by Grant Allen, accompanied by a portrait of the great geologist. "To Eat and to be Eaten," by Charles Morris, is a very graphic picture of Nature's remorseless ways. The editorial and miscellaneous departments are varied, and practical. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine, for April is an attractive one; the editor, Rev. Dr. Talmage, continues his interesting papers, "People I Have Met;" he also describes "What I Saw of Mormonism." There are admirable articles, finely illustrated, entitled "A Missionary Explorer" (David Livingstone), "Reminiscences of an old New Yorker," "A Journey to the Oldest City in the World," "The Recent Canonization of Saints at Rome," etc., etc. In the department of fiction "Prudence Winterburn," and "Margaret's Enemy" are continued; a new serial by Geo. McDonald, LL, D, "Weighed and Wanting," is commenced, and there are short stories, sketches and essays by distinguished writers. The price of a single number is 25 cents, the annual subscription, $3 postpaid, Address, Frank Leslie, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York City.

An Appeal in Behalf of Meharry Medical College.

No city in the West has more extensive connections with the South than our own Cincinnati. No people in America have so much of uncertainty and of interest in their future as the six millions of colored people in the South. A few years since an Ohio and Indiana family contributed means to erect a handsome and commodious Medical College Building for colored people, in Nashville, Tennessee, a recognized center of religious and intellectual influence. The work done by this college is heartily endorsed after full proof by representatives of the medical and educational professions in Tennessee. The necessity of such work is manifest by the fact that in the cities the death rate of the colored people is nearly twice that of the white race. In country districts it is well known that the colored people suffer very much from the want of proper medical care.

The Meharry Medical College is the only institution in the Mississippi Valley where colored students can obtain a good medical education. It is in great need of books, apparatus, and endowment. Contributions of books, specimens, instruments, and money will be gratefully received, and may be left at the office of Dr. Wm. H. Mussey, 70 West Seventh street. Dr. Mussey, after personal inspection of the College, generously donated four hundred volumes of valuable books to its library. All donations will be duly acknowledged by the Dean of the College.

We have carefully examined the character and work of this institution, and believe it to be pre-eminently a philanthropic and benevolent enterprise, adapted to the necessities and elevation of a large class of people in the South, and we therefore cheerfully commend the Meharry Medical College to the the benevolence and liberality of our citizens.

The Rt. Rev. D. A. Payne, Senior Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, lately in the course of his episcopal visitations in Florida, was rudely ordered to withdraw from the palace car into the smoking car of the train on which he was then traveling. Rather than submit to this indignity, the aged prelate, the most scholarly and accomplished in the denomination over which be presides, was landed in the woods and traveled for several miles on foot to his destination; and still this country is supposed by some social enthusiasts to have been dedicated to the freedom of the oppressed!—*N. I have prescribed Horsford's Acid Phosphate in the convalescing stage of typho-malarial fever, and, whenever an acid is indicated, nothing has been found equal to it. Plymouth, Ind. J. H. WILSON, M. D.

Guiteau could never sleep at proper hours, cursed with abnormal activity, his nerves were always on the qui vive. Could he have had the soothing benefit of Dr. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills, his wretched brains would not have raged with improper fancies.

The madness of the hour presses the consummation of the measure before Congress, and the abandonment of the doctrine of the Declaration of Independence, which will have been held practically for about seventeen years—the statement that "all men are created equal" having been understood with a parenthesis ("except negroes") until 1865, and now to be understood with the parenthesis ("except Chinese.") There is no doubt that the Chinese can stand it; but the more serious question is, Can America afford it?—N. Y. Advocate.

The highest hopes and interest of the race rest on the purity, health and strength of womanhood. We take pleasure in referring our readers to the remarkable efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in all that class of diseases from which women suffer so much.

President Angell, ex-Minister of the United States to China, announces that one important concession secured from the Chinese government through the influence of our diplomacy has been the exemption of native Christians from the onerous religious tax to which they have heretofore been subjected, Nonconformity in Europe has not fared so well as in China and we do not look for a measure of this liberal sort in England or Germany for many years to come if ever.

Another statement of President Angell's is significant. The forty native youth whom the imperial government had sent to Connecticut to be educated and recently recalled, to everybody's surprise, were not, it seems, getting along in their studies to the satisfaction of the home authorities and particularly they were neglecting the native literature while giving much attention to the language and literature of all other lands and ages. May not the teachers of our own children take a hint from this highly conservative criticism.—Northern.

"What is heaven's best gift to man?" she asked, sweetly smiling on him, "Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup," he replied, with prudence. He had just been cured by it of a bad cold.

USE THE

A WONDERFUL [illegible]d

SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

Who Was His Neighbor?

And it came to pass as a certain man journeyed from the cradle to the grave, he fell among saloon-keepers, who robbed him of his money, ruined his good name, destroyed his reason, and then kicked him out worse than dead.

A moderate drinker came that way, and when he saw him he said: "He is but a dog; they served him right; let him die; he is a curse to his family."

And also a license voter came that way, and when he saw him he said, "The brute! put a ball and chain on his leg, and work him on the street."

And a fanatic teetotaler came that way, and when he saw him he had compassion on him and raised him up, assisted him to his home and ministered to his wants, and to the wants of his family, got him to sign the pledge, and started him on his journey in comfort and happiness.

That Rich Experience.

A FREE PRESS INTERVIEW SUSTAINED AND ITS SOURCE REVEALED.

(Detroit Free Press.)

A few months ago an interview with a prominent and well known physician, formerly a resident of Detroit, but now living in New York, appeared in the columns of this paper. The statements made by the doctor and the facts he divulged were of so unusual a nature as to cause no little commotion among those who read them, and many inquiries were raised as to the genuineness of the interview and the validity of the statements it contained. The name of the physician was at that time suppressed at his own request. The seal of secrecy, however, can now be removed, as the important and interesting letter which appears below will abundantly show. In order, however, that the reader may better understand this letter, a few extracts are herewith given from the interview in question.

After an exchange of courtesies and a few reminiscences about the war, in which the doctor was a prominent surgeon, the reporter remarked upon the doctor's improved appearance upon which he said:

"Yes, I have improved in health since you last saw me, and I hope also in many other ways. One thing however I have succeeded in doing, and it is one of the hardest things for any one, and especially a doctor to do, and that is I have overcome my prejudices. You know there are some people who prefer to remain in the wrong rather than acknowledge the manifest right. Such prejudice leads to bigotry of the worst order. Now I am a physician, and of the "old school" order, too; but I have, after years of experience and observation, come to the conclusion that truth is the highest of all things, and that if prejudice or bigotry stand in the way of truth so much the worse for them—they are certain to be crushed sooner or later. Why when I knew you in Detroit, I would no sooner have thought of violating the code of ethics laid down by the profession, or of prescribing anything out of the regular order, than I would of amputating my hand. Now, however, I prescribe and advise those things which I believe to be adapted to cure, and which my experience has proven to be such."

"How do you come to get such heretical ideas as these, doctor?"

"Oh, they are the result of my experience and observation. I obtained my first ideas upon the subject, though, from having been cured after all my care and the skill of my professional brethren had failed to relieve me. Why, I was as badly off as many of my patients, with a complication of troubles, including dyspepsia, and consequently imperfect kidneys and liver, and I feared I should have to give up my practice. For months I suffered untold agonies. Dull, indefinite pains in various parts of the body; a lack of interest in every thing around me; a loss of appetite; headaches; all of these disagreeable symptoms were added to pains which were both acute and constant. Sick as I was, however, I became restored to health in a most surprising manner and in an incredibly short space of time, and it was this that proved a revelation to me. That was the starting point, and my prejudices faded rapidly after that I can assure you. I went to reading extensively, and analyzing more extensively, and since that time I have discovered many things of real value to humanity. Why only a few days ago I advised a lady who was suffering from a serious female difficulty and displacement to use the same remedy which cured me. I saw her this morning and she is nearly well; the pain and inflammation are all gone and she is around as usual. We have no right in the medical fraternity to sit back and declare there is no such thing as improvement or advancement, or that we have a monopoly of the remedies which nature has given to mankind. There are [illegible] changes going on in every de[illegible] of life, and there are great [illegible] in medicine as well. [illegible] of people die every year [illegible] typhoid fever, rheu[illegible] complaints, when in [illegible] from trouble, caused by [illegible] and diseased [illegible] of children are dy[illegible] dropsy at the ap[illegible] when in [illegible] diseased kidneys [illegible] weakened by the [illegible]."

[illegible] have got some [illegible], but they [illegible] [illegible] to my [illegible] true, is so considerate of his pocketbook or of his own personal ends as to stultify himself by suppressing the manifest truth, is unworthy the confidence of the public whom he serves."

The above are some of the principal points in the interview referred to. Now for the sequel. The following outspoken letter from the doctor himself which has just been received is published in full:

Editor Detroit Free Press:

Some time ago a reporter of your paper had an interview with me which he said he would like to publish. I consented on condition that you would not mention my name until I gave you permission. I have now accomplished the purpose I had in mind, and wish to say to you (which you can publish or not as you see fit) that I had debated for a long time whether I would shake off some of the professional fetters which bound me with others for years, and tell the truth, or not. When I looked back, thought of the tortures, like those described by Dante in his trip to the infernal regions, which I endured from dyspepsia, and recalled how much I would have given at that time for the relief which I have since obtained, I determined that I would take the step so long meditated, and thereby discharge a duty to my fellow men. If I could thereby save one poor mortal one night of the terrible suffering I endured, I would be fully satisfied, be the other consequences what they might.

My dyspeptic condition was produced by a torpid liver, which did not, as a consequence, remove the bile from the blood; this produced derangement of the stomach, inflammation of its coats, dyspepsia, constipation, headache, depression of spirits, yellow complexion, fat-covered eyes, chills and fever; in short, I was miserable to the last degree. I appealed in vain to my books, to my skill, and to my fellow-physicians. The mystery of my ill-health grew deeper; I traveled everywhere—exhausted all authorized expedients—but to no purpose!

When in this frame of mind, desperately in need of help, but expecting none, one of my unprofessional friends called my attention to some unusual cures wrought by a prominent remedy and urged me to try it. I emphatically declined. But secretly, and with the firm determination that I never would let anybody know what I had done, I began its use. It was only an experiment you know, but for that matter, all medical treatment is experimental. Well to make a long and surprising story short, I experienced a sort of physical revolution. My skin got a better color. My liver resumed its functions. I no longer had to arouse the bowels with cathartics. My headaches disappeared with my dyspepsia; but still I was not convinced. "Nature did it," I reasoned. But determined to push the investigation to the extreme, while I was in active work, I tried the effect of the remedy on my patients afflicted with kidney, liver, and urinary diseases, watching every development carefully and studiously. then I was completely disarmed, for the remedy stood every test imposed!

Under such convincing circumstances the matter of confessing my cure became a question of conscience and duty to humanity. "Here is a remedy," I say "that has done for me what the best medical skill of the country could not accomplish"—and as an honorable man I will not suppress the facts. I therefore write you and most unhesitatingly assert that for all diseases of the kidneys, liver, stomach or urinary organs, which are amenable to treatment, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure surpasses any remedy I have ever known or used, and since physicians have so much ill success in the treatment of diseases of these organs, I am prepared to accept all consequences when I say that they are, if conscientious, in duty bound to use this pure vegetable compound in their practice. Yours very truly,

J. W. SMITH, M. D.

Statements so outspoken as the above and coming from such a reliable source are valuable beyond question. They conclusively show not only the power of the remedy which has become so well known and popular, but the great importance of attention in time to the first indications of declining health. When professional men of such high standing sink their prejudice and willingly declare their belief in that which they know to be valuable, the public may confidently follow their example.

Dr. C. W. Benson, of Baltimore, Md.,
In the course of his practice discovered what now are renowned in medical practice, viz: a combination of Celery and Chamomile in the shape of Pills. They are used by the profession at large and constantly recommended by them.
It is not a patent medicine. It is the result of his own experience in practice. They are a sure cure for the following special diseases, and are worthy of a trial by all intelligent sufferers. They are prepared expressly to cure sick headache, nervous headache, dyspeptic headache, neuralgia, paralysis, sleeplessness, dyspepsia and nervousness, and will cure any case. Since Congress has done something toward "winding" up the fraudulent Church, which controls the Territory of Utah, the American people look pleasant and happy, one can easily distinguish, as he walks along our streets, who is a citizen of the United States, and who belongs to John Taylor's kingdom.—Rocky Mountain Advocate.

A Good Housewife.

A good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovation, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and the bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines.—Concord (N. H.) Patriot.

POTATO SOUP.—Nine boiled potatoes, one quart of milk, nearly one cup of butter, one medium onion, salt, pepper. Boil, mash and strain the potatoes through a sieve. Add milk, onion cut fine, salt, pepper and butter. Put all in a saucepan and let it come to a boil.

"Twenty-one years ago I was dying with the Consumption. There was no escaping that terrible death—at least so all the doctors told me—when a friend advised me to send to 1032 Race St., Philadelphia, and get Cannabis Indica, which finally and fully cured me." O. S. BISLEY, DEKALB.
St. Lawrence Co., N. Y.

"Send another $12 box of Cannabis Indica for a friend. Your medicine has cured me of Consumption. I am as sound and as well as ever I was."

Lost Friends.

[We make no charge for publishing these letters from subscribers. All others will be charged fifty cents. Pastors will please read the requests published below from their pulpits, and report any case where friends are brought together by means of letters in the SOUTHWESTERN.]

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for John Warren, James Young, Harriet Young, Pollie Sparks, Beverley Young, Martha Walker, Julia Chatham, Francie Warren and Emeline Walker, of Union county, Alabama. I live at Shuqualak, Noxubee county, Mississippi. REUBEN MASON.

MR. EDITOR—I read in your paper of Dec. 23, 1881, about my son. His name is John Barber, but changed to John C. Evans. He was sold to a trader in 1851, at the age of fourteen. I have written two letters but have received no answer. I am very anxious to hear of him, as I am alone in this world. Mrs. Fanny Barber, No. 257 Conti street, corner Rocheblave, New Orleans.

MR. EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my mother Menty Young. She was sold from us in Camden to a man named Huffman. When Steele's army came through she went away with them, but was captured at Mark's Mills fight brought back and sold. She left two sons and one daughter. The sons are Albert and Isaac, the daughter Phillis. She was carried to Texas. Address me at Hope, Arkansas. S. C. YOUNG.

MR. EDITOR—About the beginning of the war Claiborne Brastfile owned three colored girls, named Easter, Lucinda and Rachel, He lived in Harrisburg, Kentucky. These girls went by his name, and were all sold at one sale. Easter was sold to Prize Bunton, and he sold her to traders. When last heard of she was in Huntsville, Alabama. Lucinda was sold to a man by the name of Nat Wind. Rachel is now Rachel Bannister and lives in Burlington, Kansas, has spent much money and time to find his sisters. Any information thankfully received.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.
Endorsed and recommended by the medical profession, for Dyspepsia, General Debility, Female Diseases, Want of Vitality, Nervous Prostration, and Convalescence from Fevers, &c.
GENTLEMEN: I was suffering from general debility to such an extent that my labor was exceedingly burdensome to me. A vacation of a month did not give me much relief, but on the contrary, was followed by increased prostration and [illegible] chills. At this time I began the use of your IRON TONIC, from which I realized almost immediate and wonderful results. The old energy returned and I found that my natural force was not permanently abated. I have used three bottles of the Tonic. Since using it I have done twice the labor that I ever did in the same time during my illness, and with double the ease. With the tranquil nerve and vigor of body, has come also a clearness of thought never before enjoyed. If the Tonic has not done the work, I know not what. I give it the credit. J. P. WATSON, Pastor Christian Church, Troy, O.
The Iron Tonic is a preparation of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark, and Phosphates, associated with the Vegetable Aromatics. It serves every purpose where a Tonic is necessary.
MANUFACTURED BY THE DR. HARTER MEDICINE CO., No. 213 NORTH MAIN STREET, ST. LOUIS.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
FEVER and AGUE or CHILLS and FEVER.
The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Southern and Western country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.
The genuine SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP must have DR. JOHN BULL'S private stamp on each bottle. DR. JOHN BULL only has the right to manufacture and sell the original JOHN J. SMITH'S TONIC SYRUP, of Louisville, Ky. Examine well the label on each bottle. If my private stamp is not on each bottle, do not purchase, or you will be deceived.

AT CLOSE OF DAY.

If you sit down at set of sun,
And count the acts that you have done,
And counting find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard;
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went,
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day
You've cheered no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
You've nothing done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face;
No act most small
That helped some soul, and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost.

The past is a page all men may read,
But the future few may ken;
Of those glorious days when the toiler grim
Shall stand a king mongst men;
When the brawny arm and the deft right hand
Shall the noblest patent be,
And no idle drone throughout the land
Shall be found from sea to sea.

Henry Highland Garnet, D. D.

A MEMORIAL ADDRESS,

Delivered by Rev. A. M. Green, at St. James A. M. E. Church, New Orleans.

Mr. President and Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is an occasion of more than ordinary interest that has called us together at this moment. Many here assembled have but little idea of the true worth; the moral, mental, and social character of the truly great man whose life we are here to honor, and whose death we are here to mourn this evening.

In the far off classic land of the Pharaohs the pyramids lift their majestic summits to the skies, and the murmuring waters of the Nile and Niger roll majestically from their mountain sources through the marvelous plains once traversed by Ham and Phut and Canaan, as they did in the days of yore. Within the bosom of that ancient continent, beneath the summits of those mighty pyramids, mouldering to dust amid the soil of plains sunny plains, washed by the surging torrent of [illegible]

[illegible] magnificent sentiment of one of England's most distinguished authors. Speaking of the great and meritorious men, who like our friend, whose memory we commemorate to-night, lived not for themselves, but for the good of mankind, that author says: "Give them their meed of praise; ring out your shouts of applause." Another says: "The men who have been and who are not are many. Those who have left us a record of their life are comparatively few. For one man of the past whom we can name there are millions of whom we know nothing. Though children of the same stock, graced with the same physical symmetry; looking out upon this grand universe of ours with the same upturned eye; hearkening to her melodies with the same interpreting ear; and though one by ten thousand tokens, so one that as human face answereth to face in a glass, so does human heart to heart. And yet it is manifest, most clearly manifest, that one man differeth from another in every thing that maketh up the man, more than the giraffe excels the dormouse; more than the mocking bird excels the wren, or the eagle the owl."

And this disparity in the respective importance of men reaches over all the degrees of an immense scale. * * *

Beginning with that narrow and slender superiority which marks out one man as the ablest and most accomplished member of a family or a community, it reaches on and on to that proud preeminence of character, which makes a whole nation boastful; and thrills the whole civilized world with the magnetism of a single name.

Through all the ages there has been a marvelous tendency to honor the names and memory of such as have distinguished themselves in any of the departments of civil or military life. And it is to be regretted that too often the question of fame rather than real worth, has been the principle upon which the meed of praise has been extended to such as the world delights to honor.

It is said of Nimrod, the chivalrous and astute son of Cush, who founded Babel, Crech, and Accad and Calneh, in the land of Shinar, the father of empires, "That he began to be a mighty one upon the earth." He has had many imitators in the long ages since his day. And though this mighty hunter before the Lord was disposed of in this summary manner, yet his name has been transmitted down through all the ages until the present hour.

Abraham received an ovation at the hands of Melchisedeck and his subjects on his return from the slaughter of the kings. Shangar was worthy and received the plaudits of his Hebrew admirers when he slew six hundred Philistines with an ox goad. The Hebrew women say Saul hath slain his thousands, but David tens of thousands when Goliath fell.

The old Greeks worshipped all who fell at Marathon, under the invincible leadership of Miltiades, Themistocles and Aristides. And so also the gallant Spartan band who fell with Leonidas at the straits of Thermopylæ.

The pages of Roman history sparkle with the names of her prodigious warriors and statesmen, who have and will forever claim the admiration of the world. Nor would we rob Attilla and his valiant followers in that stubborn and vindictive battle of the Huns, a battle in which it seemed that spirit warriors, floating in mid air, waving their fluid ensigns and banners of blood and slaughter as an encouragement to the intrepid and daring leaders who led the furious strife below, inspired the rank and file of the opposing armies with the fury and fierceness of demons.

We might go on to call from the pages of past and present history men in all the public and private walks of life who have excelled their fellows and written their names high up on the scroll of fame. And yet among them all it would, perhaps, be difficult to find one more worthy the admiration and praise of all true men than he whose memory we celebrate the [illegible] the closing years of his [illegible] Thomas [illegible] very hard to [illegible] and public [illegible] of the world's approbation and memorializing of public men. He would have all honored who are worthy of honor. But he took solid ground upon the common sense doctrine, that great men are not always good men, and therefore however prodigiously great a man may have become, unless in some form or other could be associated with this prodigious greatness, the humanitarian philosophy of a public or private benefactor; there was no reason for the world to fall down and worship such a prodigy. He records all the world's great men in one or other of two classes, to-wit: The hero prodigy, and the hero magnanimous. He then boldly and defiantly takes the ground that daring, sacrifice and endurance in the fields of science, literature, religion and patriotism are the elements which compose the several orders of the hero magnanimous. And he further claims that no true hero can be either selfish, deceitful, or ambitious. So far we and this great æsthetic philosopher agree. But the very moment we enter his own great temple, dedicated to the worship of the world's great marvels of genius, there we see Napoleon, Rousseau, Burns, Mohammed and Cromwell, and others of like character.

Now the man who gravely tells us that these men were not selfish, deceitful nor ambitious, must not wonder if we gravely ask of him, what opinion he has of our common sense.

No hero can be ambitious. And yet Napoleon and Cromwell and Alexander are heroes. Napoleon, who climbed to power upon the head and shoulders of tens of thousands of his own brave countrymen, who fell and sacrificed their lives to exalt him to the glory and distinction of "Napoleon, the first emperor of France," Napoleon, who scrupled at no sacrifice either of blood or treasure, or principle, when his ambitious ends were to be served. George Cruikshank has conceived a model monument for Napoleon. It is skulls, skulls, skulls; let him have his glory. But let it be known that for every step he ascended upon the ladder of fame, some other man and perhaps a hundred men went down to desolation and to death. Give him a monument, but let it be built of human skulls. Again, no hero can be selfish, and yet Rousseau and Burns are heroes. In this erratic world of ours, selfishness assumes many and many a hideous form. In one man it seeks for aggrandizement in wealth. It plunders the houses of helpless widows and orphans. It sometimes seeks the overthrow and subversion of peaceful, inoffensive government. But in no case does selfishness seem to me so hideous as in the case of the cold blooded and heartless seducer. He who with cool indifference seizes upon a pure virgin heart, wrings out its life drop of happiness, drinks it with a relish, and casts away the empty husk to lie in the dust forever.

Still more, no hero can be deceitful nor a dissembler. And yet Mohammed is ranked among the first of these. A man who all his life long dissembled the bare fact that he could read and write, and made the world believe that his great literary production, the Koran, was revealed to him by the omnific hand of God in the deep solitude of the cave of Harra. But God revealed the truth of his sophistry and deception, by causing him while in a state of semi-delirium to call for a pen and ink, and to write in bold and graphic hand, several passages of the most profound teachings and proverbs of that book.

But my friends we are not here to discuss the traits of character which belong to men of either of these distinctive classes. We are here to try to do honor to a man who springing from the humblest walks of life, signalized every step of his progress from his earliest youth to a ripe old age, in the preparation and devotion of his mind and heart for the accomplishment of the grandest and noblest deeds of daring, sacrifice, and endurance in the cause of justice and human rights.

The great Shakespeare has said: "The evil that men do, lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones." We would transverse this sentiment by our expressions and admiration for this noble son of our race, in whose honor we are now assembled.

Mr. Garnet was born at New Market, Kent county, Md., Dec. 23, 1815. His parents, with their family of three children, by some means escaped and took refuge in New York. Henry was sent to school, and soon after entered New Canaan Academy, in the State of New Hampshire, from whence he was driven by mob-violence and found better treatment at Oneida College, in the county of that name, in the State of New York. By some means, while he was yet but a youth, the hiding place of his parents was sought for and found out by their old master, who came on in search of them, and broke up the peace and quiet of the family, his mother and sister narrowly escaping with their lives, while his father was forced to flee to Canada. The terrible shock of this innovation upon the sanctity of family rights by the the slave power, did much to arouse into action that detestation of this monster which followed Mr. Garnet through all his life. Like Hannibal, he swore eternal hostility to slavery and all its abettors and apologists. Mr. Garnet finished his studies at Oneida, and graduated with marked distinction, leaving a remembrance of him (especially with pumpkin-head cilia) not soon to be forgotten.

He began his manhood life under the reign of that hideous monster slavery, whose blighting influence bid fair to stop the very foundations of this great nation. Himself the son of a native African prince, Mr. Garnet imbibed an early inward horror of the terrible crime prepetrated upon the inhabitants of his fatherland by the wicked and iniquitous American slave trade. As soon therefore as he had reached the period of manhood, he set out in good earnest to do battle against this terrible wrong. And through all that fierce and terrible struggle, which Hon. W. H. Seward very aptly designated, "The irrepressible conflict," Henry Highland Garnet never wavered or swerved from the path of duty in behalf of those who were bound, as being bound with them, until every yoke was broken, and every fetter that bound a slave was riven asunder.

There is an old story that in the far off lands of the rising sun there grows a tree which is called the Upas tree. It is said to be found upon the scorching plains of a sandy desert. In such a place its grateful shade would of necessity make it most attractive and enticing to weary travelers through those regions. But he who rests beneath its enticing shade rarely if ever again mingles in the society of men in this present world. It is declared that whosoever there may rest will inhale a poisonous air or vapor from this upas tree which is certain to result in death.

Happily for our great land, through all her borders no such tree is found. But it may be said that from the dark and barbarous regions of those distant shores American slavery, a tree more terribly destructive of the rights, privileges and happiness of mankind, was transplanted to these peaceful shores. It took firm root, and grew and intertwined itself with all our religious institutions, until no ray or beam of hope remained except in the total annihilation of the entire system. Henry Highland Garnet stood in the front rank of those who proclaimed in public and in private, from the pulpit and the rostrum, "And now the ax is laid at the root of this tree, let it be cut down and cast into the fire."

In 1843 and 44 he stepped prominently to the front as an orator of extraordinary eloquence and power. Time will not permit us to follow him through many of the brilliant and daring deeds of self-sacrifice, and endurance, which marked the period of his life struggles against this insidious foe.

In 1852, Mr. Garnet was sent as a missionary to Sterling Grange Hill, Jamaica, West Indies. He soon after accepted an unanimous call to the pastorate of Shiloh Presbyterian Church New York.

Several times he crossed the Atlantic, and with George Thompson, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Frederick Douglass, Wendell Phillips, Samuel R. Ward, Dr. J. W. C. Pennington, and men of that stamp, he made the ears of the peasantry, and the nobility of Great Britain to tingle with the story of Afric's wrongs upon this continent. And to his earnest pleadings during the late war in no small degree may be attributed the great moral sentiment and tone of thought, which welling up from the hearts English masses, prevented a policy by that government, which would have embarrassed our Federal administration beyond the power of description at this time. Mr. Garnet's ministerial life and character stood out beyond the average men of his race in this respect as prominently as did all the other elements of his great mind and heart.

He suffered no cunningly devised scheme of weak, or ignorant, or wicked men, to deter him from the path of duty.

No weak sophistry of reasoning could ever be adduced that was sufficient to cause him even for a moment, as a question of policy or expediency, to turn his back upon the right.

At one time, when fears existed in the minds of some of the ruling elders and trustees of Shiloh church concerning Mr. Garnet's terrible arraignment of Millard Fillmore, and his complicity with the infamous fugitive slave bill of 1850, he said: "I cannot desist. I must and will speak. Upon my own shoulders and head must rest the responsibility of what I shall say or do. But if any officer, so-called, or representative of the iniquitous fugitive slave law shall cross the threshold of my door unbidden, I shall send him reeling down to Hades if I have strength in this right arm to pull a trigger."

I shall never forget a sermon preached by him about the same time and bearing upon the same subject. His text was Hebrews 11 c. 24–25 verses:

"By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than all the treasures of Egypt; for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward."

The whole treatment of this subject was characteristic of the man. After a most graphic and vivid picture of the character of Moses' parents, and family; and of Moses himself, in all the most cleverly marked and distinctive traits of the great leader and law giver, Mr. Garnet made the application of his subject with telling effect.

He applied his subject to our condition as an enslaved race, and proclaimed the duty of the nominally free colored men and women of the North, especially the young men and young women of our race, to emulate the character of Moses in his self abnegation for the good of his people.

He urged us to emulate the character and perseverance, of Moses' mother and sister, and family; instead of yielding to the pressure and dictation of pro slavery influence, which even at the North was at that time making deadly thrusts at the growing spirit of liberty and independent self reliance which filled the bosoms of many noble men and women of our race.

I remember meeting him in National Convention at Troy, New-York, in 1858.

Wm. Rich, W. J. Watkins, Stephen Myers, Wm. C. Nell, Frederick Douglass, Wm. Wells Brown, George T. Downing, J. J. Gould Bias, Junius C. Mowell, and others of equal power as public speakers, took sides pro and con with Dr. Garnet, and Prof. Charles L. Reason, upon the expediency or inexpediency of the then very unpopular advocacy by Mr. Garnet of his African civilization movement.

He advocated this measure as the great Archimidean screw that should lift the negro to an independent nationality.

The forensic power and earnestness, ingenious and invincible argument, and the subtle and irresistible attacks upon the vulnerable and less guarded defenses of his opponents, made Mr. Garnet, even in the estimation of his most violent opposers, complete master of the situation.

In 1859, when the sacred revelations of our martyr hero's carpet bag—I refer to the famous old Puritan martyr, John Brown of Ossawatomie, later of Harper's Ferry—I repeat when the revelations of that old hero's carpet bag was causing men to flee to distant lands, or to deny their identity with the cause for which John Brown gave up his precious life, Henry Highland Garnett, instead of leaving the country or hastening to denounce the old hero as a mad man, proclaimed a lecture at Shiloh church, entitled: "Nat Turner's Insurrection. Nat Turner a true hero."

In 1864 I met him again in National Convention at Syracuse, New York, and there for the first time in all the history of these great meetings, were we permitted to have direct and immediate representation from our enslaved people of the wide spread South. In that convention many of the States then in open and violent rebellion were represented by able and experienced men. Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas were all there by personal representatives. It was a grand and happy scene long hoped and prayed for by many.

Some of these States were represented by men fresh from the field of mortal conflict. North Carolina was thus represented by the chivalrous Hunter. South Carolina was represented by the irrepressible Captain Robert Smalls, of Charleston harbor naval fame.

Speaking before a Louisiana audience, I should by no means ignore the fact that Louisiana was neither last nor least among those who were thus represented. She was present in the person of your lamented Captain James H. Ingraham, then fresh from the gory but glorious battle field of Port Hudson, which ranks among the noblest tests of valor conceded to the colored men of our late unhappy struggle.

Mr. Garnet, ripe with years and experience in the great cause which was now rapidly culminating into absolute victory for right, seemed only to delight himself in thanking God, and listening to the wondrous story of the advancing columns of our army, which he called the vanguard of freedom; and the promised hope of deliverance, which these our brethren from the South testified to us, thrilled the bosoms of nearly all of their constituents whom they had left behind them.

Having been called to the pastorate of the 15th Street Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., his eloquence as a pulpit orator and logical reasoner, soon attracted the attention of many of the best minds of the two branches of our National Legislature. Senators and Representatives soon became frequent visitors of this church, and continued so during Mr. Garnet's ministry there. This led to an invitation to Mr. Garnet to preach a sermon on the overthrow of slavery in the hall of the House of Representatives at the National Capitol. The invitation was signed by many Senators and Representatives, as well as by the honored Chaplain of the House, Rev. William H. Channing. The sermon was delivered on Sunday morning, February 12, 1865. It was a master piece of pulpit oratory, and it was the first time the voice of a colored man in a public address had ever rang through those halls. Shortly after this he was recalled to Shiloh church, New York, where he continued to labor with the most remarkable success as a minister, till chosen as the representative of this government, our Minister resident and Consul General near the government of Liberia. I need not say that a better or more worthy representative of the colored race on this continent could scarcely have been chosen. Reference to his reception upon the shores of Africa, etc. His daughter was there before him. Dr. Blyden's address, etc.

Standing above his sacred and new made grave to day, as did Lord Thomas Gray above the sleeping dead of a country church yard, we may not say of Mr. Garnet:

"Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife
His sober wishes never learned to stray,
Along the cool sequestered vale of life,
He held the noiseless tenor of his way."

On the contrary, his was truly a life of never ceasing toil and struggle, and conquest, against outrage, oppression, injustice and wrong. His was a higher and nobler aim, expressed by that other great poet, Longfellow, in his "Psalm of Life:"

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

On the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle,
Be a hero in the strife.

Trust no future, howe'er pleasant,
Let the dead past bury its dead,
Act, act in the living present,
Heart within and God o'er head.

This was Mr. Garnet's motto followed through all the period of life. Living with such a life and purpose ever more before him, as the acme of all his exertions, it is not strange that we can close in with Gray at last. And closing this memorial in his own language, and applying those words to our departed friend, we can say:

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere,
Heaven did a recompense as largely send,
He gave to misery all he had a tear,
He gained from heaven, 'twas all he wished, a friend.

The Bible.

Who composed the following description of the Bible we may never know. It was found in Westminster Abbey, nameless and dateless, but nevertheless it is invaluable for its wise and wholesale counsel to the race of Adam.

A nation would be truly happy if it were governed by no other laws than those of this blessed book.

It contains everything needful to be known or done.

It gives instruction to a Senate, authority and directions to a magistrate.

It cautions a witness, requires an impartial verdict of a jury; and furnishes the judge with his sentence.

It sets the husband as the Lord of his household, and wife as mistress of the table—tells him how to rule and how to manage.

It entails honor to parents, and enjoins obedience to children.

It prescribes and limits the sway of the sovereign, the rule of the ruler, and the authority of the master; commands the subjects to honor and the servant to obey, and the blessings and the protection of the Almighty to all that walk by this rule.

It gives directions for weddings and burials.

It promises food and raiment, and limits the use of both.

It points out a faithful and eternal guardian to the departing husband and father; tells him with whom to leave his fatherless children, and whom his widow is to trust—and promises a father to the former, and a husband to the latter. It teaches a man to set his house in order, and how to make his will; it appoints a dowry for his wife, and entails the rights of the first born, and shows how the young branches shall be left.

It defends the right of all, and reveals vengeance to every defaulter, overreacher, and trespasser.

It is the first book, the best book.

It contains the choicest matter—gives the best instruction—affords the greatest degree of pleasure and satisfaction that we have ever enjoyed.

It contains the best laws and most profound mysteries that were ever penned; and it brings the very best comforts to the inquiring and disconsolate.

It exhibits life and immortality from time everlasting and shows the way to glory.

It is a brief recital of all that is to come.

It settles all matters in debate; resolves all doubts; and eases the mind and conscience of all their scruples.

It reveals the only living and true God, and shows the way to Him, and sets aside all other gods, and describes the vanity of them and all that trust in such; in short it is a book of laws to show right and wrong; of wisdom that condemns a folly and makes the foolish wise, a book of truth that detects all lies and confronts all errors; and it is a book of life that shows the way from everlasting death.

It contains the most ancient antiquities and strange events; wonderful occurrences, heroic deeds, unparalleled wars.

It describes the celestial, terrestrial and infernal worlds, and the origin of the angelic myriads, the human tribes and the devilish legions.

It will instruct the accomplished mechanic and most profound critic. It teaches the best rhetorician, and exercises every power to the most skillful arithmetician, puzzles the wisest anatomist and exercises the wisest critic.

It is the best covenant that ever was agreed on; the best deed that ever was sealed; the best that will ever be signed.

Gen. Lew Wallace, United States Minister, spent several hours with the Sultan of Turkey. The Sultan sought much information concerning America, especially the judicial system in the United States and the mode of collecting taxes. Gen. Wallace states the Sultan displayed a shrewd, penetrating intellect and expressed the most friendly sentiments for America. Wallace denies having supported an American company's project for obtaining a concession for a railway in the province of Bagdad.

AT CLOSE OF DAY.

If you sit down at set of sun,
And count the acts that you have done,
And counting find
One self-denying act, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard;
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went,
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day
You've cheered no heart by yea or nay;
If through it all
You've nothing done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face;
No act most small
That helped some soul, and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost.

The past is a page all men may read,
But the future few may ken;
Of those glorious days when the toiler grim
Shall stand a king mongst men;
When the brawny arm and the deft right hand
Shall the nobles patent be,
And no idle drone throughout the land
Shall be found from sea to sea.

Henry Highland Garnet, D. D.

A MEMORIAL ADDRESS,

Delivered by Rev. A. M. Green, at St. James A. M. E. Church, New Orleans.

Mr. President and Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is an occasion of more than ordinary interest that has called us together at this moment. Many here assembled have but little idea of the true worth; the moral, mental, and social character of the truly great man whose life we are here to honor, and whose death we are here to mourn this evening.

In the far off classic land of the Pharaohs the pyramids lift their marble summits to the skies, and the murmuring waters of the Nile and Niger roll majestically from their mountain sources through the marvelous plains once traversed by Ham and Phut and Canaan, as they did in the days of yore. Within the bosom of that ancient continent, beneath the summits of those mighty pyramids, crumbling to dust amid the soil of those sunny plains, washed by the sweeping torrent of those murmuring waters, sleep forever in peaceful silence the teeming thousands of earth's first and noblest men of genius; men whose towering intellect and prowess, and whose brilliant achievements recorded among the imperishable archives of those everlasting monuments, shall be transmitted to the coming generations of mankind, even down to the world's last expiring moment. We are here this evening, my friends, to add one more of this class to their number. We are here to consign to his last long resting place upon those distant shores a friend of theirs and ours; a friend of God and man, a man through whose veins flowed the royal blood of an African prince; and who though born and reared among us, nevertheless continued to cherish the warmest feelings and affectionate regard for the old continent and fatherland where rest his honored remains to-day.

O, Africa! proud land of Ham and Misraim! receive back to thy historic bosom, to rest with thine honored princes, thy weary wandering child. Take him to thy bosom, he hath not dishonored thy proud name. Henry Highland Garnet, honored son and brother of two continents, peace to thine ashes, rest to thy weary spirit, honor to thy memory, and praise for thy noble deeds and cherished worth.

I cannot better enter upon the important duty here assigned me, mingled as it is with reflections of both joy and sorrow, than by giving expression to the lofty and magnificent sentiment of one of England's most distinguished authors. Speaking of the great and meritorious men, who like our friend, whose memory we commemorate to-night, lived not for themselves, but for the good of mankind, that author says: "Give them their meed of praise; ring out your shouts of applause." Another says: "The men who have been and who are not are many. Those who have left us a record of their life are comparatively few. For one man of the past whom we can name there are millions of whom we know nothing. Though children of the same stock, graced with the same physical symmetry; looking out upon this grand universe of ours with the same upturned eye; hearkening to her melodies with the same interpreting ear; and though one by ten thousand tokens, so one that as human face answereth to face in a glass, so does human heart to heart. And yet it is manifest, most clearly manifest, that one man differeth from another in every thing that maketh up the man, more than the giraffe excels the dormouse; more than the mocking bird excels the wren, or the eagle the owl."

And this disparity in the respective importance of men reaches over all the degrees of an immense scale. * * *

Beginning with that narrow and slender superiority which marks out one man as the ablest and most accomplished member of a family or a community, it reaches on and on to that proud preeminence of character, which makes a whole nation boastful; and thrills the whole civilized world with the magnetism of a single name.

Through all the ages there has been a marvelous tendency to honor the names and memory of such as have distinguished themselves in any of the departments of civil or military life. And it is to be regretted that too often the question of fame rather than real worth, has been the principle upon which the meed of praise has been extended to such as the world delights to honor.

It is said of Nimrod, the chivalrous and astute son of Cush, who founded Babel, Crech, and Accad and Calmeh, in the land of Shinar, the father of empires, "That he began to be a mighty one upon the earth." He has had many imitators in the long ages since his day. And though this mighty hunter before the Lord was disposed of in this summary manner, yet his name has been transmitted down through all the ages until the present hour.

Abraham received an ovation at the hands of Melchisedeck and his subjects on his return from the slaughter of the kings. Shangar was worthy and received the plaudits of his Hebrew admirers when he slew six hundred Philistines with an ox goad. The Hebrew women say Saul hath slain his thousands, but David tens of thousands when Goliath fell.

The old Greeks worshipped all who fell at Marathon, under the invincible leadership of Miltiades, Themistocles and Aristides. And so also the gallant Spartan band who fell with Leonidas at the straits of Thermopylæ.

The pages of Roman history sparkle with the names of her prodigious warriors and statesmen, who have and will forever claim the admiration of the world. Nor would we rob Attilla and his valiant followers in that stubborn and vindictive battle of the Huns, a battle in which it seemed that spirit warriors, floating in mid air, waving their floid ensigns and banners of blood and slaughter as an encouragement to the intrepid and daring leaders who led the furious strife below, inspired the rank and file of the opposing armies with the fury and fierceness of demons.

We might go on to cull from the pages of past and present history men in all the public and private walks of life who have excelled their fellows and written their names high up on the scroll of fame. And yet among them all it would, perhaps, be difficult to find one more worthy the admiration and praise of all true men than he whose memory we celebrate the night.

Within the closing years of his life, the late eminent Thomas Carlyle has striven very hard in a series of essays, and public lectures, to remodel public sentiment upon this great question of the world approbation in memorializing of public men. He would have all honored who are worthy of honor. But he took solid ground upon the common sense doctrine, that great men are not always good men, and therefore however prodigiously great a man may have become, unless in some form or other could be associated with this prodigious greatness, the humanitarian philosophy of a public or private benefactor; there was no reason for the world to fall down and worship such a prodigy. He records all the world's great men in one or other of two classes, to-wit: The hero prodigy, and the hero magnanimous. He then boldly and defiantly takes the ground that daring, sacrifice and endurance in the fields of science, literature, religion and patriotism are the elements which compose the several orders of the hero magnanimous. And he further claims that no true hero can be either selfish, deceitful, or ambitious. So far we and this great æsthetic philosopher agree. But the very moment we enter his own great temple, dedicated to the worship of the world's great marvels of genius, there we see Napoleon, Rousseau, Burns, Mohammed and Cromwell, and others of like character.

Now the man who gravely tells us that these men were not selfish, deceitful nor ambitious, must not wonder if we gravely ask of him, what opinion he has of our common sense.

No hero can be ambitious. And yet Napoleon and Cromwell and Alexander are heroes. Napoleon, who climbed to power upon the head and shoulders of tens of thousands of his own brave countrymen, who fell and sacrificed their lives to exalt him to the glory and distinction of "Napoleon, the first emperor of France," Napoleon, who scrupled at no sacrifice either of blood or treasure, or principle, when his ambitious ends were to be served. George Cruikshank has conceived a model monument for Napoleon. It is skulls, skulls, skulls; let him have his glory. But let it be known that for every step he ascended upon the ladder of fame, some other man and perhaps a hundred men went down to desolation and to death. Give him a monument, but let it be built of human skulls. Again, no hero can be selfish, and yet Rousseau and Burns are heroes. In this erratic world of ours, selfishness assumes many and many a hideous form. In one man it seeks for aggrandizement in wealth. It plunders the houses of helpless widows and orphans. It sometimes seeks the overthrow and subversion of peaceful, inoffensive government. But in no case does selfishness seem to me so hideous as in the case of the cold blooded and heartless seducer. He who with cool indifference seizes upon a pure virgin heart, wrings out its life drop of happiness, drinks it with a relish, and casts away the empty husk to lie in the dust forever.

Still more, no hero can be deceitful nor a dissembler. And yet Mohammed. is ranked among the first of these. A man who all his life long dissembled the bare fact that he could read and write, and made the world believe that his great literary production, the Koran, was revealed to him by the omnific hand of God in the deep solitude of the cave of Harra. But God revealed the truth of his sophistry and deception, by causing him while in a state of semi-delirium to call for a pen and ink, and to write in bold and graphic hand, several passages of the most profound teachings and proverbs of that book.

But my friends we are not here to discuss the traits of character which belong to men of either of these distinctive classes. We are here to try to do honor to a man who springing from the humblest walks of life, signalized every step of his progress from his earliest youth to a ripe old age, in the preparation and devotion of his mind and heart for the accomplishment of the grandest and noblest deeds of daring, sacrifice, and endurance in the cause of justice and human rights.

The great Shakespeare has said: "The evil that men do, lives after them, the good is oft interred with their bones." We would transverse this sentiment by our expressions and admiration for this noble son of our race, in whose honor we are now assembled.

Mr. Garnet was born at New Market, Kent county, Md., Dec. 23, 1815. His parents, with their family of three children, by some means escaped and took refuge in New York. Henry was sent to school, and soon after entered New Canaan Academy, in the State of New Hampshire, from whence he was driven by mob-violence and found better treatment at Oneida College, in the county of that name, in the State of New York. By some means, while he was yet but a youth, the hiding place of his parents was sought for and found out by their old master, who came on in search of them, and broke up the peace and quiet of the family, his mother and sister narrowly escaping with their lives, while his father was forced to flee to Canada. The terrible shock of this innovation upon the sanctity of family rights by the the slave power, did much to arouse into action that detestation of this monster which followed Mr. Garnet through all his life. Like Hannibal, he swore eternal hostility to slavery and all its abettors and apologists. Mr. Garnet finished his studies at Oneida, and graduated with marked distinction, leaving a remembrance of him (especially with pumpkin-head cilia) not soon to be forgotten.

He began his manhood life under the reign of that hideous monster slavery, whose blighting influence bid fair to stop the very foundations of this great nation. Himself the son of a native African prince, Mr. Garnet imbibed an early inward horror of the terrible crime prepetrated upon the inhabitants of his fatherland by the wicked and iniquitous American slave trade. As soon therefore as he had reached the period of manhood, he set out in good earnest to do battle against this terrible wrong. And through all that fierce and terrible struggle, which Hon. W. H. Seward very aptly designated, "The irrepressible conflict," Henry Highland Garnet never wavered or swerved from the path of duty in behalf of those who were bound, as being bound with them, until every yoke was broken, and every fetter that bound a slave was riven asunder.

There is an old story that in the far off lands of the rising sun there grows a tree which is called the Upas tree. It is said to be found upon the scorching plains of a sandy desert. In such a place its grateful shade would of necessity make it most attractive and enticing to weary travelers through those regions. But he who rests beneath its enticing shade rarely if ever again mingles in the society of men in this present world. It is declared that whosoever there may rest will inhale a poisonous air or vapor from this upas tree which is certain to result in death.

Happily for our great land, through all her borders no such tree is found. But it may be said that from the dark and barbarous regions of those distant shores American slavery, a tree more terribly destructive of the rights, privileges and happiness of mankind, was transplanted to these peaceful shores. It took firm root, and grew and intertwined itself with all our religious institutions, until no ray or beam of hope remained except in the total annihilation of the entire system. Henry Highland Garnet stood in the front rank of those who proclaimed in public and in private, from the pulpit and the rostrum, "And now the ax is laid at the root of this tree, let it be cut down and cast into the fire."

In 1843 and 44 he stepped prominently to the front as an orator of extraordinary eloquence and power. Time will not permit us to follow him through many of the brilliant and daring deeds of self-sacrifice, and endurance, which marked the period of his life struggles against this insidious foe.

In 1852, Mr. Garnet was sent as a missionary to Sterling Grange Hill, Jamaica, West Indies. He soon after accepted an unanimous call to the pastorate of Shiloh Presbyterian Church New York.

Several times he crossed the Atlantic, and with George Thompson, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Frederick Douglass, Wendell Phillips, Samuel R. Ward, Dr. J. W. C. Pennington, and men of that stamp, he made the ears of the peasantry, and the nobility of Great Britain to tingle with the story of Afric's wrongs upon this continent. And to his earnest pleadings during the late war in no small degree may be attributed the great moral sentiment and tone of thought, which welling up from the hearts English masses, prevented a policy by that government, which would have embarrassed our Federal administration beyond the power of description at this time. Mr. Garnet's ministerial life and character stood out beyond the average men of his race in this respect as prominently as did all the other elements of his great mind and heart.

He suffered no cunningly devised scheme of weak, or ignorant, or wicked men, to deter him from the path of duty.

No weak sophistry of reasoning could ever be adduced that was sufficient to cause him even for a moment, as a question of policy or expediency, to turn his back upon the right.

At one time, when fears existed in the minds of some of the ruling elders and trustees of Shiloh church concerning Mr. Garnet's terrible arraignment of Millard Fillmore, and his complicity with the infamous fugitive slave bill of 1850, he said: "I cannot desist. I must and will speak. Upon my own shoulders and head must rest the responsibility of what I shall say or do. But if any officer, so-called, or representative of the iniquitous fugitive slave law shall cross the threshold of my door unbidden, I shall send him reeling down to Hades if I have strength in this right arm to pull a trigger."

I shall never forget a sermon preached by him about the same time and bearing upon the same subject. His text was Hebrews 11 c. 24-25 verses:

"By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than all the treasures of Egypt; for he had respect unto the recompense of the reward."

The whole treatment of this subject was characteristic of the man. After a most graphic and vivid picture of the character of Moses' parents, and family; and of Moses himself, in all the most cleverly marked and distinctive traits of the great leader and law giver, Mr. Garnot made the application of his subject with telling effect.

He applied his subject to our condition as an enslaved race, and proclaimed the duty of the nominally free colored men and women of the North, especially the young men and young woman of our race, to emulate the character of Moses in his self abnegation for the good of his people.

He urged us to emulate the character and perseverance, of Moses' mother and sister, and family; instead of yielding to the pressure and dictation of pro slavery influence, which even at the North was at that time making deadly thrusts at the growing spirit of liberty and independent self reliance which filled the bosoms of many noble men and women of our race.

I remember meeting him in National Convention at Troy, New-York, in 1858.

Wm. Rich, W. J. Watkins, Stephen Myers, Wm. C. Nell, Frederick Douglass, Wm. Wells Brown, George T. Downing, J. J. Gould Bias, Junius C. Mowell, and others of equal power as public speakers, took sides pro and con with Dr. Garnet, and Prof. Charles L. Reason, upon the expediency or inexpediency of the then very unpopular advocacy by Mr. Garnet of his African civilization movement.

He advocated this measure as the great Archimidean screw that should lift the negro to an independent nationality.

The forensic power and earnestness, ingenious and invincible argument, and the subtle and irresistible attacks upon the vulnerable and less guarded defenses of his opponents, made Mr. Garnet, even in the estimation of his most violent opposers, complete master of the situation.

In 1859, when the sacred revelations of our martyr hero's carpet bag—I refer to the famous old Puritan martyr, John Brown of Ossawatomie, later of Harper's Ferry—I repeat when the revelations of that old hero's carpet bag was causing men to flee to distant lands, or to deny their identity with the cause for which John Brown gave up his precious life, Henry Highland Garnett, instead of leaving the country or hastening to denounce the old hero as a mad man, proclaimed a lecture at Shiloh church, entitled: "Nat Turner's Insurrection. Nat Turner a true hero."

In 1864 I met him again in National Convention at Syracuse, New York, and there for the first time in all the history of these great meetings, were we permitted to have direct and immediate representation from our enslaved people of the wide spread South. In that convention many of the States then in open and violent rebellion were represented by able and experienced men. Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas were all there by personal representatives. It was a grand and happy scene long hoped and prayed for by many.

Some of these States were represented by men fresh from the field of mortal conflict. North Carolina was thus represented by the chivalrous Hunter. South Carolina was represented by the irrepressible Captain Robert Smalls, of Charleston harbor naval fame.

Speaking before a Louisiana audience, I should by no means ignore the fact that Louisiana was neither last nor least among those who were thus represented. She was present in the person of your lamented Captain James H. Ingraham, then fresh from the gory but glorious battle field of Port Hudson, which ranks among the noblest tests of valor conceded to the colored men of our late unhappy struggle.

Mr. Garnet, ripe with years and experience in the great cause which was now rapidly culminating into absolute victory for right, seemed only to delight himself in thanking God, and listening to the wondrous story of the advancing columns of our army, which he called the vanguard of freedom; and the promised hope of deliverance, which these our brethren from the South testified to us, thrilled the bosoms of nearly all of their constituents whom they had left behind them.

Having been called to the pastorate of the 15th Street Presbyterian Church, Washington, D. C., his eloquence as a pulpit orator and logical reasoner, soon attracted the attention of many of the best minds of the two branches of our National Legislature. Senators and Representatives soon became frequent visitors of this church, and continued so during Mr. Garnet's ministry there. This led to an invitation to Mr. Garnet to preach a sermon on the overthrow of slavery in the hall of the House of Representatives at the National Capitol The invitation was signed by many Senators and Representatives, as well as by the honored Chaplain of the House, Rev. William H. Channing. The sermon was delivered on Sunday morning, February 12, 1865. It was a master piece of pulpit oratory, and it was the first time the voice of a colored man in a public address had ever rang through those halls. Shortly after this he was recalled to Shiloh church, New York, where he continued to labor with the most remarkable success as a minister, till chosen as the representative of this government, our Minister resident and Consul General near the government of Liberia. I need not say that a better or more worthy representative of the colored race on this continent could scarcely have been chosen. Reference to his reception upon the shores of Africa, etc. His daughter was there before him. Dr. Blyden's address, etc.

Standing above his sacred and new made grave to day, as did Lord Thomas Gray above the sleeping dead of a country church yard, we may not say of Mr. Garnet:

"Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife
His sober wishes never learned to stray,
Along the cool sequestered vale of life,
He held the noiseless tenor of his way."

On the contrary, his was truly a life of never ceasing toil and struggle, and conquest, against outrage, oppression, injustice and wrong. His was a higher and nobler aim, expressed by that other great poet, Longfellow, in his "Psalm of Life:"

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

On the world's broad field of battle,
In the bivouac of life,
Be not like dumb driven cattle.
Be a hero in the strife.

Trust no future, howe'er pleasant,
Let the dead past bury its dead,
Act, act in the living present,
Heart within and God o'er head.

This was Mr. Garnet's motto followed through all the period of life. Living with such a life and purpose ever more before him, as the acme of all his exertions, it is not strange that we can close in with Gray at last. And closing this memorial in his own language, and applying those words to our departed friend, we can say:

Large was his bounty, and his soul sincere,
Heaven did a recompense as largely send,
He gave to misery all he had, a tear,
He gained from heaven, 'twas all he wished, a friend.

The Bible.

Who com[illegible] the following description of the Bible we may never know. It was found in Westminster Abbey, nameless and dateless, but nevertheless it is invaluable for its wise and wholesale counsel to the race of Adam.

A nation would be truly happy it it were governed by no other laws than those of this blessed book.

It contains everything needful to be known or done.

It gives instruction to a Senate, authority and directions to a magistrate.

It cautions a witness, requires an impartial verdict of a jury; and furnishes the judge with his sentence.

It sets the husband as the Lord of his household, and wife as mistress of the table—tells him how to rule and how to manage.

It entails honor to parents, and enjoins obedience to children.

It prescribes and limits the sway of the sovereign, the rule of the ruler, and the authority of the master; commands the subjects to honor and the servant to obey, and the blessings and the protection of the Almighty to all that walk by this rule.

It gives directions for weddings and burials.

It promises food and raiment, and limits the use of both.

It points out a faithful and eternal guardian to the departing husband and father; tells him with whom to leave his fatherless children, and whom his widow is to trust—and promises a father to the former, and a husband to the latter. It teaches a man to set his house in order, and how to make his will; it appoints a dowry for his wife, and entails the rights of the first born, and shows how the young branches shall be left.

It defends the right of all, and reveals vengeance to every defaulter, overreacher, and trespasser.

It is the first book, the best book.

It contains the choicest matter—gives the best instruction—affords the greatest degree of pleasure and satisfaction that we have ever enjoyed.

It contains the best laws and most profound mysteries that were ever penned; and it brings the very best comforts to the inquiring and disconsolate.

It exhibits life and immortality from time everlasting and shows the way to glory.

It is a brief recital of all that is to come.

It settles all matters in debate; resolves all doubts; and eases the mind and conscience of all their scruples.

It reveals the only living and true God, and shows the way to Him, and sets aside all other gods, and describes the vanity of them and all that trust in such; in short it is a book of laws to show right and wrong; of wisdom that condemns a folly and makes the foolish wise, a book of truth that detects all lies and confronts all errors; and it is a book of life that shows the way from everlasting death.

It contains the most ancient antiquities and strange events; wonderful occurrences, heroic deeds, unparalleled wars.

It describes the celestial, terrestrial and infernal worlds, and the origin of the angelic myriads, the human tribes and the devilish legions.

It will instruct the accomplished mechanic and most profound critic. It teaches the best rhetorician, and exercises every power to the most skillful arithmetician, puzzles the wisest anatomist and exercises the wisest critic.

It is the best covenant that ever was agreed on; the best deed that ever was sealed; the best that will ever be signed.

Gen. Lew Wallace, United States Minister, spent several hours with the Sultan of Turkey. The Sultan sought much information concerning America, especially the judicial system in the United States and the mode of collecting taxes. Gen. Wallace states the Sultan displayed a shrewd, penetrating intellect and expressed the most friendly sentiments for America. Wallace denies having supported an American company's project for obtaining a concession for a railway in the province of Bagdad.

THE SOUTHWESTERN.

L. P. CUSHMAN, Editor.
A. E. P. ALBERT, B. D., Assistant.

THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1882.

A Word with Our Agents.

DEAR BRETHREN: We want to heartily thank all who during the past three months have done noble work in securing subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN. To those we say:

1. THANK YOU. We are encouraged in our efforts to supply your people with helps for the home and business life, and the church.

2. Begin now to collect all that is due on subscriptions. We need the money, and the longer you postpone collecting from your subscribers the more apt you are to have to pay the bill yourself. If you despair collecting from any subscriber have his paper stopped. We do not want you to get in debt.

3. Gather up the fragments. There are yet some among your people who will take the paper if you ask them. Do so, and add to your lists.

4. Remember that your accounts with us are as obligatory as any other. You should provide for their payment in such reasonable time as would be required by your grocer or tailor. The best plan is to pay a part of it every quarter at least.

5. Push the paper all along the line. Brethren who have done nothing are reminded of their conference pledges. No matter how poor the circuit, every preacher can and ought to get some subscribers. Specimen copies will be sent to assist in the canvass.

Only $1 50.

From the first of April to the close of 1882, three-fourths of the year, we will send the SOUTHWESTERN to new subscribers for ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS. Pastors will please push the canvass, and in sending lists to this office be careful to specify the time for which the paper is desired. Where no time is mentioned the paper will be sent one year from date of subscription.

The handsomely printed minutes of the Mississippi Conference have been issued. Thanks to Secretary L. Bradford for a copy.

Judge E. B. Taylor, representative from Garfield's old district made his second speech in the House in opposition to the Anti-Chinese bill.

Prayer is the lever that moves the hand that moves the world. A praying church is a powerful one. Keep up your prayer-meetings.

Five Louisiana Congressmen, including Hon. C. B. Darrall, who was elected as a Republican, voted for the anti-Chinese bill. The vote of E. John Ellis was not recorded.

The Price Current has transposed its title, and it now reads Commercial Bulletin, Price Current and Shipping List. The paper is much improved in looks, as well as by its contents.

We learn from the Methodist Advocate that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Atlanta has commenced work among the colored people of that city, and proposes to organize branches in the leading churches of all denominations.

We believe that the United States ought to assume the entire responsibility of keeping the Mississippi levees in repair, in the most perfect order, and that the more promptly the work is done the better for all parts of the country.

A brother in a love-feast not long since, asked the church to pray, that as a Christian he may ever stand upon and defend his own ground, and never trust himself upon the devil's ground. This is the approved Christian tactic. Stand upon the King's highway and yield your sword with pleasure.

Christian Rest.

If we believe in anything we believe in a Christian at work, a Christian awake not asleep. Work is said to be the philosopher's stone that turns all metals and even stones into gold, and allows no religions want to break into the soul. Idleness will never be found among the beatitudes of heaven; it may be among the torments of hell. We never sing

> My willing soul would stay
> In such a frame as this,
> And sit and sing herself away
> In everlasting bliss.

But while we believe in a Christian at work we also believe in a Christian at rest. He may occasionally sing

> "Awake my soul, stretch every nerve,"

but we do not care to see him always stretching. If every nerve is kept on endless tension rest and progress will both be soon wanting. Doubtless there are times when he should sing

> "Sure I must fight if I would reign."

But he is not to be always fighting. And yet in all our churches there are good men and women who think otherwise, they quote: "This is not your rest," "Here we have no continuing city." But this is no news. Then they have much to say about "the rest that remaineth." Nor is this to be classed among the news items. We are thankful when we read of the rest that remaineth "to the people of God." But the Christian rest is not altogether a tomorrow affair. "We," says the epistle to the Hebrews, "which have believed do enter into rest." He is not sustained in this life merely by future hopes and distant prospects, he is not living on borrowed capital. True he has a rich future to borrow from, but he who is "in Christ," who "walks in the light as he is in the light" cannot have much of poverty to borrow to. His present peace is like a river, his now joy is unspeakable and full of glory, he is no traveler in the wilderness famishing for the want of bread, his present is not all blank, cheerless and empty. In the wilderness the table is spread and the Savior assures us that those "who hunger and thirst after righteousness shall be filled." There is even in this world so full of sin and hate,

> "And land of corn and wine and oil,
> Favored with God's peculiar smile,
> With every blessing blest;
> There dwells the Lord our Righteousness,
> And keeps his own in perfect peace
> And everlasting rest."

So Charles Wesley wrote over one hundred years ago, and so some of the people called Methodist have been singing ever since.

The basis of this form of religious experience is faith. In this respect it stands undoubtedly on the same footing with any and all other religious experience. Nor is this faith which brings this rest different from what is experienced in the ordinary course of the Christian's life, except in the single circumstance of degree. We use the term "Assurance of faith," which conveys to our mind the idea of faith without doubting. "I think," says Uphem, "we are at liberty to say that assurance of faith is synonymous with undoubting or perfect faith." We have many instances of this form of religious experience of men who in life and death had the greatest imaginable confidences and assurance, the most perfect rest of soul. Paul always speaks in strong and positive terms as to his relation to Christ Jesus, his Lord and Master and Redeemer. He refers to "two immutable things," God's promises and oaths, as the source of "strong consolation" to each believer. This faith of assurance and persuasion of God's favor affords a serene peace and steadfast tranquility of mind, a still, quiet and sweet rest to the soul.

A meeting of our city clergy, with Bishop Keener presiding, was held last Monday noon, in the parlor of Grunewald Hall, to form a league to educate and persuade public opinion to the better observance of the Sabbath in this city. The meeting was well attended, every Protestant denomination, as well as the Jewish and Romish clergy being represented. The duty to observe the sanctity of the Sabbath, the difficulties to be encountered, and the best methods to adopt to insure success were all ably and eloquently discussed from every conceivable standpoint. A committee to adopt a proper platform and to crystallize the intentions of this meeting was appointed and instructed to be prepared to report to the whole meeting next Monday noon at the same place. Among the most prominent ministers taking part in this conference were Bishop Gallagher, of the Episcopal Church, Rev. Drs. Palmer, H. Miller Thompson, Walker, Witherspoon, Guthrie, and representatives of His Grace, Archbishop Perche. Our ministers should lose no time in identifying themselves with a movement having such a holy and very desirable purpose.

A Christian Army has been organized in Chicago under Bishop Fallows. Its members will wear a uniform, and march through the streets to the music of a drum corps.

Tobacco.

Rev. Geo. Trask, of New England, was perhaps next to Adam Clark one of the most perfect haters of tobacco that ever lived. Adam Clark once said that if he was to offer a sacrifice to the devil he would take a pig and stuff it with tobacco. A some what distinguished man, but an inveterate smoker, sent to Bro. Trask a challenge to show a single passage of Scripture that condemned use of tobacco. To this Bro. Trask replied "that the Bible was a book of principles which make their appeals to our common sense, and that God wants us as honest men to honestly apply them to ourselves. The Bible requires us to love our neighbor as ourselves, but you annoy and disgust him by your fetid smoke. The Bible requires us to regard our bodies as the temple of the Holy Ghost, but you defile yours, you make it a temple of nauseous noxious smoke, and if any man defile this temple of God, him shall God destroy."

To us one of the most inconsistent things for a minister of the gospel to do is to preach purity when he has from day to day to balance himself cautiously lest there be an overflow of the yellow slobber. The time was when it was thought consistent for a minister to use the weed, and perhaps the time of such ignorance God winked at, but now he commands all tobacco chewers, smokers, snuffers and spitters, to repent. To all of our brethren in the ministry who are addicted to either of these filthy habits we give the following advice: Go out into the back yard or woods, the latter would be much the better place; take your tobacco and pipe with you. Take, also, a spade or hoe, and dig a good-sized hole, and then throw your pipe and tobacco into it and bury them forever out of your sight. The Bible bids us "whether we eat or drink, or whatever we do, to do all for the glory of God." No man in his senses pretends that he glorifies God by chewing his quid or smoking his pipe. A good deacon while at his morning devotions was reading the above passages; he stammered, he stopped, and then exclaimed: "Wife, wife, how in the world do I glorify God by using tobacco?" Then and there the deacon gave up the idol forever. Brothers, sisters, go ye and do likewise.

A Brother in Black Vindicated.

In the United States District Court, March, 14, at San Antonio, the case of Bishop Richard H. Cain and wife vs. the Galveston, Harrisburg and San Antonio Railroad, for $25,000 damages, a judgment was given plaintiffs for $4 80, the difference between the cost of traveling in the regular way and in a Pullman car. This suit was brought under the civil rights bill, Cain being bishop of the A. M. E. Church. As the brother in black who so bitterly complained to the Southwestern about having to eat at a side-table at the Hutchins House, Houston, perhaps paid full fare, it is suggested he bring suit. With the above precedent, he can recover the difference in first-class and side-table fare.—Texas Christian Advocate.

In this flippant manner a leading organ of the Church South disposes, so far as its editorial comment goes, of a decision in the matter of civil rights, which is disgraceful from either a national or a Christian standpoint. It appears from the San Antonio Express report that Judge Turner ruled that the plaintiffs, Bishop Cain and wife, could bring action for actual and specific damages sustained in the extra expense they were subjected to, and so instructed the jury. The attorney for the Bishop has given notice that he will take the case to the Supreme Court of the United States. By all means let this be done to test the most liberal construction of our laws in the protection of citizens from needless indignities.

The Globe Democrat of St. Louis is an enterprising newspaper. It chartered a steamer for the use of its special correspondent in taking notes in the overflowed regions of the Mississippi valley, and published columns of news about the submerged Southerners. It has ventured to make a map to illustrate the overflow, and we regret to say that it equals one of those Herald war maps that cast so much gloom over the country, and misrepresented many brilliant exploits of the late war. If the Globe Democrat map is correct New Orleans, alas, is a submerged city; the resurrected capitol has been swept by the roaring flood; the hills of the Florida parishes; the home of the ancient Natchez; war-famed Vicksburg, and Memphis, have all succumbed. We fear the care worn artist, after laying off the distant counties, must have hastened his work by dipping a convenient paste brush into his ink bottle, and drawing it across his work from Cairo to Barataria. In this way he reduced hills and flats to a common level, and made those distinctions have no difference to the unsuspecting reader. This is too much water. We might as well die of small pox, or pine away with yellow fever, as to be drowned out in this manner by our zealous friends. The climax is reached by the editor who commends the "excellent map" and its "clearly defined shaded lines."

The question, "Are you a member of the Church?" or, "Are you a Christian?" or, "Do you love Jesus?" is frequently asked. But "Does Jesus love you now?" is a question that we seldom hear. To some these questions seem to aim at but one and the same point. But they involve very different processes of mind. Our hope of heaven must not rest merely on what we have done, nor on what we are, but on what Jesus is and does for us. No man, unless he is self-deceived, can find in himself any good ground for hope. Looking at ourselves, we are ready to cry out "All is lost!" not in danger of being lost, but actually lost. It is only as we look to Jesus that we can see the least reason for hope. He came into the world to save sinners—not Christians, but sinners. If you are a sinner, you can not trust yourself, but you can trust Jesus. He is the Savior of sinners, and you can trust him. The one question we press is: "Does Jesus love you now?"

Sensible.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company has taken down the sign at its depot in this city, "Colored People's Sitting Room." It will trust to the good sense of the people in the regulation of their private intercourse. This is sensible, and the only proper position, we maintain, for a common carrier to pursue. The traveling public of the South, as a general rule, cannot be excelled in the exchange of social courtesies and the respect of individual rights.

The Christian Neighbor begins an article entitled "Dreaming" in this way: "The New York Methodist has had a vision of enormous numbers of Southern Methodists who 'show tendencies toward organic reunion' with the M. E. Church. Hear it: "The serious matter now is, that 850,000 Southern Methodists show tendencies toward organic reunion with us," etc.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—G. R. Nowman of St. Mary, has received an appointment in the U. S. Mint.

—Rev. G. R. Bristor has been transferred from Deleware to Newark Conference.

—Owing to the illness of Bishop Bowman Bishop Andrews presided at the Philadelphia Conference.

—Ex-Governor E. D. Morgan, of New York, has given $80,000 to Williams College to build a new dormitory.

—Mrs. James K. Polk, now 77, and nearly 33 years a widow, is very sprightly, and enjoys company. Her old two-story brick homestead is near the State-house at Nashville, and the Legislature never assembles without sending a message of congratulation to her. The Polk estate is supposed to be worth about $75,000.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, one of the greatest of American poets died in Cambridge, Mass, during the afternoon of March 24th. He had been ailing for some time past, and sank rapidly. His bedside was surrounded by his family. Wherever the English language is spoken the announcment of his death will be received with feelings of profound sorrow.

—Rev. Lyman Coleman, D. D., Professor of Latin in Lafayette College for twenty years, died of paralysis at Easton, Pa., March 16, at the age of 85 He graduated at Yale in 1817, and was there the tutor of William M. Evarts and the late President William Adams, of Union Theological Seminary, New York. He was pastor of the Congregational Church at Belchertown, Mass., from 1828 to 1835.

—Dr. Fuller of the Methodist Advocate, Atlanta, discusses the proposition of Dr. Nathan Scarritt as though it was another Trojan horse. He does not know Dr. Scarritt nor Dr. George. We know both of them, and there is no more danger of their compromising Methodism than there is of their becoming Mormon bishops, and establishing harems. They are innocent, so are their plans. As we said before, the only plan we have is to be just and fear not.—California.

—Miss Alma Ivy, daughter of Rev. J. A. Ivy, agent in charge of the Bible House, New Orleans, died March 22, 1882, aged 18 years at the Wesleyan Female Institute, Staunton, Va. Her body was accompanied to this city by Prof. H. E. Harris and Mrs. Ivy. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Drs. C. W. Carter and J. B. Walker, followed by some remarks from Prof. Harris, representing the sentiments of the Institute, of deep regret at the loss of one highly esteemed for her intellectual, social and religious qualities. We extend to Bro Ivy, our heartfelt sympathy.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

TEXAS.

Tobe Ward, Wallisville: "Elder Pullam held his first quarter. Congregation was small. It has been raining a great deal."

Rev. A. C. Culbreath, of Huntsville, reports prosperity in the St. James Methodist Episcopal Church. Since conference he has received 24 on probation, six have been converted and six reclaimed. The Sunday-school is in a good degree of prosperity. $17 has been received and expended for books for the school.

I. B. Scott, Houston: "Our work at Trinity charge has been hindered to some extent by the long rainy spell; but since the change of weather our people are rallying nicely. Our collection last Sunday was $100 making in all for the week $290. This money is to pay for plastering our new church. Pray for us that the work may prosper and God's name be glorified."

J. R. Carnes, San Antonio: "On Feb 26th, we took up a collection to buy a lot for a parsonage, the lot is already improved, and the building suits very well. The trustees are alive to their duties, and the church appears to be growing; 18 have been received into the church since I came. Sunday school is growing under superintendents S. Evans, and R. H. Harbert; nearly every member appears to observe strictly the rule on temperance".

A. J. Turner, Laredo: "We have 19 members, five colored, and the rest Mexicans. The church is really a Mexican church, and they are coming in at every meeting. We have no church house and rent a building at heavy cost. The people do not give freely, and I shall have to endure many things this year. I need some Spanish books for my people. There are five Protestant churches here and they are all supported by missionary money."

LOUISIANA.

T. J. Johnson, Mansfield: "We have organized our Sabbath school as a missionary society, and expect to have a good time with the little folks".

J. W. Hilton, St. James church, Shreveport: "My field of labor looks a little gloomy, but I thank the Lord that I can see a little light ahead."

Rev. W. H. Traeger, pastor of our Second German Church, reports 16 conversions and five accessions as the result of three weeks protracted meetings. The church and Sunday school are revived and flourishing.

Rev. T. Jackson of Natchitoches, writes that his people received him with open arms and are doing all they can for his comfort. He has just closed a protracted meeting of two weeks, during which 34 were received on probation and five converted. The Sunday school is in a good degree of prosperity. It has raised $55, towards paying for an organ, and a number of the young people are taking lessons in music.

The First German Church, corner of Franklin and St. Andrew streets, which has been undergoing repairs for some time, will re open next Sunday, with a grand union meeting and appropriate services. The Presiding Elder will preach at at 11 a. m., and Bro. Traeger of the Second Church will assist in the services of the day. Rev. D. Matthaei, the pastor, by hard and faithful labor has accomplished a grand good work here, and receives as he deserves the love and admiration of all his people.

MISSISSIPPI.

W. H. Mims, Augusta: "I arrived at my post Jan 25th, after laying out one night in the woods. I found much work to do, and by God's help the church is now moving on."

N. Cannon: "The first conference of Pass Christian and Bay St. Louis charge, was held at Pearlington, March 11th and 12th. The members brought up their reports in business like manner. Sixty partook of communion, two were received. Stewarts reported for pastor $34,25 elder $16 25, paid during the quarter. The estimating committee reported for pastor $376,40; house rent $48; traveling expenses $33; elder $65; bishops $250; benevolent purposes $75."

TENNESSEE.

J. W. Pickett, Franklin: "I have been around my district, met all the appointments with a few exceptions. Those I missed on account of the high water. I found the work in a growing condition. The district is being revived. Several grand revivals have been held, in which there were many souls converted to the Lord. On account of high water the District Conference was moved from Cumberland, Tennessee, to Springfield. Not many of the brethren were present. Most all sent in their reports. Last Saturday and Sunday, March, 4th and 5th, found me at Franklin, Tennessee, with Bro. Williams. Held his second quarterly meeting. I found him in the midst of a grand revival, 6 converts to date, several seekers."

For the SOUTHWESTERN.

North New Orleans District.

DEAR EDITOR: I embrace this opportunity to report the first round on the North New-Orleans District.

February 20th found me at Union Chapel. Bro. Priestly was at his post. The reports showed a grand beginning for this year. Brother Priestly has suggested a plan for raising means to complete the audience-room which I think will succeed.

The quarterly conference for Wesley Chapel was held February 21st. Though "King Rex" was parading the streets that night, yet there were very few of the brethren absent. A protracted meeting was going on, and quite a number of souls had been saved. I predict a successful year's labor for Brother Davage.

Was with Father Ross, at Pleasant Plains, February 22d, and had a pleasant session of Conference. A protracted meeting was in progress at this point also.

Preached for Bro. Beale, and held his quarterly conference at Thomson Chapel, Feb. 23d. The people of this church are well pleased with their new pastor. This church was engaged in a lawsuit during the latter part of last year, and a decision was rendered against the church a few days after Bro. Beale took charge. This caused some trouble, which has passed over, however, and the people are now rallying around their able leader. The congregation is becoming larger, and the indications are that Bro. Beale will do well at this point.

Was with Bro. Isaac Hayward at Labarpe, February 24th. Had a very pleasant conference. This church is moving off slowly, but I think Bro. Hayward will get under way soon and do well.

Held the quarterly conference at Donalsonville, March 1st. Brother Smith is quite popular with his people. He is carrying on a protracted meeting and gaining souls for the Lord. He is also making a noble effort to build a parsonage this year, and the indications are that he will succeed.

Was with Bro. Gayden, at Whitehall, March 4th and 5th. Preached for him, Sunday 8th, at 11 o'clock, and held conference. Had a splendid time. The people are with Bro. Gayden, and will build a parsonage.

I went from this point same day by stage to College Point in company with Bro. Payne, who has charge of the little church at this place. The people there are much embarrassed for want of a place to worship in. There is a large number of people, and they are favorably inclined toward the Methodist Church. We must have a church building at this place.

I spent the 8th and 9th of March with Bro. Chinn, at Thibodauxville. His people are very glad that he has returned.

Was at Woodlawn and preached Sunday, March 12th, at 3 o'clock. Had a grand time. Bro. Austin Kennedy could not be with me, as the water was rising rapidly near his place and he dared not leave home.

Preached at Assumption same night. The people there are in high spirits over the prospect of soon occupying their church building.

I reached Bayou Goula, March 14th, and found Bro. McCary carrying on a protracted meeting. Preached for him on Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Held quarterly conference Wednesday night. Bro. McCary found only about a dozen members here, but is gathering in others. We own a lot and a very insignificant building here, well located. They need a comfortable church building; with this I think we could have a good work in Bayou Goula.

Preached for Bro. Kennedy at Algiers, Sunday, March 19th, at 11 o'clock, and held his quarterly conference. He is starting off well with his small membership.

There are three points which I have not been able to visit. Upon the whole, the District is in a prosperous condition, and the indications are that a good work will be done this year. MARCUS DALE.

Missionary Programme for April.

AN EASTER SERVICE FOR MISSIONS.

The peculiar inspiration which belongs to the commemoration of our Lord's resurrection from the grave should be gladly cherished to strengthen all hearts and hands in mission work. We suggest for an order of exercises—

1. The singing of hymn 2,313.

2. The accounts of our Lord's resurrection found in the first three Gospels may be read or compared. (Matt. xxviii, Mark xvi, Luke, xxiv, 1-10.) Find a golden text for the hour in Mark xvi, 20.

3. Giving thanks to God for the glorious provision made "for our justification" in the resurrection of "his son Jesus;" and prayers for a just appreciation of the event as an inspiration to confident proclamation of the Gospel in all the world.

4. Hymn, 245.

5. Consider the power of the Gospel to revive decaying or effete nationalities. The indirect civilizing effects of missions in various lands are "infallible proofs" of this power. Illustration may be drawn from numerous sources. The Asiatic nations, where history began before the Christian era, are in point. (See Isa. lxi, 4.) The Presbyterian Missions are doing a great work in Syria, notwithstanding the desperate resistance of Mohammedanism, and of the corrupt Oriental forms of Christianity. Protestant education is leading the way, and schools are called for on every side. The Greek Church, the Greek papists, and the Maronites are following suit with schools. Beirout has grown in fifty years from a city of 8,000 people to 80,000. Seven out of the ten journals now published there are directed by Protestants. There are four colleges and five female seminaries.

Especially appropriate to the Easter services is a remembrance of the relation of Gospel civilization to the welfare of woman. It is the Protestant missionaries who brought education to women in Syria and elsewhere in the East. The London Quarterly for January, 1879, says: "We doubt whether the Americans are doing anything in Turkey so sure, sooner or later, to change the whole condition of society as what they are doing in the education of women. Nearly one-half of the 9,000 pupils in Beirout are girls. This is the resurrection power of a pure Christianity. So in Constantinople thousands of girls are now taught, where formerly their education could not have been even mentioned without giving offense. The intimate relation of the American missionaries to any possible regeneration of the Turkish Empire in general, is manifest, and has been acknowledged by many English statesmen. Decrees establishing religious toleration were secured by the influence of missionaries after the Crimean war, and after the war of 1877. There are 12,000 pupils in the Protestant schools and colleges. In 1838 there were no newspapers in Turkey. Now Constantinople has 30 dailies. Hon. E. F. Noyes, United States Minister to Paris, who visited the East, officially reports: "By actual observation I know that wherever a conspicuously intelligent and enterprising native young man or woman is found in the East, it is always found that he or she was educated at an American school or college in Constantinople, Alexandria, Cairo, Assioot, or Beirout."

If we look to India, where the heathen society, so far as its own resources are concerned, is thoroughly disorganized, we see a wonderful effect of Christianizing influences within the last twenty-five years. "The change in India, the advancement in society there," says Dr. Waugh, of our mission, "in the last twenty years, within my observation, is marvelous." We can hardly allude to the abolition of horrid rites and customs—the suttee fires, infanticide, Juggernathian barbarities, human sacrifices in the temples. It is mission work and mission influence which has abolished them. "With all the good that England has done for India," said Lord Lawrence, "missionaries have done more good than all other means combined." "Notwithstanding the increase of government schools, missionaries are, on the whole," says Sir. William Temple, "the best teachers." So effective is their Gospel teaching, that now nine-tenths of the Christian workers in India are natives. [See the Missionary Reports, 1880, 1881, for the character of our native preachers. See the Report of the Woman's Society and the January Manual, pages 29, 33, for some hopeful results of work among women there.] "The progress of missionary labor through India," said a speaker at the annual meeting of the Wesleyan Missionary Society, "is the track of a river through a desert, and every thing liveth whithersoever the river cometh."

The reviving and invigorating force of Christianity is just entering China, but it was missionary influence which secured the liberal treaties of 1858, opening up the the country. Now the North China Herald says of China: "If one were to compare the state of things in 1860 with that in 1880 the contrast would be as marked as that shown by England in a period covering the last seventy-five years." Witness the eagerness for a Christian education in Mr. Ahok's contribution of a building for our college at Foochow and the group of forty-five pupils who at once present themselves and pay the stipulated rates. The familiar, but increasingly wonderful uprising of Japan is illustrated afresh for us in Dr. Maclay's admirable article in the January Manual.

6. Prayer for the impartation of that "promise of the Holy Ghost," which is assured to us in our Lord's resurrection, to all missionaries, in eastern Bible lands, where the early faith has been lost, and in all lands which "sit in darkness and the shadow of death."

7. Hymn 234.

8. The noble fruit of sacrifice is an Easter lesson of most precious worth. The triumphs of the Gospel in heathen lands are won only through consecration unto all suffering in its messengers The heroic Emma Michener, who has just fallen from our ranks in Africa, said: "I go to Africa because I think it most degraded, and that it needs me most." Again she said: "If He can bring forth more from my blood than from my labors, it is his to use." This is the martyr spirit of the ages. Similar was the utterance of Myron H. Pinkerton, who last year laid down his life in the service of the American Board in Zulu-land; and of Adam McCall, of the Livingstone Inland Mission, who perished in November. "I am beside myself," he said, to do and dare for the cause of our Lord and Master in the great Congo valley."

Martyrdom is but the extreme form of the missionary's sacrifice. His is a work which has involved the painful sundering of family and social ties; much solitary labor amid the gloom of heathenism, with no consolation but prayer and God's Word; a life-long struggle with obstacles which are perhaps little appreciated by the Church at home. In varied form, the life of a true missionary repeats the experience of Paul in 2 Cor. vi. But it is the glorious hope of the resurrection life which shines ever above this continual dying unto self. "Always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body." 9. Hymn 232.

10. A word or two only with reference to the lesson of courageous hopefulness which Easter brings with it (1 Peter i, iii,). The Christian worker who looks never backward, but always forward, shall have nothing but hope. The closing words of Pinkerton's last letter were: "All is well—we go right on." See Dr. Dorchester's book Hear this voice from China: "The missionary who would express what to him seems likely to be true here in China in 1900, would be charged with enthusiasm;" and this from India: "Ten years hence there will not be an honest Hindoo."

11. Prayer: "Lord increase our faith" and our "lively hope" by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. 12. Hymn 237.

The subject of the Programme for May will be "Mormonism."

The Old Amount of Cream Ta tar

Will not raise the old amount of flour. Why is it? How often this question is asked the grocer! The most complete answer to this inquiry that we have seen, comes from the Health Inspector of the New York Board of Health. After samples of cream tartar purchased in various parts of the city had been subjected to analysis, he found in all cases that article to be adulterated with terra alba to such an extent in some instances that the cream tartar was really terra alba with a little cream tartar added. The Inspector further stated that when baking powders are put up in packages ready for use, the honest and skillful manufacturer experiences no difficulty, in the first place, of securing pure materials, and secondly, in mixing them in the proper proportions. Hence, the Inspector recommends the use of a good, reliable brand of baking powder in preference to the cream of tartar, as now found in the stores.

The manufacturers of the well-known brand called the "Royal Baking Powder" import their own cream tartar direct from the Wine Districts of France, expressly for this purpose. This company is said to be the largest users of cream tartar in the world, and in these days of adulteration and fraud it is most gratifying to know of one article of food which we can get pure, namely, the Royal Bakiing Pnwder.—Portland Daily Press.

The Senate Committee on the Improvement of the Mississippi and Tributaries has agreed upon a bill appropriating $5,000,000 for the Mississippi and $1,000,000 for the Missouri River, to be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, in accordance with the plans of the Mississippi River Improvement Commission. Part of the appropriation for the Mississippi is to be made immediately available in order to repair as quickly as possible some of the damage by the recent floods.

It is only a few years since Messrs. Hiram Sibley & Co., were known at all in the seed business, but in those few years they have advanced with wonderful rapidity. Their warehouse at Rochester is a mammoth building, nine stories high, while in Chicago they occupy a five story building, and have no room to spare. Just now the firm are specially desirous of obtaining all information calculated to fit them for the most intelligent service of their many customers in the South. To this end they are offering $500 cash in prizes for the best essays on gardening in the Southern States. Full particulars can be obtained by addressing HIRAM SIBLEY & Co., Rochester, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill.

The basis upon which Chili agrees to celebrate peace is as follows: 1. The cession to Chili of all the Peruvian territory south of Camarones Quevrada. 2. The occupation of the Department of Arica and Tacna for 10 years, at the expiration of which term Peru will pay $20,000,000. Should said $50,000,000 not be paid to Chili at the expiration of 10 years the territory of Arica and Tacna will remain ipso facto, ceded to and incorporated with the Republic of Chili. Peru may fix in the terms of peace a longer term than 10 years, but always subject to the same conditions. Should Arica return to the dominion of Peru it shall never be fortified. 3. Chili shall occupy the Lobos Islands while guano remains on them, and the net proceeds of such guano, as also of that from deposits which are known and being worked in Tarapaca, shall be equally divided between Chili and the creditors of Peru.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON I. April 2.
The Mission of the Twelve. Mark vi. 1-13.
(Condensed from Western Christian Advocate.)

VERSES 1–6. 1. "He went out from thence"—From Capernaum, the scene of the last act. There is an historical connection between the matter of the past and of this lesson. "Cometh into his own country"—The district about Nazareth, and Nazareth itself. 2. "When the Sabbath was come"—He did not bring special assemblies to the synagogue, on unusual days, but simply availed himself of the ordinary Sabbath meetings. "Whence hath this man these things?"—They were astonished at the things he uttered. They acknowledged the force and truthfulness of his preaching and the wonderful character of his works. "What wisdom is this which is given unto him?"—They inquire after the source of his information, and the religious system of doctrine by which he interprets the Scripture, which is also accompanied by the power to perform miracles. 3. "Is not this the carpenter?"—In his youth Jesus had wrought at the trade of his reputed father, and was familiar to the people of his village as a carpenter, or worker in wood. Seeing his past had been in no wise distinguished from that of a common laborer, it seemed incredible that he should have knowledge above the average of his class. While he was the son of Mary he was not really the son of Joseph.

4. "A prophet is not without honor, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house"—Not that he is not as deserving of honor at home as abroad, but intimate acquaintance and the jealousies engendered by his pretensions, disqualify them to see his prophetic qualifications. 5. "He could do no mighty work"—Owing to their unbelief. He could not do the work he desired to do because it implied the free consent and faith of the persons. But he laid his hands on a few sick folk and healed them. 6 "He marveled because of their unbelief"—It was so great and so unreasonable. He retired from this uncongenial place to the district lying around.

VERSES 7–13. Sending forth of the twelve. 7. "Two by two"—In couples. The object doubtless was for mutual support, and for the corroborating effect of the testimony of two. "Power over unclean spirits"—To cast them out. 8. "Take nothing for their journey." They were to go unencumbered, relying on the people's appreciation of their mission for sustenance, a lesson of faith for the deciples also. A staff—Walking stick. Scrip—A bag made of leather for carrying food, usually slung over the shoulder. 10. "There abide"—Going from house to house would consume much valuable time in the observance of social customs, divert their attention from their true mission, and corrupt their simplicity and devotion. 11. "Shake the dust"—A symbolic act of renunciation. Though the wickedness of Sodom and Gomorrah was great, and received its due punishment, yet their light was not as great as that of the cities to which Christ now sends his disciples, nor were the sensible demonstrations of the divine will so clear and convincing as were exhibited by Christ and those to whom he gave this power. Hence in the judgment the people of those cities will receive a lighter punishment than the penalty of these inhabitants if they reject the messengers of Christ. 12. Historical statement of the fulfillment of that to which they had been appointed. 13. "Anointed with oil"—The power given to them by Christ was the efficient cause, and the oil the instrumental cause of their healings. Similarly, Christ made clay with spittle, and anointed the eyes of the blind.

The destruction of a quarter of a million, more or less, of old books, in the burning of the stock of N. Tibbals & Sons, in the Park Row fire, makes a great many people feel sad. The fascination of a vast collection of old books for many persons not bibliomaniacs, nor thieves of old books, is real and harmless. Many an hour, during the past eighteen years, has the Editor of The Christian Advocate spent among those old books, and many a book has he transferred to his library of which he never heard till he stumbled on it there. One day he met a very eminent Congregational minister in 37 Park Row, who said, "Do you know I come here to commune with the dead, and learn the fate of the living?" Mr. Tibbals, Sr., has a great faculty for collecting old books, besides dealing in and making new ones. He may live a good while yet, but such a collection of antique and peculiar publications as he had there, will never be got together again. We hope that they will soon get back into Nassau Street. It will seem out of the way to go down to 38 Murray Street.

The above firm will move from their present place, at 38 Murray Street, to 124 Nassau Street, near their old place. They will have the very best stock of Theological, Sunday School, and general books to be had.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

The Little Folks Reader, (D. Lothrop & Co., Boston,) for March, has "Among the Semoyeds," "Our Freddy," "Bats," and other stories of interest.

The Southern World is a handsome 16-page, semi-monthly, published at Atlanta, Ga. Price $1 a year. Farm, home and workshop receive special attention. It is bright, and well edited.

"Mrs. Mayhurn's Twins," by John Habberton, paper cover, price 50c, has been received from T. F. Peterson & Brothers, Philadelphia. It is an attempt to delineate the trials of morning, noon, afternoon and evening of one day, and will please the lovers of home life.

Messrs R. H Curran & Co, 12 Pemberton Square, Boston, have sent us a fine print of Garfield and his family, size 22x28. It is asserted that Mrs. Garfield furnished the photographs for this group, and it agrees with the better prints we have seen during the past year. Prices for plain prints $1, fine prints $1.50, proofs $2.50; artists proofs $6.

Blackwood's Magazine, for March, just republished by The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., 41 Barclay Street, New York, is largely devoted to reviews of books. "Martin's Horace" gives a biographical sketch of the poet, with many quotations from his writings. "Lord Crawford and the House of Mar" is more historical in its tone, and in "the story of Elyne of Mar and Countess Isabel" explains the cause of the abolishment of the ancient earldom. Besides these are descriptions of four new novels; one by a new author, J. H. Shorthouse; the others by Henry James, Jr., Gerard, and Blackmore. "The Fixed Period" has come to an end. "Western Wandering" describes some pretty rough travelling from Deming, New Mexico, to New Orleans, and thence to St. Domingo and the other West India islands. There is also a short address to John Bright, in verse, and an account of the meeting of Parliament.

The April Wide Awake opens seasonably with a charming Easter frontispiece by Mrs. Jesse Curtis Shepherd, illustrating Mrs. Hitt's Easter-time story of "How Jack went to Church." Following, comes "Little Peachling," a Japanese Folk-Lore story. Then there is a jolly story for the boys, one of the healthful flavorous woods-stories of pioneer life with which this magazine often provides its readers, by Rev. I. L. Beman, and entitled, "Too Fond of Maple Sugar." Toward the close of the number is another out-of-door story, "A Quaker Boy's First Fox Hunt." Excellent stories, too, are "How Naomi Flooded the Bog," by Stuart Chaplin, "The Lost Five Dollar Bill," by M E S, "Punkapog & Boss," by Mrs. Kate Gannett Wells, and "A Nantucket Story," by Mrs. Alfred Macy. Papers of great value are found in the April Readings for the Chautauqua Young Folks' Reading Union, Wide Awake being the official organ of that association. Only $2.50 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

The periodicals reprinted by The Leonard Scott Publishing Co., (41 Barclay Street, New York), are as follows: The London Quarterly, Edinburgh, Westminister, and British Quarterly Reviews and Blackwood's Magazine. Price, $3 a year for Blackwood, $2 50 for any one of the Reviews, and only $10 for all. We have received all these quarterlies for January, and they form a complete epitome of modern thought on all those subjects which attract scholary minds to date. In Westminister Review, we find articles on the early progress of Christianity; the basis of England's power in India, George Eliot as a moral teacher, Richard Cobden, the stoics, and working class influence. In the British Quarterly there are papers on literary clubs of Paris, individual development, the Culdees and their later history, contemporary literature, etc. In the Edinburgh is Taine's conquest of the Jacobins, modern Italian poets, electro-motive power, Tunis and Carthage, Irish discontent, ancient animals of South America, parliamentary procedure, etc. In the London, we read of the New Revision of the Testament, Sir Charles Lyell Dawin on Earth Worms, fishes and their habits, the liberal work of two years etc.

The "Popular Science Monthly" for April opens with a discussion of the Chinese question, by Gerrit L Lansing, of San Francisco, under the title of "Chinese Immigration; A Sociological Study." It is a presentation of the problem of race in civilization as illustrated by the characteristics f the Chinese. "The Scholastic Prelude to Mordern Science," by H. D. Macleod, is a graphic sketch of the condition of thought in the middle ages, out of which grew the spirit of modern inquiry. Dr. Fairchild writes of the curiosities of animal respiration; and this is followed by the elaborate paper by Professor Goldwin Smith, entitled "Has Science yet found a New Basis for Morality?" "Fossil Seeds," by Stanislas Meunier, and Preece's "Recent Wonders of Electricity," are extremely readable papers. Mr. B. V. Abbott furnishes a valuable paper on "Modern Explosives," in which he takes up the subject of explosions, both as accidents and as employed by scoundrels for nefarious purposes, and then considers, what is to be done about it? There is an account of "The Germ Theory," by the greatest authority upon the subject, Professor Pasteur, of Paris, followed by a paper of remarkable interest on "Dean Swift's Disease," by Dr. Bucknill. There is a full biographical notice of the eminent French biologist Pasteur, with a likeness. Chapter ii of "The Mountains of the Moon" begins the story of their remarkable inhabitants. The pious Mussulman, Dr. Ben Sheytan, enters the territory with his guide, and the first Monakee he encountered was a kind of pilgrim devoted to the most outlandish superstition. He didn't smoke like a cultivated civilizee, but carried with him an iron pot, in which he burned pest-weed to befuddle himself. New York: D. Appleton & Company. Fifty cents per number, $5 per year.

The Dead Restored to Life.

Any one desiring to have restored to their normal or natural condition those organs of life whose functions have become impaired from excessive gluttony, intemperance, or otherwise, will find health, strength, and vigor in Brown's Iron Bitters. Where the weakness is of an exhaustive or debilitating nature, it removes all lifeless feeling and quickly awakens to new activity.—Herald.

A WONDERFUL ... SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you used them. They have been carefully examined and analyzed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can they become impaired by their use for the [illegible]
1. The glasses soothe the light to the eye completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no dizziness or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

THE AMERICAN ART EXCHANGE

Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. Its object is to place within the reach of all in this country, all the famous art works of the Old World, at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.

As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be furnished, we will take pleasure in forwarding a Complimentary Copy of the first edition of art works.

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb Painting, occupying nearly the entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled

"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."

Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is impossible to secure a copy at a less price except through this house. The engraving represents the Savior as He is leaving the Pretorium or Court after being condemned to crucifixion. He is decending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps are two burley executioners in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendent. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Pontius Pilate; who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly decends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion. There are upward of One thousand figures represented, prominent among which are Our Savior, Caiphas, Annas, Alexander, The Virgin, Mary Magdalene, Judas, Pilate, Herod, and a host of other historical names. An outline engraving with numbers and figures, indentifying the prominent characters, accompanies each of the the large works, thus making the picture a valuable historical reference. It stands to-day unquestionably.

The Finest and most Valuable Engraving in the World.

The engraving of the plate alone cost upward of $80,000, and no copies are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to not less than $40 per copy.

This splendid work is the first of a series of the prominent art works of Europe which the American Art Exchange will produce in America, simultaneously with their production in the Old World, and at prices which will enable the multitude to purchase.

This first work will be used as an introductory advertisement and will be furnished

Free to all Applicants.

It is a correct reproduction of the English plate which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price, who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size (25x36 inches) and with the same attention to perfect work as characterizes the $30 copies.

The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when future works are announced the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted we will ship a perfect copy of this work, together with a smaller outline key engraving, to any applicant. The engraving, which is a very large one, will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage (the shipping being done by contract) which will be 36 cents or twelve 3 cent stamps. It was at first thought that 30 cents would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags, it was decided to increase the thickness of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of accident. This necessitated an increase of charge to 36 cents. On receipt of application the engraving will be immediately forwarded, all charges prepaid to any address in the United States, when twelve 3 cent stamps are inclosed to cover charge.

Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be forwarded at a charge of 27 cents each copy. We advise clubs to send together, as several copies can be sent together with greater safety than single engravings. Not more than ten copies will be sent to one person for distribution, and the name of each member of the club must be sent. Address all letters to

PINKETY WINK.

Miss Pinkety Wink she had eyes that would blink,
And small feet that turned out at the toes;
She had neat little hands, hair braided in bands,
And her cheeks they were red as a rose,
And she always was dressed in fine clothes.

Miss Pinkety Wink, I am sure you will think,
Was a very nice Dolly indeed.
She was pretty and still, and she never got ill,
For the doctor there never was need;
To her mistress she always gave heed.
But Pinkety Wink (I am afraid you will sink
When I tell you how sad was her fate),
For an airing gone out, and while riding about
In her fine little carriage in state,
It turned over, oh, sad to relate!

Poor Pinkety Wink, with her eyes that would blink,
From her shoulders had dropped off her head!
Little Carrie, she cried, while vainly she tried
Her dear Dolly to mend: then she said,
"I'm afraid my sweet Pinkey is dead!"

Now what do you think? Well, Pinkety Wink
She carried right straight to mamma,
Who melted some glue, and made her quite new;
And now Carrie is laughing, "Ha, ha!
Was there ever so nice a mamma!"

A Monkey to Appear as a Witness.

A monkey witness is shortly to appear in a murder trial in an Indian court at Sattara. A travelling show-man, whose living depended on five monkeys and a goat, was recently murdered near a village, his troop being killed with the exception of one monkey, which ran up a tree and watched the assassins bury his master and his companions. When all was quiet the monkey ran off to the "patel" of the nearest village, and made him understand by speeches and signs that something was wrong. The "patel" followed the monkey, which led him to the place where his master was buried; and the murder was duly discovered. The monkey is now kept for the identification of the assassins.—London Graphic.

African Honesty.

Dr. Livingston tells in his journal of leaving valuable stores on a river's bank for six months and finding them unharmed at his return. Mr. Froude, in his journey in South Africa, pays a high eulogy to the Kaffir natives for their honesty. Farmers absent for weeks, leaving their houses, and families and property undefended. No outrage is ever heard of. Wagons laden with valuable goods are sent many hundred miles through a country inhabited only by Kaffirs. The goods are of a kind highly prized by the natives and eagerly coveted, but highway robbery is unknown. We are afraid that few civilized communities can be found anywhere where theft is so rare.

A little boy tumbled into a barrel of molasses. He was fished out by a gentleman who said: "Boy, what is your name, and how do you feel?" The lad's reply was "Short and sweet." The gentleman said that he was in a hurry, and he could only stay long enough to assure the boy that he stood a fair show of being President some day.

You can always tell whether an editor is a single or a married man by his selection of poetry for the paper. The single one always clips verses on "Love" and "To My Darling," and that kind; and the married one selects something relative to the cheapest way of keeping house, or on the foolishness of fashion as displayed in dress.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall Street, New York.

Berlin was gaily decorated on the 22d, the anniversary of Emperor William's birthday. Thanksgiving services were held at various churches, which were numerously attended. The Emperor commenced receiving congratulations at 10 o'clock, and he stood throughout the reception without manifesting a sign of fatigue. Great crowds of people assembled in Unter Den Linden, who cheered the Emperor upon his appearance on the balcony.

Perils of the Deep.

The world-renowned swimmer, Capt. Paul Boyton, in an interview with a newspaper correspondent at the seashore, related the following incidents in his experience:

Reporter.—"Captain Boynton, you must have seen a large part of the world?"

Capt. Boynton.—"Yes, sir, by the aid of my Rubber Life-Saving Dress I have traveled over 10,000 miles on the rivers of Europe and America; have also been presented to the crowned heads of England, France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Spain, and Portugal, and have in my possession forty-two medals and decorations; I have three times received the order of knighthood, and been elected an honorary member of committees, clubs, orders, and societies."

Reporter.—"Were your various trips accompanied with much danger?"

Capt. Boynton.—"That depends upon what you may call dangerous. During my trip down the river Tagus, in Spain, I had to "shoot" one hundred and two waterfalls, the highest being about eighty-five feet, and innumerable rapids. Crossing the Straits of Messina, I had three ribs broken in a fight with sharks; and coming down the Somme, a river in France, I received a charge of shot from an excited and startled huntsman. Although all this was not very pleasant, and might be termed dangerous, I fear nothing on my trip more than intense cold; for as long as my limbs are free and easy, and not cramped or benumbed, I am all right. Of late, I carry a stock of St. Jacobs Oil in my little boat—the Captain calls it 'Baby Mine,' and has stored in it signal rockets, thermometer, compass, provisions, etc.—and I have had but very little trouble. Before starting out, I rub myself thoroughly with the article, and its action on the muscles is wonderful. From constant exposure I am somewhat subject to rheumatic pains, and nothing would ever benefit me until I got hold of this great German Remedy. Why, on my travels I have met people who had been suffering with Rheumatism for years. By my advice they tried the Oil, and it cured them. I would sooner do without food for days than be without this remedy for one hour. In fact, I would not attempt a trip without it."

The Captain became very enthusiastic on the subject of St. Jacobs Oil, and we left him citing instances of the curative qualities of the Great German Remedy to a party around him.

The friends of Miss Carpenter, daughter of the late United States Senator Matt. F. Carpenter, who has been lying ill of typhoid fever at the residence of the Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, in this city, will be glad to learn that she is convalescing and will soon be restored to full health. Miss Carpenter's mother and a younger brother, who is pursuing his studies in this city, are also guests of Dr. Thompson.—N. O. Democrat, 21st.

"Will the Mormons quietly submit?" queries an anxious and half-scared editor. Nobody cares whether they do or not. Uncle Sam is big enough to take hold of the collar of the fellow that kicks, and just everlastingly mop the floor with him. And the lesson might strike in better if the old gentleman should be called upon to do this.

"Their Occupation Gone."

R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: I was attacked with congestion of the lungs, soreness over the liver, severe pain in the joints, a burning fever, and general giving away of the whole system. Failing to find relief in remedies prescribed, I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery." It effected my entire cure. Your medicines have only to be used to be appreciated. If every family would give them a trial, nine-tenths of the doctors would, like Othello, find their occupation gone. Yours truly,

A GREAT REVELATION

Some Valuable Thoughts Concerning Human Happiness, and Timely Suggestions about Securing It.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Dr. Chas. Craig before the Metropolitan Scientific Association.

The free and independent thought of this age accepts statements only where they are proven to be truth, while the development of mental power seems equally great in every other department of life. The valuable inventions of the day are counted by thousands. The increase of scientific study is universal. The spirit of inquiry in all fields is so marked as to cause

COMMENT ON EVERY SIDE,

while people seem investigating and advancing in every direction which can help them morally, mentally, or physically. This is specially true of the human body and of everything which concerns it, and the truths which the people have found, even in the last fifty years, are simply marvelous. How really ignorant some cultured and supposably scientific people were only a few years ago, as compared with the present day, may be better understood from a few illustrative facts. A prominent writer prepared an elaborate essay to prove that steamships could never cross the Atlantic, and his pamphlet was issued just in time to be carried by the first steamer that went to England. People once believed that the heart was the seat of life and health. It is now known that this organ is only a pump simply keeping in motion what other and more important organs of the body have created and transformed. It was once supposed that if a person felt a pain in the back the liver was deranged; if a pain in the lower chest, the lungs were affected and consumption was near; it is now known that a pain in the back indicates diseased kidneys, while troubles in the lower chest arise from a disordered liver and not from imperfect lungs. A severe pain in the head was once thought to come from some partial derangements of the brain; it is now known that troubles in other parts of the body and away from the head, cause headaches, and that only by removing the cause can the pain be cured. It is a matter of that Gen. Washington was bled to death. His last illness was slight, and caused principally by weariness. A physician was called who 'bled him copiously.' Strange to say the patient became no better. Another doctor was called, who again took away a large amount of the vital fluid. Thus in succession four physicians drew away the life of a great man who was intended by nature for an old age, and who prematurely died—murdered by malpractice—bled to death. That was the age of medical bleeding!"

The speaker then graphically described another period which came upon the people, in which they assigned the origin of all diseases to the stomach, and after showing the falsity of his theory, and that the kidney and the liver were the causes of disease, and that many people are suffering from kidney and liver troubles to-day who do not know it, but who should know and attend to them at once, continued:

"Let us look at the matter a little more closely. The human body is the most perfect and yet the most delicate of all created things. It is capable of the greatest results and it is liable to the greatest disorders. The slightest causes sometimes seem to throw its delicate machinery out of order while the most simple and common-sense care restores and keeps them in perfect condition. When it is remembered that the amount of happiness or misery we are to have in this world is dependent upon a perfect body, is it not strange that simple precautions and care are not exercised? This is one of the most vital questions of life. People may avoid it for the present, but there is certain to come a time in every one's experience when it must be faced.

"And here pardon me for relating a little personal experience. In the year 1870 I found myself losing both in strength and health. I could assign no cause for the decline, but it continued, until finally I called to my aid two prominent physicians. After treating me for some time they declared I was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and that they could do nothing more for me. At this time I was so weak I could not raise my head from the pillow and I

FAINTED REPEATEDLY.

My heart beat so rapidly it was with difficulty I could sleep. My lungs were also badly involved; I could retain nothing upon my stomach, while the most intense pains in my back and bowels caused me to long for death as a relief. It was at this critical juncture that a physical longing which I felt (and which I most firmly believe was an inspiration) caused me to send for the leaves of a plant I had once known in medical practice. After great difficulty I at last secured them and began their use in the form of tea. I noticed a lessening of the pain at once; I began to mend rapidly; in five weeks I was able to be about and in two months I became perfectly well and have so continued to this day. It was only natural that such a result should have caused me to investigate most thoroughly. I carefully examined fields in medicine never before explored. I sought the cause of physical order and disorder, happiness and pain, and I found the kidneys and liver to be governors, whose motions regulate the entire system."

After describing at length the offices of the kidney and liver, and their important part in life, the doctor went on to say:

"Having found this great truth, I saw clearly the cause of my recovery. The simple vegetable leaf I had used was a food and restorer to my well-nigh exhausted kidneys and liver. It had come to them when their life was nearly gone and by its simple, yet powerful influence had purified, strengthened and restored them and saved them from death. Realizing the great benefit which a knowledge of this truth would give to the world I began in a modest way, to treat those afflicted and in every case I found the same which I have experienced. Not only this but many, who were not concious of any physical trouble but who, at my suggestion, began the use of the remedy which had saved my life, found their health steadily improving and their strength continually increasing. So universal, when used, was this true, that I determined the entire world should share in its results, and I therefore placed the formula for its preparation in the hands of Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., a gentleman whom I had cured of a severe kidney disease, and who, by reason of his personal worth, high standing and liberality in endowing the Astronomical Observatory and other public enterprises, has become known and popular to the entire country. This gentleman at once began the manufacture of the remedy on a most extensive scale, and to-day Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the pure remedy that saved my life, is known and used in all parts of the continent.

"I am aware a prejudice exists toward proprietary medicines, and that such prejudice is too often well founded, but the value of a pure remedy is no less because it is a proprietary medicine. A justifiable prejudice exists toward quack doctors, but is it right that this prejudice should extend towards all the doctors who are earnestly and intelligently trying to do their duty? Because Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure saved my life before it became a proprietary medicine, is it reasonable to suppose that it will not cure others and keep still more from sickness now that is sold with a government stamp on the wrapper? Such a theory would be childish."

The doctor then paid some high compliments to American science, and closed his lecture as follows.

"How to restore the health when broken and how to keep the body perfect and free from disease must ever be men's highest study. That one of the greatest revelations of the present day has been made in ascertaining the true seat of health to be in the kidneys and liver, all scientists now admit, and I can but feel that the discovery which I have been permitted to make, and which I have described to you, is destined to prove the greatest, best and most reliable friend to those who suffer and long for happiness, as well as to those who desire to keep the joys they now possess." 13 2t eow

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

About two years ago I was attracted by the advertisement of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. My system was much run down and I had suffered the excruciating agonies of kidney and blood difficulties and especially from calculus. I determined to try the cure and bought 2 bottles, and when I had taken the first bottle I noted immediate improvement, and after taking the second I called myself toned up all through the system and extraordinarily well for a man of seventy-five. I have used in all about four bottles and would not be without it in case of any further trouble for any consideration. I recommend it freely to my friends as I consider it just what it purports to be a sure cure for kidney difficulties. Mrs. Guthrie, wife of my son, has also used it freely and with very marked benefit and perfect cure.

H. H. Warner & Co.:

About 2 years ago I purchased some of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for my own and my wife's use. We took about four bottles and were both completely restored to health, my system having lost tone and Mrs. Connell being in very poor physical condition. We know it is a good thing from our own experience with it. A short time ago I was taken sick with a bilious attack. My kidneys and urinary organs were involved to a very painful degree. I am using the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure more in the hope that it will do me as much good as it did before.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of Iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy has in my hands made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any Iron preparation made. In short, such a compound as Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28th, 1881. 3104 Wash Avenue.

A Monkey to Appear as a Witness.

A monkey witness is shortly to appear in a murder trial in an Indian court at Sattara. A travelling show-man, whose living depended on five monkeys and a goat, was recently murdered near a village, his troop being killed with the exception of one monkey, which ran up a tree and watched the assassins bury his master and his companions. When all was quiet the monkey ran off to the "patel" of the nearest village, and made him understand by speeches and signs that something was wrong. The [illegible] followed the monkey, which led him to the place where his master was buried; and the murder was duly discovered. The monkey is now kept for the identification of the assassins.—London Graphic.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

Berlin was gaily decorated on the 22d, the anniversary of Emperor William's birthday. Thanksgiving services were held at various churches, which were numerously attended. The Emperor commenced receiving congratulations at 10 o'clock, and he stood throughout the reception without manifesting a sign of fatigue. Great crowds of people assembled in Unter Den Linden, who cheered the Emperor upon his appearance on the balcony.

Perils of the Deep.

The world-renowned swimmer, Capt. Paul Boyton, in an interview with a newspaper correspondent at the seashore, related the following incidents in his experience:

Reporter.—"Captain Boynton, you must have seen a large part of the world?"

Capt. Boynton.—"Yes, sir, by the aid of my Rubber Life-Saving Dress I have traveled over 10,000 miles on the rivers of Europe and America; have also been presented to the crowned heads of England, France, Germany, Austria, Belgium, Italy, Holland, Spain, and Portugal, and have in my possession forty-two medals and decorations; I have three times received the order of knighthood, and been elected an honorary member of committees, clubs, orders, and societies."

Reporter.—"Were your various trips accompanied with much danger?"

Capt. Boynton.—"That depends upon what you may call dangerous. During my trip down the river Tagus, in Spain, I had to 'shoot' one hundred and two water-falls, the highest being about eighty-five feet, and innumerable rapids. Crossing the Straits of Messina, I had three ribs broken in a fight with sharks; and coming down the Somane, a river in France, I received a charge of shot from an excited and startled huntsman. Although all this was not very pleasant, and might be termed dangerous, I fear nothing on my trip more than intense cold; for as long as my limbs are free and easy, and not cramped or benumbed, I am all right. Of late, I carry a stock of St. Jacobs Oil in my little boat—the Captain calls it 'Baby Mine,' and has stored in it signal rockets, thermometer, compass, provisions, etc.—and I have had but very little trouble. Before starting out, I rub myself thoroughly with the article, and its action on the muscles is wonderful. From constant exposure I am somewhat subject to rheumatic pains, and nothing would ever benefit me until I got hold of this great German Remedy. Why, on my travels I have met people who had been suffering with Rheumatism for years. By my advice they tried the Oil, and it cured them. I would sooner do without food for days than be without this remedy for one hour. In fact, I would not attempt a trip without it."

The Captain became very enthusiastic on the subject of St. Jacobs Oil, and we left him citing instances of the curative qualities of the Great German Remedy to a party around him.

Miss Carpenter's mother and a younger brother, who is pursuing his studies in this city, are also guests of Dr. Thompson.—N. O. Democrat, 21st.

A GREAT REVELATION

Some Valuable Thoughts Concerning Human Happiness, and Timely Suggestions about Securing It.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Dr. Chas. Craig before the Metropolitan Scientific Association

[illegible]

[illegible] created and transformed. It was once supposed that if a person felt a pain in the back the liver was damaged; if a pain in the lower chest, the lungs were affected and consumption was near; it is now known that a pain in the back indicates diseased kidneys, while troubles in the lower chest arise from a disordered liver and not from imperfect lungs. A severe pain in the head was once thought to come from some partial derangements of the brain; it is now known that troubles in other parts of the body and away from the head, cause headaches, and that only by removing the cause can the pain be cured. It is a matter of that Gen. Washington was bled to death. His last illness was slight, and caused principally by weariness. A physician was called who 'bled him copiously.' Strange to say the patient became no better. Another doctor was called, who again took away a large amount of the vital fluid. Thus in succession four physicians drew away the life of a great man who was intended by nature for an old age, and who prematurely died—murdered by malpractice—bled to death. That was the age of medical bleeding!"

The speaker then graphically described another period which came upon the people, in which they assigned the origin of all diseases to the stomach, and after showing the falsity of his theory, and that the kidney and the liver were the causes of disease, and that many people are suffering from kidney and liver troubles to-day who do not know it, but who should know and attend to them at once, continued:

"Let us look at the matter a little more closely. The human body is the most perfect and yet the most delicate of all creates things. It is capable of the greatest results and it is liable to the greatest disorders. The slightest causes sometimes seem to throw its delicate machinery out of order while the most simple and common-sense care restores and keeps them in perfect condition. When it is remembered that the amount of happiness or misery we are to have in this world is dependent upon a perfect body, is it not strange that simple precautions and care are not exercised? This is one of the most vital questions of life. People may avoid it for the present, but there is certain to come a time in every one's experience when it must be faced.

"And here pardon me for relating a little personal experience. In the year 1870 I found myself losing both in strength and health. I could assign no cause for the decline, but it continued, until finally I called to my aid two prominent physicians. After treating me for some time they declared I was suffering from Bright's disease of the kidneys, and that they could do nothing more for me. At this time I was so weak I could not raise my head from the pillow and I

FAINTED REPEATEDLY.

My heart beat so rapidly it was with difficulty I could sleep. My lungs were also badly involved; I could retain nothing upon my stomach, while the most intense pains in my back and bowels caused me to long for death as a relief. It was at this critical juncture that a physical longing which I felt (and which I most firmly believe was an inspiration) caused me to send for the leaves of a plant I had once known in medical practice. After great difficulty I at last secured them and began their use in the form of tea. I noticed a lessening of the pain at once; I began to mend rapidly; in five weeks I was able to be about and in two months I became perfectly well and have so continued to this day. It was only natural that such a result should have caused me to investigate most thoroughly. I carefully examined fields in medicine never before explored. I sought the cause of physical order and disorder, happiness and pain, and I found the kidneys and liver to be governors, whose motions regulate the entire system."

After describing at length the offices of the kidney and liver, and their important part in life, the doctor went on to say:

"Having found this great truth, I saw clearly the cause of my recovery. The simple vegetable leaf I had used was a food and restorer to my well-nigh exhausted kidneys and liver. It had come to them when their life was nearly gone and by its simple, yet powerful influence had purified, strengthened and restored them and saved them from death. Realizing the great benefit which a knowledge of this truth would give to the world I began in a modest way, to treat those afflicted and in every case I found the same which I have experienced. Not only this but many, who were not concious of any physical trouble but who, at my suggestion, began the use of the remedy which had saved my life, found their health steadily improving and their strength continually increasing. So universal, when used, was this true, that I determined the entire world should share in its results, and I therefore placed the formula for its preparation in the hands of Mr. H. H. Warner, of Rochester, N. Y., a gentleman whom I had cured of a severe kidney disease, and who, by reason of his personal worth, high standing and liberality in endowing the Astronomical Observatory and other public enterprises, has become known and popular to the entire country. This gentleman at once began the manufacture of the remedy on a most extensive scale, and to-day Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, the pure remedy that saved my life, is known and used in all parts of the continent.

"I am aware a prejudice exists toward proprietary medicines, and that such prejudice is too often well founded, but the value of a pure remedy is no less because it is a proprietary medicine. A justifiable prejudice exists toward quack doctors, but is it right that this prejudice should extend towards all the doctors who are earnestly and intelligently trying to do their duty? Because Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure saved my life before it became a proprietary medicine, is it reasonable to suppose that it will not cure others and keep still more from sickness now that is sold with a government stamp on the wrapper? Such a theory would be childish."

The doctor then paid some high compliments to American science, and closed his lecture as follows:

"How to restore the health when broken and how to keep the body perfect and free from disease must ever be man's highest study. That one of the greatest revelations of the present day has been made in ascertaining the true seat of health to be in the kidneys and liver, all scientists now admit, and I can but feel that the discovery which I have been permitted to make, and which I have described to you, is destined to prove the greatest, best and most reliable friend to those who suffer and long for happiness, [illegible] to those who desire to keep the [illegible]." 13 8 eow

158 Constance Street, New Orleans, La., March 19, 1881.

Messrs. H. H. Warner & Co.:

About two years ago I was attracted by the advertisement of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. My system was much run down and I had suffered the excruciating agonies of kidney and blood difficulties and especially from calculus, I determined to try the cure and bought 2 bottles, and when I had taken the first bottle I noted immediate improvement, and after taking the second I called myself toned up all through the system and extraordinarily well for a man of seventy-five. I have used in all about four bottles and would not be without it in case of any further trouble for any consideration. I recommend it freely to my friends as I consider it just what it purports to be a sure cure for kidney difficulties. Mrs. Guthrie, wife of my son, has also used it freely and with very marked benefit and perfect cure.

H. H. Warner & Co.:

About 2 years ago I purchased some of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for my own and my wife's use. We took about four bottles and were both completely restored to health, my system having lost tone and Mrs. Connell being in very poor physical condition. We know it is a good thing from our own experience with it. A short time ago I was taken sick with a bilious attack. My kidneys and urinary organs were involved to a very painful degree. I am using the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure more in the hope that it will do me as much good as it did before.

Thousands of equally strong endorsements—many of them in cases where hope was abandoned—have been voluntarily given, showing the remarkable power of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure in all diseases of the kidney, liver or urinary organs. If any one who reads this has any physical trouble, remember the great danger of delay. 13 3t

THE SWEDISH MISSION IN ST. LOUIS. This was begun about fifteen months ago. Rev. H. Olsen was sent there by Bishop Bowman. In two months after the opening of preaching, a church was organized, five persons joining themselves by letter to the two members already in the city, and thirty-three being received on probation. Several months later thirty-four persons were received from probation into full connection, the total membership being now seventy, and thirty-seven on probation. In July last a good corner lot was bought as a church site for $2500, and constant effort is now being made to provide for the erection of a Swedish Methodist church.

A LIBRARY FOR THE BULGARIAN THEOLOGICAL SCHOOL.—Rev. A. R. Jones, our missionary in Tirnova, acknowledges with gratitude the receipt of $900 for the purchase of such a library from Wm. E. Hooper & Sons, of Baltimore, Md. This is truly a very welcome gift. The library will be called the "Hooper Library." Any additions to it will be received with like gratitude. There is an onward movement in our Bulgarian work.

The priest, Rev. Peter Zickohof, whose conversion and exclusion from his former friends and community was recently announced, has been spending some time in Tirnova selling books as a colporteur and with good success. The missionary says "We are very much pleased with him. He is active, wide awake and earnest, and has withal an acute understanding. I believe he will make a first class worker. He has a brother here in our school. The boys of the school are engaged in selling books during the long winter vacation. This plan has proved very successful in many ways. It makes an admirable preparation for future evangelic labors."

LIA LEK ONG'S PROTRACTED MEETING.—This revival meeting in Foochow, of which we now get news, is a great event for our mission, and is indeed a remarkable thing in the history of Christian missions generally in Asia. A few years ago, a meeting of like character, after the manner of our meetings at home, was conducted by our missionaries in Foochow; but now the native preacher and presiding elder, Lia Lek Ong, is leading the way. He continued the meetings right on after the quarterly conference in January from evening to evening. He is a genuine leader among the natives in this matter, taking hold of the work with vigor. He is developing into a thorough-going American revivalist. He was preaching at the time mentioned in our accounts, every evening, sermons of great power. The meetings are held in the Tieng Ong church. He closes his sermons by inviting those who are disposed to become Christians to come forward. The missionaries were present, also, to engage in the work. On one occasion twelve persons came forward, one after the other, and three of the boarding-school girls besides, who are from Christian families. The theme of Lia Lek Ong's sermon on a certain Sunday morning was "Christ the Living Bread Sent down from Heaven." He is the manna, the food for a famishing world. China's spiritual condition was illustrated by the horrors of the North-China famine, men ate such uneatable things. He said, starving China was eating, worshiping the dead men of the past; but now that Christ the living bread, the satisfying portion, has come, who would longer eat the uneatable things of the past? "Oh, it was a wonderful sermon!" says a correspondent, "and strongly moved the people."

A notable part of this work is the interest taken in it by Mr. Ahok, the [illegible] Chinaman who has purchased the bank building for our Anglo-Chinese College. He is a man of large [illegible] and brings from twenty to [illegible] of his partners, clerks, and [illegible] to church regularly. Twelve [illegible] college students have united [illegible] Church, and four of them [illegible] parents. Indeed, only [illegible] undecided. Mr. Ohl[illegible]: "I believe if we had [illegible] now the majority of [illegible] to the power of the [illegible] time. increasing efficiency, and is awakening more and more interest. The want of students' halls and teachers alone prevents its being frequented by hundreds. One of the highest officials in Foochow has sought to secure admission for his three sons next term. In a year from now the college may hope to have a few reliable tutors of its own training.

THE INDIAN WITNESS.—We are in receipt of the first number of this paper, issued February 3d. It succeeds the Lucknow Witness, which was for many years edited by Rev. James Mudge. The new paper is published in Calcutta, and edited by Rev. J. M. Thoburn, D. D. It is published under the general direction of an executive committee appointed by the Delegated Conference of India. It is a weekly, and will contain, as its predecessor has done, much news from our Indian mission fields. The price of subscription is, postage paid, Rs. 7. 10, or $3 25. The agent in this country, to whom subscriptions may be sent, is Mrs. L. H. Daggett, 38 Bromfield street, Boston, Mass.

REV. JAMES BLACKLEDGE, who is under appointment for Japan, and goes out to take the chair of Hebrew and Greek in our Theological School in Yokohama, sailed from New York in the Gallia, of the Cunard line, on Wednesday, March 29. Mr. Blackledge has been for some time a highly esteemed member of the Philadelphia Conference. He is a graduate of Dickinson College, and was for two years a student at Drew University. He expects to spend a month in England, and is to preach the charity sermons at the Blackford Wesleyan Chapel, Wigan Circuit, April 23. He purposes some sojourn in Italy, and especially in the Holy Land, on his way to Japan, where he will arrive in time for the opening of the school, in Septembr.

REV. C. W. GREEN, admitted to the Philadelphia Conference at the last session, and expecting to graduate at Drew Seminary at the coming commencement, is under appointment for the Central China Mission, and expects to leave New York in June by the overland route.

Senator Mahone's Letter.

SENATE CHAMBER, Washington, Feb. 11 1882.

His Excellency John D. Long, Governor of Massachusetts:

DEAR SIR: I thank you and the other distinguished gentlemen of Massachusetts who have united with you in the courtesy of an invitation to deliver an address in Boston on Washington's Birthday upon the "Present and Future of Virginia." Until very recently I have indulged the hope of being able to be present, and have hesitated to decline so distinguished an opportunity. The theme and the occasion appeal eloquently to the sensibilities of a Virginian, and I regret more than I can tell being unable to be in Boston to address such an audience upon such a topic. The sources and the character of the invitation invoke the ambition and patriotism of every American. To worthily comply with it would involve something more than fond reminiscence, so natural amid the associations of your favored city; more than commemoration of the heroism of the Virginians who marched with Washington to Cambridge, and of the soldiers of Massachusetts who shared the glory of Yorktown, and more even than to exchange congratulations upon the auspicious outlook for our heaven blessed country.

A fraternization at this time in the historic city of Boston of citizens of Massachusetts and Virginia would excite in our countrymen something besides appreciation of the sentiment awakened by such an occasion, and much more than remembrance of the antipodal relations in American politics honorably and ably sustained by these two States for more than 50 years of our history. Added to the pleasure born of a patriotic reunion so dramatic, would be a public expectation of emphatic recognition of the altered plane of political discussion, and especially of the final banishment from our politics of sectional strife and jealousies. Happily, there is now no political organization avowing other arguments and appeals for public favor than such as rest upon the theory of a restored Union—restored in sentiment as well as in fact—cemented in the enlightened sympathies of all our countrymen, as well as protected by the National authority.

[illegible] Boston on the 22d of [illegible]

in praise of the able men of Massachusetts and Virginia for sincerity in the great debates of parties in the past, and in honoring the devoted men on both sides, who risked their lives in the struggle of arms that followed that half-century of heated discussion. The sentiment of the country is already recorded in eulogy of the motives of those who differed with each other upon questions now belonging to history, and not subjects of profitable discussion in current politics. The great Webster formulated the faith of Massachusetts in declaration that her "past was secure." With pardonable pride the Virginian avows his faith that posterity will duly honor the genius and the valor which have entitled Virginians to share the heritage of fame which is the property of all Americans.

At Boston, on Washington's Birthday, in fulfillment of representative trusts at the national capital, or in the local political struggles of the several States, there are grave duties superior to the mere legerdemain of politics and more mandatory than loyalty to party. Virginia is awake to those duties, and her public men have no pretext for misinterpreting the sentiment of her people as to what is proper and necessary in the present and to be striven for in the future. Virginia sees no justification for political alignments based upon sectional array or sectional menace; she disowns political alliances based upon fundamental questions disputed before the war between the States, such as have grown out of the results of the war, or such as have arisen from the measures of reconstruction. Virginia regards the amendments to the Federal Constitution as a part of the organic law of the land to be as sacredly executed as the original instrument. The will of her people cannot be affirmed with too much emphasis upon this and the kindred subject of the perpetual and harmonious co-ordination of the State and Federal Governments. These are cardinal beliefs in the American creed; they are fundamental tenets of the Virginia creed.

To tell you of the present of Virginia, I could with more eloquence than that of words point you to her performance in those lines of development which have made Massachusetts eminent among Commonwealths. Our people have just declared popular education to be among the most sacred duties and trusts of representative government, and are bravely executing that honorable decree. With valuable and beneficent results we are rapidly guaranteeing a priceless ballot to all entitled to it under the American theory. Conspicuous among the achievements of the advanced thought that places Virginia in full alignment with the highest American civilization is the prompt justice with which she deals with an element of population which has been the fruitful source of passionate disputation. Virginia has closed the long strife, which Mr. Jefferson foresaw and dreaded as he would dread "the fire-bell at night," over the status of the colored man. His political equality is secured throughout her domain. Never undervaluing the reciprocity of kindness between the races in the South in their peculiar and trying relations in the past, Virginia accepts the "inexorable logic of facts," and tenders the colored man the complete justice which his conduct as a citizen challenges and exacts. We are equally gratified with what we are doing for the colored man and what he is doing for himself. He vindicates himself and justifies us in our determined efforts for his moral and intellectual advancement. In Virginia he is at last in the full panoply of acknowledged citizenship. Conscious of the settlement in his favor of the question of his right to pursue the duties and privileges of citizenship, his conduct commands the approval of even his severest critics. Our treatment of the colored people elevates them as citizens, and promotes their productive capacity. They are indefinitely with us, and no substitute for their labor, which is peculiarly fitted to the southern section of the Union, has yet been found. Our purpose is to make the colored man feel his identification with us, and to stimulate in him the feeling of contentment by wise and generous care and consideration, that there may be prevented the calamity to the South of a heavy emigration of the colored people. We invoke inquiry as to the present status of the colored people in Virginia with confidence in the judgment of a policy which guarantees them all that American policy and Christian civilization demand for them.

In fact, the Virginia of to-day is abreast of the most advanced Commonwealths in promoting that Americanization and liberalization of sentiment which in the near future will thoroughly unify our country and make successful the only attempt ever made to show the capacity of a people when free and enlightened to govern themselves. For these results in the present, and for such aspirations in the future, we invoke the fervid sympathy of the men of Massachusetts, and we do not appeal in vain. The spirit of caste, of race prejudice, of intolerance, of proscription for opinion's sake, has as little respectable recognition in Massachusetts as in Virginia. Your soil, consecrated to liberty without license, is as unfriendly as that of Virginia to the growth of political doctrines nurtured by mere prejudice of section, caste, or race. The genius of Massachusetts, like the genius of Virginia, abhors all political distinctions and privileges that would bar the way to aspiring merit and honorable labor, and repress the sense of patriotic duty in any class worthy of citizenship.

The Virginia of the present hopes for the Virginia of the future the prosperity of leading American Commonwealths, and we purpose to attain that condition by the agencies which modern civilization has made available for our use as well as for yours. We court immigration; our soil and climate tempt profitable industry, and never in the history of the State has capital sought investment in Virginia, as during the brief period which has followed her formal declaration that her territory is cordially open to all grades of honest industry; that upon her soil residence carries with itself the fullest recognitions due to honorable manhood without reference to considerations of nativity, creed, or occupation. We aim to unfetter thought; especially to unchain the mind and heart of the rising generation from the debasing influence of prejudice which precludes the mental processes essential to the attainment of truth. Forgetful of exploded dogmas, avoiding the "sluggish bays of dead thought," Virginia is wedded indissolubly to a broad Americanism, which repels sectionalism in politics or in the vocations of men, and yet conserves es community independence. As in the night of the struggle for American independence, Virginia offers the fraternal countersign to Massachusetts, and accepts her generous sympathy with the performances of her sister State in the present and her aspirations for the future. Truly yours,

WILLIAM MAHONE.

A FRATERNAL SCENE.

The meeting of Bishop Jesse T. Peck with Bishop R. Paine was no ordinary occasion. They were together in the General Conference of 1844, and to day, January 21, 1882, Bishop Peck was invited by Bishop Paine to dine with him. They had not seen each other in thirty-eight years. Rev. J. C. Hartzell, D. D., of New Orleans, accompanied Bishop Peck by invitation. The resident ministers of the Methodist and Presbyterian Churches, together with Rev. Amos Kendall, Presiding Elder of Aberdeen District, were also present. Bishop Peck was presiding over the Mississippi Conference (colored), now in session at this place. It was a privilege to listen to the conversation of these venerable servants of God. How vividly they recalled their former days when they were young and active in the service. Naturally their minds went back to the memorable Conference of 1844, and they dwelt amid those eventful scenes—little dreaming, as Bishop Paine remarked, that they were making history, the outcome of which would be so large and so important to the people of this nation. The speech of Bishop Pierce was recalled, when he said, "Let New England go, she has been a thorn in our flesh long enough." To which Bishop Peck replied: "New England cannot be spared, nor South Carolina, nor Georgia, nor any other Southern State." Then the rejoinder of Bishop Piere, in which he said that possibly he had been too severe, but that he meant no offence; and as for Bishop Peck, he said: "I would not by my remarks ruffle a single hair on the top of his head." As Bishop Peck was bald even then, this humorous reply was received by the large assembly with peals of laughter. At the table Bishop Peck remarked that he enjoyed richly Bishop Pierce's pleasantry. He further stated that he remembered Bishop Hedding turning to him at the time and remarking: "You made no reply to Bishop Pierce, and I am glad you did not, but I thought what you might have said." "What?" replied Bishop Peck. "Why," answered Bishop Hedding, "you might have said, 'Boy, you better get out of the woods, the bears will be after you.'" They were then comparatively young men, and this incident may be interesting even now as a part of the private history of the occasion referred to, and as it afforded the amusement of the hour.

Bishop Peck referred to the pleasure it always gave him to see a man, especially a minister, go down the hill of life gracefully, cheerfully, and hopefully, and alluded to Bishop Scott, of his own Church, as affording an illustration of what he meant. Bishop Paine contrasted the experience of two aged ministers he had heard bid farewell to their respective Conferences, the one going down sad and despondent, about earthly matters, and the other, a greater sufferer from adverse circumstances, but buoyant, cheerful, and hopeful. Bishop Peck thereupon related the anecdote of the elder Adams, when in his old age, he said: "This tenement in which I have lived so long is going into dilapidation, and as the Owner does not repair it, I am making my arrangements to move out."

Bishop Paine remarked: "I have long since lost all fear of death. I have passed that point forever. Death has lost all its terrors for me. I know no moment, except when asleep, that I am not racked with pain. It is a great deprivation to me to be held in forced inactivity, when there is so much work to be done for the Master; but the Lord knows best, and I submit without a murmur to his will."

"Yes," replied Bishop Peck, "I know of your great labors, in which the Lord has blessed you so abundantly, and I rejoice to find you, too, going down life's journey so gracefully, cheerfully, and hopefully."

Dinner was announced, and around the inviting board the conversation ran on various topics. Bishop Peck spoke of his home in Syracuse and of his wife there, who bade him Godspeed on his Southern tour, and turning to Mrs. Paine, he expressed what great pleasure it would give him to entertain her and her husband in his Syracusan home. He remarked that as he passed through Nashville he looked with pride upon the great Publishing House and the stately Vanderbilt. He entertained his little audience with an account of his travels through Europe, of the Ecumenical, of the Conferences he held, and especially of the great work in Sweden and Norway. On our return to the parlor, and the time approaching for his return to the cabinet, Bishop Paine requested a word of prayer from him before they parted, in all probability never to see each other again on earth. Standing before the fire by the side of Bishop Paine, while we all stood around, he announced that he would sing those beautiful words, "My latest sun is sinking fast, my race is nearly run," etc., to the tune of Land of Beulah; and with a firm, mellow, and pleasant voice, he sang through one verse, and the chorus, "Come, angel-band," etc., in which we all earnestly and feelingly joined. There they stood, Bishop Paine just passed his 82d year, and Bishop Peck his 72d, singing together their parting song. Then we knelt down in prayer, and Bishop Peck poured out his soul in earnest and fervent supplication for his venerable brother in the gospel, for his family, for the ministers present, and for the spread of the gospel all over this Southern land, as well as throughout the world. Then came the parting scene, and Bishop Peck took leave of one and all, remarking how much he had enjoyed this delightful reunion with his good brother, Bishop Paine. Bishop Peck preached Sabbath night in the Methodist Church here, a strong gospel sermon, to a large and interested audience. At the close he sent his compliments to the choir, remarking how much he enjoyed the exceedingly beautiful and grand music of the occasion; and on parting, he said to Miss Ludie Paine, the Bishop's daughter: "Give my love to the Bishop, and tell him I shall long remember yesterday's interview, and as long as I live I will cherish his letter of invitation over his own signature as among my most valued and choicest treasures."—A. D. McVoy in Nashville Advocate.

Aberdeen, Miss., Jan. 23, 1882.

Preparing to Meet God.

If we were expecting a call to go into the presence of some great king on earth, we should prepare to meet him. If we were looking for a summons to appear before a judge and answer a serious accusation brought against us, we should prepare our answer to the charge. If we were about to go to some rich and powerful man to ask a great favor at his hands, we should make preparation for the interview.

But how many there are who never think of preparing to meet their God. They think less of meeting Him than of their earthly master or benefactor. They act toward Him with less respect and concern than toward their fellow-creatures. Yet He is the King of all kings, the Lord of all lords. His sentence will decide our eternal state. It will either raise us to heavenly joy or cast us down to hell. We cannot escape Him, we cannot resist Him. We must meet Him, and that very soon. When and how we cannot tell. He may come to meet us in the judgments of His providence, and He will call us to meet Him by the summons of death. Oh, let us then prepare to meet Him! But how? Only in one way can we do so—by believing in His dear Son and seeking acceptance through Him. Then we can meet Him without fear, and say, "This is our God; we have waited for Him, and He will save."—Ex.

"Oh touch not the wine cup, though bright it may glow,
A serpent lies hid, in the dark depths below."

Sensual gratification is a dangerous sea, on which many an inexperienced youth, in a hapless hour, has thoughtlessly launched forth without anchor, rudder, or compass. After being wafted about for a time by the breezes of pleasure, he was carried out from shore on the tide of self-indulgence. Losing sight of his native land of self-respect, he abandoned himself to the rough seas of riotous living, from whence, finally, he was blown by a storm of passion on to the dark coast of despair, and wrecked on the rock of suicide. Or drawn, with astonishing swiftness, into the maelstrom of drunkenness, he soon arrived at the spinning center of the vortex, and (O, pity!) his giddy head sank away to the fathomless depths below, perhaps to rise no more. Young men, beware! Embark on the voyage of life in our gallant ship Teetotalism. She has cleared the rocks in safety, and rides nobly on. Now come on board, with rectitude of conduct for a deep keep and good purpose for a dauntless figure-head. Take reason for a rudder, upright motive for a mast, firm resolution for a main-sail, hope of success for an anchor, and the whole circle of the virtues for a compass. Then with the teetotal pledge for your clearance papers, cold water for your grog, and Temperance for a captain, you may weather every storm, prosperously sail through the voyage of life, and with devotion to the interests of the life to come, at last you may lay up your ship in the port of peace.—Dr. J. N. Hume.

It is a humiliating thought, that the Jewish refugees from Russia, whose arrival in this country has been the subject of so much comment in the secular and religious press, are the victims of "Christian" persecution. It was not a Christian spirit which prompted that persecution; but those who were called Christians were at the bottom of it all, and they did what they did on the ground that they were called Christians, and that those whom they hated were not. Is it to be wondered at that Christianity does not wholly commend itself to all Jews by its apparent fruits, in the face of such facts as this? We have yet much to do to bring up the tone of love for all, among Christians generally, to the standard uplifted by the inspired Jew in the days of Moses. We shall not help forward this work by showing prejudice or unfairness toward the Chinese, or the Indian, or the African, as a class, in our own country, for example.—S. S. Times.

The Negro Question.

There are more than six millions of colored people in this country, most of whom are living in what we call the Southern States. Between the years of 1870 and 1880 the increase of population in all the Union was 30.06 per cent. The increase in the white population alone was only 28.82 per cent., (this includes the millions of emigrants coming to us from Europe;) the increase of the colored population was 34.78 per cent. Should they increase at the same ratio by 1890 there will be not less that eight millions of colored people in this Union. How shall we live side by side with our "Brother in Black" is a question that is being freely discussed by the religious press of the South. A few seem anxious to give it rest, but for some cause it refuses to "go down." No amount of contempt or ridicule seems to give it quiet. Certain editors and correspondents are crying rest, rest, but this cry is unavailing, the peplexing matter will not rest. To us there is but one course to take. We must meet and take hold of this question, not in that soft salvy way, so full of pious fraud and falsehood, about "another and inferior race," and such like palaver to hide a hostile heart, but as Christian men and patriots.

The Richmond Christian Advocate, M. E. Church South, publishes what it is pleased to call its "Ebony Plank" or "Platform on the African Question." It says: "We hold 1. The negro has a soul. 2. He is our neighbor. These are our sentiments." And then significantly adds: "We are now in the hands of our friends." This may seem Christian and statesmanlike to some, but there are those to whom it has a little too much of that patronizing spirit which certain white skins are much inclined to show to their duskier brothers. How would this read: We hold 1. The white man has a soul. 2. He is our neighbor. These are our sentiments, we are now in the hands of our friends." Few white men would presume to talk in this style of their white brothers. G. G. Smith, D. D., in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, Dr. Haygood's paper, referring to the colored people says: "We ought to give them seats in our Sunday-schools and temperance conventions." "We ought to make them as welcome as in days gone by to our churches." These words "we ought" are wonderfully suggestive with reference to the past, but as applied to the present and future, they tell us in the plainest terms of the new departure of the Southern church on the Negro question.

There comes what we call a very pleasant sound from the trumpet of the editor of the Memphis Advocate. "These freemen are trying to get up—they want to learn—they want help—they are trying hard to learn—they are building schools. The African cry comes right up among us brethren help us. There is no 'come over' about it, no ship to [illegible], no money to raise, no long [illegible] to take, no friends to leave—you stay right here at home among [illegible] and guide these people to [illegible] and to God." But the most [illegible] and aggressive man in [illegible] churches is the able and [illegible] editor of the Wesleyan [illegible] Advocate, Dr. Haygood, [illegible] the question: "Will [illegible] when we [illegible] the negro question;" [illegible] All the wishing in the [illegible] Facts [illegible] If it be denied is [illegible] What living [illegible] work of the [illegible] bring [illegible] and unap- [illegible] the subject [illegible] politics, [illegible] of Negroes is [illegible] "Thou [illegible]

Go after the Lost.

If the multitudes of this country are ever weaned from their evil ways and saved from their sins, it will not be by services held in any nor all of our churches. These have their use, and we would not disparage them; but they can never do the work of conversion Jesus enjoined upon his disciples. If Satan is ever transformed into an angel of light, it will not be by hymns sweetly sung, nor by sermons preached to well-educated and fashionably-dressed congregations, but by strong, earnest, and what some fastidious people would call rough natures, who say as Grant once said: "I propose to move on your works," and move accordingly. The lost sheep must be sought where they are, or they will never be found. A religion that shrinks from this outside and outdoor work may be comforting to those who have it, and perhaps subserve other good ends; but it will never evoke the tears of the Mary Magdalenes, nor impel the Simon Maguses to give up their incantations. The Apostles of the Methodist Episcopal Church did not hesitate here. They went after the lost; nor did they hesitate to denounce the most fashionable iniquities in the strongholds of power. They sought every opportunity to draw men from their misery and vice to Him who can cleanse the stained and polluted heart and break off the chains of all sinful habits. We need men of consecration and decision; full of faith and of the Holy Ghost; who will go out after the lost; who will enter every haunt of sin and iniquity that is not absolutely closed against all Christian appeals, and pray with the inmates, and persuade them to forsake their pernicious ways and turn to the Lord. The journal of John Wesley gives us numerous instances showing how the man of Greek Professorship and of Oxford reputation rejoiced to go down upon his knees and wrestle with God in prayer on behalf of poor, vulgar, weeping penitents till ten o'clock at night. The men of the world called him a fool, while religious people who prided themselves upon their respectability said that he had gone mad. But Wesley was neither a fool nor mad; but awfully in earnest to save the lost.

Prof. Fallor, President of New-Orleans University, who is ably and faithfully assisted by Prof. Clifford and Mrs. Fallor, informs us that the spring term of school has opened most heartily. The attendance is large, the progress of students is satisfactory, and the overworked teachers, whose very valuable services are highly appreciated, feel encouraged. The great needs of this institution however, are, more means and enlarged facilities. Here is a good place for the money of the rich and the brain of the poor to meet together. The result will be a blessing to both, as well as to Church and State. The brain is forthcoming; who will furnish the money? Let the philanthropic Seneys, Vanderbilts, and other stewards of God's bounties, respond cordially and promptly.

Now, Brother, what are you going to do for the SOUTHWESTERN? We want, as you have promised from your charge, a large list of cash subscribers, and all the cash you can possibly send us immediately. Most respectfully, we ask you, brother, if you owe but a dollar, or if you owe more, to remit by next mail. Remember, we ask you, not that other brother. He will not remit. We are not looking to him, and you must not look to him, to help at this time. We ask you to remit what is due from you. Please do not tarry a day. If the money is not in hand, borrow the dollar or more, every one of you. If we did not need the money, we would not urge so earnestly. Send the cash forthwith.

One of the happiest indications connected with the present active movement for the better observance of the Sabbath in this city is that the Jewish, Romish, and Protestant pulpits, white and colored, supported by the secular, as well as by the Christian press, are united in their determination to arouse public opinion to the importance of observing this day, [illegible] as a day of rest and worship. A more worthy movement could not be inaugurated. FIRST ROUND UPON THE LA TECHE DISTRICT.

We are just now closing our first round upon the district, which begun in Alexandria, on Sunday, Feb. 26, with glorious indications. The pastor, Rev. S. E. H. Morant starts off grandly upon his second year's pastorate. The church and school are flourishing, and the people in happy anticipation of having the honor, as well as the privilege of entertaining our next Annual Conference, are planning to act well their part. The Sunday-School, divided off into missionary bands, is working to raise their pastor's $100 subscription toward the erection of our Gilbert Haven School of Theology. And they are going to work like beavers. How is this for taking time by the forelock? This is a wise movement and should be vigorously seconded in every one of our charges. This School of Theology subscription should not be delayed, but pushed forward strenuously. Take time by the forelock, brethren!

We were to have held quarterly meetings at Avoca before, and at Spring Creek after our meetings in Alexandria, but the very high stage of water prevented. Bros. Hampton and Wright, pastors of these respective circuits met us, however, and expressed themselves as being favorably impressed with the indications for the future development of their work. For our rapid transit to Cheneyville, our next appointment, which under the circumstances could not be reached in time otherwise, and also for his generous courtesy, we owe to Mr. Pandely, Superintendent of Morgan's La. & Texas R. R. Co. our grateful acknowledgements. Indeed, were it not for Mr. Pandely's kindness this appointment would have been omitted, because, left by the stage in Alexandria, under impression that the train would commence regular trips from February 28th, we waited for it, only to learn that it would not go out until next day, exactly one whole day too late for us. But contrary to established custom, Mr. Pandely very kindly tendered us transportation upon his special train, refusing to accept any fare from us, and expressing himself as being happy in being able to confer the favor. Such courtesies, especially when rendered to one of the proscribed race, by a rich corporation, are worthy of special mention and praise. Thank you Mr. Pandely, God bless you! At Cheneyville we found Bro. Sparks low in stature, but with a good large spark of grace that filled up the large soul, which fills his physical outline, leading his brigade onward and upward. Several have joined the church and many were seeking the love of Christ. The removal of Bro. Ford was much regretted, but as good loyal Methodists, the army continues to move solidly forward under Bro. Sparks leadership.

Bro. C. Thompson at Booneville, is succeeding nicely. It cannot be otherwise, when the man suits the place and the place fits the man. The church is alive and has a good live preacher. We have here a good church, a splendid parsonage and a most excellent people. In fact this is one of the best in the district. In addition to his church work, Bro. Thompson teaches a large school, attended by seventy or more scholars. A very sad accident occurred here while we were at Cheneyville. Bro. Thompson leaving his school in charge of a good, reliable, settled lady, coming to get me in a buggy, when he returned the sad intelligence was announced to him, that Buny Green, one of his smartest school boys of twelve summers, not heeding the acting teacher's caution, went and played in the bayou, and was drowned before any thing could be done for his rescue. We assisted in the funeral services which were largely attended. We fully sympathise with the parents. Reaching Holmesville, or Eola Station as the post-office is now called, our next point, just a little after 12 o'clock m., we found Bro. Robt. Anderson still at his studies, which he pursues regularly from morn to noon daily. He met us with a smile upon his countenance; and a good solid, hard studied book in his hand. That's right Bro. Anderson, continue your studies in the morning and your pastoral visitations in the afternoon. Our work here, under God, is in good hands. Much has been accomplished in building up and beautifying the church property, and the best of feeling prevails. We may, from all indications, expect a wide spreading of the tents of Zion here this year. The quarterly meeting proved a season of great spiritual refreshing. Bayou De Glaise, Rev. A. Hilton, preacher in charge, and Flat Town and Chicot Prairie, Rev. G. Auguste, preacher in charge, in consequence of high water and impassable roads, were not reached. We learn, however, that Bros. Hilton and Auguste are at their respective circuits, and under existing surroundings are doing all they can to build up their new openings. At his post of duty, in Washington, we found Rev. Henry Green, one of those twelve venerable fathers, who organized the mission conference, out of which our conference, the Mississippi and the four Texas conferences have sprouted and grown. Father Green commences his pastorate here with many promising signs. Satan tried to hedge himself in advance to give our aged warrior battle upon his arrival here, but thanks to the sword of the spirit, loyalty to Methodism and the power of faithful prayer, the enemy is discomfited, routed and put to fight. Twelve or thirteen have joined the church and many others are deeply concerned. Although past his three score and ten years, Father Green seems determined to keep up with the boys for a while longer at any rate, and he is still leading the van against the fortifications of his Satanic majesty with glorious results. We know that it will interest our readers to learn that Father Green is now seventy years and over, is just now shedding his old teeth and cutting out new ones. This sounds funny, but it happens to be a funny fact and that is all. The old gentleman's eyes are getting a little dim however, but since he has been so fortunate as to commence getting new teeth he has been indulging the idea that his sight also might be renewed. With a full round of new teeth and renewed vision, we can wish Father Green nothing better than that in addition to these, his strength be renewed like the eagle, for many more years of honorable, if not effective service in the church. Coming to Opelousas and preaching there on Sunday night, March 5, it was agreeably surprising to find pastor and people in such splendid spirits and moving off so very vigorously. The church, for the first time in months, was crowded from the altar to the door. Rev. A. Luster, the pastor, had been conducting a protracted meeting, which had resulted in an accession of over a score of precious souls in the church and in awakening much interest on the part of the community. Should pastor and people be blessed to continue as they have commenced this conference year, great good will here be accomplished.

From this point Waxia was reached in time to hold quarterly conference in the afternoon and preach at night,—and a dreadful night it was in the woods and out of the way as this place is, that dark and dreary night when we valiantly thought that we were the only ones sufficiently brave to venture out, we were met by a crowded house of people, who had come some three, four and five miles to church. The Lord be praised for such a glorious meeting, in what appeared at first to be such a desolate region. Rev. T. Larkin the pastor, has many warm hearted people here who will hold up his arms. Bro. Luster accompanied us here and added much to the interest of the services. Eight persons came forward for prayer and joined the church on probation, and a pure blooded Indian was converted and joined also. Said he; "Glory to God, me know me born of the God, me know me belong to Jesus band, me want to die in his band." The Lord help him, and speed the day when the sons of Ham, Shem and Japhet, the human trinity in unity, shall all be gathered into the blessed kingdom of our Lord and his Christ. In company with Bro. Luster after service, at midnight we started in our buggy for Washington. Although the night was dreary, the journey lonely and the roads fearfully bad and muddy, in order to make our other connections we had to go then. Upon this desperate journey we made out pretty well, however, until 2 o'clock in the morning, when, while the rain was pouring down in such tremendous showers, that it seemed that all the doors as well as the windows of the heavens had been thrown open, our buggy was stalled in the mud and water, our horse to the nostril in the quagmire, had broken all the harness trying to draw us out, and then we ourselves had to get out above our knees in mud and water. Then Greeks met Greeks sure enough! For this once, if never before, we felt that so far as we were concerned we could afford to let Peter Cartwright go alone with his proud distinction of "fifty years a presiding elder." The Lord strengthen us for this work! But we forgot we were in the mud and went to talking about Peter Cartwright. Knee deep in mud and water, rain pouring down in torrents, 2 o'clock a. m., and we are out here in the road mending our harnesses. Bye and bye we put our shoulders to the wheel, and whip to the horse again, trusting in the Lord, we were soon trotting up the way, crossing creeks and bayous on our way to Washington, which we reached in time to make connection for St. Martinsville our next appointment. Here Bro. Gates and his refined and highly cultured young bride were found hard at work, for the peace and prosperity of Zion. We have here a pretty good church and a very neat, commodious parsonage. When finished it will be one of our very best. The church was doing very well. Bro. Gates and his wife also teach a very good school, thereby reaching a very important portion of this community that heretofore was never reached by our church. All the indications speak favorably. Sister Merritt also, in her capacity as district missionary for organizing branches to the Woman's Home Missionary Society, is preparing for active operations. Pastors in the district should correspond with Sister Gates.

At New Iberia, Bro. Davis was laying his foundation deep and broad for future operations. Every thing was not exactly as desirable as could be, but hopeful signs indicated that a good year's work will be accomplished. Things were shaping themselves nicely for much good.

Bro. Fields, at Jeannerette is doing good work, and is endearing himself to the people. The church here and at St. Peter are both doing nicely. This is one of the churches blown down by the storm of 1879. It is substantially rebuilt and when thoroughly completed, will be a model of neatness and comfort. Get it finished, brethren! Saturday, Sunday and Monday, March 11, 12 and 13, were spent at Cypremort, with Bro. W. Brooks. At this point matters are somewhat complicated. Clouds of uncertainty, in consequence of debts, litigations, etc., hang over this people; but with the spirit manifested at quarterly meeting, and under the wise leadership of their worthy pastor, we hope to see every cloud vanish and the bright sunshine of their most sanguine expectation realized. Stand united, watch and pray, trust in the Lord and light will come. In connection with this charge our work on Cote Blanche Island is in a very good condition. Twenty odd have been converted and joined the church. Here the work is greatly revived. The spirituality of both work and Sunday-school are excellent.

Bro. Braxton Bolden, at Pecan, finding no church there could not do much, but is starting off with fair prospect of gaining a solid footing. He can get the people if he can only get the ground upon which to build. Our Gilbert Haven School of Theology, the temperance resolutions of our last conference, as well as other matters of importance we did not fail to impress upon every church and pastor; let all now govern themselves accordingly. Thus ends our first round. While our Pauls and Apollos are planting and watering, may the Lord of the harvest graciously give the increase, and to His name shall be all the glory evermore, A.

— Rev. W. C. Webb, former pastor of Meridian Street Church, Indianapolis, and late pastor of Ames Methodist Church, New Orleans, while visiting friends at Indianapolis, preached to his former parishioners with great acceptability. The Times-Democrat, of this city, made kind mention of his services here. He spent a few days with his wife's family in Alexandria, Va. before going to his new charge in Philadelphia.

— Bishop Foss had the misfortune to sprain his right ankle, January 19th. It caused him but slight inconvenience till Sunday, Feb. 5, when, (in Litchfield, Minn.,) on his way to evening service, he sprained it again severely. He managed to get to the place of worship, and preached sitting in a chair. Since he has not been able to walk a step without the aid of crutches, nor much of the time to ride in a carriage. The confinement did not seem to affect his health materially until March 18, when he suffered a sharp attack of bilious fever. This soon yielded to treatment. His physicians considered it impracticable for him to attempt to preside over the New York Conference, and Bishop Foster kindly consented to hold it.

— It is safe to say that no man will be more missed in the Conference to which he belonged, nor by a wider circle of personal acquaintances, than he. Dr. George W. Woodruff was a native of New York City, and was born in 1824. Converted while very young, he studied at Oberlin College, and entered the ministry in 1845. His ministry was generally successful, and in some places he attained a high degree of popularity and usefulness. Fourteen times he was annually chosen the Secretary of the New York East Conference, and might have continued in the office if he had not thought it best to decline a re-election. From 1868 to 1872 he was a member of the Book Committee, and in 1872, after Dr. Harris was elected a Bishop, he was made the Secretary of the General Conference. In 1876, though not a member of the body, he was elected its Secretary, and again in 1880. His wife was a daughter of the Rev. George Coles, who was Assistant Editor of The Christian Advocate for twelve years.—N. Y. Advocate.

An Appeal.

The New-Orleans Preachers' Meeting having learned with profound regret the general destitution resulting to our people in the overflowed districts by the devastations of the flood in the Mississippi Valley, and that in consequence of their being destitute, by loss of stock and every thing available to gain a livelihood, many of them are now, and even after the waters assuage, in consequence of their extreme poverty, will become dependents of the more fortunate; therefore, in order to help preserve life and aid our people in making a start in procuring a living, by getting food, seeds, etc., by the instruction of the New-Orleans Preachers' Meeting we issue this appeal, urgently soliciting the contributions of all friends of humanity, and the members of our Church in particular. Contributions of money, clothing, bedding, provisions, seeds, etc., may be addressed to Austin District West Texas Conference.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 16th, 1882.

DEAR EDITOR.—As I have now finished the first round on my district I desire to say that I began my work January 1st at Cunningham and West Point. Though the pastor, Rev. J. Smith, had not had time to go over the circuit, it being a new one to him; yet he had everything in as good shape as could be expected of a new pastor in two weeks time. The meeting was a success. The Lord was pleased to be with us. The pastor's salary was fixed at three hundred and fifty dollars by the estimating committee and forty by the Missionary Society. January 7 and 8 at the Lagrange circuit we could not do much on account of rain. However we preached to the few that came out. Rev. D. Mucher expects to do a good work this year by the help of the Master. Quartely conference did not meet January 1st. We were at Austin Station where the Rev. A. B. Norris had everything in order. The meeting was good. The pastor's salary was fixed at $650 by the committee, presiding elder's $100. The people of Austin will take care of the preachers stationed among them.

The Conference for the Simpson Mission Work was held January 28th. The weather was very disagreeable, but the conference members were all out, and we had a nice time with the pastor and brethren. The committee reported $500 as the amount necessary for their pastor, Rev. G. Norman. We expected to have a grand time on Sunday, but it rained all day, so we had no meeting.

February 4th we found Rev. C. C. Robinson at Giddings. The meeting was to have been held at 3 o'clock Saturday evening, but the pastor and members could not attend until 9 o'clock that night. The committee reported $75 as the amount necessary to furnish their pastor a comfortable living. He has a wife and two children, but committee think $75 will be enough for them. I tried to get them to do better, but as the pastor had accepted the report of the comittee before I got there I could not turn the tide. They said that was all the people were able to give. Of course they don't know what the people can and will do. The duty of the committee is to estimate the amount necessary to give the preachers a comfortable living and not to estimate the amount that the people are able to give.

February 11th we were on the the McDade work. We had a very good meeting on the Sabbath, but the quarterly conference meeting was very poor, nothing had been done worth speaking of. No estimation was made. Rev. R. P. Brown is the pastor here.

February 18th at Georgetown Bro. B. Henderson was ready for us. Rev. A. S. Richardson, pastor of the A. M. E. Church did not have any meeting in his church on that day, but he and his members were with us in the afternoon and in the evening. If those two ministers will continue this good feeling between them and the people, they will both succeed. The committee estimated $225 for the pastor.

February 25th we found Rev. A. Majors at Taylor. Here we have only 18 members on the whole work. I think it was a mistake in making this a circuit when one part of the work could have been attended to from Georgetown, and the other from the Simpson mission work. However we held the quarterly meeting with the pastor and three other brethren. Pastor's salary was fixed at $200. The pastor has six in family. He has to walk some eight miles or more to get to his work on Brushie Creek. We have only two or three members in town, and the greatest trouble is there are not many colored people to build up a work.

March 4th we called on the Rev. Thomas Wadkins at Rock Dale and Davilla. I got to Rock Dale on Friday and found that I was still twenty-five miles from where the conference was to be held. The brethren wanted me to preach for them at night, of course I had to do so. But Mr. Editor it was a poor preach in the back part of an old store-house where there was a family living, and I think as well as I could see in the dark, and from the looks of things I must have been in the kitchen part. I had a chair for my pulpit. I got behind that and did the best I could. I was glad to leave here at 8 o'clock Saturday morning, paying my way on the mail hack. We got to Davilla about three o'clock in the afternoon. I now found that I was still five miles from where the meeting was to be held. I went on horse back, and in wagon, and on foot until I got there. Well we had a very good time in a little log cabin. Pastor's salary fixed at $144, with a membership of nearly 100. On the whole we have good people on this circuit, and if we can manage to get up some meeting houses we will do well, but the way things are now at Rock Dale, Giddings and Lagrange circuit, it is enough to crush the spirit of a young man, but we generally stand our ground in this part of the Master's vineyard and do the best we can. The next place was Belton, March 11th, where Rev. S. Smith and brethren were all on hand in good time. The conference passed off nicely. Pastor's salary was fixed at $300. The meeting on Sunday and Sunday night was well attended, notwithstanding it rained all Saturday night. The church is not in Belton but is away out about one mile and a half, and the black mud and rocks Brethren, please take notice, on the next round I shall report just exactly what you have done in three months time; all the Sunday-school work, and the amount paid the preachers, number of members in each charge, the number that attend class and pay the pastor, and so on. This has been a wet and cold winter, it has rained nearly every Sunday since Christmas. I have received for my labor in the wet and cold the sum of $74 05, this would about pay house rent and traveling expenses. I will commence my second round on the 18th of March. Pray for us.

Yours in Christ,
O. L. MADISON.

Suicide.

If a deliberate swift act of suicide is considered a crime and a cowardly action, what name should be given to a slow lingering and painful destruction of a man's life, by his own hand? And yet such things happen all around. A man over taxes his brain, his stomach, and his nerves, day after day, week after week, until at last, one fine morning, he is utterly broken down. Then he gets [illegible] patched up somehow or another with an artificial medication, which while it temporarily mends up one part of his frame, [illegible] another and so he goes on [illegible] drops of his own accord into the hand of death. Dr. Clark Johnson's Indian Blood Syrup invigorates the liver, purifies the blood, tones the stomach, regulates the [illegible] kidneys, quiet the nerves, and [illegible] opens the pores of the skin.

[illegible] bridge in the world [illegible] will be the bridge [illegible] is now in progress on the [illegible] of the Erie Railroad, on the top of the Allegheny Mountains [illegible] a ravine 300 feet deep.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

The reopening services of our Frist German church, corner of St. Andrew and Franklin streets, Rev. D. Matthei pastor, were held last Sunday. Rev. O. Urbantke, presiding elder, delivered the opening address. He was followed by Rev. W. Traeger and the pastor; after which a collection of over $60 for expenses of repairs was taken up. The repairs, which have renovated and added to the cosy appearance of the church, cost in all $656; and this sum has been collected and paid the past month. Rev. Matthael reports 90 members, and 125 Sabbath school children, and is highly encouraged. The church was well filled on Sunday; among the visitors were Revs H. Kleinhagen and F. Zeimer, of the Lutheran Rev. L. Voss, of the Presbyterian; and Revs A. Traeger and A. E. P. Albert, of the M. E. Church. The officers are under obligations to liberal friends for their generous contributions and assistance in the repair of the church.

TEXAS.

S. Smith, Belton: "My work is in a very good condition. Our elder visited us and was welcomed, we gave him $10."

Jeremiah Smith, Beaumont, "Rainy weather has interfered with church attendance. We are in need of spiritual power. Four have joined on probation, 2 received in full membership."

J. Shackleford, Clarksville: The church at Beaumont paid pastor last year $117,15; elder $15; church and school expenses $35; improvement of church $45, benevolent purposes $3, Total $215.15. Sister Adeline Morton was an active member. There were several subscribers to the church paper. The church at Orange paid pastor $127,-90, elder $15; church expenses $30, for other objects $31,50. Total from the two churches $433,55."

MISSISSIPPI.

Rev. M. Adams, Ex-Prairie circuit, write that he has eight appointments with large congregation. Collections for pastor are increasing, as well as those for the church. Property is to be improved, and the benevolent and educational causes attended to.

Rev. I. L. Pratt, who for a number of years has sustained a good reputation in Corinth, has been appointed by the Colored Methodist Conference to a pastorate at Macon. [illegible] met him in our town this week [illegible] learn from him that the outlook in his new field is promising [illegible] that he is zealously applying himself to the work of his charge. Herald, Corinth.

B. J. Griffin: "A great misfortune befell the Hernando work on the night of March 26. The church at Love's Station was burned down. There had been no fire in the building for a month, and we have no clue to the incendiary. The church was completed and valued at $900. [illegible] desire assistance from all brethren to allow us to rebuild before August 1. Do all you can, and pray for us."

TENNESSEE.

J. L. Massey, Linden: "Elder J. Price held our quarter Feb 26, and his visit was appreciated. There are many excellent Methodists in this part of the country. The young people led by their Sunday school superintendents are going forward. Bros. Harry Barns, Warder Smith, Mark Mitchell, Dennis [illegible], Jessie Chappel and Doss Whitaker have provided a horse for their pastor. Pray that we may be able to do much for the master this year."

ARKANSAS.

Geo. W. Babers, Lockesburg: "The church has agreed to pay pastor $800. I have already collected some for the missionary cause."

S. W. Sams, Jacksonport: "I desire to correct a mistake, that appeared in your last week's issue, concerning the revival at Van Buren, as clipped from the Arkansas Mission. There were not 800 accessions to the church. Some one [illegible], will give you and your readers in time, the result of that revival."

Mr. James B. Bailey, of Syracuse, N. Y., writes: "Of all men born to suffer, I think I have had my fullest share; from my fourteenth year I have been a miserable invalid. When twenty-six years of age, I felt I was sixty. My troubles made me unfit for business or pleasure. A year ago I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, and now in my twenty-seventh year I feel myself for once in my life, 'A perfect man.'"

SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON II. April 9
DEATH OF JOHN THE BAPTIST. (Mark vi. 14-29.

(Condensed from Western Christian Advocate.)

VERSES 14-16 King—In a loose sense of that term. He was really tetrarch, Antipas; son of Herod the Great. There are no less than six Herods mentioned in the new Testament. The works of the disciples were known as wrought through the name of Jesus, and by their labors was the fame of Chist increased. Risen from the dead—A supposed real resurrection. 15 Others said, that it is Elias—The prophet Elijah, whose coming before the Messiah was predicted (Malachi iv, 5). This prophecy was fulfilled in the coming of the Baptist; but the fact that some of the people discovered Messianic signs in the works of Jesus points to their unusual character, raising a strong natural presumption in their favor. VERSES 17-29. Now follows the explanation of Herod's opinion. Which once more sharply defines and fixes the resposibility of John's death upon him. He not only put him in a dungeon, but also bound him therein. The place of his confinement, according to Josephus, was Machærus, on the confines of Perea. Herodias was daughter of Aristobulus, son of Herod the Great, hence a niece to Herod Antipas. She was first married to Herod Philip I, her father's brother, her uncle. But this prince was disinherited by his father and retired to private life. A private station did not satisfy the ambition of Herodias, and she deserted him, marrying Herod Antipas, who for her sake had divorced his wife, the daughter of an Arabian king. Herod's reason for imprisoning John was due to the influence of Herodias on her husband growing out of her feelings against John, originating from John's criticism of their marriage. This union was adulterous, as her husband was still living and again because the wife of Herod was living. The relationship between the persons was too near to allow of marriage. Herod had great respect for John and dreded his power if exercised against him It was due to this feeling of Herod that his wife was unable to carry out her wish to kill John. He watched him carefully, that no harm was done him, and thus prevented the fatal results anticipated from his wife's malice. He did many things—enjoined upon him by John. He did not do the principal thing, repent, but he acknowledged by his altered conduct the influence of John. It was foolish, and unprincipled of Herod to make such an oath. In the true sense it was no oath, and the disregarding it would have been no impiety. Every dictate of righteousness, humanity, and reason required him to disregard it. His is a striking example of a person entrapped by casuistry into the commission of a crime. The head was given to Herodias, who is said to have treated it shamefully.

DR. C. W. BENSON, BALTIMORE, MD.

We give above a correct likeness of this well known and successful physician and surgeon, who has made a life long study of Nervous Diseases and the Diseases of the Skin, and he now stands in the highest rank, as authority on those special and distressing diseases. In the course of his practice he discovered what now are renowned in medical practice, viz: a combination of Celery and Chamomile in the shape of Pills. They are used by the profession at large and constantly recommended by them.

It is not a patent medicine. It is the result of his own experience in practice. They are a sure cure for the following special diseases and are worthy of a trial by all intelligent sufferers. They are prepared expressly to cure sick headache, nervous headache, dyspeptic headache, neuralgia, paralysis, sleeplessness dyspepsia and nervousness, and will cure any case.

Sold by all druggists. Price 50 cents a box. Depot, 106 North Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md By mail, two boxes for $1, or six boxes for $2.50, to any address.

DEATHS.

Sister Sarah Saddler of the M. E. Church of Milam Grove, Texas, departed this life March 2d, 1882, aged 57 years, after an illness of seven weeks. She lived a faithful member of the Church for thirty years, and died in the full triumph of living faith—singing—"Away over in the promised land, My Lord calls me and I must go," etc. Turning to her children she said: "Be good children, meet me in heaven." She leaves a host of friends to mourn her loss.

S. FOSTER.

Died in Holly Springs, Miss., February 26, 1882, Miss Helena C. Fry, of Reading, Pa. Miss Fry was a graduate of Howard University, Washington, D. C., and had been teaching in the Mississippi State Normal School for five years. She was a very thorough and efficient teacher, and greatly loved and respected by her pupils and friends. She was the daughter of a Methodist minister, and although a member of the Presbyterian Church had been, during her entire stay in Holly Springs, a faithful teacher and organist in the Asbury M. E. Sabbath-school. Her people mourn her early death sincerely, realizing their great loss, for she was a lady of unusual culture and natural ability.

The following resolutions were passed by the Sabbath-school and requested to be published in the SOUTHWESTERN:

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his wise Providence to remove, by death, our friend, teacher, and fellow-laborer, Miss Helena C. Fry, and

Whereas, We, the teachers and scholars, wish to express our appreciation of her worth and Christian character, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Miss Helena C. Fry we have all sustained an irreparable loss; that from her class, "Faith, Hope and Charity," has been taken a wise and loving teacher, from the school a faithful and efficient organist; and from many of our number a warm personal friend, and

Resolved, That we do, as a school and personally, sincerelly sympathize with the aged mother and family of the deceased in this their great bereavement, and

Resolved, That these resolutions be published in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and that a copy be sent to the family of the deceased as a token of our respect, and as an expression of our condolence.

A WONDERFUL and
SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

A Human Barometer.

THE REAL RELATION BETWEEN THE HUMAN BODY AND THE WEATHER SCIENTIFICALLY EXPLAINED.

[Scientific American.]

One of the most valuable developments of modern science along the line of human necessity is the National Weather Bureau at Washington. Experience has shown that eighty-six per cent. of the predictions of the signal service are accurate; and these predictions are unquestionably of the greatest advantage to the seaman, the agriculturist and the entire commercial world. The service has proven its necessity by its usefulness, for in past times the facilities for foretelling atmospheric changes were meagre indeed. The only indications our fathers had of coming changes in the weather were aching limbs, twinging joints or painful corns. These "indications," though crude, were usually correct, and hence naturally suggest the inquiry as to the relation between the human system and the weather. The body is unquestionably an excellent barometer. It foretells changes in the atmosphere long before they occur, and this fact has been taken advantage of by physicians who, when all other agencies fail, [illegible] hoping the body may find an atmospheric condition better suited to its needs. And yet the real relation between the human body and the weather has never been fully understood, nor has there ever until now been a correct explanation of what rheumatism (which [illegible]) really is. It was originally thought by many to be a trouble in the blood, and as such was treated [illegible] conclusion of this truth is inevitable: perfect kidneys mean freedom from rheumatism.

When rheumatism has manifested itself in any special part of the body, attempts have usually been made to treat that part of the body. As a result, the pain has departed but the disease has remained, lying subtly concealed and ready to break out at some unexpected moment. Checking the pain in any single locality only scatters the disease through the system, when, if the seat of the disorder, which are the kidneys, were reached, a complete cure would be the result. The way, therefore, to expel this rank and poisonous acid before it assumes an inflammatory or chronic form is by keeping the kidneys in absolute health. This is no easy thing to do, and no means has, until within the past few years, been known which would successfully reach and affect these great organs. At last, however, scientists have discovered that the leaves of a tropical plant, previously but little known to science and unknown to medicine, possessed marvelous qualities adapted for the kidneys. These leaves have been skilfully combined in the remedy known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. It is, up to the present time, the only known preparation that acts so directly upon the kidneys as to effectually cure the various dangerous forms of kidney disease, and hence remove all uric acid from the blood. As a result, the cures it has been the means of performing are really very remarkable. Indeed, there are thousands of persons in America to-day who owe their restoration to health and entire freedom from rheumatism to this simple yet powerful remedy, which is known universally, manufactured in Rochester, N. Y., and sold in every drug store in the land.

From the doctors in the various cities of the United States who have certified over their own signatures to the scientific statement that uric acid in the blood is the cause of rheumatism, are a large number of Chicago and St. Louis physicians, among them being Dr. Adolph Uhlemeyer, Dr. Wm. Webb, Dr. John M. Frank, Dr. Edwin T. Webster, Dr. Benjamin F. Whitmore, Dr. William T. Richardson, Dr. Robert T. Atkinson, Dr. Thos. F. Humbold, Dr. William M. McPheeters, Dr. William Johnson, Dr. Isaac N. Love, Dr. Clark Whittier, Dr. J. T. Hodgen, Dr. Thomas F. Dunigan, Dr. Nicholas Guhman, Dr. Antonio Prietta, Dr. Charles H. Goodman, Dr. Daniel Kuhn, Dr. Henry Newland, Dr. Williams S. Wortman, Dr. George T. Fitzer, Dr. Henry F. Aulbrandt, Dr. Elijah T. Frazier, Dr. Carl Spinzig, Dr. David B. Martin, Dr. Benjamin B. Taylor, Dr. James L. Logan, Dr. A. Hencock, Dr. Henry Kirchner, Dr. John J. Kane, Dr. Henry F. W. Kruse, Dr. William C. Glasgow, Dr. Jeremiah S. B. Alleyne, Dr. Thomas S. Comstock, Dr. Charles H. Hughes, Dr. Frederick Kolbenheyer, Dr. Joseph Hellsig, Dr. Edward A. DeOathol, Dr. Bernard Roemer, Dr. James M. Olopton, Dr. Charles V. Ware, Dr. Alphonse Jaminet, Dr. James L. Kent, Dr. William S. Barker, Dr. Simon C. Martin, Dr. Rudolph Studhatter, Dr. Louis P. Ehrmann, Dr. John A. King, Dr. Simeon E. Garlock, Dr. Theodore Foy, Dr. John B. Faber, Dr. Ernest F. Hoffman, Dr. Herman Nagle, Dr. Adolph Wislizenus, Dr. Alex. J. Pirde, Dr. Edward Rose, Dr. William H. Grayson, Dr. Hugo M. Starkloff, Dr. Robert M. Swander, Dr. William N. Brennan, Dr. Temple S. Hoyne, Dr. Lyman Ware, Dr. Charles W. Hemstead, Dr. William J. Hawkes, Dr. T. O. Duncan, Dr. William E. Griswold, Dr. Lyman Bedford, Dr. A. B. Westcott, Dr. J. B. Bell, Dr. Charles M. Clark, Dr. W. H. Woodbury, Dr. Alfred H. Hiatt, Dr. Herman Hahn, Dr. Calvin M. Fitch and Dr. John D. M. Carr.

The theory of the doctors as above explained finds its confirmation in the fact that when the kidneys have been cured, rheumatism is completely removed. This is not, of course, always accomplished instantly, for in a disease so subtle, the cure is often very slow, but no other plan can give any hope of permanent relief ever be found. There are hundreds of cases on record during the present Winter of persons afflicted with rheumatic troubles of the worst order who have been entirely cured by following the theory above stated and using the remedy mentioned. Many of these persons had the very worst possible symptoms. Vague aches in different portions of the body were followed by agonies the most intense in some particular spot. Acute and throbbing pains succeeded each other and the coursing poisonous acid inflamed all the veins. Troubles which began with slight disorders increased to derangements the most serious. It is sad to think that all this suffering was endured when it could have been so easily relieved. Acting upon the theory and using the remedy above mentioned the kidneys could have been restored to their usual vigor, the uric poison expelled from the system, the inflammation removed and the pain entirely banished.

These are some of the real and [illegible] facts regarding rheumatism [illegible] by the highest authority [illegible] and they are, beyond question [illegible] the only correct ones ever [illegible]. We are aware they [illegible] ideas, but ten years [illegible] will be the accepted belief [illegible] practice of the world. It [illegible] rheumatic troubles [illegible] the future and with these truths before them, they certainly blame no one but themselves.

A Brave Little Girl.

One of the life-saving stations on the California coast has been officially named the Maggie Geddes. This is a recognition of the bravery of Maggie Geddes, of San Antonio. She is only nine years old. Seeing a younger playmate fall down a high embankment into a mill-race she instantly jumped after her. The water was deep and ran swiftly towards a large wheel; but Maggie was a good swimmer, and by a desperate struggle got ashore with her playmate. Such coolness and courage were deemed worthy of special honor.

A Lady in the Matter.

That "woman's wit is often superior to man's wisdom," was convincingly proved in a circumstance that occured in this city recently. It appears that Mr. Ludwig Schwarzler, a widely known Grocer on Station Road, suffered with a very painful rheumatic headache to such a degree, that he was obliged to seek the aid of a physician. All medicines he used were of no avail. This induced Mrs. Schwarzler to buy St. Jacobs Oil. She procured a bottle for her husband. With the second application he found relief. The pain left him, and he is as well as ever again. A remedy acting as promptly as this certainly deserves universal patronage.

The governor of the Gold Coast says that nobody there has heard a word as to the King of Ashantee killing two hundred girls to use their blood for mortar, and that such a proceeding would have been impossible for him. Mr. Bannerman, son of an Ashantee princess, told the governor that "the king has no more power to kill two hundred or even two girls under such circumstances and for such purposes as those alleged than the governor has himself, and that the whole story is a fabrication exported from Cape Coast."

"Dragging Pains."

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife had suffered with "female weakness" for nearly three years. At times she could hardly move, she had such dragging pains. We often saw your "Favorite Prescription" advertised, but supposed like most patent medicines it did not amount to any thing, but at last concluded to try a bottle, which she did. It made her sick at first, but it began to show its effect in a marked improvement, and two bottles cured her. Yours, etc., A. J. HUYCK Deposit, N. Y.

In the north of Scotland an eagle carried a cat into her nest. Feigning death the cat was left by the eagle with her young ones. As soon as the old bird left, pussy sprang upon the eaglets, made a meal of one of them, and effected her escape without injury.

An Editor's Opinion.

An editorial friend of ours who has grown enthusiastic over a certain remedy which has cured him of dyspepsia, general debility and nervousness, writes an editorial as follows: "We believe that Brown's Iron Bitters are destined to be THE medicine of world. They give real health and strength to every part of the body, restore every lost or impared organic function, and give new life and new vigor to every physical and mental faculty. Every man and woman in ill-health should rejoice that a real cure lies in Brown's Iron Bitters.

A Good Housewife.

A good housewife, when she is giving her house its spring renovation, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood; regulating the stomach and the bowels to prevent and cure the deseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of medicines.—Concord (N. MR. EDITOR—I would be glad to hear of the whereabouts of my mother. Her name was Lavina Rice or Lavina Claiborne. She used to belong to Thomsberry Bailey, in Preston County, Virginia. Was sold to Renshaw and Brady, negro-traders, who brought her further down South. Have never heard of her since. Any information about her will be highly appreciated. Address me at No. 220 Bienville street, New Orleans, La.

ALCINDA THOMAS.

MR. EDITOR—This is to inquire for my sister Julia, whom I left in Arkansas, Union Couny, about two years before the termination of the war. She was the daughter of Eliza, and Jesse Harper. She having married a man whose name was Tozey, a servant of Mr. McKinney, she was therefore sold to him, McKinney. But my parents and the following children were brought to Texas. Alfred, Lewis, Thomas, Harriett, Airlene, and myself. At this time we all belonged to a man by the name of Wyrett Harper. We all therefore were Harpers. But we go by the name of Shackelford, now. Addrress me at Clarksville, Texas.

JAS. E. SHACKELFORD.

DEAR EDITOR—I desire to inquire for my kin people. I left them in Mississippi, near Columbus, Calaway County. They belonged to Mr. Parker, a lawyer. His wife's name was Lizzie, they had three children, one boy and two girls, boy's name was Brooks, and girls, Mary Ann and Sarah Ann. The names of my kin people as follows. Father's name was Aaron, and mother's Malinda. She died before I left. Father married again, his last wife's name was Serilda. There was seven brothers of us, Beverley, oldest, Dave, Moses, Harry, Eddie, Dickery, John Wesley, my name. I have two more brothers. Tucker, and Gilbert. Gilbert fell in the fire. Have five sisters; Mary, she is dead, Fannie, Bettie, Easter, and America. Two uncles, Dan and Dick. I was sold to a Mr. Blum Phillips, who brought me to Texas. Father's last wife belonged to a Mr. Mack Mcguire. It was in 1862. I will thank any reader for information of their whereabouts. Address me care of Prof. Willis H. Jackson, Pattison Station. Waller County, Texas.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC.

A combination of Protoxide of Iron, Peruvian Bark and Phosphorus in a palatable form. The only preparation of iron that will not blacken the teeth, so characteristic of other iron preparations.

[illegible] I have used Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic in my practice, and in an experience of twenty-five years in medicine, have never found anything to give the results that DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC does. In many cases of Nervous Prostration, Female Diseases, Dyspepsia, and an impoverished condition of the blood, this peerless remedy, has in my hands, made some wonderful cures. Cases that have baffled some of our most eminent physicians, have yielded to this great and incomparable remedy. I prescribe it in preference to any iron preparation made. In fact, such a compound as DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC is a necessity in my practice. DR. ROBERT SAMUELS, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 28th, 1881. 3104 Wash Avenue.

It gives color to the blood, natural healthful tone to the digestive organs and nervous system, making it applicable to General Debility, Loss of Appetite, Prostration of Vital Powers and Impotence.

MESSRS. H. H. WARNER & CO.:
About two years ago I was attracted by the advertisement of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. My system was much run down and I had suffered the excruciating agonies of kidney and blood difficulties and especially from calculus. I determined to try the cure and bought 3 bottles, and when I had taken the first bottle I noted immediate improvement, and after taking the second I called myself toned up all through the system and extraordinarily well for a man of seventy-five. I have used in all about four bottles and would not be without it in case of any further trouble for any consideration. I recommend it freely to my friends as I consider it just what it purports to be a sure cure for kidney difficulties. Mrs. Guthrie, wife of my son, has also used it freely and with very marked benefit and perfect cure.

H. H. WARNER & CO.:
About 2 years ago I purchased some of the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure for my own and my wife's use. We took about four bottles and were both completely restored to health, my system having lost tone and Mrs. Connell being in very poor physical condition. We know it is a good thing from our own experience with it. A short time ago I was taken sick with a bilious attack. My kidneys and urinary organs were involved to a very painful degree. I am using the Safe Kidney and Liver Cure more in the hope that it will do me as much good as it did before.

THE BLESSED TASK.

I said: "Sweet Master, hear me pray;
For love of Thee the boon I ask,
Give me to do for Thee each day
Some simple, lowly, blessed task."
And listening long, with hope elate,
I only heard Him whisper, "Wait."
The days went by, but nothing brought
Beyond the wonted round of care,
And I was vexed with anxious thought,
[illegible]
But when I said, "In vain I pray!"
[illegible] "Nay."
So praying still and waiting on,
And pondering what the waiting meant,

[illegible] Our Utah Mission. [illegible]

"members," (110,000 adherents) in Utah. These members have been gathered by propagand efforts in the United States, Great Britain and other countries. They began in England, under Kimball and Hyde in 1837. In 1850, on the continent of Europe, where the "Book of Mormon" was translated. In 1849 a "perpetual emigration fund" was organized, which yields $65,000 a year. From 1870 to 1872 about 25,000 came to them from Europe alone.

Beyond those who stand in full Church relation, the number devoted to the Mormon organization and acting under its control is variously estimated at from 150,000 to 200,000. The Territory of Utah had a population by the late census of 143,934 (three times that of 1870). It has developed very considerable resources, notwithstanding serious obstacles to agriculture in some parts. It has its manufacturing and mining interests and a system of railroads. 20,000 children are said to be enrolled in its schools. There is a "University of Deseret" under its government, and fifteen newspapers exist in the territory. All this shows a certain activity and vigor in the Mormon system notwithstanding the glaring deficiences. Under this tyrannous monopoly, the industrial interests, it is said, fall far below the nominal state of development, while the schools seemed to be organized to fence in the children from genuine knowledge rather than to enlighten them. A competent witness has declared that in three years residence in Utah he found not more than three really educated people among the Mormons, and these were abnormal characters. Let Mormonism organize a society after its fashion. It is one of the most compact and centralized systems on earth with its terrible oaths and penalties, its titles, its multitude of officers and universal espionage. Its influence on the neighboring territories, Nevada, Arizona, Wyoming, Idaho, where it counts some 15,000 members, is most seriously felt and threatens to become controlling. From this organization they derive a great revenue. That of the priests alone is said to be over $200,000, but separate figures are probably not attainable. Of the thirty-six members of the present legislature thirty-two are church members, and twenty-eight polygamists in practice.

That the Mormon body should be called a "Church" is revolting in view of its leading characteristics. Yet consideration must be had for the deluded multitudes who have been gathered by its missionaries very often from Christian churches by putting forth in their persuasion certain common privileges of Christianity; with the promise of natural advantages in emigration, while for the most part the absurd and abominable features of the system are concealed. These are all learned after their arrival by the new comers, who, poor before, find themselves destitute in Utah and bound to the soil by necessity and dread of the power which has enslaved them. The doctrinal body of the system teaches that God is corporeal in nature, indeed that there are many gods. Young taught that Adam made the world. Baptism, they hold can wash away sins, except those which must be purified by "blood atonement," or taking the life of the guilty; such are apostacy and disclosure of the secrets of the Endowment House. The "atonement" enjoined for their sins is murder before the law of the land; yet out of the hundreds of such cases not one conviction has been had, and some of the perpetrators are federal office holders.

They hold to polygamy by virtue of a revelation to Smith in [illegible] Young taught that Jesus [illegible] practised polygamy. Plurality of wives is continued in [illegible] polygamy is of the [illegible] no consideration being [illegible] first wife, nor any re[illegible] by family relation [illegible] daughter, grand[illegible] wife of one man [illegible] the national law [illegible] that so wide spread was the evil—taking into view the remarkable increase of divorces in New England and other parts of the country—that no decisive action could be secured in Congress to check Mormon polygamy and power; but happily now the Edmunds bill has passed the House by five to one. It prohibits all offices in the territory and a seat in the legislature to any active polygamist, and establishes a commission to oversee the elections. This is a long step but it does not abolish polygamy nor by any means assure the rooting up of that abominable and diabolical system of fraud called Mormonism. Other legislation will be demanded by circumstances. Millard Filmore, under whom the territorial government was established in 1850, and who appointed Brigham Young, governor, afterward repented, and said there was no remedy but to reverse the whole course of action, putting the territory again under direct control of Congress through a commission.

2. Let earnest prayers be offered to the Federal Government that in dealing with this great evil wise and remedial laws may be passed, and efficiently executed, so as to secure the rights of the nation against social tyranny. Pray that the spread of this plague in the new territories may be every way hindered, and that a Christian civilization may speedily dispel this return of barbarism.

3. Whatever may be the course of political events or methods of legislation on this subject, Christian missionaries have their own service to perform and arduous work before them in Utah and in other communities under Mormon influence. They have real encouragement in the fact that a considerable number of Mormon adherents have not quite abandoned their former Christian sentiment for the Pagan views which are urged upon them; and there is some response to efforts made to furnish for the young a genuine education. Many will send their children to our schools, though there is also being organized, bitter, unrelenting opposition. "And here" says Bishop Wiley "is the key to the work and mission of the church in Utah. Educate the young people of Utah in Christian schools and you have well nigh solved the religious part of the problem of Mormonism. But into this work the Church must enter on a larger scale and with a broader purpose than in the past.

Other denominations are doing good church and school work, far surpassing us at least in the outlay of funds. Our missionary disbursements to Utah last year were $6 687 50. The Presbyterians spend $50,000 a year; at Salt Lake City alone, last year, $28,000. The Congregationalists are erecting a school building to cost $2500. The Catholics have expended $25,000, and the Episcopalians $40,000 in school-buildings. Their schools are flourishing. Our school work has struggled against the obstacles on the ground, chiefly being hampered, however, by want of adequate support. The Salt Lake Seminary has hitherto had no other accommodation than the basement of our church. Now the Woman's Home Missionary Society propose to put up a building to cost $5,000. A better day seems to have come for this institution. Prof. T. B. Hilton assumed the direction January 1, 1881. The Seminary issued a circular early in the present year setting forth its needs. (See Southwestern Christian Advocate, January 26. See especially on this subject, "Observations in Salt Lake City" by Mrs. Angie F. Newman, Central, March 8 and 15) We have found other schools of higher grade in the territory—at Ogden, Provo, Tooele, and Beaver—and 472 children in day-schools.

In Sabbath-schools we have 535 children. Our Mission numbers 11 Missionaries, 187 members and probationists, and $67,000 Church property. Of this property the larger portion is in the Church at Salt Lake City. To the efforts of Chaplain McCabe is due the payment of its heavy debt of $40,000. Rev. L. A. Rudisill is now pastor. Rev. R. M. Pierce is editing the Rocky Mountain Christian Advocate, and Prof. Hilton the Monthly Utah Review, ($2 a year). Let no one fail to read the last Missionary report from Utah.

Our hindrances in the Territory [illegible] in 1870 with slender resources and against bitter persecution. But the Mission lives, and is beginning to prosper. Hard work and sacrifices do it all, with God's help.

4 Prayers for our Missionaries and teachers in Utah—that they may still have courage to persevere; that God would be pleased to send His Spirit powerfully to open the way before them in the dark dark kingdom of evil against which they contend; and that more help may be directed to them from new resources at home.

The subject for June will be the South American Mission.

An African President's Letter.

The writer of the letter below was a Negro boy who was taken to Liberia from Southampton county, Virginia in 1831, when 11 years of age, and he has not been out of Liberia since. He is now president of the Republic of Liberia.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
MONROVIA, December 1, 1881.

My Dear Sir—Your very kind and interesting letter of October 29th, reached me yesterday, the 30th ult., just one month from the date of posting. Your congratulations on my re-election to the Presidency of the Republic of Liberia are gratefully received. It is a matter of no little gratification to me that the humble efforts put forth by my administration to promote the interests of this youthful nation are appreciated by old and faithful friends of Liberia at a distance.

This is the anniversary of the day when, in 1822, the question was decided by cannon and garments dyed in blood, whether the returning exiles from the United States would be permitted to have a foot hold in the land of our fathers. The material and physical odds were greatly in favor of our ignorant and misguided aboriginal brethren, but the God of battle was on our side. He sheltered and favored us. One chased a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight. The colony gained a firm foot hold, and has since continued to govern this portion of Africa, according to the principles of pure Christian and enlightened civilization.

The old feuds betweed us and the natives have passed away. As I write, the citizens are going to and fro, preparing for the festivities and rejoicings of the day, and the aborigines are fully taking part in the congratulations. The sons of those who resisted us with arms are in line, carrying muskets and swords in the military part of the procession, and one of the aborigines will be among the clergymen to take part in the religious exercises of the occasion. This is progress. But we are aiming at much more than this. We want the sanguinary memories of the day to be blotted out in a full recognition of the brotherhood and oneness of colonists and aborigines.

I have written a circular letter to all the powerful chiefs of the country, inland as far as Musardu, informing them of the desire of the government for their presence and co-operation at the meeting of the Legislature this month. The time will come when the native chiefs and communities of the interior will join us in celebrating the day on which our pilgrim fathers landed on Providence Island, as the epoch which marked the beginning of Africa's regeneration. I am the only survivor of the signers of the Declaration of Independence of Liberia, and I am endeavoring in my humble way to so conduct the affairs of this nation, that when my time comes to pass away from earth I may bear the intelligence to those who have gone before me, that not only the ship of state, which in 1847, we launched in fear and trembling, is still afloat with timbers sound and spars unharmed, but that the Lone Star of Liberia untarnished, pushing its way eastward—successfully achieving victories of peace even to the slopes of the Niger, gathering willing thousands under its elevating and hopeful folds.

Our schools, to which you refer, I am happy to say, are gaining in interest among the people. The masses are feeling more and more that education and liberty are inseparable and they are rejoicing in their increasing privileges. Liberia College is a growing centre of attraction. The achievements of that institution during the past year have given general satisfaction, and I am anxious that the government shall do all in its power to make it the University of this part of Africa. I trust that the friends of Liberia in America will come to the help of the College at this time. The experience of the past will guide us in the future. I want to see it developed to its utmost capacity. I believe in the dictum of Thomas Jefferson, "Make the University as good as possible, and the spirit of education will permeate the masses, in the end securing for them the highest possible attainments."

The American Colonization Society must feel greatly strengthened in its work. It has achieved what no other philanthropic agency in modern times has accomplished, and what perhaps, no nation could have effected, viz: the giving to the Negro an independent home in the land of his fathers, where he has an unlimited scope for development and expansion. Had Liberia been the colony of a powerful government, political and commercial jealousies, and the purpose of party spirit, might have prevented the surrender of the colony to the absolute control of the colonists. Hayti had to fight for her independence. It is not practicable for Great Britain to give up Jamaica, or Barbadoes, or Sierra Leone, or Lagos. But the American Colonization Society founded a nation and continues to strengthen it in order to elevate a race and redeem a Continent. So God takes the weak things of the earth to confound the things that are mighty. May God bless the society and give it increasing power in the eye of the citizens and government of the United States.

Yours respectfully.
ANTHONY W. GARDNER.

To WILLIAM COPPINGER, Esq.,
Sec'y. Am. Colonization Society.
—New York Observer.

Notes from South America.

SOUTH-EAST SOUTH AMERICA.—The news from this Mission is full of interest. Affairs are progressing as favorably as could be expected in the absence of the Superintendent. Brothers Milne and Correa have completed in safety their long tour up the great rivers, having reached the city of Cuyaba, two thousand and seventy-two miles from Montevideo. In some places they encountered hinderances and hardships, but in most places found great facilities for evangelizing those interior regions. They set at work in Paraguay a native of that country, who was converted in Uruguay, and now returns full of zeal to labor for the conversion of his countrymen. He hopes to reach the illiterate aboriginal masses, as their language (the Guarani) is his vernacular, and he knows their mode of life and habits of thoughts. He is to live on what he can get, together with a small allowance from the American Bible Society in connection with the sale of books. God bless the struggles now making to push the Gospel into the vast interior of South America!

SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARIES.—These continue to attract public attention to our work in the regions where it is established in a remarkably favorable manner. One held in a rural district was attended by three hundred persons some of whom were Romanists. The singing was accompanied by a piano, loaned for the occasion by a prominent Romanish family, and played by one of the young of that family. Another, held in the city of Montevideo, had an audience of three thousand people, admitted by tickets given out beforehand to personal applicants, and all taken two days in advance. The best classes of the people were largely represented and two of the most prominent literary men in the land took part in the programme with the Sunday-school scholars. Truly, God is giving unmistakable signs of success in that Mission.

MOVEMENTS OF BISHOP HARRIS.—After his trip down the west coast of South America Bishop Harris sailed from Valparaiso in the Liverpool steamer Britannia. Passing through the Straits of Magellan and up the coast of Patagonia he reached Montevideo on January 10. His steamer was a day ahead of time, he expected no one to meet him, but when he was ready to go ashore the officers of the steamer presented him to Brothers Miln and Tallon, who had just come off to the steamer as she lay at anchor some little distance from shore. The Bishop gladly accompanied his unexpected guides, and was soon at the wharf. As he stepped on shore, Capt. F. Crocker, a distinguished North American resident (and one of the stewards of our Church) in Montevideo gave him an address of welcome, and a small crowd standing around burst forth into singing a hymn in English and Spanish at the same time, the words in both languages going to the same tune. The crowd was composed of members of our congregations that had hastily gathered after the steamer's arrival had become known. Surprised and delighted with this greeting the Bishop shook hands with those that had greeted him, while his keys were given to two brethren to have his baggage taken through the Customs office. The officers refused to allow his trunks to be opened, ordering them passed without inspection as a mark of respect. He went to the house of the Superintendent, in whose absence he was entertained by Mrs. Wood. Many went to the house to bid him welcome. A group of children from one of the Sunday-schools called and sang to him some hymns in Spanish. Every body was pleased with him, and his first impressions of South-east South America seemed very favorable. This Episcopal visit to that distant Mission will mark an epoch in its history, as it has only been visited once before, and then but too briefly, by Bishop Foster, nine years ago.—T. B. Wood.

Liberia Conference.

The Conference session opened Jan. 31 and closed Feb. 5. The length of the session was partly occasioned by the death of the Rev. J. S. Payne, which occurred on the evening of the first day, and was an event which profoundly affected the Conference, all the members being at his bedside. Mr. Payne's counsels, particularly at this time, will be greatly missed in the Liberia Mission. He was always loyal to the Church and the Missionary Society. The Rev C. A. Pitman was chosen President of the Conference, and the Rev. James H. Deputie, Secretary. The following is a list of appointments for 1882:

MONROVIA DISTRICT, C. A. Pitman P. E.—Monrovia Circuit and Ammonsville, C. A Pitman, one to be supplied. Robertsport Circuit, New Georgia, and Dixville, B K. M'Keever, H. B Capeheart.

ST. PAUL'S RIVER DISTRICT. D. Ware. P. E.—Caldwell Circuit, to be supplied. Virginia and Brewersville, T. A. Sims Clay Ashland, W. M. R. Richards Millsburgh and White Plains, W. P Kennedy, Sr. Robertsville, T. B. Lane. Careysburg and Bensonville, W. T. Hagans, I. W. Cooper.

BASSA DISTRICT. J. H. Deputie, P. E.—Upper Buchanan, to be supplied. Lower Buchanan, to be supplied. Edina Circuit, C. W. Bryant. Bexley Circuit, to be supplied. Marshall Circuit, to be supplied. Mt. Olive, J. H Deputie, J. Harris, J. P. Artis.

CAPE PALMAS AND SINOE DISTRICT, C. H. Harmon, P. E.—Greenville and Lexington Circuit, W. P. Kennedy, Jr. Binotsville, to be supplied. Mt. Scott and Tubmantown, C. H. Harmon. Mt. Haven and Settra Kroo, to be supplied.

Value of an "Oh!"

An eminent clergyman sat in his study, busily engaged in preparing his Sunday sermon, when his little boy toddled into the room, and holding up his pinched finger, said, with an expression of suffering, "Look," Papa, how I hurt it!"

The father, being thus interrupted in the middle of a sentence, glanced hastily at him; and with just the slightest tone of impatience, said, "I can't help it, Sonny."

The little fellow's big eyes grew bigger, as he turned to go out, he said, in a low voice, "Yes, you could you might have said, 'Oh!'"

The Mr. Keeley, of Philidelphia, whose mysterious motor has been an object of interest to scientific and mechanical genius for several years, has been ordered by the courts to divulge to the stockholders of his concern the secret by which he can extract from a drop of water force enough to lift a ton. Mr. Keeley told the court that he would not obey its order, whereupon the court was indignant, and will punish Mr. Keeley for contempt. It is claimed that nearly a hundred thousand dollars have been wasted by Mr. Keeley in his experiments, and the people who have been furnishing the money think they have been humbugged long enough.

The semi-official newspaper, El Jawaib, says: "The Porte has received a dispatch announcing the movement of the French troops toward the Tripolitan frontier. This inspires doubts of the value of the pacific declarations of France. The Porte proposes to raise the effective force of Turkish troops in Tripoli to 80,000."

Temperance Statistics.

The statistics of the drink traffic may seem trite, but they have a silent power that must impress every one who is willing to examine them and reflect. The common sense of men must be influenced by facts so glaring as those given below from the Boston Christian. In the face of such facts it is not enough to abstain. Earnest and unceasing effort to abolish the whole use of drink must be the duty of Christians. Let us count the cost of rum as compiled by Elizabeth Thompson, of New York:

RUM VS. EDUCATION IN THE UNITED STATES.

EDUCATION.
Schools in the United States	141.625
Teachers	221.042
Pupils	7,209,938
Annual expenses for education	$95,402 716

Cost of liquors in the States and Territories in 1878	$715,575,000
RECAPITULATION.
Rum	$715,575 000
Education	95,402,716
Rum over education	$620,172,284

RUM VS. RELIGION IN THE UNITED STATES.

RELIGION.
Clergy in the United States	83,637
Church members	11,459,584
Sunday-schools	78 046
Teachers	853,100
Sunday-school scholars	6,504,064
Total contributed for the support of religion	$47,633,496

Total contributed for the support of religion	47,636,495
Rum over religion	$667,939,505

COST OF EACH PERSON IN THE UNITED STATES.

Religion—annual contributions	$ 1.11
Education—annual contributions	2 02
Rum—annual contributions	17.00

RUM VS. THE NECESSARIES OF LIFE.

Value of fruits and grains wasted per year in the manufacture of liquors	$ 65,000,000
Total invested in the manufacture and sale of alcoholic liquors in the United States	2,000,000,000
Total crop—wheat, rye, oats, corn, barley, buckwheat, and potatoes in the United States in 1877	1,111,820,575
Rum interest over all	$888,179,425

The liquor traffic imposes a tax of 33 per cent. on the people. The saloons outnumber all other kinds of business houses of any one class in the country. We pay about one-eighth as much for education as for rum, twice as much for intemperance as for the support of the government, and fifteen times as much for the dram shop as to the church. We waste over seven hundred millions of dollars a year for the debasement of the intellect and destruction of the body, and pay, with reluctance, less than one hundred millions for education and culture: then we throw over fifteen times as much into the seething cauldron of rum as we contribute annually to the cause of religion! Are not these startling statements? Do you comprehend the enormity of this national vice? With these facts before us, is it strange that our measure of misery is full? This vast waste would provide a school house, thoroughly appointed, for every fifty of our youth, and set teachers in the midst of them of the highest possible culture. But aside from the lamentable havoc and waste caused by the use of rum, we are compelled to support courts and prisons, and an army of official benefactors in the name of charity, that would be almost wholly unnecessary, were the people taught to shun rum as their greatest enemy. Then would we have work instead of charity, plenty instead of starvation, clean and sightly garments instead of rags, wholesome houses instead of hovels, and health instead of beggary and distress.—Exchange.

TO SERVE SCRAPS OF COLD MEAT A very nice way to serve scraps of cold meat is to cut them in small bits, add a little water, pepper, salt, butter, onion or sage, and stew it awhile. Do not get it too juicy.

The atmosphere of the Mosque of St. Sophia, Constantinople, is filled with the odor of the musk with which Justinian charged the mortar when he rebuilt the church 538 A. D.

The true Christian is like the sun, which pursues his noiseless track, and everywhere leaving the effect of his beams in a blessing upon the world around him.—Luther.

Editorial Correspondence.

Whether in a city of two hundred and twenty thousand inhabitants or out in some country village, or on the plantation, or prairie, the minister of the Lord Jesus Christ will find himself not only among the educated and refined members of society, but also among the ignorant, the vicious, and the depraved. His work of necessity must be "as the shadows that play upon the landscape."

Thursday, March 22, we left home with the usual good-bye's. Our route was over the Morgan road, and we have this to say, that after having rode in over twenty different States in this union, and the Province of Canida, we have never seen conductors more gentlemenly or attentive to the wants of the traveling public than those employed on this road.

Nothing unusual attracted our attention till we passed Raceland, when we came in contact with the awful flood. We had both heard and read of it, but now our eyes for the first time saw something of the devastating flood that is sweeping over certain portions of the Mississippi Valley. We should judge however that the sugar lands between the Lafourche, and the Mississippi, will, comparatively speaking, suffer but little by this overflow, but from Chacahoula on to Morgan City, the entire country is completely submerged; to say nothing of the sufferings of the poor people, the destruction of property, the damage to business is almost incalcuable. The water is pretty well over Morgan City. Nearly all the stores and shops are accessible by means of plank-walks laid upon barrels or boxes. In some of them the water is two or three feet deep. Many of the poor families have been compelled to leave their homes and seek refuge elsewhere. We have no desire to exaggerate; we have strong faith in the indomitable will and perseverance of the people, and no doubt the water will gradually leave bye and bye, but to us the present out-look is a little gloomy. We believe that the grand old Mississippi is government property, and that the nation should bear the expense of keeping it from destroying the lives and property of the people who live in this valley. The life saving service bill now before the Senate is eminently Christian in its spirit. We want to have life-boat stations all along our coast; at the same time we regard it as the imperative duty of the government to protect the people living in the valley of the Mississippi, from all further disasters like the present.

It sometimes happens that a young man has the opportunity of stepping into a well organized business, built up by his father, whom he soon wishes to crowd out, and finally shut out. At Terrebonne, Bro. Carr found a good people, but no well organized and flourishing church and Sunday-school. A wolf in sheep's clothing had been among the sheep, "not but for to steal and to kill and to destroy," he was a "hireling" and "cared not for the sheep." With a heart "strangely warmed" and with kind words for all, lest he should crush the tender buds of good that might be just opening into real christian life and activity, Bro. Carr entered upon his work and thus far the Lord has in a most wonderful manner blessed the labors of his heart and hands. The church, which in the time of the great storm was blown from the blocks upon which it stood, is to be raised up and placed upon brick pillars. The trustees have the money in hand to pay all the expenses. Two good Sunday-schools with over one-hundred and seventy-five scholars have been organized. And a precious religious influence prevails among the people. The out-look is full of [illegible].

"How can I reach the masses," is a question that every true minister of the Lord Jesus must frequently ask himself. Perhaps a study of the past will help answer this question. [illegible] Jesus and his apostles reached the masses by going where they were, and with hearts full of love, and in a common sense style, talked to them about the wonderful things of God, and the "common people heard them gladly." John Wesley, after his heart was "strangely warmed," and he was shut out of the churches in which the people could not go [illegible] forth into the fields, and public [illegible], and reached sometimes ten and twenty thousand ears at once. The [illegible] of the Methodist Episcopal [illegible] reached the masses by going where they were and preaching [illegible] common sense style. [illegible] Bro. Ford is reaching [illegible] large increase [illegible] congregations, [illegible] of grace. The Sunday-school [illegible] past in the [illegible] doubled. Veto of the Chinese Bill.

President Arthur, on the fourth instant, returned the Chinese bill to the Senate, in which body it originated, without his signature. In a calm, dispassionate message, he reviewed the whole subject involved. The total prohibition of the immigration of Chinese laborers for twenty years was unreasonable, and in violation of the spirit and intent of the treaty with China. The inclusion of "skilled labor" in the bill would operate with harshness upon the Chinese merchants entitled to admission under the treaty. The clauses relative to registration and passports was an irritating discrimination against Chinese, and in violation of article two of the treaty, which explicitly concedes them the privileges of the most favored nation. If the bill became a law, it would prejudice intelligent classes against the United States Government, by lack of good faith, while they now greatly admire it. There was no provision in the bill for the transit of Chinese subjects now resident in foreign countries, like Chili and Peru, who, to return home, must cross the country or touch at San Francisco. A denial of this privilege would be a violation of international law and the comity of nations, and result in a great hardship to thousands of innocent Chinese in foreign countries. The commerce and development of the Pacific States and the remunerative Eastern trade, have been great advantages enjoyed, while the policy proposed for adoption would have the tendency to repel Oriental nations from us. It is wiser to make a shorter experiment, with a view only of maintaining such features as time and experience may command.

The practical spirit of the President, and his desire to keep good faith under the Chinese treaty, are honorable and commendable features of the message. This was President Arthur's first veto, and it illustrates the wisdom of placing that power in the hands of the Executive. The nation may now in a respite from official demagogism consider a wiser foreign policy.

Weeding and Hoeing.

What the old farmer said about his patch of potatoes many a Christian pastor has found nearly true of some of his members. "There is no use" said the old man "in trying to keep that patch clean just by weeding and hoeing, I never get done at one end before the weeds are up again at the other end. The only way is to plant so close that there will be no room left for the weeds. There is life in the ground and it will produce something." Yes, there is the trouble, "There is life in the ground and it will produce something." There is life in the heart and something must grow. But the heart is not exactly like a patch of ground. We cannot grow sin out of the heart. Soul culture is the work of weeding, a work of complete cleansing, and a work of planting. There are evils that must be eradicated, filth and uncleanliness that must be washed away before any good can be implanted. The heart unchanged, uncleansed, will grow nothing but weeds, no human power can prevent it. The only help for those members of our churches who keep their pastors all the time "weeding and hoeing" is "the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Ghost."

The Lord's-Day League.

The League organized by the [illegible] clergy and others for the education of the masses to the better observance of the Sabbath, is now an accomplished fact. At the meeting last Monday, the organization was completed by the election of the following officers and managers, who will exercise all the functions of an executive committee, viz: President, W. B. Lyman Esq; Secretary, Rev. H. Waters; Treasurer, Gen. H. N. Ogden; Rev. B. M. Palmer, D. D., Rev. S. Landrum, D. D., Rev. J. B. Walker, D. D., Rev. A. M. Green, Rev. H. M. Thompson, D. D., Hon. Frank McGloin, J. H. Keller Esq. Under the wise management of these distinguised gentlemen, we bespeak for the Lord's Day League great success.

We hear much said in favor of silence. The popular proverb, "Silence seldom does harm," "Least said sooner mended," "Speech is silver, silence is golden," have lead many to think that it is always safe to keep silent and never a sin to be [illegible]. But there is a time to speak. "A man may hold his tongue in an ill time," is a proverb which expresses a great truth. There are times when he sees a fellow of his [illegible] to rebuke him for his sin [illegible] duty. "Thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbor and not suffer sin upon him." There are times when our failing to warn and rebuke makes us responsible for the harm we might have prevented. We are made partakers of other men's sins sometimes when we keep silence. There is much truth in the old Chinese proverb that "one good word can warm three winter months." A word, says Solomon, fitly spoken is "like apples of gold in pictures of silver and, and a word spoken in due season how good it is." Who will say that he is guiltless who allows his neighbor or his friend to pass on to eternity without warning him of his danger as a sinner?

The fact should not be lost sight of, that Senator W. P. Kellogg, of Louisiana, voted against the passage of the Chinese bill over the veto of the President. On this, as on many other occasions, he has given his influence powerfully in behalf of measures beneficial to his constituents and in accord with the highest statesmanship. The Chinese bill, if it became a law, would lead to a cessation of much of our commerce with China, which is now relied upon as a great feeder of the Southern Pacific Railroad and the shipping in the port of New Orleans, at its eastern terminus. Senator Kellogg deserves our most hearty thanks for his allegiance to sound policy on the Chinese question.

An enterprising, public spirited club of this city gave an excursion to Mobile last Sunday. According to their printed programme, they had "every accommodation for ladies and children; also for colored people, baggage, etc." We know not whether the people classified by unholy prejudice with "baggage, etc." accepted their invitation very extensively; but this we do know, that they could not have accepted it in the face of this unnatural classification, except at the expense of their manhood. It is well to remember that dignified manhood spurns every attempt to degrade humanity.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Senator John A. Logan, of Illinois, is seriously ill, and has gone to Hot Springs, Ark.

—T. Morris Chester, late of New-Orleans, publishes the Odd Fellows Gazette, in Harrisburg, Pa.

—Bishop Peck is improving, but Mrs. Peck continues seriously ill, and not entirely out of danger.

—It is proposed in his old District to run Hon. Schuyler Colfax for Congress, with or without his consent. Let it be done.

—Hon T. T. Allain, of Iberville, has gone to Washington to urge the rebuilding of the levees by the national government, as a representative of the Third district Republicans.

—Major Charles W. Howell, U. S. Engineer, stationed in this city twelve years, died on the morning of the 5th. He was a native of Ohio, 41 years of age, and most highly esteemed.

—Bishop Simpson stated to the Philadelphia Conference that Dr Scott Stewart in his will had left $200,000 for the establishment of a Methodist hospital in Philadelphia, and had authorized the Philadelphia Conference to appoint a board of trustees for the hospital. The trust was accepted and trustees appointed.

—Rev. O. Claiborne, pastor of our church in Morgan City, arrived last Friday night, with the 130 refugees on the steamer Corona. His charge is temporarily broken up by the flood, and his personal losses are keenly felt. The brethren here, we have no doubt, will cheerfully sustain him until the waters recede, and he can return to his flock.

—Col Jack Wharton, U. S. Marshall for the Eastern district of Louisiana, died from a stroke of apoplexy, in the office of Surveyor Pinchback, last Friday evening. He was a native of Maryland, and a Confederate Colonel during the war, but identified himself with the Republican party, and was serving his second term in the marshalship. A very large number of warm personal friends, regret his death.

—Bishop Bowman, who is at his home in St. Louis, has been suffering from septic fever, and was taken suddenly worse on last Friday at noon. His condition is most alarming. His mind is serene, and his children and relatives are at his bed side, awaiting the issue. His physicians are not without hope. On Sunday prayers were offered for him in the churches in Cincinnati, and doubtless in all other places which had been reached by the tidings.—Western.

—We regret to learn that Dr. J. P. Newman continues to be too ill to attend to his pulpit or pastorial work. Two weeks ago last Sunday he came home sick with congestion of the kidneys and the liver, and since that date has been very ill. At this writing (Monday) he is still confined to his room. His physician advises him to go to Atlantic City, and he expects to leave for that place on Tuesday of this week. Dr. Newman regards his sickness as the result of malaria, which has lurked in his system since his residence in New Orleans.—N. Y. Advocate, 6th inst.

OUR SOUTHERN WORK.

LOUISIANA.

O. H. Claiborne wrote from Morgan City, April 1: "The water is about to cover this little city. While others were suffering greatly from the high water, we were sorry and prayed for them. Now we are in it. Some of our people have been living in water more than three weeks. The water reached us yesterday. We have been laboring for the Lord. Our success encourages us to do all we can in saving souls. Our revival resulted in six conversions, and during the six weeks I have been here fourteen have been added to our little church. The Sabbath-school has increased from thirty to sixty-five. A small library was made last week, and ten dollars worth of books for Sunday-school use was put in it. The trustees have done twenty-nine dollars worth of work this quarter on our church. The water will prevent us from doing as we desire in our church work. However, we are determined to do all we can. Our presiding elder was a happy man with us last Monday night. He held the quarterly conference, preached a noble sermon, administered the Lord's Supper, and received subscribers for the SOUTHWESTERN."

Rev. Pierre Landry, Presiding Elder of the Baton Rouge District, was the recipient of many kindnesses tendered him on his district. Among the many appreciatory tokens of this sort, is a special reception given him at Jackson, La., by the Feliciana Benevolent Association. This association is young, having been organized in 1881; yet owing to the judicious management of its energetic president, B. L. Perry, and other officers, it has not only accomplished much that is commendable, but has more than $200 in its treasury. Long may it live, and every benevolent endeavor put forth abundantly prosper and succeed!

TEXAS.

Taylor Moore, of Paris, reports a protracted meeting and large congregations. Elder W. L. Molloy held the quarterly conference. A sermon was preached to children, about ninety being present, by Bro. Moore. The school was organized as a missionary society, and its officers are praised for their efficiency.

MISSISSIPPI.

J. P. Jordan, Enterprise: "Bro. C. W. Ivy is pushing the cause of Christ and his Church energetically. Elder Dunn, at quarterly meeting, administered Lord's Supper to forty-five. Collection, $6 75."

W. B. Kendrick, Atlanta: "I have just finished my work of repairs."

TENNESSEE.

M. Williams, Franklin: "We have just closed a four-weeks' meeting, in which the Church was greatly revived. Ten converts, and fourteen joined the church."

Lexington Conference.

BY W. H. ONGLEY.

This body met in Jackson street M. E. Church, Louisville, Ky., on Wednesday the 29th ult. Bishop Foster, owing to the sickness and necessary absence of Bishop Bowman arrived on the third morning and presided. Dr. J. M. Reid, Missionary Secretary, and Dr. J. M. Walden, of the Western Book Concern, accompanied the Bishop, and addressed the conference on the relative enterprises of the M. E. Church. The leading and most active men of this conference, Rev. M. W. Taylor, D. D., Revs. E. W. S. Hammond, G. W. Hatton, J. W. Moreland, Henry Cardoza, J. Courtney, Dan Jones, and others are rejoicing in the grand results of their labors. From nine members at the organization in 1869, they now number over one hundred, including probationers. Of the old stalwarts—the original nine—more than half of them have gone to their reward up on high.

This, their thirteenth annual session, was a good one for our church and particularly for the colored branch of it. Though somewhat in the rough, yet the "toning down," so neatly and kindly done by the bishop was appreciated and as kindly received by the brethren. The presiding elder of each of the five districts, represented by them, showed great prosperity. The districts in Ohio and Indiana, Drs. Taylor and Hammond, presiding elders, are particularly flourishing.

The usual business of the conference was put through pretty rapidly, but very satisfactorily.

On Sunday, the brethren, by invitation of all the colored churches, almost "every name and order," on both sides of the river, around the Ohio Falls, filled their pulpits for them, generally with great credit. On Mason and Dixon's Line the old prejudicial mark against color, stands out very prominent. Those leading, grand men, mentioned above, equal in polemics, culture, pulpit eloquence and power, having general access to our best churches in such cities as Indianapolis, Columbus, Ohio, and even Cincinnati, are ostracised and ignored here. But, bless God, the distinctive black mark is more manifest than a white one often.

Bishop Foster, Dr. Rust, Dr. Braden, each gave eclat to the occasion, and their many timely words proved a general rousement. A kind of religious snap from these fathers in our Methodist Israel, so winsome, wholesome and good, told just at the right time and as by inspiration, makes us to wish they might live a thousand years. There were eight ordained deacons and seven as elders by the bishop on the Sabbath.

The temperance and tobacco questions came up and were thoroughly discussed and converts made, who stood up and pledged themselves, by the help of God to teetotally abstain from the destructive habits still lingering about them.

With the aid of local preachers, as supplies, this conference is making quite a rapid advancement and will likely by the next General Conference have to be divided. The brethren are "pushing the battle to the gates," and winning grand victories for Christ and Methodism, going out with great confidence in the Captain of Salvation, almost without purse or scrip. Indeed, the vast majority of them have necessarily to work with their own hands for maintenance, so meagre and poor are the societies they gather together in the new fields they go out to cultivate.

From Baton Rouge District.

EDITOR SOUTHWESTERN: Concluding my first quarterly round, I beg to state the condition of the work on the district.

I visited Rev. R. T. Louis, at Plaquemine, and perfected the organization of the Church, with sixteen members. The people received Bro. Louis kindly, and but for the overflow, I am sure a new church would be reported at the next session of the Conference.

I could not reach Rosedale, on account of the flood. Rev. Andrew Jackson reported nearly five feet of water in his magnificent little church, which was completed last year, and, it being plastered, the damage will be very heavy. Here is a letter from Rosedale, which speaks for itself:

ROSEDALE, March 31, 1882.

REV. PIERRE LANDRY—Dear Brother: At 12 to day, the levee broke, just above town, and in two hours the whole town was flooded to the depth of three or four feet. So many cattle are being drowned, and such excitement among the people! The water carries every thing before it. The lowing and screaming of the poor beasts is pitiful. It is supposed that over 500 were drowned, and there is no way to save them. I stood on the levee and saw my horse as he went down. I turned away and came home, where there is nothing to be seen but water. We expect the boat to-night. Can you drop me a few lines?

Yours most sorrowfully.

A. JACKSON

At Myrtle Grove, Brother R. J Thomas is doing well.

At Bayou Sara, I met Brother E. Harrison, but on account of the flood could do nothing.

Bro. John Qualls, at Jackson, has taken hold with commendable earnestness. Much good may be expected under his management. During my visit to this place sixteen persons united with the Church.

At State Line, Bro Chas. Barnes is moving on nicely.

At Wesley Chapel, we met Bro Hampton James, who is deep in the hearts of his people. On this occasion twenty-two persons joined the Church. The people are poor; but love for God constrains them to do all they can for the Old Mother Church. It was our good pleasure to meet Sister James, for the first time, who is certainly a preacher's wife, and as such truly—a helpmate. God bless them!

At Clinton, Bro. Wm. P. Forest is earnestly and effectively at work. Loved and respected by all the people, as he is, much good may be expected at this place. We held joint conference with Bro. C. W. Kershaw and his officers, who expressed great satisfaction with the appointment of the Bishop. "Bro. Kershaw," they say, "is the right man in the right place."

Bro. George Lacey, at Mt. Carmel, is doing his work faithfully.

At Comite, Rev. Chas. Monroe is hard at work trying to finish his church, which was commenced by his predecessor, and which will when finished supply a long-felt want and do credit to him.

After a tedious drive over fifteen miles of some of the worst roads we have traveled for a long time, we reached Bro. Rogers' church in the Plains. We held our quarter and administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper to ninety-eight communicants, baptized many children, and left the pastor and people much encouraged. Brother Rogers is the supply of Mt. Pleasant Circuit this year.

At East Baton Rouge, Bro. Hudson is faithfully at work raising means to build a new church. Operations will commence some time this month. Last Sunday $300 of the amount subscribed was paid. The church is full of zeal; its spiritual interests are not overlooked. Ten joined the church on probation and one by letter, and ten were baptized, three by pouring, and seven by immersion.

At West Baton Rouge, Bro. J. H. Rylander is holding his own, although entirely surrounded by water.

The flood renders my reaching the following places impossible: Lake Providence, Bayou Letsworth, Union Chapel, New Texas Landing, and New Roads.

Much suffering and distress prevails just now. Many of our people are homeless, starving, sick, and destitute. True, government rations and relief through committees are doing much good, but even this is inadequate to relieve the untold misery resulting from the overflow.

SECOND QUARTER. LESSON III. April 16.
THE FIVE THOUSAND FED. (Mark [illegible]-44.)
(Condensed from Western Christian Advocate)

Our first lesson this quarter told us how Jesus sent his disciples out to preach. They went out two and two and in this lesson they come to tell him about their work. But it seemed as if they could not even find a chance to do that, because so many people were coming and going. At last Jesus said: "Come, we will go across to a quiet place, so we can rest." Jesus was tired, so were his disciples. So they took little boats and crossed over.

The crowd saw them, and were so anxious to hear and see more of Jesus that they ran along the shore of the sea and came around to the place where Jesus and his disciples were going. It was at the upper end of the sea, so they went fast on land, while the little boats filled with the tired desciples went slower. When they landed there was no rest; just a great crowd. Did Jesus get angry and say, "I am tired out; let me rest?" Would that sound like him? Men would do that, but Jesus never spoke that way. He was tired, but he began to teach again.

At last evening was coming, and the disciples told Jesus to send the people away, so that they could go where they might get something to eat. Jesus said, "Give them to eat." But the poor disciples said, "Shall we go and buy bread for all these? We have only five loaves and two fishes." Jesus told them to have the people sit down. Then he took the bread and fishes, thanked his heavenly Father for them, and then the five thousand people ate, and twelve basketsful were left. This was a miracle. Jesus made the little bit a great feast.

He knew the people needed it, and so he gave it. Jesus can do as much for his people now as then. He can take black sin away, and feed the whole world full of hungry souls. Jesus cared for people then, so we know he cares for us now. He never turned a poor one away; and if we only let him, this same kind, pitiful Jesus will give us a new heart, and then we can sing "I'm the child of a King."

DEATHS.

Sister Luvina Davis died Dec. 10; leaving a husband; sister Ella Lisba, February 14; Sister Hannah Baker, Dec. 14.

M. PROCTOR.

Aberdeen, Miss

With sadness I announce the death of Mrs. Hattie Murphy, daughter of Rev. C. Gillespie, who passed away March 26. She was a loving wife and a good Sunday-school mate. Father, mother, two children and many friends mourn her loss.

C. W. IVY.

Enterprise, Miss.

Brother Dave Jackson, a useful and faithful member of the M. E. Church, departed this life in the full triumph of faith, March 8th. I am very proud to say Brother Jackson when living was always found at his post. A dear mother and many friends to mourn his loss.

Robert L. Provine, son of Rev. Eli Provine, was born May 16th, 1870, at Lebanon, Tenn., died February 10th, 1882, aged 11 years, 8 months, 23 days. When he was only four years old he lost his mother and four sisters. While on his death bed his father asked him if he remembered his mother, said he. "Yes she told us to meet her in heaven. Papa I shall soon be with mother and sisters," and you, too, will get there after awhile papa." He seemed to be perfectly conscious of his death, and died in full triumph of faith. Rev. Provine has been visited by death six times since the beginning of 1874. But in the midst of what seems dark comes the blessed assurance that all will meet their Savior.

The question of union is being favorably discussed among the various Methodist denominations of Canada.

Mr. R. J. Sherwin, of Concord, N. H., writes: "I have a good old aunt who keeps house for wife and me. Of late she has been groaning and complaining. Our family doctor could not find out what ailed her, and yet often she would keep her bed for several days. I persuaded her to try Brown's Iron Bitters, and to my astonishment she has never complained since. She now calls it 'her medicine,' and recommends it to everybody.

NEW BOOKS.

THE CROWN OF PRAISE. By Aldine S. Kieffer and J. H. Tenney. Price 75 cts. O. Ditson & Co., Boston.

There is a novelty about this book, which, aside from its excellence as a collection of sterling music, for singing schools and choir use, will find favor in the eyes of many. The patent character note, by means of which you can at once determine the name of any syllable in any key, will be found of great service to beginners, and as character notes may be played or sung from as well as the ordinary round notes, it becomes a book which may be used to advantage by one and all, old or young, however much or little advanced in the study of music. There are 176 large church music pages, containing Gospel songs, anthems, etc.

The Comparative New Testament, both versions on the same page in parallel columns published by Porter & Coats, Philadelphia has been improved, and it is now believed that this Comparative New Testament is, beyond all comparison, the most valuable and desirable edition of the work in the market. Additions and Improvements: 1. Chapter headings in Roman numerals; 2. Running Head-lines as in the old version: 3. Chronology of the New Testament: 4. The Readings preferred by the American Committee, which were adopted by the Committee on Revision, are incorporated in the text. Those which were rejected are collectively in Appendix, and for convenience of reference are also inserted as foot-notes to the respective passages: 5. A History of the Revision, and an Account of the Methods followed by the Committee on Revision.

DELICATE PERSONS

And all those whose systems have become debilitated, should bear in mind that Simmons Liver Regulator is not a drastic purging medicine, therefore does not weaken or deplete the system as all purgatives do; it induces daily natural evacuations without straining, griping or pain; therefore its action being so gentle invigorates the bowels and tends to make the habit of the body regular, assisting nature rather than forcing it, thereby preventing as well as curing constipation, and the many diseases arising therefrom, the most common of which are piles, which are produced by constipation and increased by purgatives. It will be found most appropriate for ladies and delicate persons; as they very frequently suffer from Sick Headache and Acidity of the Stomach, principally caused by costiveness. Owing to its mild action it can even be taken by the weak and debilitated at all times and under all circumstances with perfect safety. As a Medicine the Regulator is invaluable, by encouraging the prompt clearing out of the excess of bile which would undoubtedly prove injurious. From its gentle action as well as its pleasant taste it is most peculiarly adapted for Children, acting so soothingly, never irritating the stomach of the most delicate Child. Thereby saving them from the ravages of diseases so common to infancy and youth.

The bed-ridden, the most delicate home-bound invalid need not hesitate to use the Regulator, and mothers and nurses may give it to children for their most distressing complaint with the utmost confidence in its safety. We say, without fear of contradiction, that there is not on the whole face of the globe its equal at the present moment, or another medicine so far-reaching or that meets with such unerring, such invariable success in the cure of all diseases of the liver, kidney and bowels.

Beware of Counterfeits; take only the genuine in white wrapper with red "Z" in front prepared by J. H. Zeilin & Co.

"Buckwheat Cakes and the Measles."

When a young husband had gone from home, and with fond solicitude telegraphed his little wife,—"what have you for breakfast, and how's is the baby?"—he received the brief suggestive reply,—"Buckwheat Cakes and the Measles." We have the report of a case in our midst, not where Measles was in the bill of fare, but where Sciatic Rheumatism confined Mr. J. Dawson, the well-known druggist, to his room for a long period. It was stated to our reporter in the following words: The senior of this firm was attacked with Sciatic Rheumatism December last, and for four weeks could scarcely leave his room. He used St. Jacob's Oil, and is now able to be at his place of business, feeling no worse for his recent affliction. The inference is convincing.

The World's Epileptic Institute.

While passing through St. Joseph, and having heard a great deal about the World's Epileptic Institute located here, I concluded to pay the celebrated institution a short visit. We were met by Dr. Richmond, the proprietor, who has gained a reputation as broad as the land. He is a rather small, yet prepossessing man, of very affable and gentlemanly manners. He gave us a hearty welcome, and took great pains in showing us through his palatial and mammoth institution. It is a five-story building, 200x150 feet, with basement, and contains over three hundred rooms, and can accommodate five hundred patients, and each and every room is furnished in the most elegant and lavish manner. But we will begin at the office, which is a large room furnished with rosewood furniture throughout. In the office are thousands of photographs of those who have been benefited by the Nervine. The walls are elegantly papered, and are profusely decorated with rich and costly pictures, relieved here and there by busts in stone and bronze of eminent men of this and other countries. In connection with the Institution is a mammoth printing house and bindery, occupying six or seven large rooms, and a score of presses are kept running night and day turning out work for the doctor. The office is one of the finest and most complete in the West, and he has the rooms decorated, carpeted and trimmed up with as much care and luxury as is his own private office. On the first floor of this mammoth building is the doctor's private office, the printing department, bindery, tank room, packing, bottling and consultation rooms, barber shop, drug store, etc., all of which are fitted up regardless of expense. The second floor has the hotel office, dining, billiard and cooking rooms, many guest chambers and several parlors. The third and fourth floors are all rooms, all of which are furnished with Brussels carpets and the finest furniture. The billiard room has six tables, all of which are free to the guests of the house and their friends. The bath room is large and neat, and is also free to guests. The entire building is surrounded on the east and south by an elegant five acre park, in which are lovely trees, beds of rich and rare plants, gravel walks and drives, delicious arbors, and a most beautiful summer house. There are also a number of fountains that add wonderfully to the beauty of the park, which is truly one of the most lovely and attractive in the western country, and the Institution has no equal for luxury and comfort in the world. Everything is perfection, and the visitor is at once charmed with the entire place and its surroundings. An idea of the immensity of the doctor's business may be given when we say that on the day we visited the Institute he showed us to his express room, and we saw the expressman take goods labeled to the following places, to say nothing of hundreds of orders from all quarters of America: Lyons, France; Geneva, Switzerland; Madrid, Spain; Brussels, Belgium; Cape Town, Africa; Shanghai, China; Yokohama, Japan; Bombay, India; Melbourne, Australia. The doctor employs hundreds of men and women in his Institute in the several branches, aside from the immense force required to conduct the hotel. It is worth a visit, and Dr. Richmond extends to all a cordial invitation to come and see him. He and his wonderful medical discovery have given to St. Joseph a good name all over the habitable globe.

CLEOPATRA

OR THE

Queen of Sheba's Beauty

WAS BUT SKIN DEEP.

The renowned Queen of Sheba, with all her royal pomp, magnificent apparel, and brilliant retinue, would never have appeared within the presence of the grandest of monarchs of the past had she not also possessed that which is the crowning glory of the female person—a skin unchallenged for its Oriental softness and its almost transcendental purity. Cleopatra, holding emperors at bay, and ruling empires by her word, had quickly lost her charm and power by one attack of blotches, or of pimples, or of horrid tan and freckles.

WOMAN RULES THE WORLD

by her beauty, not less than by her purity of character, loveliness of disposition and unselfish devotion. Indeed, in the estimation of perhaps too many men beauty in a body takes precedence over every other consideration. Beauty thus forms an important part of woman's "working capital," without which too many, (if not bankrupt in what relates to influence within the circle where they move) are powerless for great good. Hence we see not only the propriety but the duty of every lady preserving with zealous care that which to her is essential to success, and influence and usefulness in life. And, since "beauty is but skin deep," the utmost care and vigilance are required to guard it against the many ills that flesh is heir to. Among the great and annoying enemies of beauty, as well as of comfort, happiness and health, are those pestiferous and horrid skin diseases—tetters humors, eczema, (salt rheum) rough and scaly eruptions, ulcers, pimples, and all diseases of the hair and scalp. For the cure of these, Dr. C. W. Benson, of Baltimore, after years of patient study and investigation devoted to diseases of the skin, at last brought forth his celebrated SKIN CURE, which has already by its marvelous cures established itself as the great remedy for all diseases of the skin, whatever be their names or character. Its success has been immense and unparalleled. All druggists have it. It is elegantly put up, two bottles in one package. Internal and external treatment. Price $1 00.

OF EITHER SEX

SAMARITAN

NERVINE.

Samaritan Nervine

Cures Epileptic Fits, Spasms, Convulsions, St. Vitus Dance, Virtigo, Hysterics, Insanity, Apoplexy, Paralysis, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Nervous diseases. This infallible remedy will positively eradicate every species of Nervous Derangement, and drive them away from whence they came, never to return again. It utterly destroys the germs of disease by neutralizing the hereditary taint or poison in the system, and thoroughly eradicates the disease, and utterly destroys the cause.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Female Weakness, general Debility, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Painful Menstruation, Ulceration of the Uterus, Internal Heat, Gravel Inflammation of the Bladder, Irritability of the Bladder. For Wakefulness at night, there is no better remedy. During the change of life no female should be without it. It quiets the Nervous System and gives rest, comfort and nature's sweet sleep.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Alcoholism, Drunkenness and the habit of Opium Eating. These degrading habits are by far the worst evils that have ever befallen suffering humanity. Thousands die annually from these noxious drugs. The drunkard drinks liquor not because he likes it, but for the pleasure of drinking and treating his friends, little thinking that he is on his road to ruin. Like the Opium Eater, he first uses the drug in small quantities as a harmless antidote. The soothing influence of the drug takes strong hold upon its victim, leading him on to his own destruction. The habits of Opium Eating and Liquor Drinking are precisely what eating is to alimentiveness, as over-eating first inflames the stomach, which redoubles its cravings until it paralyzes both the stomach and appetite. So every drink of liquor or dose of opium, instead of satisfying, only adds to its fierce fires, until it consumes the vital force and then itself. Like the gluttonous tape-worm, it cries: "Give, give, give!" but never enough until its own rapacity devours itself. Samaritan Nervine gives instant relief in all such cases. It produces sleep, quiets the nerves, builds up the nervous system, and restores body and mind to a healthy condition.

SAMARITAN NERVINE

Cures Nervous Dyspepsia, Palpitation of the Heart, Asthma, Bronchitis, Scrofula, Syphilis, diseases of the Kidneys and all diseases of the urinary organs. Nervous debility, caused by the indiscretions of youth, permanently cured by the use of this invaluable remedy. To you, young middle-aged and old men, who are covering your sufferings as with a mantle by silence, look up, you can be saved by timely efforts, and make ornaments to society, and jewels in the crown of your Maker, if you will. Do not keep this a secret longer, until it saps your vitals, and destroys both body and soul. If you are thus afflicted, take DR. RICHMOND'S Samaritan Nervine. It will restore your shattered nerves, arrest premature decay, impart tone and energy to the whole system

A WONDERFUL [illegible]d SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY.

These Glasses are chemically treated in the process of manufacture, and possess the property of keeping your eyes in good condition, as when first you use them. They have been carefully examined and analysed by American and European oculists, who claim that the MEDICATED GLASSES have no equal, and can in some cases restore the sight if used in time, but in no case can the eye become impaired by their use for the following reasons:

1. The chemicals soften the light to the eye, completely doing away with that tiresome sensation that is usually experienced in using glasses after one or two hours' use.
2. The chemicals make the glasses hard; they retain their polish. Hence you will always see through them as bright and clear as at first.
3. The chemicals keep the glasses cold, and the result is that the optic nerves are always cool, doing away with any feverish sensation to the eye.
4. With these glasses you can read, write or sew all night, the light having no effect on the eye, with no distressing or tiresome sensation, which necessarily improves the eye.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

New Orleans Preachers on the Ritual.

The following resolutions were ordered to be printed in the SOUTHWESTERN CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE by the New Orleans Preachers meeting convened at Wesley Chapel, March 16th. For a conformity of ideas, and to work to an advantage in administrating the rites of the discipline, which some measure have been neglected. In the administration of the Lord's Supper,

Be it Resolved, That we impress these three things upon the minds of our people:

First—Fasting and prayer.

Second—Sermon on the Crucifixion of Christ.

Third—Meditation on the Death of Christ.

ON THE BURIAL OF THE DEAD—THE SERVICE AT CHURCH OR HOME.

First—A brief Exhortation touching the Life of the Deceased.

Second—Singing and Prayer.

Third—Reading the Ritual or any Appropriate Scripture.

Fourth—Invite all concerned to take a last look at the Corpse.

AT THE GRAVE.

First—Read that portion of the Discipline recommended.

Second—Conduct to suit occasion—This is left to the judgment of the Preacher.

Third—Benediction.

Seeing the great evil arising from the vigils kept over the dead called wakes

Resolved That while we hold vigils over the dead ought to be kept, we discountenance the great excitements caused by these gatherings, making night hideous, and placing us in a light detrimental to us as preachers. R. L. BEAL, Secretary.

The A. M. E. Church and parsonage at Helena, Ark., were totaly destroyed recently. Insured for $3,000.

A Physician's Opinion.

A physician, writing to the Journal of Health, in speaking of Brown's Iron Bitters, having carefully analyzed its ingredients, says: "There is no other remedy in existence so harmless and yet so effective. No other compound should ever be used for general ill health and chronic diseases of the pulmonary, digestive, and urinary organs. It is mild, yet sure in its action, and gradually restores perfect health and strength to every function of the organs of life. Its action is so very mild that there is no room left for reaction and relapse, neither will its discontinuance bring on a craving for its use or renewal of past disorders.

PRESENTIMENTS.

AN INVESTIGATION OF THE CAUSES OF THOSE DARK FOREBODINGS WHICH MAKE POWERFUL MEN WEAK.

Golden Rule.

Much apprehension has been occasioned throughout America from the announcement made by Professor Proctor that the return in the nineteen years of the great comet of last summer will cause the destruction of the earth. But while people are becoming so strangely exercised over this announcement, an event of far more serious importance, which is taking place to-day, seems to be almost wholly overlooked. The nature of this most vital subject can be best explained by relating the following experiences:

Bishop E. O. Haven, known to the entire land, was unaccountably awakened one night out of a sound sleep, and lay awake until morning. His mind seemed unusually active, and he not only reviewed his past life, which had been an eventful one, but laid extensive plans for the future. He did not feel especially ill, but could not account for the unusual activity of his brain, nor for the restlessness which seemed to possess him. In the morning he had but little appetite but was apparently well in other respects. In a few days, however, he began to feel restless and morbid, although he tried earnestly to overcome the feeling which had taken possession of him. But try as he would the shadow of some evil seemed to follow him, and he was conscious of a gradual sinking and wasting away of all his physical faculties. He had been an earnest and diligent worker, and in his zeal frequently overtaxed his strength, and being absorbed in his duties failed to observe the common symptoms with which he was afflicted, thus permitting the work of destruction to go on unheeded. But the end finally came in a most peremptory manner. Shortly before his death he wrote a letter—the last one he ever indited—in which he speaks as follows: "A belief that death is near affects different minds differently, but probably all who are in fair condition of physical and mental strength instinctively shrink from it with an indefinable dread and horror. A dying man is no more able of himself to foresee his own destiny or the destiny of those he leaves than he was before he began to die."

The recent sad and sudden death of Hon. Clarkson Potter is one of the most serious warnings ever given in the long list of innumerable cases of fatal neglect. It is not sufficient to say that many other brilliant men, including Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wood, Wilson and Carpenter, were swept away by the same fatal trouble. The question is, were these men sufficiently careful of their health, and [illegible] have been saved? The Albany Argus in speaking of Mr. Potter's sudden illness and death, says: [illegible] the physicians who attended Mr. Potter here was interviewed last evening. He stated [illegible] Potter's inability to continue [illegible] for some time served to [illegible] physicians in their efforts [illegible] the root of his illness [illegible] however, that Mr. Potter, [illegible] years ago, suffered a [illegible] of kidney disease. [illegible] upon a robust [illegible] and naturally perfect [illegible] neglect of proper [illegible] sowed the seeds [illegible] needed but some [illegible] neglect as that of [illegible] to develop. From [illegible] first shown, it [illegible] that his only trouble [illegible] prostration; but his [illegible] in a semi-uncon[illegible] to the belief that [illegible] seated in a chronic [illegible] mysterious and [illegible]."

[illegible] part of last year [illegible] a member of [illegible] exchange, was [illegible] street, New [illegible]

[illegible] acute pain, had dull, aching sensations in his limbs and various parts of his body. Shortly after his head began to ache most frequently and his stomach failed to digest properly. Being told that he was suffering from malaria he consulted an eminent physician, who informed him that his kidneys were affected, and gave him medicine to restore them. But he grew worse instead of better. He then consulted other eminent doctors of another school and was informed that he had a brain difficulty somewhat in the nature of a tumor, but in spite of all efforts to the contrary he continued to grow worse. At this time his condition was terrible. What were at first simple symptoms had developed to terrible troubles. He was flushed and feverish, constantly uneasy, and yet always weary. He had so intense appetite one day and very little the next. His pulse was irregular, his breathing labored, and every moment of existence was a burden. These disastrous symptoms continued, his face and body became discolored, his heart was irregular in its action, and his breath came in short convulsive gasps. He grew constantly worse, notwithstanding the utmost precautions of his friends and finally died in the greatest agony. After his death an examination as to its actual cause was made, when his brain was found to be in a perfect condition, and the reason of his decease was of an entirely different nature."

The experiences which have been cited above all had a common cause and were each the result of one disease. That disease, which so deceitfully, yet surely removed the people above mentioned was Bright's disease of the kidneys. In the case of Mr. Rook the examination after death, while showing the brain to be in perfect condition, revealed the terrible fact that he was the victim of a slight kidney trouble, which had gone on unchecked, until it resulted in acute Bright's disease. The leading physicians and scientists of the world are fast learning that more than one-half the deaths which occur are caused by this monstrous scourge. It is one of the most deceitful maladies ever know to the human race. It manifests itself by symptoms so slight and common, as to seem unworthy of attention; and yet these very insignificant symptoms are the first stages of the worst complaint known in the history of the world. Thousands of people have died from troubles that are called heart disease, apoplexy, pneumonia, brain fever, and similar diseases, when it was, in fact Bright's disease of the kidneys. The ravages of this disease have been greatly increased from the fact that until recent years no way was known to prevent its beginning nor check its increase when it had become once fixed upon the system. Within the past two years, however, we have learned of more than four hundred pronounced cases of Bright's disease, many of them much worse than those above described, and most of whom had been given up by prominent physicians, who have been completely cured. The means used to accomplish this end has been Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, manufactured in Rochester, N. Y., a remedy that has won its way into the confidence of the public solely upon the remarkable merits it possesses. As a result, it is more widely used and throughly praised than any medicine which has ever been before the American public. Indeed there is not a drug store in the entire land where it cannot be found.

Although Bright's disease is so common in cities, it is still more prevalent in the country. When eminent physicians in the largest cities are not able to recognize Bright's disease, it is only natural that in the country, where there are few physicians of any kind, and those few so unacquainted with the disease as to call it by some other name, it should rage terribly and yet unknown to the ones who are suffering with it. Thousands of people can look back and recall the the death of friends from what was supposed to be some common complaint, when it was really Bright's disease, and no one knew it. The terrible pleuro pneumonia, which has been so dreaded, is usually the result of uremic or kidney poison. Lung fever can be traced to a similar source. Most cases of paralysis arise from the same difficulty, as well as innumerable fevers, lung, throat, head and bowel troubles. A vast number of ladies have suffered and died from complaints common to their sex called, perhaps, general debility, when, could the real cause have been known, it would have been found to be Bright's disease, masquerading under another name. In marked contrast to the sad cases which have been above described are the experiences of many prominent people who were as low as any of the persons mentioned, but who were remarkably restored to former health and vigor by this same remedy. Among this number are the following prominent names: Col. John C. Whitner, Atlanta, Ga; B. F. Larrabee, Boston, Mass.; Gen. O. A. Heckman, Phillipsburg, N. J; Rev. D. D. Buck, D. D. Geneva, N. Y.; Dr. F. A. McManus, Baltimore, Md; Edwin Fay, Davenport, Iowa; Rev. A. C. Kendrick, LL. D., Rochester, N. Y.; J. S. Matthews, Portland, Mich; C. W. Eastwood, New York; Dr. A. A. Ramsay, Albia, Iowa; Chancellor C. N. Sims, D. D., Syracuse, N. Y.; Dr. S. P. Jones, Marinette, Wis.; T. S. Ingraham, Cleveland, O.; Henry T. Champney, Boston, Mass.; Elder James S. Prescott, North Union, O., who is a prominent member of the Shaker community, and many others.

[illegible] the force of [illegible] must come with [illegible] They show the im[illegible] and atten[illegible] of dis[illegible] be[illegible] departs.

THE AMERICAN ART EXCHANGE

Begs leave to call the attention of the American people to its mode of business, and asks the support of the art-loving public. We shall, as rapidly as possible, bring out in this country all the famous art works of the Old World, and at prices which will enable the people of moderate means to adorn their homes with the choicest art works.

As an introductory example of the quality and style of work which will be produced, we will take pleasure in forwarding a Complimentary Copy of the first edition of art work produced by us in America.

Visitors to the Dore Gallery, London, will remember the superb Painting, occupying nearly the entire side of the splendid gallery, entitled

"CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM."

Of this magnificent painting—the most important of Dore's works—a pure line steel engraving has just been completed in England. This engraving is only sold by subscription, and the price is £6, or about $30. It is impossible to secure a copy at a less price except through this house. The engraving represents the Savior as He is leaving the Pretorium or Court after being condemned to crucifixion. He is decending the steps leading from the judgment court. At the foot of the steps are two burley executioners in charge of the cross which the Savior is to bear. On the right are the followers and believers of Christ, while the mother of our Lord is an agonized and fainting attendant. In the rear and on the left are the judges and scoffers, surrounding Pontius Pilate; who are looking with fierce complacency on their work. The central figure is that of Christ, as he uncomplainingly decends the steps to take up the cross and bear it to the scene of his crucifixion. There are upward of One thousand figures represented, prominent among which are Our Savior, Caiphas, Annas, Alexander. The Virgin, Mary Magdalene, Judas, Pilate, Herod, and a host of other historical names. An outline engraving with numbers and figures, indentifying the prominent characters, accompanies each of the the large works, thus making the picture a valuable historical reference. It stands to-day unquestionably.

The Finest and most Valuable Engraving in the World.

The engraving of the plate alone cost upward of $30,000, and no copies are sold at a less price than $30, which, with duties and shipping added, brings the cost to American purchasers to not less than $40 per copy.

This splendid work is the first of a series of the prominent art works of Europe which the American Art Exchange will produce in America, simultaneously with their production in the Old World, and at prices which will enable the multitude to purchase.

This first work will be used as an introductory advertisement, and will be furnished

Free to all Applicants.

It is a correct reproduction of the English plate which sells at $30 per copy, many of which have been purchased by a number of Americans at that price, who subscribed for it through the English house. The American edition will be furnished in the same size (25x36 inches) and with the same attention to perect work as characterizes the $30 copies.

The object of this extraordinary offer is to bring our enterprise into immediate recognition in this country, so that when future works are announced the public will have had an opportunity to judge of the quality and beauty of the art work produced by the American Art Exchange.

Until the first edition is exhausted we will ship a perfect copy of this work, together with a smaller outline key engraving, to any applicant. The engraving, which is a very large one, will be put up in a heavy tube, and sent by mail. The only charge will be the cost of tubing and postage (the shipping being being done by contract) which will be 36 cents or twelve 3 cent stamps. It was at first thought that 30 cents would be sufficient for this charge, but from frequent breaking of the tubes in the mail bags, it was decided to increase the thickness of the tubes (thus making them heavier) so that they could not be broken except in case of accident. This necessitated an increase of charge to 36 cents. On receipt of application the engraving will be immediately forwarded, all charges prepaid, to any address in the United States, when twelve 3 cent stamps are inclosed in letter to cover charge.

Two or more copies, each for a different person, but to the same address, can be forwarded at a charge of 27 cents each copy, as one tube can be used for several copies. We advise clubs to send together, as several copies can be sent together with greater safety than single engravings. Not more than ten copies will be sent to any address for distribution, and the name of each member of the club must be sent. Address all letters to

An exchange says that in 1880, the last year for which the returns have been made up, the Irish people paid more money to liquor dealers than to landlords. Their liquor bill was larger than their rent bill by nearly $10,000,000. The worst of oppression in Ireland is that of liquor drinking. More harm comes from this than from any other source.

"Rough on Rats."

The thing desired found at last. Ask druggists for "Rough on Rats." It clears out rats, mice, roaches, flies, bed-bugs. 15c. boxes.

Exchange of pulpits is a good thing. If ministers knew how much good an exchange does they would practice it oftener.

A GREAT REVELATION

Some Valuable Thoughts Concerning Human Happiness, and Timely Suggestions about Securing It.

Synopsis of a Lecture Delivered by Dr. Chas. Craig before the Metropolitan Scientific Association.

The free and independent thought of this age accepts statements only where they are proven to be truth, while the development of mental power seems equally great in every other department of life. The valuable inventions of the day are counted by thousands. The increase of scientific study is universal. The spirit of inquiry in all fields is so marked as to cause

COMMENT ON EVERY SIDE,

while people seem investigating and advancing in every direction which can help them morally, mentally, or physically. This is specially true of the human body and of everything which concerns it, and the truths which the people have found, even in the last fifty years, are simply marvelous. How really ignorant some cultured and supposably scientific people were only a few years ago, as compared with the present day, may be better understood from a few illustrative facts. A prominent writer prepared an elaborate essay to prove that steamships could never cross the Atlantic, and his pamphlet was issued just in time to be carried by the first steamer that went to England. People once believed that the heart was the seat of life and health. It is now known that this organ is only a pump simply keeping in motion what other and more important organs of the body have created and transformed. It was once supposed that if a person felt a pain in the back the liver was deranged; if a pain in the lower chest, the lungs were affected and consumption was near; it is now known that a pain in the back indicates diseased kidneys, while troubles in the lower chest arise from a disordered liver and not from imperfect lungs. A severe pain in the head was once thought to come from some partial derangements of the brain; it is now known that troubles in other parts of the body and away from the head, cause headaches, and that only by removing the cause can the pain be cured. It is a matter of
